TO PATROL ROADS IN FOND DU LAC CO.

The Fond du Lac County, state aid road and bridge committee, which held its regular semi-monthly meeting Tuesday at Fond du Lac, instructed the county engineer to start hiring men at once for patrol duty on county roads during the coming year. These men will start work April 1st, and will follow up the work until Dec. 1st, or later if weather conditions at that time permit. Plans for the paving of State Highway No. 55 are rapidly being completed by County Engineer J. S. McCullough. The layout on Fond du Lac to Eden is nearly but work is still being done on the plans for the road from the county line this way.

REGISTER YOUR CLAIMS

All ex-service men who have any claims against the government are urged to register at once with the Red Cross Home Service offices at Hartford or West Bend. The Clean-up Squad from the U. S. Veterans' Bureau will set a time between February 7th and March 3rd for the purpose of taking up the claims of men residing in Washington County. It is absolutely necessary to know how many men wish to appear before the Squad and the men are therefore asked to hand in their names to either the Hartford or the West Bend Home Service office. Special attention will be given to compensation cases. Men who have not already filed claims for compensation will be assisted in doing so; those whose claims have been filed will be assisted in securing speedy adjudication of the same.

It is hoped that every man with a claim against the government will register at once in order that prompt settlement may be secured. The date set aside for men of Washington County will be announced later.

60,000 AUTO PLATES NET STATE $600,000

More than 60,000 automobile license plates have been distributed by the secretary of state since January 1, resulting in an addition of $600,000 to the state's general fund.
The first rush for licenses has subsided to a moderate level, and it is expected to emerge from winter quarters, Elmer S. Hall, secretary of state, said, automobile owners outside of cities explained, are holding their $10 in spring opens the roads to travel.
It is estimated that 150,000 additional plates will be distributed before April 1. The total number will exceed 375,000, according to Mr. Hall, reducing $3,500,000 for use in maintaining the roads of the state.

GRIM REAPER EVER BUSY

The Spencer Herald came to our desk this week announcing the death of Mrs. H. J. Krahn, a former and well known resident of the town of Wayne, where she was born and where she spent her childhood days, receiving her elementary education in Washington county schools. While a resident of this county she won a host of friends through her kind and winning ways, who will be grieved to learn of her sudden death. The obituary as it appeared in the Herald is as follows:

"Mrs. Herman J. Krahn, of the town of Sherman, died at the Marshall hospital Monday morning, Jan. 23, from peritonitis, following an operation for gall stones.
Mrs. Krahn's death comes as a great shock to her many friends, as it was expected that her recovery was almost certain. She was of a cheerful disposition, bright and winning in her ways, so that friendships were made to her a large one, and a dark gloom spread over the community when it was learned that she had passed away. She was 43 years of age.
Sophia Kibbel was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Kibbel and was born in the town of Wayne, Washington county, Wis., on October 3rd, 1878. She was married in Washington county to Herman J. Krahn on November, 28, 1901. In 1909 they came here and have since resided on their farm in the town of Sherman.
Besides her husband, she leaves to mourn her death, six children, Marvin, Lillian, Walter, Arthur, Alton and Malinda; one sister, Mrs. Alfred Triebe, of Milwaukee, and six brothers, Henry, August and Christ Kibbel of Spencer, Ernest and Edward Kibbel of Campbellsport and Oscar Kibbel of Manitowish.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon, Jan. 26, services being conducted at St. Trinity's Ev. Lutheran church by the Rev. K. E. J. Schmidt. Burial was made in the Spencer cemetery.
Those from away who were here to attend the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Berg, Mrs. Almond Elbelt, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Krahn, Arthur Krahn of Cascade, Wis., Mrs. Ed. Tupper of Sheboygan; Mrs. Alfred Triebe, Milwaukee; Mrs. Ernest Kibbel, Campbellsport; Martin Krahn and Mrs. Herman Krahn, Sr., Beechwood; Mrs. W. Claus, Loyak Mrs. J. Himm, Marshfield.

At her home in Batavia occurred the death of Mrs. Jacob Held, on Sunday, January 29, 1922, after a lingering illness of ten years. Having been blind for the past six years. Deceased was born January 1, 1852 in Schoeneberg, Germany. When a young lady she immigrated to America, coming to her present home 24 years ago. On April 7, 1869, she was married to Jacob Held, who died 6 years ago. 13 children were born of this union. Those surviving are: William Held of New York, August Held of Ladysmith, Oscar, Henry and Albert Held of Milwaukee, Frank and Jacob of Batavia and one daughter Emma at home. The funeral was held on Wednesday, February 1st, 1922, with services in Ev. St. John's church at Beechwood. Rev. Kuenne officiated. Interment was made in the Beechwood cemetery.

Mrs. M. E. Helmer, a prominent citizen of Campbellsport, died at her home in that village, last Sunday afternoon at 1 o'clock, after an illness of two months with heart trouble. Deceased was born October 6, 1857, in the town of Ashford. On October 30, 1879, she was married to Merritt E. Helmer. She leaves to mourn her husband, two children, Mrs. L. E. Hendricks and Wayland S. Helmer of the town of Ashford; one brother, H. G. Schmidt of Long Beach, Calif.; and one sister, Mrs. J. DeKlinger of North Fond du Lac. The funeral was held on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the house and from the Baptist church at 10:15. Rev. W. Taylor officiated. Burial was made in the Union cemetery.

Mrs. Augusta Backhaus, a resident of Washington county for many years, passed away at her home in Cascade Thursday, her demise being attributed to the debilities of old age. Funeral services were held last Saturday afternoon from the home and from the Lutheran church at Cascade. Rev. Halboth officiated. Interment was made at New Fane. Mrs. Backhaus was born July 3rd, 1842, in Germany and came to this country when 19 years of age. She settled in Washington county and lived there until two years ago when she came to Cascade to reside. Mrs. Backhaus passed away nine years ago. The deceased is survived by the following daughters, Mrs. Otto Bass, Mrs. Rosa Marquardt, Cascade; Mrs. R. Hintz, Beechwood; Mrs. Emma Krueger, Mitchell; Mrs. Chas. Hintz, Lyndon; Mrs. Aug. Backhaus, Kewaskum. One sister, Mrs. Bertha Rangel of New Fane, seventeen grand children and 26 great grand children also survive.—Plymouth Reporter.

