LIGHT DRAUGHT POTATO HARVESTER

Machines which will imitate the action of the human hand are recognized to be the best substitutes of hand work, and hundreds of the best agricultural machines now in successful operation are based on the idea of a mechanical imitation of the human body. Have you ever seen a machine which imitates the action of human hands in digging potatoes? No; because none of the potato diggers now in use and handled by the trade are constructed along the lines of this idea. Our Light Draught Potato Harvester works like the old style forks under the guidance of human hands, and is therefore the best and only substitute for hand work in digging potatoes under any and all conditions. You are invited to see this machine on exhibition at

Jos. Liegel, a bachelor, residing on a farm near Knowles, was run over by the cars last Saturday and mangled beyond recognition. The man had been drinking heavily all day and it is not known whether it was a case of suicide or an accident.

E. A. Lemieux, a stock buyer of Hartford, was held up at Omro, Wis., and robbed of $69 and a gold watch Saturday morning while riding in the caboose of a freight train. The police authorities of Hartford were notified by wire and Policeman Reed captured the robber when the train pulled into Hartford. The bandit gave his name as Tom Goodenough. The watch was recovered, but not the money.

Suffers Paralytic Stroke.

John, the sixteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meis, residing half a mile north of this village, is suffering with one of the queerest diseases ever recorded here. On Thursday last the young man plowed all forenoon and at noon ate a hearty dinner, but complained of pains in his back. He rested that afternoon and also on Friday. Saturday he was unable to arise. Dr. Crosby was at once summoned and it was found that he suffered a stroke, termed spinal paralysis. The young man has no control over any part of his body, but his speech remains the same as ever. The young man's condition is at present very serious, but the doctor expects to save his life unless the stroke effects his brain.—Lomira Review.

Kewaskum Defeats Richfield

The Locals Add Another Scalp to Their List by Downing the Strong Richfield Team to the Tune of 3 to 2.

At the second day of the County Fair at West Bend last week Friday the locals defeated the strong Richfield ball team by a score of 3 to 2. The game was very interesting from the time the first ball was pitched until the last man was struck out, it was also witnessed by a very large crowd, as this was one of the star attractions of the day. Not only did the locals win but they also won the long end of the purse. Just before the game was called the captains of both ball teams decided upon throwing a coin as to whose team would take the outs, and as the locals won the toss up they proceeded to line up in the field with John M. Barney and Ed. C. Neumann as umpires, the former umpiring on balls and strikes while the latter had charge of the bases, both performing their duties to the best of satisfaction.

This game was long looked for and as Richfield played the Kissel Kars of Hartford, the Sunday previous, being defeated by a score of 4 to 3, the game was looked upon as if Kewaskum would suffer a defeat, so the locals went into the game with vim and spirit.

Fast playing was done by both teams, Richfield being somewhat the speedier throwing to bases, but otherwise were outplayed and outbatted by the locals, the latter also played a more scientific game of base ball.

Klippel, first up for Richfield, drew a pass, stole second and was caught on third, while trying to reach said base, when P. Laubeneimer hit to Doyle, the next two were easy outs. A. Schaefer, first up for the locals, was an easy out, Schmidt reached first on an error, but was caught trying to steal second. J. Schaefer hit to short stop being also an easy out. The locals took the lead in the second, Koch was hit by a pitched ball was advanced to second on a bunt by Rosenheimer, Taylor sacrificed both a base, and on a squeeze play Koch was caught on home.

Berger hit to pitcher which forced Rosenheimer out on the initial bag also. Backus got a single which scored Taylor, Doyle was an easy out. In the sixth Richfield rallied and scored two runs on an error, and two hits, but the locals came back in their half by tying the score on the run and hit game, after the 6th Richfield was unable to score, although they made a hard effort in the ninth. The locals won the game in the 8th, by again working the run and hit game and in which inning they scored one run.

Laubeneimer and Laubeneimer were the battery for Richfield and what the locals did with the ball is a shame to state, they got 9 hits from the wonderful Laubeneimer's delivery. Doyle for the locals was in his prime, allowing the opponents only four hits, struck out six, passed one and hit one, he was all so there with the stick, getting two pretty hits, one a two-bagger.

Just at the close of the game a sad accident happened, when in the ninth inning H. Laubeneimer got first base on a hit, and trying to steal second base collided with "Spike" Berger, breaking the latter's leg.

Score by innings
Richfield ... 000002000-2
Kewaskum ... 01000101x-3

Summary: Earned runs—Kewaskum 3; Two-base hits—Kewaskum 3, Richfield 1; Double plays—Richfield 1, Kewaskum 3; Struck out—by Laubeneimer 3, by Doyle 6; also—off Laubeneimer 8, off Doyle 4; Base on balls—off Laubeneimer 1, off Doyle 1; Hit by pitched ball,—by Laubeneimer 1, by Doyle 1.

NOTES:
The bunt game won for the locals.
Koch was caught out on home plate twice.
Schmidt pulled off a double play in the second unassisted.
Laubeneimer got his which will be long remembered by him.
Waderwitz played the star game for Richfield, his throwing from right field to bases was perfect.
Jordan took "Spike" Berger's place in the ninth, the latter retiring on account of a broken leg.
Hartford Kissel Kars suffered a defeat at the hands of the West Bend professionals, at the last day of the County Fair by a score of 9 to 0. The game was very interesting from West Bend's side, but not as a whole as it was too one sided.

To-morrow, Sunday, the locals will cross bats with West Bend at the latter place in a benefit game for "Spike" Berger, who broke his leg in last Friday's game. All fans are requested to accompany the team to cheer them on to victory and besides help a good cause.

A New County Office Created

From changes in the present law made by the last legislature a new office, that of public administrator, has been created for each county. At present the duties of this office are administered by the district attorney and county judge, but under the new law, it will be under the supervision of the state tax commission. It is not yet decided but the position may be filled by a competitive civil service examination in order to remove it from politics entirely.

The duties of the office are the appraisal and settlement of estates with the view of collecting the inheritance taxes. The fees of the administrator will be from 1 to 20 per cent of the value of the estate the amount of the fees being determined by the nearness of kin of the beneficiary of the will to the testator. The closest relationship between the two will permit the administrator to collect only one per cent, while if the legatee is no relation whatever the fees of the administrator will be twenty per cent. The sum of $2,000 is exempt from the collection of fees.

Upholds Judge Lueck.

The Wisconsin Supreme court on Friday denied the petition of Attorney General F. L. Gilbert for an alternative writ of mandamus compelling Judge Lueck of this circuit to revoke his order dismissing a complaint of perjury against P. J. Buckley of Waukesha. Buckley was employed by the Wisconsin Central Railway company and was alleged to have testified falsely in a suit in which that company was a party. The complaint was dismissed by Judge Lueck because the alleged false testimony was not material to the issue in the case.—The Hartford Press.

LOSES HEART AND THEN HIS SAVINGS

FORMER WISCONSIN MAN A PRINCIPAL IN MELODRAMATIC SKETCH IN EAST.

BOTH LEAVE AT SAME TIME

Romance and Alleged Subsequent Theft Began in Menomonee and Ends in Court.

DOCTOR AND "NIECE" ARRESTED.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Sept. 28.—All the essentials of a popular-price melodrama are present in the case now on trial in the superior court involving the theft of $3000, the savings of sixteen years' toil in the mines and west of Wisconsin and Michigan, from Anton Boruziak of Holyoke, the love story that enters into the case is highly important, as until Boruziak lost his heart, his money was entirely safe.

In the prisoner's dock are Dr. F. J. Korniejewski and a strikingly handsome woman who is the doctor's niece, his niece. The former is charged with stealing $2700 of the missing money and the woman with taking the rest of Boruziak's savings. Boruziak's story leading up to the loss of the money is as follows:

He was accosted not long ago in a street of Menomonee, Wis., by the doctor, who asked him if he could speak Polish. Boruziak met the doctor again and told him he had a few thousand dollars in bank.

Introduced to Niece.
Dr. Korniejewski invited Boruziak to his apartments and there introduced him to his alleged niece. The doctor suggested, according to the story, that the three go to Holyoke to live and assured Boruziak that his niece was deeply in love with him and had confided the fact to the doctor, who promised that after they reached Holyoke he would arrange a marriage between Boruziak and the young woman.

Arriving in Holyoke, Korniejewski rented a flat, established his alleged niece as housekeeper, and invited Boruziak to live with them. Meantime, according to the doctor, Boruziak says he unwillingly had drawn his money from the bank. The doctor and his niece both told, he says, that all eastern banks were safe and that those in Holyoke and vicinity were notoriously weak and likely to close at any time without warning.

One night Boruziak attended a Polish dance with his intended bride. On his return he found Dr. Korniejewski in his room, he says, and the morning after missed $300. He alleges that he called to the doctor's niece to help him count the money to verify the loss, but that the young woman declined to do so, his indignation rose, he says, and he "counted it enough times already."

Leaves Money in House.
A few evenings later Boruziak says he took the young woman to a theater, but was deterred from taking his money with him by the doctor's niece, who "scolded" him and said the safer plan would be to leave it in the house, as the city was infested with highwaymen with murring instinct when it came to snagging out a newcomer with a bank roll.

