Weekly Crop Bulletin.

(For week ending Sunday, Aug. 1, 1904.)

The week as a whole was favorable for the advancement of farm work for the growth and maturity of crops. There was very little precipitation until toward the end of the week, when copious and in some localities excessive rains occurred over the northern part of the state. In some sections the rains were accompanied with high winds, causing considerable damage to standing grain and washing cornfields.

In the southern portions of the state the rains were scattered and generally light while there is sufficient moisture for present needs in some localities, the greater portion of the southern half of the state is greatly in need of a copious rain.

The temperature was very favorable for grain but the nights were too cool for corn to make very rapid growth.

Winter wheat and rye are mostly in shock in the southern and central counties and ready for cutting in the northern. These crops are considered satisfactory both as to quality and yield. Barley is generally ripe and mostly in the shock in the southern and central sections. Some threshing has been done and the yield is good. The quality of the grain is excellent. Oats are ripening rapidly and a large acreage will be cut during the coming week. The straw is rather short and there is little lodging. In some of the western and northern counties rust is reported but as the grain is about matured the damage will be slight. Spring wheat and rye are maturing rapidly and very good yields are anticipated.

Corn has made substantial progress, especially during the latter part of the week, when higher temperatures at night prevailed. In the southern counties the crop is generally in need of rain. The crop as a whole is about two weeks behind the average condition at this date, but the plants are healthy and vigorous and with favorable weather the outlook is not discouraging.

Potatoes made good progress during the week and the present condition of the crop is very satisfactory. Upland hay is about completed, a large amount having been secured during the week in excellent condition. There was some damage done to hay by the excessive rains in the northern counties, but generally the crop is large and secured in better condition than usual. Pastures are fair but need rain, especially in the southern and central counties.

Peas are about all gathered. The crop is large and the quality excellent. Sugar beets are maturing rapidly but need rain. The quality is reported as good. Gardens are in good condition. The high winds during the latter part of the week were detrimental to apples in many localities. Generally the crop is fairly good. Blackberries and raspberries are generally light but of good quality. Cranberries are reported in good condition and promise a large yield.

Narrowly Escaped Drowning.

Last Sunday afternoon while a fishing party was being held at the river south of the village, near William Colvin's place, Emil Koehler had a narrow escape from drowning. He was wading in the river when he suddenly got into a deep water hole, and, not being able to swim, he was nearly drowned before rescued by his comrades. The boys saw Emil struggling in the water but thought he was fooling until he went under several times and they then saw the danger. Irving Weiss and Duncan Budenhagen quickly jumped in after Koehler but instead of rescuing him they also came near drowning, but managed to get out. In the mean time Koehler had gone under for the last time. August Schaefer, who was also there dove under the water twice for the drowning boy; the second time he succeeded in bringing him up and with the assistance of the boys who handed him a long pole pulled himself and the lifeless body of Koehler out on the river bank and worked over him for nearly ten minutes before he drew his first breath, and it was several hours later before he regained consciousness. The river at this point where the accident happened is said to be about fifteen feet deep.

WINNIPEG EXHIBITION.

A PRIZE LIST OF ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS.

Everything Promises to Be Most Successful—A Number of Distinguished Statesmen Will Be Among the Visitors.

Winnipeg, July 7.—The Dominion of Canada exhibition, to be held in Winnipeg from July 25 to Aug. 6, promises to be one of the best ever held in the Dominion. One hundred thousand dollars will be expended in prizes and attractions. This of itself will give an idea of the magnitude of the undertaking.

Winnipeg believes in doing everything on a big scale. There is nothing half-hearted about it. Since it held its first exhibition in 1871 it has learned the lesson of "push." Every year has added to the interest, the prize money and an important factor, the gate.

The prize list comprises about 120 pages, a story of the wonderful development of the province, tersely told. The exhibits will include everything, grown, bred, painted or manufactured in Canada, from the fine art to the motherly sow. The speed program will undoubtedly be a great attraction. It will include boys' and men's races, horse races, trotting, speeding, etc.

The Canadian Amateur Athletic Association has secured control of two buildings, and the Secretary, Mr. Young, says there will be such a display of Canadian manufactures as has never been shown before in the Dominion.

The swiftest loggettite handle is of gold wire and is exceedingly light and dainty looking.—New York Sun.

Philosophy of Architecture.

To build a house on one dimension dominating, and put it on a site with the principal amount of land either in front or behind, is a mistake. The house in this way makes it possible to obtain a garden and other features on the grounds besides the house. This same principle of values or proportion in the relation of the different parts of a composition obtains in every walk of life.

Making Ice in India.

Dr. Wells, a London physician, in 1818, in his published essay on dew, was the first to draw attention to the enormous production of ice in India. Shallow pits are dug, which are partially filled with perfectly dry straw, on the straw board, and into which the water is exposed to the clear sky.

Human Foot Becoming Smaller.