DRY LAW HITS FARMER
Washington—Prohibition in 1920 through decreased selling price of barley, alone cost farmers of the United States $224,000,000.
This was the assertion made by Henry Altenbrand, president of the Henry Altenbrand Malt Co. of New York and the Manhattan Malt Co. of Montana, before committee No. 5 of the agricultural conference, in suggesting modification of the Volstead act.
Mr. Altenbrand presented a formal statement showing in detail the loss to farmers through practical closing of the barley market as the result of the prohibition law. The loss to Wisconsin he estimated at $26,000,000.—Milwaukee Journal.

"Lines on a Skeleton."
The manuscript of the poem "Lines on a Skeleton" was found near a skeleton in the London Royal College of Surgeons about 1820. The author was never found, and each of a number of persons have claimed to be the author.

JUDGE DAVISON MAY HAVE OPPOSITION AT THE ELECTION
From Waukesha comes the announcement that Judge C. M. Davison of Beaver Dam, of the Thirteenth Judicial circuit, will have opposition at the coming spring election. He is to be opposed by County Judge David W. Agnew, one of Waukesha's best known and well liked men. The judge has made no definite statement, merely informing his friends that he is considering the matter. An election will be held this spring to fill the unexpired term of Martin L. Lueck, whose term will expire on Jan. 1, 1924. Candidates for the office will again appear in the spring of 1923 for the new term. The following counties comprise the Thirteenth Judicial circuit: Dodge, Waukesha, Washington and Ozaukee.—West Bend Pilot.

On Wednesday, February 1st the trapping season for muskrats opened in Dodge county, and continues until March 31st, 1922. Reports have been received that muskrats in that county are plentiful this year, and a good season for trappers is in sight.

LOWER AWAY!

KEWASKUM HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

Evelyn Perschbacher has enrolled in high school as a senior. Citizenship, solid geometry, and commercial arithmetic are the new subjects this semester.
Report cards were given out Monday, January 23rd, after school.
The high school boys' basketball team will play the Campbellsport team on Friday, February 3rd. The game will be played at Kewaskum. Are you going?
Manitowish will have a new high school. The special election on the $500,000 bond issue for the new high school was passed with a vote of almost four to one. This is indicative of the way the public will respond when they know the facts. The Manitowish school board in a series of articles in the Manitowish Herald gave the facts and figures on the need for the new high school, on what it would cost, on the plans and all the details. It took the public completely into its confidence. It said in effect, "These are your schools, we are simply your executive committee. Do you want adequate schools and educational opportunity for your children, or do you not?"
The vote is an overwhelming affirmative and insures the future of Manitowish's children. It should inspire other cities also. Open diplomacy pays in schools as in other affairs of state. The people want good things for their children, and will provide them if they know the facts.
There appears in the February number of the Review of Reviews a splendid article by Marjorie Shuler entitled "Making Teachers Welcome." It is especially concerned with the project of teacherages or school mances and with the wonderful progress that several states have made in this direction. Washington, Minnesota and other western states seem to take the lead.
The article is interestingly told and well worth reading.
A number of high school and grammar room pupils competed in an adding contest this week. Both freshmen and sophomore classes in commercial arithmetic chose their six best adders to represent them in the inter-class contest. The winners in this contest challenged the best adders from the grammar room. As a result, Margaret Hawig, Oscar Hammen and Irene Uelmen of the sophomore class, Esther Campbell and Nathan Quandt of the freshmen class, and Allan Miller of the sixth grade were declared to be the best adders.

ATTENTION GARDENERS
The editor of the Statesman is pleased to announce a new series of articles under the title, "The Cottage Gardener," which will be run in twelve issues commencing this week.
These articles are designed to secure more satisfactory results in the operation of the little back-yard farms. They will take the gardener through the successive stages of seed boxes in the house, preparation of the soil, transplanting, seeding outdoors and cultivation.
While Kewaskum and vicinity has always been famed for its excellent gardens, it is quite certain that competition among the "back-yard farmers" will be more keen this year than usual if these valuable articles have a general reading and following.

SLINGER RETAINS CO. CHAMPIONSHIP

Before the largest crowd of enthusiastic basket ball fans that ever witnessed a game at the local Opera House last Sunday afternoon, the Kewaskum Aluminum basketball team was defeated by the Slinger A. C. team by a score of 17 to 21. The game was all that it was advertised to be, a thriller from start to finish, both teams fought hard all the way through, trying their utmost to break through the defense line in order to gain a safe lead, but this seemed impossible, for it appeared to be nobody's game until within three minutes of the last half, when the visitors had a six point lead. The first half started with a rush, Slinger being the first to get a field goal, a few minutes later Manitowish took the lead, but Slinger, who was in their favorite spots, from this time on the entire first half was a nip and tuck proposition, ending with a score of 7 to 10 with Slinger on the top. During this half both teams had played some flashy team work, but the locals, fumbling the ball more than their opponents, who gave the visitors a slight shade over our boys, as far as passing was concerned, both sides had hard luck shooting baskets. The second half opened with Jack Lesar, captain of the Slinger team, after a few seconds of play, making the lead score nine to ten. Slinger, however, followed up with a field goal and a free throw. At this stage of the game both teams were battling for all that was in them, making use of every trick of the game known to the players in order to break through. The locals doing most of the fumbling and thus giving the Slinger team chances at the basket that otherwise would probably not have presented them. The Slinger team, however, had more and took advantage of more basketball shooting than their opponents, but failed to make them go through the net, lost the game, and with it the county championship. It must be said that with the exception of poor shooting on the part of the home boys, this was the most interesting and exciting game seen on the home floor in years. It has openly been stated by fans of the county, who are good at judging a game and the brand of ball a team puts up, that the locals, though the victors, had a little the best of them in passing and basket shooting, our boys had an edge on them during the entire game and should have won, without a question, had it not been for poor shooting on the part of the other drawback on the part of the locals, one which was much in evidence in Sunday's game, was the fact that some of the home players seemed to be nervous and over anxious, while the Slinger team on the other hand were cool and level headed throughout the entire forty minutes of play. However, Slinger won, two straight games from the Aluminums, and to them without any arguments goes the glory and honor of again retaining the title as Washington County basketball ball champions for the 1921-1922 season, which title they have been successful in holding for the past several years.