On the return from the theater, he says, the young woman, as she opened the door, exclaimed, "We've been robbed!" but that apparently had been ransacked, but that the doctor's niece expressed the intention of notifying the police, the indignation of the alleged niece knew no bounds. He says she told him it would be useless, she would try to prove his case the judge would send him to prison for a long term.

Disheartened by his misfortune and downcast by the curt refusal of the doctor's niece to consider marriage then or at any other time, Boruziak says he returned to Pennsylvania to begin life anew. The more he pondered the more the injustice of his situation impressed him. He returned to Holyoke and told his story to the police, who, it is said, found that soon after the disappearance of Boruziak's money Dr. Korniejewski deposited $2700 in a Holyoke bank and that the young woman had $300 in her credit in the same bank. The arrest of the doctor and his alleged niece followed.

BRAVERY OF GIRLS SAVES TOWN IN FIRE.

Two Telephone Operators Awaken Ohio Villagers While Exchange Is in Flames.

PAINESVILLE, O., Sept. 28.—The bravery of two telephone girls, Hazel Christian and Alice Warren, sleeping in the telephone exchange at Perry, a village near here, saved that town from total destruction by fire early today. Fire broke out in a store beneath the exchange. The girls were alone, but stuck to their posts and telephoned the sleeping citizens. While the girls were calling to the Painesville and Madison fire departments for help, the telephone wires burned and the girls in their night clothes stumbled down the stairs through the smoke to the street.

Two stores, a lively stable and residence were burned before aid from other towns arrived. Loss $25,000.

Holding His Own.

One Sunday recently in the suburbs of Nottingham, England, a young man and his sweetheart were walking out together through the lanes. He was rather of a bashful nature. He had been walking out with the same young woman—"Angelina"—for a considerable time. On this particular day, however, the misadventure of sufficient courage to ask her how she thought he was progressing with his courting. At the same time his arm stole around her waist in the approved Nottingham fashion. "Well," she said, "I think you're holding your own."

TARIFF CANNOT SUIT EVERYONE, DECLARES TAFT

RESIDENCE MAKES THE DIFFERENCE, SAYS THE PRESIDENT IN NORTH YAKIMA SPEECH.

THE PEOPLE ARE ALL ALIKE.

Occupy Same Attitude Toward Public Questions Which Affect Them in the Same Way.

EXECUTIVE LEAVES FOR SEATTLE.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., Sept. 29.—Arriving here soon after 5 o'clock this morning, President Taft slept until 8, and then breakfasted on board his private car with Gov. Marion E. Hay and Senator Wesley L. Jones of Washington. The President was pretty well exhausted after his hard day in Spokane, where he was called on to make a half dozen speeches. The night before reaching Spokane the President sat up late preparing his speech on conservatism, and he was tired when the day began.

With an easy day before him, however, Mr. Taft was in excellent spirits this morning when he stepped off the train and entered the leading automobile of a procession of thirty cars for a ride through the famous apple orchards of this section.

Makes Short Speech.
A short speech during the forenoon and luncheon with the citizens at 12:30 o'clock were the features of the day. The President left at 1:45 for Seattle.

The President in his speech dwelt upon how impressively the homogeneity of the American people had been brought home to him during his tour of the country. He declared with a laugh that this fact was impressed upon him also during the tariff fight at Washington.

"We all wear the same clothes, even to the latest fashions in the bonnets of the ladies; we all speak the same language and have the same ideas and aspirations. One of the things that strikes me going around the country is the exactly similar attitude the people all occupy toward the questions that affect them in the same way."

Cites Carolina Case.
"In the indignation of gentlemen of the same states with reference to free trade you have a counterpoint in North Carolina, for instance, where they are distinctly in favor of $2 lumber, not as a protective tariff, of course, but—and the President spoke with great mock gravity—in order that the revenues of the government may be maintained.

"And so it goes. The American nature is the same, and is affected in the same way; affected not only by pecuniary and mercantile considerations, but also by higher sentiments and by looking at the country at large and her interests in the same way."

DROPS IN DESERT; ATTACKED BY BURRO.

Prospector Tries to Wound Animal to Get Blood, Shoots Himself and Beast Turns on Him.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Sept. 29.—Jacob George, an old prospector, is at Lone Willow Springs recovering after being found unconscious in Death Valley with a jagged wound which a vicious burro was tearing at for blood with which to moisten the burro's parched throat.

George was discovered by a party of miners who were returning from "Furnace" region. Lone Willow Springs is the nearest point at which medical assistance could be obtained. The aged prospector was lost for two days.

To obtain blood to moisten his swollen tongue and throat, George attempted to inflict a flesh wound on his pack animal. Instead, the prospector accidentally shot himself through the leg. Falling helpless beneath the burning desert sun, he lay unconscious.

The burro, crazed from lack of water, viciously attacked the fallen man, and had torn a big wound in George's leg when the rescuers opportunely appeared.

SCALDS SELF TO DEATH.

Aged Woman Falls While Lifting Kettle of Boiling Water from Stove to Table.

MARINETTE, Wis., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Mrs. Caroline Potter, an aged lady living at Harmony Corners, was fatally scalded. She tried to lift a kettle of boiling water from the stove and slipped and the water spilled over her. She was alone at the time and lay in a comatose condition until found by neighbors Tuesday morning.

The Czar in Bad Health.

According to Sebastopol advices the Czar's health is very bad, and he will remain in the south for some time, with the Empress, sojourning in the vicinity of Malta. An imperial cruise in the Mediterranean is also spoken of. Their majesties are traveling incognito, and will probably visit Italy. During his sojourn in the south the Emperor will inspect the Black sea fleet.

How New York Treats Park Laborers.
New York park employees are complaining that they do not receive their wages promptly and sometimes have to wait a month. The park laborers are paid $2 a day. When it storms they are laid off and their pay deducted, leaving their salary for the week $12 and sometimes only $10, out of which to pay rent and clothe and feed a family. Recently park laborers were assessed $1 apiece for a stand to be erected under the direction of the park department for the Hudson-Fulton celebration. The collection was ordered in the name of the general superintendent and foreman, and the men were requested to hand in their money at a time when the park department owed them three weeks' pay.

WILL ELECTRIFY ROADS

Chicago Council Receives Ordinance Ordering Railway Improvement Work to Cost $150,000,000.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—The Chicago city council Monday night took preliminary steps toward enacting into law the most sweeping railroad electrification ordinance ever offered to any municipality in the United States.

Aimed primarily at the Illinois Central Railroad company, the measure hits every railroad line operating within a radius of eight miles of the city hall. It contemplates the most extensive improvements that eventually will cost in the vicinity of $150,000,000.

If it is passed in its present form and upheld by the courts, every one of the twenty-six trunk lines entering the city, and every terminal, transfer, belt or industrial road within the prescribed limits will be forced before January 1, 1912, to substitute electricity for steam power or quick delivery.

Its going into effect will mean practically the abolition of the smoke nuisance and the final dawning of the City Beautiful era in Chicago's history.

DIAMOND ROOM FOR HOTEL.

Auditorium in Chicago Plans Expensive Apartment for Future.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—A "diamond room," an apartment aimed to live up to its name, will be a feature of the Auditorium hotel in the near future. This was decided upon at a meeting of the board of directors of the association.

It was also decided that the association will operate the hotel, and will S. Shafer and Theodore H. Daily were named as managers. R. Floyd Chubb, president of the association, will be director general. The sum of $500,000, it was announced, will be expended in rehabilitating the hotel.

"If a person," said Mr. Chubb, "can afford to pay $50 a day for a suite of rooms, we believe that he can afford to pay $20 for a dinner served on gold plates by gold-bedecked waiters in a 'diamond room,' and that's just what we are going to do with the Auditorium hotel."

PROTEST GRANT IN PARADE.

Chicagoan Asks Secretary of War About Marching with Temperance Workers.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 29.—The appearance of Gen. Frederick Dent Grant in the first uniform of the United States army in the temperance parade Saturday called for a protest from W. K. Michaels of the executive board of the United States for Local Self-Government, who sent a letter to Secretary of War Dickinson, asking if there is any department rule governing such an appearance. When Mr. Michaels' action became known Dr. H. C. Nelson, secretary of the great temperance cause, law enforcement committee, addressed a letter to the war secretary declaring that Gen. Grant "performed a patriotic duty." A third letter, addressed to Secretary Dickinson by A. P. Ballou of the Hamilton club, urged Gen. Grant against the protest of the United Societies office.

This sum was turned over to the Sultan's representatives, who took the money back to Morocco.

The accident occurred during the early part of the race, while Lytle and Bates, driving an Apperson car, were rounding a curve on the first lap of the course, near the town of Northville. ## SLUG PAYS FOR BEERS.

Brewery Adopts Scheme to Regulate Flow of Free Liquor to Employes and Their Friends.

FOND DU LAC, Wis., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Money is unnecessary if you want a drink of beer in this city. That is, if you desire to get the drink at the place where the foamy fluid is manufactured. A slug will get you a drink, although it is merely a worthless chunk of metal.

The slug system has been adopted by the Rechead Brewing company in order to limit its supply of daily free drinks to the employes at the brewery and their immediate friends. The slugs must be secured at the company's office, but it is probable that some of the "thirsty ones" will soon be manufacturing slugs of their own in order to get a drink.