It is asserted by a sculptor that the human foot is becoming smaller. The masculine foot of twenty centuries ago was about 12 inches long. The average man's foot of today is easily fitted in a shoe No. 8 1/2, which is not above 10 inches and 7-16 in length.

CAT SAVED WITH A LARIAT.

After Two Years' Imprisonment, Felina Is Rescued from Narrow Prison.

After nearly two years' imprisonment between brick walls four stories high, a little more than three inches apart, a cat was rescued by means of a lariat. The feline dropped into the crevice when it was only a few weeks old and has been there ever since—fed and cared for by families residing in the building.

Prison which it occupied so long is between two buildings in East Fourth street, New York city. The crevice was closed partly on the top by the roof. Efforts which the kitchen boys made to get the cat out in the early days of its imprisonment to climb up the slippery walls only to fall back, were watched with sympathy by the neighbors and they became divided into two factions—those who thought that the kitten ought to be killed and relieved of its misery and those who held that while there was life there was hope. The latter view prevailed and the cat was saved by means of a long string. Discontented neighbors many times threw in chunks of potatoes, but the animal never touched it. Meanwhile the cat grew and every effort was made to release it, but without success. A few days ago the story became generally known and came to the notice of an ex-cowboy, who, after the kitten was dragged through the bars of its prison, thus removing a source of much worry to the society for prevention of cruelty to animals.

Schoolboys in Germany.

"Germany is doing everything a military nation," says George Andrews, Scottish school inspector, in a report on the educational system of Berlin and Charlottenburg. The boys and girls of the infants are taught by men and not by women.

"One remembers one's feelings of surprise on finding a class of fifty infants presided over by a man of excellent physique and bearing. The boys and girls are dressed so that the sooner the boys come under masculine discipline the better. The military practice later on.

"Smartness is carried almost to an extreme in the pupils' attire. The blackboard, he must run there and back. The habit of the gymnasium is carried into the classroom. The boys and girls are dressed in a military style. The pupils wander in a tortuous column four abreast under the supervision of a sergeant-major.

Neither is there a chance of "playing truant" in Charlottenburg. The truant officer is called by telephone to the school and is escorted to school.

One German town ordered gargling exercises to be conducted in the streets because that while, in throat troubles, gargling was often ordered, the children could not be taken to the fountain could not help.—London Daily Mail.

Arriving at a Verdict.

Kushequa, Pa., Aug. 1.—(Special.)—In this section of Pennsylvania there is a growing belief that for such Kidney Diseases as Rheumatism and Lame Back, the best remedy is the one known as Dodd's Kidney Pills. This belief grows from such cases as that of Mrs. M. L. Davidson of this place. She tells the story herself as follows:

"I have suffered from Rheumatism for thirty years and find that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken. I was also bothered with kidney troubles and I can only say that my back hasn't bothered me since I took Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Concerning that Mrs. Davidson only took two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, the result would be considered wonderful if it were not that there are reports of similar results from daily use. Kidney disease is fast arriving at a verdict that "Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure for Rheumatism."

Strawberries and Cautions.

The common medical condemnation of strawberries as bad for rheumatism is apparently the result of a misunderstanding. It is not the strawberry itself that is bad, but the acid of the seed. The acid of the seed is bad for the blood and it is this acid that is the cause of the trouble.

The average composition of the 1904 strawberry is as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Component and Percentage. Water 82.20, Sugar 10.17, Acid 0.63, Pectin 0.50, Cellulose 0.49, Protein 0.14, Fat 0.01, Ash 0.26.

A strawberry contains a greater proportion of water than does milk, which is the fact that makes it so refreshing. The acid of the seed is bad for the blood and it is this acid that is the cause of the trouble.

Chief of Police Saved.

Newbury, S. C.—W. H. Harris, Chief of Police of Newbury, S. C., suffered for a number of years with kidney complaint. There was a dull aching across the small of my back that was worse at night and made me feel miserable all the time. The kidney secretions were dark and full of sediment, and lack of control compelled me to rise a number of times during the night. I was unable to get any sleep and the backache left me. I tried a number of remedies, but nothing helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills. The use of this remedy according to directions brought about a change in the nature of the secretions. The backache all left me, the kidney secretions cleared up and the action of the bladder was normal.

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Chief Harris will be mailed to any part of the United States. Address Postoffice Box 241, Buffalo, N. Y.

The New Footman.

The high-born dame was breaking in a new footman—stupid but honest. In her brougham, about to make a round of visits, she found the footman gotten her bits of postboard. So she sent the foot back with orders to bring some of the cars that were on the multiple in her boudoir, and put them in his pocket.

Here and there she dropped one and sometimes a couple, until at last she told Jeanne to leave three.

"Can't do it, mum."

"How's that?"

"I've only got two left—the one of spades and the seven of clubs—Sperrig Times."