Tomorrow (Sunday) afternoon, the Aluminums play the strong Random Lake team at the local Opera House. This promises to be another hard tussle, as the local management has been informed that the visitors are coming here loaded for the night, having in their lineup three of the Wisconsin Indians basket ball five who have toured the state for the last two years.

Original Weights and Measures.
Weights were originally taken from grains of wheat. The Jews used to weigh in to the grains, the Egyptians in to the shekels, the Greeks in to the drachms and the Romans in to the asses. An interesting series of copper weights (now in the British Museum), admirably modeled in the form of lions, 16 in number, and found in regular graduation from one foot to one inch in length, was discovered by Sir Austin Henry Layard, the noted English archaeologist, in the northwest palace at Nimrud (pointed out by tradition as the site of Nineveh).

WEATHER NO BAR TO CUPID'S WILES

The St. Kilian Catholic church was the scene of a pretty wedding at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, January 31, when Angeline German was united in marriage to Adolph Leichte, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Leichte, Theresa, Rev. J. B. Reichel tied the nuptial knot. The bride was attended by Hildegard German, as maid of honor, and Tillie Leichte as bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by Oscar Batzler and Englebert German.
The bride was given away by her twin brother Englebert German.
The bride was dressed in a white satin dress trimmed with lace and beads, and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The maid of honor wore a peach-colored dress, a white dress and carried a bouquet of white carnations, while the bridesmaid wore a pink crepe de chine gown and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. After the ceremony the bridal party together with about thirty invited guests repaired to the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. Ruplinger, where a reception was held. The newly weds will go to housekeeping on the groom's farm near Theresa, where they will be at home after February 15th. Out of town guests who attended the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. N. Leichte of Theresa, the Misses Elizabeth German and Rosina Ruplinger of Milwaukee.

A very quiet wedding was performed at high noon on Thursday, February 2, 1922, in the St. Pauls Lutheran church in the town of Lomira, when Mr. Alvin Schwartz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schwartz of the town of Lomira, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Miss Leona S. Coulter, daughter of David Coulter of the town of Wayne. Rev. Walters performed the ceremony. The bride wore a dark blue tulle gown with hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of roses. She was attended by Miss Frances Schwartz, sister of the groom, who acted as maid of honor, and wore a dark brown velvet suit and hat to match, and wore a corsage bouquet of roses. The groom was attended by William Coulter, brother of the bride, who acted as best man. The newly weds left the same day for a wedding trip to Minnesota and South Dakota. Upon their return they will go to housekeeping on the groom's farm near Lomira, where they will be at home to their many friends after April 1, 1922.

Miss Ruth Fritz, daughter of Robt. Fritz of the town of Wayne and Raymond Minter, son of William Minter of the town of Lomira, were married at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of the Rev. E. A. Laur at Lomira. The bride wore a gown of white organdie trimmed with embroiery, a veil of tulle and carrying a large bouquet of roses. She was attended by the Misses Eva Fritz, as maid of honor, and Irene Fritz, as bridesmaid, both sisters of the bride, who wore pink and blue organdie frocks. Walter Minter and Louis Beck attended the groom. A reception was held at the home of the bride with about twenty-five guests in attendance. The couple will be at home on the groom's farm near Lomira after March 1st, 1922.
The decorations at the home were of red, white and blue crepe paper.

FARM HELP
The state maintains eleven public (Free) employment offices, one in each of the following cities: Ashland, Green Bay, La Crosse, Madison, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Racine, Rhinelander, Sheboygan, Superior and Wausau.
These offices are ready to serve the farmer as well as the city man. Last year, they made 6,484 verified placements for farm hands. We have received many letters from farmers, expressing satisfaction with these men who were furnished by the employment offices.
If you need help on your farm this year, we suggest that you get in touch with the employment office nearest you. If you prefer, you can visit the office and then select your own man, or you can place your order by letter. You can also place your order with your county agent and ask him to get you a man through the employment offices.
Many men are already registering for farm work next spring. The employment offices are also in touch with men wishing to rent farms, work on shares or manage dairy herds.
In placing your order, be as specific as possible, be certain to state the wages you will pay, your preferences as to age, nationality and experience, and when you will want your man. Men will not travel unless they have a pretty definite idea as to the wage they will get and the conditions of employment. Likewise, do not fail to state exactly how many men you need, farm, whether you have a telephone, etc. If you live very far from an employment office, you are most certain of getting help, if you will advance the fare, to be taken out of the first month's salary. In such a case, the employment office protects you by checking the man's baggage to you. No efforts will be spared by the employment offices to get you the kind of a man you want. As a taxpayer, you are helping to maintain these public employment offices. Why not take advantage of the service they have to offer. If you do not need help yourself, tell your neighbors about the service that these offices can render.

