From the Hotel Notes Milwaukee Sentinel.

"It would seem almost incredible that at this season of the year in one of the oldest sections of the state wolves are destroying sheep but such appears to be the case up in Washington county," said T. H. Mallitor of Kewaskum, at the Republican house.

"The wolves seem to be operating along the county line of Waukesha county. Several farmers have made reports of sheep being killed by the wolves. They appear confident that the work is not done by dogs, from the fact that the sheep are not torn but only show the teeth marks on the throat, the blood being sucked from the carcasses, the usual method of a wolf. Dogs will rend the animal they capture.

"While a stray wolf in the southern Wisconsin counties perhaps is not infrequent, I know of no appearance of these animals in such old and settled portions of the state as Washington and Waukesha counties. In the bluff and timber sections along the rivers in the southwestern portion of the state, wolves are frequently killed, but I know of no bounty being paid in the counties named for many years.

The farmers of that section are talking about organizing a wolf hunt to exterminate the sheep-killers."

Dodge County Farmer Arrested for Fraud.

On Tuesday Sheriff Charles Lentz went to Omro, Wis., and arrested Gustav Lenk, the town of Theresa farmer who went bankrupt, leaving an indebtedness of $25,000 and over. The complainant is ex-County Treasurer Charles F. Justman, who was victimized to the extent of $300. Lenk was an old neighbor and acquaintance of his benefactor.

On May 2nd, last, Lenk came here and asked Mr. Justman to sign a note with him in the bank for the sum of $300, and represented that he had that amount and over coming from the Maple Grove cheese factory of Herman, of which Seefeld Bros. of Hustisford, are proprietors. The fact was that Lenk had drawn out all his milk money a few days previous to the making of the note. Relating to the representations so made, Mr. Justman signed the note. He was compelled to pay it when it became due a month after its execution. It is said that Lenk placed the various amounts which he borrowed in farms for his sons.

Sheriff Lentz found Lenk at his son's place three miles from Omro. He was brought here Wednesday and his examination adjourned until Oct. 19. In default of bail in the sum of $1,200, he was committed to the county jail. —Juncus Independent.

The Rajah's Guest.
It is the custom in Sarawak that the rajah's house shall be open to his subjects at any time. That same Kayan chief from Baram who visited me, Djan by name, presented himself one night at Astana when the rajah had a dinner party. His appearance, clad simply in a chawat (waistcoat), with five followers in equally full dress, among a dozen people conventionally attired was a quaint reminder that I was "east of Suez." Dian pulled a pipe—I was going to say from his pocket—lit up and bore his part gallantly in the social amenities of the evening.—London Express.

A story is told of a fellow who went to work for a thrifty farmer not far from town. At three o'clock next morning the farmer called him to begin his day's labors. A few moments later the hired man came down stairs with a grip. "You ain't going to take that grip to work are you?" asked the farmer. "No," replied the man scornfully, "but I am going to find some place to stay all night."—X