During the last few weeks the number of perpetual thirst quenchers who called at the brewery daily for a free drink increased so rapidly that it appeared as though the tap was constantly flowing. The supply of beer was not materially diminished, but the practice was a bad one, and therefore the slug method has been adopted.

LOOKS LIKE DETROIT.

Michigan Team Beats Boston and Philadelphia Loses, Practically Cinching Pennant for Michigan.

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 29.—The Detroit won the first game of a double-header by a score of 5 to 0, by heavy hitting. Crawford's home run in the first inning, with two men on bases, won the game.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 29.—Chicago defeated Philadelphia in a tenning game today, by a score of 2 to 1. Chicago's victory, with Detroit's at Boston, practically clinches the pennant for Detroit. If Detroit captures two out of five games the bunting goes to Michigan.

DENIES INSULTING THE FLAG.

British Premier Explains Removal of the Stars and Stripes.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Speaking in the House of Commons Patrick O'Brien, the member of Parliament from Kilkenny, drew the attention of Premier Asquith to the incident on the occasion of the reception at Castlereagh, September 18, of Capt. O'Meara and Condor and John O'Callaghan, delegates from the United Irish League of America, who have come to this side in response to an invitation extended by John Redmond and other Irish leaders, when the police ordered a local saloon keeper to remove the American flag. Mr. O'Brien declared that this incident was regarded in America as an insult to the flag, and he suggested that Ambassador Bryce be instructed to explain and apologize.

In reply Mr. Asquith informed Mr. O'Brien that the display of any flag in a liquor saloon was illegal and that the Union Jack had been ordered removed on a similar occasion. It was so obvious that no insult to the American flag was intended that the government had no intention of communicating with Washington on the subject.

Edible Collars.

Gov. Stubbs's brother owns a number of valuable dogs. Recently he directed the old colored man who works for him to go down town and buy some dog collars.

"Remember," was the injunction given the colored man, "remember to get good collars, of the right kind."

The colored man faithfully carried out orders and purchased what he believed were good collars. When he got home some one asked him, "Well, did you get the collars?"

"Yessah," he replied. "What kind did you get?"

"Ah got de digestible kind." And he produced a number of adjustable collars.—Kansas City Journal.

DEPOSITORS WON'T LOSE

OKLAHOMA BANK GUARANTEE FUND HEAVILY DRAWN ON.

Commissioner Begins Paying Dollar for Dollar, Supplementing Assets with Guarantee Fund.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., Sept. 29.—State Bank Commissioner Young, who Tuesday took charge of the Columbia Bank and Trust company, with deposits aggregating $3,000,000, began today paying depositors dollar for dollar. It was announced that payments would be continued until all depositors were satisfied.

The bank guaranty fund, together with the available assets of the bank will be used in satisfying the claims. No alarm has been occasioned here regarding the failure. Officials of the liquidated bank say they will reopen in a few days, possibly under a new organization.

Roy Onkes, secretary of the banking board, said:

"Sufficient is shown to know that the capital is impaired so that on liquidation the stock holders may realize very little, also that the bank has loaned far too great a proportion of its funds, and that its supply of cash unrepaid is inadequate to meet the requirements of law."

Fifty thousand dollars of the state bank guaranty fund was in the bank April 30, 1909. On that date the state bank guaranty fund amounted to $302,500. The banking board has levied an assessment on the state banks to replenish the guarantee fund.

The last statement of the bank showed deposits of $2,800,000, capital stock $200,000 and 40 per cent. in reserve and surplus and undivided profits amounting to $20,000. The bank was organized about a year ago. It was the reserve agent for many of the state banks of Oklahoma.

PRINT LARGEST PAPER.

The Daily Cardinal at U. of W. Publishes Sixteen-Page Edition—Biggest in College History.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—The largest college paper ever published in the United States was printed Tuesday afternoon, when the Daily Cardinal, the official publication at the University of Wisconsin, appeared with a sixteen page edition. Heretofore the Cardinal has been printed as a four page publication, but this year an innovation will be made and regular daily editions of eight pages will be the order.

The increase in the size of the paper is due in a large measure to the fact that the course in journalism and newspaper writing at the university has been extended to include practical work in the newspaper field, as well as it can be covered in a college daily, and students in the new course will do part of their laboratory work in the offices of the Daily Cardinal.

William J. Goldschmidt of Milwaukee is business manager of the Cardinal this year.

RIDERS AGAIN ACTIVE.

Give Tobacco Grower Thirty Lashes While Another Band Shoots Up Small Town.

PARIS, Ky., Sept. 29.—There has been a fresh outbreak of night riding in the Blue Grass country, according to statements by Judge J. J. Osborne of Cynthiana. A tenant on the farm of T. J. McDowell, who has steadfastly refused to join the pool of tobacco growers, was taken from home Thursday night, stripped to the waist, and given thirty lashes. The victim was then ordered to be in Brooksville the next day and sign over his tobacco to suffer more severely. He signed. Saturday night, according to Judge Osborne, a band of fifty men rode through Milford, a small town, shooting out lights and breaking up a political meeting that was in progress.

CURTAINS CAR SERVICE.

Manitowoc (Wis.) Traction Company Runs Less Often to Cut Down Expenses, It Declares.

MANITOWOC, Wis., Sept. 29.—[Special.]—Declaring that the move is forced by the necessity for reducing operating expenses since the city has enjoined an advance of rates, the Manitowoc & Northern Traction company has announced that after October 1 it will curtail its interurban service by cutting off one car and running cars on an hourly schedule instead of every forty minutes as now. The company will operate only part of the way to the down town district, transferring its passengers to the city cars. Many people see in the move a retaliatory measure against the city for enjoining the increase of fare.

Saves $3000 from Laundry.

H. B. Munger, a Chicago lumberman, at the Hotel St. Francis, San Francisco, put $3000 in the pocket of his nightshirt for safekeeping. The next morning he went to one of the stores and reached for the "roll" after making a few purchases. Then he remembered having sent his nightshirt to the hotel laundry. He rushed to the laundry, and in ten seconds the air was filled with shirts, collars, socks and other wearables, and then came the nightie. Munger whooped as he recovered his money.

PEARY OUTLINES COOK INDICTMENT

COMMANDER TELLS WHY HE SAYS DOCTOR DID NOT REACH NORTH POLE.

BASED ON FOURTEEN POINTS.

One Is That Discoverer Did Not Open Cairns at Places He Passed En Route.

LONG DISTANCES ARE DOUBTED.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Sept. 29.—From Robert E. Peary a reporter for a New York paper obtained a forecast of the indictment he and Gen. Thomas Hubbard will draw against Dr. Frederick A. Cook in the north pole case.

Mr. Peary's statement will embrace the technical points on which he hopes to disprove all Dr. Cook's claims. It will be submitted as proof not only that Dr. Cook was not at the pole, but that Mr. Peary himself is the only one entitled to be called the discoverer of the goal that has been sought for three centuries.

Mr. Peary's Charges.
There are fourteen points raised by Mr. Peary, and as outlined by him are as follows:

First. That Mr. Peary and Matt Henson either individually or together talked with every member of the Smith Sound tribe of Eskimos and obtained testimony that corroborated the story of Peary and Henson. That Dr. Cook had not been out of sight of land.

Second. That in violation of a custom of Arctic exploration, Dr. Cook had not brought back records left in cairns at points he asserted to have reached, notably the left at Cape Thomas Hubbard in 1906 by Mr. Peary.

Third. That Dr. Cook's story that he travelled from Annotok to the pole and then back to Jones Sound, a distance of more than twenty-five and one-half degrees, or about seventeen hundred miles, in one sledding season is impossible. He points out that this is more than twice the best previous record of 11 degrees, and Mr. Peary's best record this year of 14 degrees.

Fourth. That his general equipment was such that it would be physical impossibility to have accomplished the feat.

Equipment Carried.
Fifth. That Dr. Cook maintains he carried a glass mercurial horizon on his trip of seventeen hundred miles, whereas Mr. Peary used a cast iron horizon so that it would not only be saved from being broken, but could be heated when the mercury froze. This is necessary because Mr. Peary contends, as mercury freezes at minus 35, Cook reports finding it as cold as minus 75 degrees.

Sixth. That Prof. Marvin brought back from 86.38 duplicate records of Mr. Peary's march and of his own to prove absolutely that Mr. Peary reached that latitude.

Seventh. That Capt. Bartlett brought back from 87.48 duplicate records of Mr. Peary's march and of his own to prove absolutely that Mr. Peary reached that latitude.

Eighth. That the sledge of Dr. Cook's was of such a type,

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

The two women exchanged a look, and Emily Keever blushed somewhat. Irma made a few remarks lightly and cheerfully, and then she led Lorrin away.

There was a wonderful change in Gartmore's face as he came over the sand to where Miss Keefe, or Keever, was demurely awaiting him.

During the next few days Claude Surtees was a prey to torments of uncertainty and uneasiness. He had told Lord Delisle that he would stay in the house for two or three weeks, or until he saw his patient beginning to progress; and had explained this rather surprising complaisance in a phenomenally popular and busy doctor by saying that he had formed the intention of taking a short holiday, and had arranged his affairs to that end just before Mr. Lorrin had visited him.

But things were very different now. He had certainly wished and intended to see the case through. At the end of his three or four weeks' visit he was to go back to London, and the Delisles were to keep him well-informed of the patient's progress. He was to return soon to pay another visit.