Rocketeer's Poverty

A Million Dollars For a New Stomach Is His Offer—Riches Cannot Always Buy Health

"Things have dropped up since," said Smythe, looking at him with crazy eyes. "I have kept them quiet, but it has cost a lot of money, and I can't go on. Now, however, as I told you, I've offered $100,000 to let these things leak out, and if I am to go on keeping them quiet, I shall require a higher sum to do so."

As the words fell his mouth, Cecil saw him in his true colors for the first time. He saw that the path led away from the beautiful spot which held his life and his love.

"You are lying," he said, forcing himself to remain quiet. "You cannot frighten me—you can do me no harm."

"What do you know of my early childhood?" he inquired. "What do you remember of your parents? Nothing—absolutely nothing."

"Cecil was silent—it was true, he knew nothing. Yet Zinga could not have deceived the lawyers—his evidence had been proved the Duke of Estercourt and his agent."

"I am not afraid of your plot," he said. Smythe smiled.

"I am not telling you any stories. I have evidence, and can sell what I know for $100,000. If you care to pay me more, I'll keep it to myself."

"What is the nature of your evidence?" asked Cecil, busily. "At least, I should know what I am offered for my money."

"It's the strongest I can bring. I have found your true parents—you are not the child Zinga stole. He lied because he knew he would get a reward. I believed his story—everyone did. But since I have found out that the child he stole was not his, the reward is not existing—the title is extinct."

"You can prove this, without a question," he said.

"Zinga is outside—he can tell you that I'm very well," said Cecil, rising. I will see him. After I have heard his story, I will give you my answer. Send for him."

The detective bowed and went out, and Cecil stood, pale and anxious, awaiting his return.

EMPE!

By CLARENCE DANVERS.

had I but dreamed I had no right. My lips would have been torn to pieces ere they could have reached his face. Forgive me, for I am a fool myself. I love you so, I am afraid—forgive me, Viola, and forget me if you can."

He looked around the room in one last, futile effort to find a hiding place, and passed out into the grounds and thence to the woods unobserved, and walked with wild, swift steps, while he knew not where the path led away from the beautiful spot which held his life and his love.

CHAPTER VI.

VIOLA'S DESPAIR. Lady Viola was feeding the doves on the outer terrace. In one hand she held a basket, and with the other she gently threw the crumbs among the birds, and they came to her hands prettily to her as she fed.

She stood amid the sunshine and brightness of that perfect morning, fairer than all the flowers in those vast gardens around her, a beautiful, happy creature to whom the meaning of care and sorrow were as yet unknown.

Every now and then she glanced back over her shoulder to see if her lover were coming, for she was expecting him to join her and take her for their usual morning stroll.

That he did not come meant nothing to her, for his duties as host were many, and there were a hundred and one things to detain him. So she continued her feeding the doves. Why he had not come to the end of the terrace she had brought for the birds, she knew against the marble balustrade and watched them, singing so sweetly and happily to her, that she almost forgot to feed them.

Presently the low, rattling noise of a motor-car broke the stillness of the air, and turning her eyes towards the gravel drive, Viola saw the familiar car of Lord Duncannon, which she had seen so many times to her father's residence in Surrey, and she frowned with displeasure.

She was not alone. Lord Duncannon, she saw, had called on her, and she recalled certain words he had said to her, she felt suddenly filled with vague alarm. He had told her that no other man should be allowed to see her. Why he had said this she did not know. It was a strange, sudden, and unaccountable thing.

As far as I am concerned," said the other, "I am rather put about by my absence. The fact is, he gave me an open invitation to see you, and I am glad to accept it. Some derangement of the feminine organs is responsible for this exhaustion, following any kind of work or effort. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as it has thousands of other women.

The case of Mrs. Lennox, which follows, proves this.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered misery for several years. My back ached and I had bearing down pains, and frequent headaches. I would often wake from a restful sleep in such pain and misery that it would be hours before I could close my eyes again. I dreaded the long nights and weary days, and could do no work. I consulted different physicians hoping to get relief, but finding that their medicines did not cure me, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was highly recommended to me. I am glad that I did so, for I soon found that it was the medicine for my case. Very soon I was rid of every ache and pain and restored to perfect health. I feel splendid, have a fine appetite, and have gained in weight a lot."—Miss FRANKIE OSBEE, 14 Warren Street, Boston, Mass.

"After two months I decided to try what a change would do for me, and as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was strongly recommended to me, I decided to try it. Within three days I felt better, my appetite returned, and I could sleep. In another week I was able to sit up part of the day, and in ten days more I was well. My strength had returned, I gained fourteen pounds, and felt better and stronger than I had for years. I gratefully acknowledge its merits. Very sincerely yours, Mrs. BEAR E. LENNOX, 120 East 4th St., Dixon, Ill.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last winter I broke down suddenly and had to seek the advice of a doctor. I felt sore all over, with a pounding in my head, and a dizziness which I had never experienced before. I had a miserable appetite, nothing tasted good, and gradually my health broke down completely. The doctor said I had female weakness, but although I took his medicine faithfully, I found it of no avail.