Man Kumm, a resident of South Germantown was found in an unconscious condition with both of his feet frozen, in his home on Monday afternoon. At the time of his discovery, there was no fire in his room, and he had been in a helpless condition for several days before he was found. The man was removed to the County Home at West Bend by Deputy Sheriff Chas. Lamprecht, where the unfortunate man received medical attention. Upon a doctor's examination it was learned that Kumm had a distinct line of demarcation on both feet, and gangrene had also set in. He died on Tuesday morning at 2:30 o'clock. Deceased was about 52 years of age. It is reported that he had a wife and children, but they did not live with him.

THE FARMERS' WILL IS LAW
The demand of the farmers that capital and labor share alike in the deflation necessary to bring about a restoration of normal business conditions is a clear indication that agricultural awakening is complete and that never again will tillers of the soil be led astray in the bypaths of abstruse economics. The plain fact is the farmer has to pay high prices for the things he has to buy and he cannot get living prices for the things he has to sell. There is nothing else to the problem. Naturally, there is a panic in the ranks of the moneyed interests when the farmer earnestly insists that the railroads must take their share of liquidation, because the railroads have been and are insistent on higher freight rates, and higher passenger rates if they can get them. But the dominant position of the farmer is now emphasized. Even labor runs panic stricken to its old time enemy and bids the farmer halt. The suggestion that the railroads share in further deflation is a direct attack on wages, says Mr. Gompers, and the whole pack of cards is disclosed. The sophistry reveals self interest. Capital may fight for its money bags, labor may fight for its interest, the manufacturer the wholesaler the retailer the butcher the baker and the candlestick maker may fight for theirs, all may organize to fight their positions, but when it comes to an agricultural bloc then there is a united protest.
Mr. Gompers, representing labor— even if he does, as Mr. Gary of the steel trust says, represent only a small part of labor—may as well realize the fact that in the cause of things, and that all the other wiggling elements are purely effects. The tail cannot wag the dog. The farmer is nature's king because he is the creator and developer of the only source of human life, and it will not take the people very long to realize that what the farmer says must go, or there will be trouble in the camp.

NEW WILLIAM RUSSELL PICTURE IS "BEST YET"
Heralded as the best feature in which Wm. Russell has starred, "A Man Who Dared", a new William Fox production with the story laid in the Kewaskum Opera House on Sunday evening, February 5th.
William Russell has the role of Big Jim O'Kane, boss of a lumberjack camp. The story, which is by Julius G. Furthman tells what happened to Big Jim and the girl he loved when he got in wrong with the sheriff. For the sheriff happened to be in love with the girl, too, and he was not exactly all that a sheriff should be.
The film is said to be notable for the beauty of its setting. Trees grow 200 feet high in the Redwoods, and to walk the forest paths is like walking in the nave of great cathedrals. Clyde de Vinna is responsible for the photography. Supporting Mr. Russell are Eileen Percy, a very attractive actress, who has since become a Fox star; Frank Brownlee and Len Poff. Emmett J. Flynn directed the picture.

Exaggerating.

Dream of Scientists for a Thousand Years Achieved by Dr. Rutherford.

FAR-REACHING POSSIBILITIES

Remarkable Result of Bombarding Nitrogen Gas With the Alpha Rays of Radium — May Supply Unlimited Power.

New York.—The transmutation of elements, the dream of both chemists and physicists for nearly a thousand years, has actually been accomplished by the recent work of Sir Ernest Rutherford, and his results are generally accepted by scientists and physicists, according to Dr. James Kendall, associate professor of chemistry at Columbia, who said, on the other hand, that there was not the slightest reason to believe that the Germans had accomplished their reported feat of making synthetic gold.

Nitrogen, sodium, aluminum, chlorine, oxygen and carbon have been transmuted or broken up by Rutherford into hydrogen and helium, according to Dr. Kendall.

This was first accomplished, according to the claims of Rutherford, by bombarding nitrogen gas with the alpha rays of radium. These so-called rays are helium atoms which are flung out of the exploding radium atom with an energy incomparably greater than any previously produced artificially.

The alpha particles are believed to produce such a disruption in the atom as might occur, for instance, if the sun were to strike it directly and drive it off into space, causing the planets to shoot off in all directions.

This occurs on a scale in the neighborhood of the billionth part of a billionth of an inch, but it can be partly measured. The alpha particles throw off by radium produce scintillations when they strike a screen of zinc sulphide within a certain distance.

By his study of these scintillations Dr. Rutherford was able to prove to the satisfaction of men of science generally that new products were developed by the shattering of the nitrogen atoms and that these products were hydrogen and helium atoms.

"Rutherford has reduced nitrogen, aluminum, chlorine and sodium to hydrogen and helium," said Dr. Kendall. "He has also produced helium atoms by tearing oxygen and carbon to pieces, but hydrogen has not resulted, I believe, from the disruption of these atoms.

"This is certainly the transmutation of elements, but it is done on an infinitely small scale, and is important at present only to the scientific man. It does not promise that elements can be changed from one type to another, except on the smallest laboratory scale. It does not suggest that the transmutation of metals may be developed from it."

The possible far-reaching results of Rutherford's discovery were discussed as follows by Professor O. W. Richardson in his recent presidential address to the Section of Mathematics and Physics of the British association:

"Rutherford has taken the direct method of bombarding the nuclei of the different atoms with the equally minute high-velocity helium nuclei (alpha particles) given off by radioactive substances, and examining the tracks of any other particles which may be generated as a result of the impact.

"If these effects can be sufficiently intensified there appears to be two possibilities. Either they will prove unobtainable, which would presumably spell the end of all things, or they will not. If they can be both in-shallow pit 8 to 18 inches deep, according to locality, and pack it full of fermenting stable manure. The manure, before being placed in the pit, should be turned over once or twice in a pile in order to insure even heating. It may then be packed into the hotbed pit and tramped uniformly. Standard hotbed sashes are 3 feet wide and 6 feet long, and the size of the bed should be made to suit the number of sashes employed. A framework of boards 18 to 24 inches high at the back and about 12 inches high in front is placed over the manure-filled pit to support the sash.