But now—now! If the Delisles were really plotting to ruin this helpless girl how could he leave her? And yet—how could he stay?

He must stay; he would stay. A newly-awakened, fierce, strange heart in him rose up against all doubts, all protests. Nay, he was thankful, in his state of moral wilfulness and perversity, that the foolish trick he had played on his brother had brought him here.

Ah, Mme. Stephanoff must have thought it strange of him to go off so suddenly and send her only the scanty information of a telegram! He must write to her and explain things a little.

Claude would have been a good deal enlightened on various points could he have overheard a conversation between Lord and Lady Delisle which took place on the twelfth night after he had taken up his residence with them.

The earl and countess were in the smoking room. It was late, the fire had burned low, and the room had a cheerless appearance, which was reflected in the faces of the man and woman seated opposite to each other.

"It's easy to say we'll get rid of him," Lady Delisle said; "but how? I told you you ought to have gone yourself to London to get a doctor, and you preferred to let Alick Lorrin go. If you had gone yourself you could have fixed on a man who would have been easier to deal with. This fellow's no fool, young as he is. He's been in the house quite long enough. He's always examining her food and so on, and asking her questions. Indeed, I've caught him once or twice asking me or the maid the same questions two or three times over, and he might easily catch us tripping. You said we'd have to get a doctor to make Lorrin feel confidence in us, and to make people believe—supposing she was sent to a home, or anything else—to make people believe everything had been done that could be done. Well, I agreed to that. But you said you could invent a quarrel with him and get rid of him that way."

"He isn't easy to quarrel with," Lord Delisle said. "He's a thorough gentleman, and one can't—"

"I'll tell you what one can do then," his wife interposed. "One can hesitate and fool about till it's too late, and this young man has got his suspicions that Kathleen's food and medicine are being tampered with, and one can go to gaol, and—"

"Oh, hold your tongue!" the earl exclaimed irritably, as the shrewish voice gathered volume. "Don't shriek like that and alarm the house. You've no reasons for thinking he has any suspicions, have you?" he added, turning pale as a sudden fear seized him.

"No special reason, but in a case like this we are at a disadvantage dealing with a scientific man. Can't you think of any way of getting rid of him?"

"We could say we'd no confidence in his treatment," Lord Delisle suggested feebly.

The woman shrugged her shoulders.

"You promised to give him at least three weeks' trial," she said, "and we can't risk having him in the house as long as that, you know." She was silent, drumming on the table, and biting her nails; then she shot a glance at her husband from under her thick, sandy eyebrows—a glance that was not pleasant to see. "Why not make Irma the reason?" she asked.

Lord Delisle stared.

"Make Irma the reason?" he repeated amazedly. "Why, what on earth do you mean?"

"I mean this," the woman said—"Dr. Surtees is a young man, and handsome; what would be easier than to suggest that he's flirting with Irma?"

"But—but he's hardly seen her since he came," Lord Delisle interjected, "and Irma wouldn't dream of flirting with any man. She's far too proud."

"Don't be a fool!" the countess said savagely. "Who said they were flirting in reality? It's easy enough to say they are doing it; and to have words with Dr. Surtees, and tell him to leave the house. You leave it to me."

Lady Delisle stopped suddenly as the door of the smoking room was opened. Viscount Gartmore looked into the room, his face wearing its usually lowering expression.

"Oh, beg pardon," he said, "I thought the room was empty!" and he withdrew in spite of his father's invitation to him to remain.

"There's another thing," Lady Delisle said, as the door closed—"about Gartmore, I mean. Are you aware that that girl—that Kitty Keefe from the music hall—is at home again, and that Gartmore is seeing her regularly?"

"How do you know? Who says so?" "I've seen them, and Norton, my maid, tells me all about them. She had watched them again and again. They meet every day in the little rustic summer house overhanging the river. I am confident that Irma knows of their meetings."

"Well, I can do nothing," Lord Delisle said.

"Do nothing? I tell you, Delisle, Irma must marry Gartmore. Even if we settle Kathleen's business we can't expect a girl like Irma to stay unmarried. And even if she does what guarantee have you about your old aunt, and that you'll be able to make it all right about the money before Irma is 30? She's 22 now—and your aunt may last eight years yet. But once Irma is married to Gartmore the family honor is here, and you are safe from exposure anyway. It's extraordinary how helpless you are."

"If I were to renege with Gartmore," said Delisle, "he'd probably retort that I'd married a nursery governess."

"Yes, and you could point out how unfortunate your marriage had been," the countess sneered. "But you had a reason for marrying the girl's nursery governess. The nursery governess knew just a little too much about how you had swindled and gambled away the money of the girl's father which was left in your trust; and you married her to close her mouth about that and other things. And you knew too that she was a lady by birth—"

"You all are," Delisle interrupted. "I will speak to Gartmore about this girl—let that end the matter; and hold your tongue about my reasons for marrying you. Any one with eyes in his head must have guessed I had some pretty strong reasons."

And with this retort Lord Delisle walked out of the smoking room.

CHAPTER VII.

Kathleen was lying back in an armchair, looking very ill and tired.

"Aunt," she said petulantly to Lady Delisle. Since their nurse had been married to the earl the girls had, by mutual agreement, substituted the title "aunt" for the "Miss Darrell" of old days.

"Yes, dear?"

"Aunt, I feel so weak and languid and run down, somehow, since Dr. Surtees made me stop taking the capsules and my wine every day."

Lady Delisle looked around her in a curious furtive way. Fear of the young doctor's vigilance had made her during the last week abstain entirely from interfering with Kathleen's food and medicines; and he had given the most explicit orders that she was to take no wine—orders which Kathleen had promised to obey.

Lady Delisle bent towards her and applied a scented handkerchief to her forehead. The sensation of faintness increased. Kathleen fell back among the cushions, gasping for breath. She heard the countess' voice.

"A glass of wine, dear? It would revive you. Champagne?"

"Yes," Kathleen said eagerly and faintly.

Lady Delisle hurried to a cupboard, the key of which she kept herself. In a few minutes Kathleen had drunk the bubbling, sparkling liquid and was sitting up.

"Better, dear? Doctor's orders—nonsense! Doctors have their fads like the rest of us. I wasn't going to sit by and watch you faint. And now I must run away for a few minutes. Do not stir. Lady Delisle had withdrawn the perfumed handkerchief from Kathleen's brow. It must have been a fancy of the girl's that the feeling of faintness went with it. Quickly the countess set the champagne bottle and glass on a little table by Kathleen's side, and carelessly, accidentally as it were, dropped the key of the cupboard among the silken pillows. Then she rustled out of the room, and met Claude Surtees on the stairs.

"Oh, Dr. Surtees, I'm so sorry—I'm so much agitated and distressed! Have you seen Kathleen since the morning? She was so strange about half an hour ago. I am so terribly afraid she has managed to—to get hold of something that is not good for her—you understand? I am afraid it is one of the servants who is not trustworthy, and must have been bribed by Kathleen. If you would go to her now, Dr. Surtees, and satisfy yourself about the state she is in, it would be such a relief to me."

Claude gravely assented. He went straight to Kathleen's boudoir. On entering the room he immediately caught sight of the bottle and glass, and noticed that Kathleen looked frightened.

"How is this, Miss Vassie? You promised me you would not take any wine."

At this stern tone Kathleen's shame and confusion increased. She trembled and looked down, and Claude, looking down too, caught sight of the key, half-hidden in the cushions.

"Miss Vassie, you must answer me. Where did you get that? Who gave it to you?"

Poor Kathleen had a childish conviction that if she told him about Lady Delisle this terrible doctor would be capable of making no end of trouble. Being entirely ignorant of her reputation as an alcohol victim she attached no meaning to the key, and saw in the presence of the bottle and glass the evidence of nothing more serious than an infringement of the doctor's orders. So she kept silence, and her eyes filled with tears.

"Miss Vassie, you force me to the conclusion that your promise to me meant nothing. Yet I trusted you to keep it. I'm doing all I can to make you well; but I can do nothing, or very little, at least, if you won't try to help me. Who gave you that? Answer me—you must answer me."

Kathleen began to sob.

"You had no right to lie to me!" he cried. It was not a word to use to a lady, but the bewilderment and anxiety of this case were Claude's excuses. He had a horrible doubt that Irma's belief in her sister was without foundation, and he had not time to be sorry for his harsh words, for some one had entered the room, and a voice cried—

"Go away from this instant! Go out of the room—you brute!"

Irma stood before him, her face scarlet, her amethyst eyes burning with anger.

Kathleen sprang weeping towards her sister, who clasped her fondly in her arms, caressing her soft curls, kissing her brow. Claude bowed, looking right into Irma's angry eyes, and left the room.

He walked up and down in the corridor, determined to wait till Irma came out. He did not care how angry she was—he wanted to see and hear her. As he walked to and fro, thinking in the chaotic way of a young man madly in love, he became gradually aware of a peculiar odor in the corridor. Half mechanically he went on and leaned over the balustrade of the staircase, gazing down at a great bronze Mercury, with winged head and heels, which stood on a projection just below the balustrade. He was reflecting idly that it would not take a very strong push to send the bronze flying off, down at the door of the smoking room below, when he caught sight of a little white object lying on the thick faded carpet at his feet.