Learns Secret of Arrow Heads

Illinois Man Gets Credit as Only Man Who Knows How to Make Them.

INDIAN CHIEFS LOSE TRICK

Many of Them Confess Their Ignorance of Just How to Make Arrow Heads—Are Identified by Tribal Marks.

Springfield.—Making of Indian arrow heads has been reduced to its first principles here by Herbert Wells Fay, custodian of the Lincoln monument, who has gained the distinction, which it is said until now has been undisputed, of being the only white man to make real arrow heads.

Indians are among the foremost in crediting Mr. Fay with this ability. Down to the last resting place of Abraham Lincoln, various present-day Indian chiefs have openly confessed their ignorance of "just how" to make arrow heads, and then have voiced their surprise at the excellent workmanship of the white man.

Finding that his arrows have been taken for the work of real Indians, Mr. Fay no longer makes arrows of flint, but to prevent fraud uses only glass.

Worked Near Dekalb. His study of arrow heads was gained largely near his former home at Dekalb, in which vicinity, he said, there had been seven Indian camps.

Mr. Fay takes issue with other authorities who say arrow heads may be identified by their shape as the work of a particular tribe. Years of study and the actual making of arrows prove otherwise, Mr. Fay declares.

His conclusions as to arrow-making are outlined as follows: "Indians first tried stones that break with a conchoidal fracture (like the inside of a spoon). They found that the deeper the break at the top of the flat-surfaced stone the longer would be the break in the stone, but it would be correspondingly wide. They wished, however, a long, narrow piece as more suitable for an arrow head.

"They then found that by breaking the stone at a corner they could produce such a 'flake' (raw arrow head) one, two, or even five times its width, according to the skill of the artisan. Such an arrow head always has a ridge on one side and the other side smooth. The ridge is the corner of the stone from which the flake was broken.

"Next, the Indian found that in finishing the arrow head, if the stone breaks easier from one direction on the top, it would break just as easily from the other on the bottom. This gave rise to the belief that arrow heads were made to revolve. Such was not the intention of arrow makers, as the same natural peculiarity appears in spear heads, which are too heavy to revolve, as spears were seldom expected to go more than a few times their length.

"These principles being true of all stone used by the Indians, it is an evident impossibility for any collector to tell what tribe made certain arrow or spear heads. The width, depth and thickness, determined by the depth of the fracture of the stone, determine the shape and appearance of the finished product."

Chert Center in Illinois. Most of the arrow heads of the north Mississippi valley, Mr. Fay said, were made of chert, a chalky flint, taken from the quarries in Union county, Illinois, near Cairo. The bluffs at that place along the Mississippi river show outcroppings of this chert and prolific evidences of the activity of Indians, who went there from all parts of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Wisconsin, he added.

"Less than 1 per cent of the arrow heads found in this wide territory," Mr. Fay continued, "seem to have been made from local stone. The Union county quarries have been determined as the principal source because arrows found throughout that region corresponded exactly to the quality of the Union county stone. It is not known whether expert 'flake' makers held the quarries in Union county and distributed material to tribes as they came down, or whether each tribe had its flake makers and visited the quarries periodically.

Implement used by Indians in making arrow heads, according to Mr. Fay, were made with one tool, a piece of bone somewhat like the handle of a toothbrush.

WILL BAN GRADE CROSSINGS
United States Will Construct Bridges or Underpasses on Federal Highways.

Washington.—Grade crossings will be eliminated wherever possible and replaced with bridges or underpasses on all roads of the federal aid highway system to be constructed under the federal highway act, the bureau of public roads of the Department of Agriculture announces.

Important roads, many of which at present cross and recross railroads at grades, hereafter will be built entirely on one side of the railroad.

In the three years ending with 1920, according to records available to the bureau, 3,328 lives were lost and 10,444 persons were injured at grade crossings in the United States.

TO HAVE AN INDOOR GARDEN

Make Your Basement Work for You by Producing Vegetables Before Outdoor Planting Time.

Nearly every cottage, as well as the larger houses and the city bungalows, are equipped with large basements. Many of these basements have space that is not utilized and many of them have excellent southern and eastern exposures whereby the sun has a chance to play through the windows a large portion of the day.

Make the basement work for you. It is an easy matter to have a miniature greenhouse in most any basement where there is sufficient heat to keep the soil and plants from freezing. At least, plants for setting out when the danger of frost is past can be easily raised in the basement, and small vegetables such as radishes, onions and lettuce can be raised and cut up by the owner long before it is time to plant such things outside.

SIDE LIGHTS ON THE HOME GARDEN

It is surprising how many early plants can be started in a window box.

Are your garden tools ready? It will not be long until they will be needed.

Plan your garden on paper. Map out your campaign, and profit through time, labor, and money saved.

Have you received a new seed catalog? Get one and look it over; its pages may suggest something you have forgotten.

Every member of the family will require near 1,100 meals this year. How many of these are coming from the home garden?

Agriculture has made great advances in modern times, but the advice of Filmy the Elder, who lived nearly 20 centuries ago, is still good for gardeners: "Dig deep, manure well, work often."

"HOE" THE PLANTS IN FLATS

The small spikelike plants that have just come through the soil in the flats in the basement require a little "hoeing" occasionally. Gentle loosening of the ground—not close enough to injure the tender roots—will do this plants good.

PLANT BULBS IN THE HOUSE

Numerous of the bulbs which afford such winsome flowers in the early summer and during the late summer and fall may be planted in the house in flats or pots.

With proper care these bulbs will mature to a size that will be most pleasing by the time the ground is warm enough to set them in the open—and when there is no danger of frost.

Wireless Phones for Commuters

Chicagoans who reside in the suburbs may soon find their trains equipped with the wireless telephone so that they can talk with their homes while going to or coming from the city, and can even enjoy grand opera in the evening. The system was tried out recently, and the photograph shows a passenger using the radio phone on a car.