It was a handkerchief, embroidered daintily, and saturated with some liquid. As Claude sniffed it his face darkened. The next moment he had thrust it into his pocket and was face to face with Irma.

"How dare you speak as you did to Kathleen?" the girl cried.

"I spoke only the truth," he replied quietly, the painful emotion which he felt seeming only to make him calm.

"It was unmanly. Kathleen explained it all to me. It was Lady Delisle who gave her the champagne, which she took out of a cupboard. She thought that the strong perfume on Lady Delisle's handkerchief made her faint."

"Is this Lady Delisle's handkerchief, do you know?" the young man asked quickly, taking it from his pocket.

"I think so," Irma answered, examining the embroidered coronet and initials. "Yes, I recognize it, it's one of a set she has. What then?"

"Simply this, Miss Vassie. The handkerchief has been wetted with a liquid largely composed of chloroform. I think that you and your sister should not stay in this house any longer. I shall recommend that you go away for a change."

"Lady Delisle will come with us."

"No, you must refuse to have her. You know your sister better than I do; but personally I should prefer to warn her."

"No, no! Kathleen could not bear it."

"You know best, Miss Vassie. But we must get you and your sister away from here. I am going to speak to Lord Gartmore. At your request I haven't spoken to him before. I'll well aware that the matter must be painful to him, but I must speak to him now. I shall write him a note and ask him to give me an interview this evening."

"Very well," Irma said.

"You understand, I must have more information and personal proof. I have found nothing wrong with your sister's food since last Wednesday—this day a week ago. We must wait a couple of days before I can speak about you and your sister going away. Would it not be possible for you to go to Mr. Lorrin's mother? Pardon me, I think I've heard you speak of her as a kind friend."

"The very thing!" Irma exclaimed.

"And Marian—Lady Delisle—could not object to us going alone there. I will write to her today."

She turned as if to go—and hesitated.

"Yes," Irma smiled to herself.

"I am sorry I spoke hardly to your sister. I would not hurt any one dear to you—not for anything in the world."

His eyes met hers, and his looks were more eloquent than the halting words.

What a pity that Lord or Lady Delisle had not seen this interview between Irma and the young doctor. It would have supplied them with a foundation on which to build up cause of offense against Claude Surtees.

Lady Delisle had, on leaving Kathleen's room, gone to the little conservatory which opened off the drawing room, and pretended to be very busy snipping off faded leaves and blossoms from the plants. Her husband surprised her at this idyllic occupation when he came in search of her. Lord Delisle had the air of a man frantic with fear.

"What is it?" she cried out, letting fall the scissors.

Delisle had closed the door of the conservatory.

"What is it?" the countess asked again. "Nothing has happened to the children?" He shook his head. "She—Kathleen—she isn't dead?" the woman said.

"No, I've spoken to Gartmore—I've asked him about that girl. We had words, and he—he knows everything."

"Everything! What do you mean?" the countess gasped out. "He may know—he may have guessed—something about the money. You may have let out something when you were talkative or in an irritable temper. I dare say Gartmore knows well enough, or guesses well enough, what you have made away with."

"Oh, Dr. Surtees, I'm so sorry—I'm so much agitated and distressed! Have you seen Kathleen since the morning? She was so strange about half an hour ago. I am so terribly afraid she has managed to—to get hold of something that is not good for her—you understand? I am afraid it is one of the servants who is not trustworthy, and must have been bribed by Kathleen. If you would go to her now, Dr. Surtees, and satisfy yourself about the state she is in, it would be such a relief to me."

"How is this, Miss Vassie? You promised me you would not take any wine."

At this stern tone Kathleen's shame and confusion increased. She trembled and looked down, and Claude, looking down too, caught sight of the key, half-hidden in the cushions.

EIGHT GO DOWN WITH SHIP.

Details of Sinking of Norwegian Steamer Are Received.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Sept. 28.—Eight men were drowned and seven had a narrow escape from death by the foundering of the Norwegian steamer Gere, Saturday, six miles from the winter quarter lightship, fifty miles south of the Delaware capes. The seven men who were saved arrived here this afternoon on the British steamship Arroyo, which took them from the lightship before reported as having the shipwrecked seamen aboard. The men saved are Julius Meyer, the captain, and six seamen. They are now in the care of the Norwegian consul in this city.

The men tell a thrilling story of shipwreck in which every one was for himself. In English that could scarcely be understood. They said the Gere, which left here Friday with a crew of fifty men and a cargo of coal for Sagua la Grande, Cuba, encountered rough weather after passing the winter quarter lightship, when only three men were on deck, an unusually heavy sea struck the steamer, which heeled over at a dangerous angle. She was repeatedly struck by high seas and finally went over on her side.

Meantime the other members of the crew came on deck and taking in the situation obtained life belts. Nothing could be done to right the vessel, and as she was rapidly settling, the crew looked about for safety. The only boat had floated away. There was nothing for the men to do but jump into the sea.

Some of them jumped and others slid down the side into the rough water. All of them managed to find timber or other floating objects. The ship went to the bottom within three minutes.

Find Capsized Boat.

The stronger swimmers struck out for the boat, which was floating bottom up. After a trying time the little craft was righted and an attempt was made to clear it of water. After two hours' struggle, enough was gotten out to put two men aboard and with the aid of their scooped enough water out to permit others to climb in.

All the time this was going on the crew was fighting a losing battle with death. The weakest of the swimmers were spiced floating near and one of them was one by one. One of the men who could not swim appealed to Alexander Henderson to save him. The latter, struggling to keep his head above water, told him he could not, and that it was every man for himself.

When the water was finally out of the boat, the last remaining man clinging to it was hauled in and it was found that seven were missing.

The Spanish troops still rough and the tossing craft with its load threatened to capsize with every wave. A small mast with sail attached, which was recognized as having belonged to one of the crew, was spotted floating near and one of the men jumped overboard and towed it to the boat. It was erected and with this must the boat floated before the wind until 4:30 p. m. when the survivors sighted the winter quarter lightship.

Steer Without Oars.

The little craft had no oars, but the shipwrecked men guided the boat by their heads and soon came near enough to the ship to be taken on board by the lonely sentinels of the sea who spend their life on the lightship.

Hazel Nut of the Northwest.

The crop of hazel nuts in Clark county for this year has been enormous. Every bush is laden with nuts and all the boys and girls are storing large quantities for winter use. One family has the banner pick of four bushels of shelled nuts in one day.

That the cultivated hazel nut, or filbert, is admirably adapted to this climate has been demonstrated by a number of growers, among them John E. Norblus of Kaufman avenue extension, who has seven acres of trees in excellent condition. There are 300 trees to the acre, planted 10 feet apart. The culture is profitable to the grower, as the nuts bring 14 and 15 cents a pound. The trees bear a few nuts the first year, the crop increasing yearly until the 10-year-old trees are bearing about ten pounds of nuts. At a market price of 15 cents, 500 trees to an acre and ten pounds to the tree, the net sum of $450 an acre can be realized.—Vancouver Cor. Portland Oregonian.

KILLS IRISH LORD; HIDES IN AMERICA AS ANOTHER MAN

NEGAUNEE (MICH.) MAN'S SECRET BECOMES KNOWN AFTER HIS PASSING AWAY.

AVENGES SISTER'S BETRAYAL.

Dublin Law Student Shoots Classmate Whose Faithfulness Breaks Hearts of Victim and Mother.

SLAYER LIVES IN NORTH WOODS.

NEGAUNEE, Mich., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—Slaying his sister's betrayer, an Irish lord, and fleeing to America from Ireland after thus taking revenge on his classmate, John Fitzgerald, son of wealthy Killarney parents, first sought solitude in the United States army in Texas, then came to the north woods, where for twenty years his life's story has been kept a secret and his identity hidden under the alias of Joseph Murphy. His death here several days ago, unlocked the lips of a friend to whom Fitzgerald had confided the story of his early history.

Killarney His Birthplace.
Born of wealthy parents at Killarney, Ireland, Fitzgerald was given a good education and entered the Dublin university to fit himself for the law.

In his final year at that school his sister was betrayed by Lord Brassy, a classmate, and her death followed. The shock killed her mother, and at her death Fitzgerald and a younger brother vowed they would kill the betrayer of their sister.

The brothers started out armed and John Fitzgerald found the second of the Dublin Fitzgeralds shot Lord Brassy dead and was arrested while bending over the body. He was rescued from jail by a powerful Irish society and spirited to Paris.

Flees to America.
Fitzgerald came to America and at once enlisted in the army under the name of Joseph Murphy and was stationed at San Antonio, Texas. One day English army officers were reviewing the troops and Fitzgerald was recognized. He received warning from fellow soldiers and deserted.

Coming to Michigan, Fitzgerald buried himself away from the world and kept his secret for over two decades. All efforts of his relatives to locate him were futile until two years ago, when, at the advice of a friend he wrote to a sister. She at once answered, enclosing a letter she had written twenty years ago, and which had been returned to her.

Brilliant and Refined.
Fitzgerald was a man of brilliant mind and it could be readily seen that he possessed an excellent education and was not the character he posed while in this section.

He left a will dated June 19, 1908, in which he claimed to own property to the value of $20,000 in Limerick, Ireland, willed to him by his father. He desired his friend to communicate with his brother, Dan Fitzgerald, who would give him full authority to dispose of the property, which he willed to friends in Espana, who took care of him for many years.

FIGHT IN JAPAN IS LIKE THE PEARY-COOK.

Wordy Warfare is Waged Over Descent Made Into Crater by Chicago Professor.

VICTORIA, Sept. 27.—Wordy warfare in the English newspapers in Japan similar to the Peary-Cook controversy in the United States was being waged when the steamer Empress of China sailed.

The controversy in Japan is with regard to a descent made last month into the crater of Mt. Asama by Prof. Jay J. Rogers of Chicago. The professor telegraphed the particulars of the exploit to Yokohama newspapers telling of sensational experiences when lowered on a rope by four other persons into the crater. Dr. Charles McCauley of Boston, author and missionary, wrote "in the interest of truth," stating that Prof. Rogers had greatly magnified the adventure, and instead of being lowered into the crater had crawled down the rough slope leading into it.

Since then friends of both have been busy, and columns are being devoted to letters and photographs.

COOK WILL NOT ATTACK PEARY.

"Instruments May Arrive This Year," Says Explorer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook has received the following message from Harry Whitney in response to one sent by Cook:

STRATHCONA, via Indian Harbor and Cape Ray, N. E. Sept. 25.—Dr. F. A. Cook, Waldorf, New York: Started for home Roosevelt. Nothing arrived for me. Peary would allow nothing belonging to you on board. Said to leave everything in cache at Etah. Met Capt. Sam. Nor. Star. Did not go back after going schooner bound St. Johns take steamer home. Hope you well. See you soon. Explain all. Good shooting. HARRY WHITNEY.

Dr. Cook was questioned today, but declined to say anything derogatory of Peary.

"It may be that the instruments will arrive this year, after all," he said, "and for the records and observations, their non-arrival here makes no difference whatever, as I have complete duplicates, so that there will be no delay in compiling my story with all its details."

Dr. Cook denied the report that he was to bring suit for slander against Peary.

FINDS A "SLEEPY GRASS."

Would Furnish a Narcotic to Take Place of Those Now in Use.

While making a trip through the southwestern part of New Mexico, Herbert W. Wolcott of Alamogordo, N. M., found a grass from which he believes a narcotic may be abstracted which will take the place of those now known to medical science, says the Kansas City Star.

"The grass is known as 'sleepy grass' to the natives of New Mexico near the Apache reservation," said Mr. Wolcott.

"CATTLE AND HORSES WILL EAT IT THE FIRST TIME THEY SEE IT. IT MAKES THEM FALL TO THE GROUND IN TWO DAYS. WHEN THEY WAKE UP THEY HAVE NO ILL EFFECTS FROM THE OPiate. BUT THEY WILL NEVER EAT IT AGAIN; IN FACT, THEY WILL RUN AWAY IF IT IS OFFERED TO THEM."

"This 'sleepy grass' is not to be confused with the loco weed. The grass is a real grass, not unlike the Kentucky blue grass in appearance. The loco weed is a plant and bears a flower. Horses and cattle become loco fiends and are worthless after tasting the deadly stuff."

CHILDREN ARE IN PANIC

JERSEY CITY (N. J.) PUPILS MIS- TAKE FIREWORKS FOR BOMBS.

Rumors That Schools Would Be Dynamited Cause Italian Celebration to Strike Terror.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 27.—A panic among the 1000 pupils of St. Anthony's Polish parochial school, caused by the explosion of fireworks in the street near by, resulted today in the injury of fifteen children. Only one is believed to be fatally hurt. Many others with minor bruises were taken home, but fifteen were sent to the hospital.

Reports that some of the Jersey City schools would be dynamited had been circulated for several days, and when it was learned that the school building was in the street in front of a church next door in celebration of a festival the children thought the school building was being blown up. They made a rush for the doors, but found them closed.

In the scramble to escape many of the children were knocked down and trampled upon until the pressure forced the doors open. Then the frightened children ran among the exploding fireworks and some of the children were burned.

GIVES SQUAWS LIQUOR

INDIAN FARMER SERO TELLS SEN- ATOR LA FOLLETTE OF ACTS.

Senate Committee Spends Day in Ashland and Leaves for La Flambeau Reservation.

ASHLAND, Wis., Sept. 27.—[Special.]—It was almost 2 o'clock Sunday morning when the Senate committee on Indian affairs concluded its investigation at Oshkosh. Sunday forenoon Senators Clapp, La Follette, Page, and Brown had a boat ride on Chequamegon bay and an informal dinner was given in their honor at the Hotel Knight Sunday afternoon by Indian Agent Campbell.

The investigation at Oshkosh was very searching. The Indians have for half a century been in the habit of sending delegations to Washington to interview the "Great White Father" and now that representatives of the "White Father" have camped in the midst, they have talked at great length, the sessions not ending later than 1 o'clock every night.

The outcome may ultimately put back on the reservation the Morrisons, John Doherty and Frank Murray, provided they sign agreements to behave hereafter. Assistant Farmer Norber Sero will in all likelihood have to go. Sero was convicted by a jury of a statutory offense with one of the Morrisons women at Ashland last winter and a few weeks ago he signed an affidavit that he testified to his conviction and was free.

Senator La Follette, after asking Sero if he had not broken up Dan Morrison's home, sent for the woman at Red Wolf, put her on the stand and she testified that her second affidavit was made under a misapprehension.

The testimony shows that Sero and Government Agent Brents, while getting testimony to show that liquor was sold on the reservation, gave liquor to the two Indian women, Mrs. Dan Morrison and Mrs. Gosling. This and other testimony will likely result in Sero losing his job.

Sunday evening the senators left Ashland for the La Flambeau Indian reservation.

SLIGHT EARTHQUAKE FELT IN FOUR STATES.

Missouri, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana Re- port Tremors, but No Damage Is Done.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 27.—A slight earthquake which was felt through southeastern Missouri and Indiana, and central Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, occurred early today. In St. Louis the tremor came at 3:47 o'clock. So far as has been learned little or no damage resulted.

The general direction of the shock was west to east, and it was felt more clearly in thinly settled districts. Villages west of St. Louis reported the destruction of a few chimneys. In the west end of this city the residence district, many sleepers were awakened. The quake was scarcely in evidence in the downtown districts, only a few of the many residences in the larger hotels being disturbed.

Reports of the phenomenon were received from all stations on the Mobile & Ohio railway as far as Cairo, Ill. In Decatur, Macon and other towns in central Illinois there were shocks at practically the same time.

A settling of the earth's crust, with the seat of the disturbance many miles distant, is generally accepted as the cause of the quake. Probability of a renewal of the shock is negated by local scientists.

TWELVE DIE IN OCEAN.

Six Survivors of Foundered Vessel's Crew Are Safe Aboard Lightship Off Atlantic Coast.

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 27.—Six survivors out of a crew of eighteen are aboard the winter quarter lightship, the remaining twelve men having perished, according to a report made by Capt. Delano of the steamship Porto Rico, which arrived here today from New York.

The captain of the lightship said by megaphone that there were aboard his vessel six survivors from the ill-fated ship, and asked they be taken off if possible. Capt. Delano decided that it would be tempting death again to try to make the transfer under the weather conditions prevailing.

Those on the lightship were apparently satisfied to wait better weather and another passing ship. Those on the Porto Rico said that they could not see a small boat hanging to the rear of the lightship. The little craft was badly battered, and it is believed that the men saved made their way in it to the lightship.

SIX KILLED IN CHICAGO WRECK

PANHANDLE PASSENGER CRASHES INTO REAR END OF STOCK TRAIN.

FIRE ADDS TO THE TERROR.

No Opportunity for Escape Is Given to Men Sleeping in Milwaukee Road Caboose.

ENGINEER AND FIREMAN JUMP.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 28.—Six men were killed and a dozen seriously injured early today by an outboard Panhandle passenger train crashing into the rear of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul stock train at Twelfth and Rockwell streets.

The victims were stockmen and members of the stock train crew. No persons on the passenger train were injured.

When the accident occurred a few minutes after midnight, most of the victims were sleeping in the caboose of the stock train. This train was so completely demolished and the victims so mutilated that hours later only two had been identified.

Four cars were telescoped and the wreckage set afire. Many of the injured were extricated with difficulty from the burning debris by firemen and others who hurried to the scene of the wreck.

The identified dead:
POTTER, H. Dion, Lake, N. D.
SCHLANGER, DON, Fayette, N. D.
STEVENS, W. J., Livingston, Mont.
MATZ, JACOB, Cullen, N. D.
KOCH, FRED, Dickinson, N. D.
POSTLE, JOHN, Winona, N. D.

Passenger Crew Jumped.
The passenger train, which was bound for Cincinnati and had left the Union station at 12:01 a. m., was moving rapidly and had just rounded a sharp curve near the street intersection when the engineer sighted the stock train only a few yards in front. After applying the emergency brakes the engineer and fireman of the passenger train leaped from the cab, escaping injury.

No opportunity for escape was given the sleeping stockmen in the way car, as the sound of the warning whistle was drowned in the crash as the heavy locomotive ploughed through the caboose and then other coaches.

Fire added to the terror of the wreck and greatly hampered the work of rescue.