DUTY WELL DONE

Springfield Citizens Worthily Honored Lincoln's Memory.

Writer Who Knew the Great President Commends Placing of Tablets at Points of Interest.

Springfield citizens have discharged a duty which the nation has owed to future generations. They have recalled the memory of Abraham Lincoln's life in Springfield by placing thirteen bronze tablets at places made historic by events in Lincoln's career while he resided there, writes Henry B. Rankin in the New York Tribune.

The Lincoln Home at Eighth and Jackson Streets, Springfield.

These tablets will be most revealing of his presence in the Illinois capital. These memorials are a living embodiment of the Lincoln spirit in Springfield and are as appealing and more vivid than even his tomb.

WEDGE WAS USED BY LINCOLN

Relic Now in National Museum at Washington Found Near New Salem in Year 1835.

An iron wedge that Lincoln used in splitting wood and rails was found in 1885 during some repairs on a brick house near New Salem, Ill., formerly owned and occupied by Mentor Graham, Lincoln's instructor in surveying. It is amply identified and papers of authentication have been presented to the National Museum at Washington along with the relic.

At the C. M. Smith building in the third story, where Lincoln wrote his first inaugural address; also the tablet reciting events at the State house (now Court house), where his great speeches were delivered and where his body lay in state and from where it was borne to the tomb.

The first three mentioned I will not further refer to here, as they were fully described in my "Personal Recollections of Abraham Lincoln."

It is now more than sixty years since I passed daily under the swinging sign, "Lincoln & Herndon," and up and down the stairway, into and from a back room, located in what was then a two-story building.

It was my privilege, for several of those later years, to share in that office its routine as a student, and to enjoy the personality and instruction of this most remarkable man of his century.

No place in Springfield, not even his tomb, throngs with memories such as this office brings to the students of Lincoln's history. Lincoln's most studious years were spent here, as well as the most aspiring ones. It was here that he grew clear visioned on the future's national problems and threw his whole soul into their solution.

When that hour of need had struck it was from this office there came a man fully prepared by years of study for those fateful hours. An honest, tall, gentle, strong man, heroic and sad, who was constitutionally called by his fellow countrymen from this office and placed at the helm of state to preserve our national union.

Truly "A Man for the Ages." It was not the opportunity nor the stress of great occasions, such as the delivery of his speech in the Illinois state capital on "a house divided against itself cannot stand," nor the debates with Douglas that followed it, nor the opportunity before a New York audience at Cooper Institute, that account for or explain the progressive development of Lincoln.

It was not Salem, Springfield or Washington; it was neither Stuart, Logan, Herndon, Douglas, Baker, Har- din nor the able men in his cabinet and who surrounded him in so many other capacities, both civil and military; who can have the credit of prominence in the making of Abraham Lincoln, much as these places and some of these men have contributed to it.

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

KING LION'S BONE

"Roar, roar, roar," shouted King Lion. "Some one said something very rude about me just now."

"I don't see how any one could have said such a thing in the first place. I don't like a dog in the least. A dog is a silly creature compared to me."

"A dog barks, and yet his bark is usually such a friendly bark."

"Then the dog wags his tail. I wouldn't do anything so silly. The dog smiles, too, when he shows his teeth. Yes, very, very often the dog does that. But I don't."

"I roar and I mean it. The dog growls at times, but often even when he growls, he is friendly."

"His growl isn't wild, like my roar. No, it is often a friendly growl. As a rule the dog likes to make friends. He likes to be patted and he even kisses people!"

"Fancy that!"

"I wouldn't kiss any one. Not I, no indeed."

"I am sure you wouldn't," said the Lioness.

"I am so dignified and so fine," said King Lion.

"Of course," said the Lioness, "there are some creatures who think that even if one is fine and brave and noble one may be quite loving and devoted, too. Some don't think it makes a creature any less fine to be sweet and friendly."

"In fact, some think it shows a finer, nobler nature."

"Some may think so," said King Lion, "but I do not. Some may think all sorts of things, but pooh! What do such creatures amount to?"

"I answer my own question! No, they have not! Can they roar?"

"Again I answer my own question. They try to roar at times, but they cannot. They can't hold up their heads and open their mouths wide and let great, noble, wild, terrific sounds come forth."

"They can open their mouths wide and they can hold up their heads, but that is as far as they can go. They can go on in other ways, perhaps—I mean they can run and so forth, but they can't go very far with their voices."

"So why should I pay any attention to what they do? I don't."

"I see," said Mrs. Lioness.

"But I was talking about a dog," continued King Lion.

"So you were, Your Majesty," said the Lioness.

"And I shall continue to talk about the dog and the person who said I was like a dog," said King Lion.

"By all means, talk away," said the Lioness.

"Roar, roar, roar," said King Lion. "I do not like a dog, and I don't want any one to say that about me."

"And if any one says that about me again I will give such a roar that I will make such a person tremble with fear. That I will do. Most certainly I will."

"Just because I was having a beautiful time eating a great, huge bone, some one thought I looked like a dog."

"I don't believe any one really thought so," said the Lioness. "I suppose they just thought the bone looked like a bone a dog might enjoy."

"It was too big a bone for a dog," said King Lion. "The keeper gave me a great raw meat bone because he knows I must chew on something hard like that. It gives more variety or change to my meals. That is important."

"But a dog isn't even any distant relation of mine. I'll let them know that my bone is the bone for a lion's meal, and not for a dog."

"Roar, roar, roar," said King Lion at the top of his tremendous voice. And the Lioness smiled a wild, mild smile and said:

"I guess no one thinks you're like anything but a lion!"

GOOD JOKE ON DANISH KING

Monarch Jumped Too Quickly to Conclusion That Eskimo Was Actuated by Loyalty.

An amusing story of the king of Denmark's recent visit to Greenland was recently told by M. Aagaard of the Danish legation, to members of the Danish club in London.