List of the Injured.
At the Monroe street hospital today the following list of injured was obtained:
W. W. McDonald, Elgin, Ill., switchman, contusions about face and body.
D. M. Mackie, Fallon, Mont., stockman; lacerations.
E. H. Egge, Fallon, Mont., driver; lacerations about face.
Henry R. Bond, Milwaukee, conductor of stock train; ankle broken and internal injuries.
Mark McDonald, brakeman; general contusions.
Edward S. Armor, Chicago; fingers crushed in rescue work.
Fred Hackett, Chicago; cut and bruised in rescue work.
Peter Johnson, North Dakota; fracture of arm, scalp cut.
H. F. Black, Dayton, O.; bruised.
D. M. Mackie, Fallon, Mont.; bruised.
Harmon Wirth, Hankinson, N. D.; right foot crushed, severe burns.
D. M. Mackie, Fallon, Mont., stockman; back injured, serious.

Conductor Bond was erroneously reported among the dead Monday night.

VISIT SAVES MILWAUKEE MAN.

A. E. Williamson Stopped Off to See Parents and Escaped Wreck.

The first reports of the collision were exaggerated. None of the men engaged in handling the train met death. The milk and ice cream cars, owned by H. R. Bond, conductor of the stock train, whose leg was broken, but reports received here at 10 o'clock were to the effect that his injuries were not fatal. Peter Johnson, Chicago, owner of an early train, was killed.

W. McDonald, boarding at 838 South Pierce street, brakeman on the train, was badly injured, but his injuries are not serious. He was taken to the hospital.

William Collins, engineer of the stock train, escaped without injury, and Peter Koehlin, living at 490 Tenth street, also escaped injury. These men have been in charge of the stock train for some years, and all are well known Milwaukee railway men.

A. E. Williamson, a former Milwaukee boy, son of E. I. Williamson of 3410 E. Paul street, came here on the train and stopped off to see his parents. When seen this morning he said:

"I knew some of the stockmen on the train and in all there were fourteen men on board. Those whom I knew personally were Peter Johnson, a stock dealer at Mandan, Mont.; E. H. Egge, aged 20 years, of Fallon, Mont., who was my uncle; Frank G. Buckley, owner of a large ranch at Fallon, and a married man about 45 years of age; Dennis Hamilton, 38 years of age, a stock raiser at Livingston, Mont., and William Stephenson, also in the stock business at Livingston. I had charge of a bunch of cattle, and expected to go on this morning to look after them. I feel that my stop off in Milwaukee was a fortunate thing for me, and I hope the report that six of our party were killed is a mistake. They were all fine men and most of them had been in the stock raising and shipping business for years. I left Milwaukee five years ago and have been on a ranch in southern Montana since that time."

Mr. Williamson left for Chicago at 11 o'clock this morning to learn just who of the party with whom he had traveled this far escaped in the wreck.

NO MEAL; BURNS HOME.

Angered Because Wife Does Not Have Supper Ready, Husband Wrecks House, Is Charged.

WAUSAU, Wis., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Thomas La Pointe has been arrested for setting fire and destroying his home Saturday night. It is charged that in a fit of anger against his wife because his supper was not ready he destroyed the furniture and set fire to the house, which was entirely burned down.

Cut Has Monkey Characteristics.
On the farm of W. H. Hastings near Delmar, Del., is a 2-months-old kitten with hands and arms like a monkey. It walks on its hind feet with its hands up most of the time. The kitten is perfect in all other ways.

The Silent London Club.
J. M. Barrie is a member of the Athenaeum club in Pall Mall. On his first appearance there, it is said, he once asked for some information from a gentleman sitting near him. To his great surprise the older member not only told him all he wanted to know, but insisted on Mr. Barrie dining with him and taking supper afterward, though neither of them knew the other's name. Upon Mr. Barrie protesting that he could not possibly accept so late an invitation, the older stranger, the other immediately replied: "Don't mention it; don't mention it. Why, I've belonged to this club for twenty-five years and you are the very first member who has ever spoken to me."—Tit-Bits.

VISIT SAVES MILWAUKEE MAN.

A. E. Williamson Stopped Off to See Parents and Escaped Wreck.

The first reports of the collision were exaggerated. None of the men engaged in handling the train met death. The milk and ice cream cars, owned by H. R. Bond, conductor of the stock train, whose leg was broken, but reports received here at 10 o'clock were to the effect that his injuries were not fatal. Peter Johnson, Chicago, owner of an early train, was killed.

W. McDonald, boarding at 838 South Pierce street, brakeman on the train, was badly injured, but his injuries are not serious. He was taken to the hospital.

William Collins, engineer of the stock train, escaped without injury, and Peter Koehlin, living at 490 Tenth street, also escaped injury. These men have been in charge of the stock train for some years, and all are well known Milwaukee railway men.

A. E. Williamson, a former Milwaukee boy, son of E. I. Williamson of 3410 E. Paul street, came here on the train and stopped off to see his parents. When seen this morning he said:

"I knew some of the stockmen on the train and in all there were fourteen men on board. Those whom I knew personally were Peter Johnson, a stock dealer at Mandan, Mont.; E. H. Egge, aged 20 years, of Fallon, Mont., who was my uncle; Frank G. Buckley, owner of a large ranch at Fallon, and a married man about 45 years of age; Dennis Hamilton, 38 years of age, a stock raiser at Livingston, Mont., and William Stephenson, also in the stock business at Livingston. I had charge of a bunch of cattle, and expected to go on this morning to look after them. I feel that my stop off in Milwaukee was a fortunate thing for me, and I hope the report that six of our party were killed is a mistake. They were all fine men and most of them had been in the stock raising and shipping business for years. I left Milwaukee five years ago and have been on a ranch in southern Montana since that time."

Mr. Williamson left for Chicago at 11 o'clock this morning to learn just who of the party with whom he had traveled this far escaped in the wreck.

"HOT" HANDBILLS IN GRAFT FIGHT

JNEIDA COUNTY BOODLE INVESTI- GATION SPLITS THE CITIZENS INTO TWO CAMPS.

THREE MEN ARE INDICTED.

Taxpayers Demand Calling of Grand Jury and Trials Will Be Held at Next Court Term.

SAMPLE OF CAMPAIGN MATTER.

WAUSAU, Wis., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Oneida county's graft investigation has divided the citizens into two factions and a merry handbill war is on. One faction looks upon the investigation as a big farce and the other side is of the firm belief that the step is for the benefit of the moral welfare of the community.

The investigation was started several months ago at the petition of some tax-payers of Minocqua to Judge Reid to call a grand jury to look into the public affairs of that town. Indictments were returned against three men and they will have their trial at the next term of circuit court.

A Sample Handbill Bomb.
Following is a sample of one of the attacks made in the handbill warfare being waged by the two factions:

A FINAL REPORT OF TOWN PROCEEDINGS.
We have brought on a grand jury. We have built a temporary sewer. We are running our sewers in the lake so the waters may become polluted. We have built a temporary water plant at a cost of $10,000. We have supported blind pigs so as to keep the taxpayers from getting any money for spring elections. We have drawn our salaries of $1000 to $2000 a year. We have raised the rate of taxation to 6 per cent. We have brought on six law suits. We can't see why the taxpayers can't stand for six months on the bridge. We have dug the biggest hole in Frank Roger's farm that was dug in any farm in the state. If the taxpayers will reduce us we will put a roof over it and try to induce Kingling Brothers circus to come and make their winter quarters, which will mean a big thing for Minocqua.

Officers Not Americans.
We have brought on more corruption than any town in the state. We challenge Harry. We have kept the taxpayers from having a voice in any election for the last ten years by bringing votes from Star Lake, Arbor Vitae and elsewhere. We have had men acting as supervisors who could not read nor write and who are not American citizens. We have built private sewers for our friends and brothers and kept the same to the taxpayers. We are the heaviest taxpayers, but we always have the taxpayers pay our taxes. We have bought a lot of property since we held town office.

We have a ring of six men who know where the money goes and no one else. We have had $80,000 paid in the last three years, but it was not enough, can't see why the taxpayers are not more liberal. We are known as the "chicken soup" of the town. We have served the town of Minocqua for the last ten years and we fear we will serve ten years for it. We want to be re-elected as we need the money to fight a grand jury if it is a bad thing. Yours sincerely,
ONE OF THE SIX.

Virouqa (Wis.) Man Digs Up Bones Supposedly of Prehistoric Human Beings—Teeth Well Preserved.

VIROUQA, Wis., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—C. H. Lawrence of Ferryville has exhumed some bones of a prehistoric race from mounds near his home. One of the skeletons indicated that they once joined the frame of a man eight or nine feet tall.

Amongst the collection are three complete jawbones, in each of which every tooth is intact and perfect, except that they are greatly worn, those in one jaw having been shortened to the level of the gums.

The teeth in the larger inferior maxillary were in a perfect state of preservation, although the row of molars on the left side was considerably worn, indicating that their owner in life had chewed principally on that side. In none of these teeth are any cavities in evidence, which together with the fact that none are missing, would indicate that the mound building age was a very poor one for dentists.