As the royal yacht was approaching Greenland a dark speck became visible on the open sea. It proved to be a solitary Eskimo in his little kayak (native canoe). The Eskimo came on board and his loyalty in having braved the perils of the sea in such a frail craft assured him the warmest of welcomes. The king presented him with a cigar and, what the Eskimos most highly prize, a rifle.

On landing, the king described the incident to the Danish commissioner in Greenland and asked him who the man was.

The commissioner, in accents of horror, replied: "The man's an escaped convict. He broke prison yesterday, stole a canoe and put to sea. We thought he had been drowned."

Jones sent ten shillings to a concern that advertised to send for that sum five pairs of hose by post. When they arrived he looked them over, and then wrote to the senders:

"Hose received. The patterns are vile. I wouldn't be seen in the streets with them on."

Back came the answer: "What are you kicking about? Didn't we advertise that you wouldn't wear them out?"—Pearson's Weekly.

Nothing Serious.

"Fluddub has joined the great majority."

"Eh?"

"Got a car at last."

One third of your life is allotted to sleep. Do you get your share? The most important period in the process of applying nutrition to the repair of the body is while you are asleep. For the most favorable transformation of digested food into nerve and cell tissue, so doctors tell us, sleep is absolutely essential.

For Dark Woodwork,
The best way to clean dark-stained painted doors and woodwork is to take a ball of clean warm water and pour a little paraffin into it and then wash the paint all over working downward with a piece of old Turkish towel. Next, try with a piece of clean cloth and polish with a substantial duster. To attempt to clean such paint by hard rubbing is a mistake. It does not need it and will only be rubbed away.

Light Bulbs as Souvenirs.
It used to be that hotel guests collected mementoes as souvenirs, and that a certain "bragging" and to be set aside monthly to cover their theft. Soft cellulose and paper boxes were being used at the moment—electric light bulbs. In a determined effort to stop that craze hotel proprietors are now having the name of the hostelry burned in the bulb.

International Manure Spreader

Run Your Eyes Over These Best-yet Features:

- Roller Bearings. Roller bearings at seven points—the only spreader so equipped.
- Double Ratchet Drive. Walking beam transmission from main axle eccentric and extra large ratchet wheel give easy, strong, steady feed. No pounding or jerking, due to extra-long movement of pawls on ratchet wheel—only two power impulses on ratchet for every revolution of 46-inch drive wheels. Box tapered to eliminate friction on box sides. Six feed speeds.
- Oscillating Front Axle. Auto-type, permitting short turn. No pole whipping. No strain on frame.
- Power; Both Wheels. Power is transmitted direct from main axle to beaters, wide-spread spiral and manure conveyor—not through beater to conveyor or vice versa.
- Wheels Track. Rear wheels track with the front wheels, lightening draft.
- Tight Bottom. There is no clogging, jamming apron, because the spreader has a tight bottom. Spreads anything. Retains all liquid manure.
- Two Beaters. Two all-steel beaters with chisel-pointed square teeth work from both top and bottom of the load. Allow extra-high load.
- Wide Spread. The spiral behind the beaters gives the manure a third beating and spreads it finely and uniformly beyond the wheel.
- All-Steel Main Frame. Does not check out or warp. Wood box sides hold only the load. Frame holds operating mechanism independently of box; keeps alignment perfect.

The New International—made in two sizes—is unquestionably the best spreader value on the market today, and when you consider it in connection with its price, it is so far ahead of all others that there is really no comparison.

We have a sample spreader set up for your inspection. Come in and look it over.

This was Mr. Fellenz's first attempt at this work. The best animal gave nearly 18 pounds of butter fat, and the lowest produced better than 15 pounds. Seven cows were tested. According to the above report these animals ought to make a very creditable showing if given the proper care and attention in the future.

—William F. Schultz, proprietor of the Republican House, installed a large pool and billiard table in his spacious and modern equipped bar-room, this week. Mr. Schultz has taken a step toward helping to eliminate the deprivations of social and wholesome pastime for both young and old which is very often found in smaller communities. The table is of a good make, with a slate bed, and fast cushions, which makes the game very interesting for all. It invites the general public to step in and give their new addition to the hostelry a tryout. That the table is meeting with the approval of some of the local pool sharks can be seen by the manner it is being made use of.

—Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Barth received the sad news last Saturday of the death of their mother, Mrs. J. E. P. Barth and family attended the funeral. The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of their many friends here.

—The Statesman contains over 400 local and personal items this week and 22 headed items. This is a remarkable feature for a country weekly, and goes to show that the editors of this paper are alert at all times, and bending every effort to give the people of this community a good newsy paper and also give them their money's worth. The Statesman has one of the best groups of country correspondents in the state and we are justly proud of them for their untiring efforts and conscientious adherence to their duty as special contributors to this popular weekly. We wish that all would give their items to the Statesman in their various localities and thus lighten their efforts in going after the news. This not only helps the correspondents but increases the reading value of the Statesman. Hand in your items, no matter how small or insignificant they may look to you.

—L. P. Rosenheimer returned home last week Saturday from a two weeks' business trip in the states of Washington and California. While in California he called on Mayor and Mrs. William Stark and family, former residents of this village and now prominent citizens of Los Angeles. Mr. Rosenheimer found the Stark family enjoying the best of health and happiness, and were indeed glad of having the pleasure of meeting one of their Kewaskum friends. Mr. Stark and family send best wishes and good wishes to all their friends and relatives in this community. Mr. Rosenheimer found business conditions along the Pacific in fairly good condition, however the farmers have been hit hard by the present depression, and many of the farmers are now being forced to sell their property at a great sacrifice, not being able to meet expenses. Mr. Rosenheimer states that the average Wisconsin farmer can be well satisfied in the manner he is situated and consider himself mighty lucky that he is not in the same predicament that many of the western farmers are now confronted with.