Railroad Rate Commission Hears His Plea and Compiles with Re- quest for Service.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—On complaint of George F. Meyer, a farmer, the railroad rate commission has ordered the Wisconsin Central and its predecessor, the Soo road, to operate not less than one train a day each week between Rib Lake and Spirit Falls and to give proper notice of the running of the train. Meyer set forth that this road was operated as common carrier in 1908 but that since then it had not been used. The railroad company put the defense that it was a private logging road, which the rate commission did not recognize.

Superintendent of La Crosse Poor Farm Has Thirty Days in Which to Win Her Back.

LA CROSSE, Wis., Sept. 28.—[Special.]—Because he is separated from his wife, John Johnson, superintendent of the La Crosse county poor farm, has been released from duty by officers of the county board and the committee on poor and insane. Johnson's wife left him some time ago and he was notified then that unless she returned, he would be discharged. Upon her failure to do so, Johnson was today given thirty days' notice and at the end of that time his successor will be appointed, the board deeming it necessary that the position be held jointly by a man and his wife.

British Swindlers in China.

The British endeavor to secure modifications of the loan regulations to conform to the Kowloon terms, claiming that these are best to insure an honest administration of the railway's finances has been given a rude shock by the arrest of the British chief accountant of the Kowloon railway at Canton, charged with heavy embezzlement. The Chinese are therefore not impressed with the claimed superiority of the Kowloon terms and they refuse to consider any change in the Yang-tze regulations.

Chinese Newspapers Suppressed.

On the recommendation of the foreign board the regent has suppressed two of the ablest Chinese newspapers in Peking, because they published government telegrams in which the governor of Kirin discussed Japan's military intentions in extending the Kirin railroad and exploiting the Chientao territory. The governor asked protection against a Japanese invasion and a future war between Russia and Japan.

The law against the sale of intoxicating liquor is more or less vigorously enforced in parts of Arkansas. Not long ago the sheriff of a county seat town seized two barrels of whisky in bottles. One day he announced that he was ready to pay his fine and be released. It was not until after he had made his "getaway" out of the state that it was discovered he had sold the liquor taken from the barrel for enough to pay his fine and secure his release from jail.—Kansas City Star.

Life of Ease for 28-Year-Old Trick Circus Horse.

New York can boast of many pampered pets, but down at Garden City there is one living in luxurious ease, the guest for life of a big hotel, with a Japanese valet to care for him, even though he has not registered since his arrival.

This is Tom, the first trick pony of the now extinct Barnum & Bailey circus, which at the age of 28 years is living as the guest of the Garden City hotel, pensioned for life by Robert Stickney.

The aged pony, according to Brooklyn Life, has not only a sumptuous stall but a Japanese valet as well, who daily leads the animal out for its exercise, during which it is the recipient of gifts and attention from a large circle of boy and girl friends. While advanced years have brought stiffness, the pony still attempts a few of its old time tricks.

A Tree, Entirely Severed from Its Base, but Still Standing.

Out in California there is a tree trunk which has stood for the last sixteen years entirely severed from its base. The stump is 15 feet in diameter, and the trunk towers 75 feet in the air. This remarkable freak is located near the Sequoia forest reserves in Tuolumne county, Cal., and was sawn off by lumbermen when the cut was finished the tree still held its position, and dynamite was resorted to to bring it to the ground, which accounts for the deep gash on one side. After the first charge of the explosive had been ignited the tree still remained standing, and it was discovered that the entire trunk had been shattered by the discharge, and was therefore useless for lumber. Accordingly, the work was stopped, and the giant has remained upright, withstanding some of the severest wind storms that the state has known, held in its natural position by its great weight.—Wide World Magazine.

Aristhion.

In a small village in Switzerland is a comfortable old inn much frequented by English, and the menu generally includes one dish supposed to be especially British. Though the orthography is peculiar, the meaning is generally obvious, as for example, "roast bif rolf," "rumesteek"; but "aristhion de mouton a l'Anglais" was puzzling. The first word had a distinctly classical appearance which suggested a Greek origin. But when the dish appeared the meaning flashed into the guests' minds. "Aristhion" was the Swiss chef's attempt to render phonetically the words "Irish stew."—Manchester Guardian.

FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS

The new hat uplifted coquettishly at the one side and bent low at the other needs not only to be shaped especially to the face which is to wear it, but it requires the most careful adjusting on the head each time it is worn. At the wrong angle it has the wayward effect of actually dissolving air which few women care to assume. A hat of the kind was also covered with black and white checked taffeta stretched tight over the shape and was trimmed with a rooster's head, the bright red comb of which, it must be confessed, was effective if spectacular.

One of the recent fancies of the milliner is the brilliant bunch of cardinal red feathers which are placed at the up-turned side. Look out for fiery tones from the milliner at this season.

"I had a delightful time in the country," said a woman who had been visiting her friend in the last green porch about my stay that I shall remember longest, aside from my hostess's kindness, is the room I slept in. I hadn't been sleeping well for weeks, and that guest room spelled rest to me the minute I entered. The room was bright with cool, green linen, and there were green mats before the bed, the dressing table and the long lounge chair by the window. The floor and the woodwork were painted a soft creamy white. The window curtains were a shimmering green stuff, embroidered with white in a coarse outline sketch. The furniture was of white enameled wood, very simple, and the few pictures on the walls were Japanese prints in green and orange. The fashioned window blinds kept the light out in the early morning, and when I flung the blinds open there were the branches of the great elms just outside. And on the bureau, writing desk and dressing table in the green porch, the bowls, were masses of white plox. It was the most soothing room I ever slept in, and how I did sleep!"

"When my sister married and went to live in the country," said the first speaker's friend, "she resolved to be very particular about the furnishings of her guest rooms, for she knew just what a cool, sweet, fresh country bedroom meant to a tired city person. One of her rooms is done in chintz—this green stuff, embroidered with white in a coarse outline sketch. The furniture was of white enameled wood, very simple, and the few pictures on the walls were Japanese prints in green and orange. The fashioned window blinds kept the light out in the early morning, and when I flung the blinds open there were the branches of the great elms just outside. And on the bureau, writing desk and dressing table in the green porch, the bowls, were masses of white plox. It was the most soothing room I ever slept in, and how I did sleep!"

"The demand for soap wafers on the part of the traveler is increasing steadily. This demand has called forth a clever engineer for carrying the wafers. It is made of linen a trifle larger than the soap wafers and fashioned like an envelope. This is a most convenient form of carrying the toilet articles and so compactly that it takes up but little space. One seen recently has the owner's initials done in colored cross-stitch, and the case is bordered with a conventional design in the same stitch.

When clothing has become worn so as to need a goodly amount of mending it is usually unfit for anything but the commonest wear, so that the quickest way of disposing of it is to sell it. A writer in The Housekeeper for September.

When large holes appear in the heels of feet of stockings pin a piece of net over and darn through that. The work will require only half of the usual time and looks well. If the net is the same color as the stockings the mending will be unobtrusive and will strengthen the mended place.

Children's stockings may be made to do double duty by watching for thin places and not allowing them to quite wear through. If matted or fiber carpet becomes worn darn it with raffia and the mending will hardly be discernible.

If one will take the trouble to look into the matter for himself he will find that there are as many women of 60 and 70 earning their living as there are women under that age. Furthermore, elderly women are offering suggestions to younger ones by their individual efforts, a striking example of this being Mrs. Hester Palmer, who is 72 years old and who is showing herself an up-to-date rancher. Mrs. Palmer has a farm of 200 acres out in the Pacific northwest, right in the heart of the yellow pine belt in the Blue Mountain district. She was not doing so well as she thought she should in Missouri, her girlhood home, so she set out a short time ago on the plains with a milk team, and although her ranch is somewhat removed from the busy center of the state of Washington, the idea of being lonesome has never occurred to her.

Rugs often have a tendency to curl at the corners. To prevent them from doing so, bind them on the under side with a strip of narrow webbing of the kind that is used to hold the springs in furniture in place.

An actress whose forte is eccentric character study confides in her friends that at home her wardrobe is kept under lock and key. Neither her mother nor her sister is able to resist an opportunity to throw or give things away. Her most cherished old clothes wrappers, her price-less peacock blue gloves, and the magenta knit tippet are constantly threatened with presentation to the washerwoman. Her faded ribbons and invaluable character shoes—any one can see how hard it is to collect old shoes with the proper characteristics for eccentric character roles—are hourly expected upon the ash heap. It is utterly impossible to convince these energetic souls that putting her things to rights for her is not a step toward furthering her career.

While dampened tea leaves are excellent for sprinkling on a carpet before sweeping it, they are well nigh fatal if similarly used on matting. The leaves will discolor the matting and otherwise harm the surface. Instead, sprinkle damp salt on the matting. Some housewives also wipe the matting off after sweeping with a cloth dipped in salt water. This will help to keep the matting from turning yellow and will give it a fresh appearance as well.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Paw Paw, Mich.—"I suffered terribly from female ill, including inflammation and congestion, for several years. My doctor said there was no hope for me but an operation. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I can now say I am a well woman."—EMMA DRAFER.

Another Operation Avoided.

Chicago, Ill.—"I want women to know what that wonderful medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, has done for me. Two of the best doctors in Chicago said I would die if I did not have an operation, and I never thought of seeing a well day again. I had a small tumor and female troubles so that I suffered day and night. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it made me a well woman."—Mrs. ALVINA SPERLING, 11 Langdon St., Chicago, Ill.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ill, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to many suffering women.