—What might have resulted in a most disastrous chimney fire and one which unquestionably would have swept the entire village of Kewaskum off the map, had it not been extinguished by the prompt action of the local fire department, occurred on Wednesday evening, at six o'clock, when the alarm was given that the chimney on the building owned by L. Rosenheimer and occupied by Jacob Schlosser and family and William Klein and family, located on the west side of Fond du Lac avenue, just west of the Republican hotel, was burning. It was one of the worst chimney fires seen here in years. Only for the prompt action of the fire department and the fact that the roof of the building was made of iron, which saved the chimney from igniting, the fire would have undoubtedly made headway, and a costly blaze would have been the result as a high wind had set in towards evening and blowing from a westerly direction, would have made it impossible to keep the fire from spreading.

—Philip Schief of Sunny Hillside, near Five Corners celebrated his 80th birthday anniversary last Saturday, January 28. Supper was served by Mrs. Fred Schief, assisted by Mrs. William Ferber and Mrs. Oscar Glass. Mr. Schief is well known throughout the southern part of Fond du Lac county.

—John Van Blarcom moved his family and household goods to West Bend on Tuesday, where they will make their future home. Mr. Van Blarcom having purchased a half interest in the Oakland garage business at that place several months ago. He was manager of the American House on the corner of Main street and Fond du Lac avenue for several years. The many friends of the Van Blarcom family regret to see them leave and wish them an abundance of good luck in their new home.

—John J. Fellenz, recently completed a very creditable seven-day record on some of his fine Holstein cows. It is reported that the cattle were given ordinary care and not fitted previous to the test. This was Mr. Fellenz's first attempt at this work. The best animal gave nearly 18 pounds of butter fat, and the lowest produced better than 15 pounds. Seven cows were tested. According to the above report these animals ought to make a very creditable showing if given the proper care and attention in the future.

—William F. Schultz, proprietor of the Republican House, installed a large pool and billiard table in his spacious and modern equipped bar-room, this week. Mr. Schultz has taken a step toward helping to eliminate the deprivations of social and wholesome pastime for both young and old which is very often found in smaller communities. The table is of a good make, with a slate bed, and fast cushions, which makes the game very interesting for all. It invites the general public to step in and give their new addition to the hostelry a tryout. That the table is meeting with the approval of some of the local pool sharks can be seen by the manner it is being made use of.

—Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Barth received the sad news last Saturday of the death of their mother, Mrs. J. E. P. Weber, which occurred at the Hanover Hospital, Milwaukee the same day, following an operation for cancer of the stomach about ten days prior to her death. Deceased was 61 years of age and leaves to mourn, her grief-stricken husband and one daughter, Mrs. H. L. Barth, and many other relatives and friends. The funeral was held on Wednesday with services in the Evangelical Zion's church, Milwaukee, and interment was made in the Pilgrim's Rest cemetery. Rev. C. G. Fischer officiated. Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Barth and family attended the funeral. The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of their many friends here.

—The Statesman contains over 400 local and personal items this week and 22 headed items. This is a remarkable feature for a country weekly, and goes to show that the editors of this paper are alert at all times, and bending every effort to give the people of this community a good newsy paper and also give them their money's worth. The Statesman has one of the best groups of country correspondents in the state and we are justly proud of them for their untiring efforts and conscientious adherence to their duty as special contributors to this popular weekly. We wish that all would give their items to the Statesman in their various localities and thus lighten their efforts in going after the news. This not only helps the correspondents but increases the reading value of the Statesman. Hand in your items, no matter how small or insignificant they may look to you.

HARDING PROBES BANKERS' USURY

President Investigates Reports of High Interest for Federal Funds.

UNCOVERS FINANCIAL SCANDAL

Secretary of Interior Fall Tells Cabinet Members Millions of Government Money Reloaned at Usurious Rates.

Washington, Jan. 30.—A financial scandal of nationwide importance was unrolled at a cabinet meeting.

Secretary Fall, who has just returned from a two months' trip through the West, cited instances of abuses which astonished the President and the cabinet.

It was shown that funds of the War Finance corporation loaned to banks for the use of farmers and stock raisers in the present agricultural emergency at 5 1/2 and 6 per cent were reloaned as high as 12 per cent.

The government is not going to tolerate usury, President Harding is reported to have said.

The President called into conference Eugene Meyer, Jr., chairman of the War Finance corporation.

Both Meyer and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon told the President that practically all of the government money is being loaned at 5 1/2 per cent and they denounced the practices revealed by Secretary Fall as unlawful.

The legal requirements, Mr. Meyer informed the President, are that when banks reloan government funds they shall not charge more than 2 per cent additional.

Mr. Meyer stated that the 2 per cent allowed to private bankers was more than ample to cover the cost of their investigations and their risk with profit.

President Harding asked Mr. Meyer directly if all interest charges of more than 7 1/2 per cent were not usury?

"Ordinarily that is so," was Meyer's reply.

President Harding told the newspaper correspondents that he relied upon the American press to help terminate this evil, broadcasting the facts to stock growers and farmers that if they are charged more than 7 1/2 per cent interest for government money they are being defrauded.

DUN'S TRADE REVIEW

Expansion of Business Still Develops Slowly, Reports Show.

Outlook is One of Brighter Promise, Notwithstanding Several Unsatisfactory Features of Markets.

New York, Jan. 31.—Expansion of business, if not wholly lacking, still develops slowly.

The President called into conference Eugene Meyer, Jr., chairman of the War Finance corporation.

Both Meyer and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon told the President that practically all of the government money is being loaned at 5 1/2 per cent and they denounced the practices revealed by Secretary Fall as unlawful.

SHACKLETON DIED THREE WEEKS AGO

Explorer Succumbed to Heart Disease While on Antarctic Trip.

WAS ILL ONLY A FEW HOURS

Was on Fourth Voyage and Intended to Cover 30,000 Miles of Uncharted Seas, Including Search for "Lost" Island.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Jan. 31.—More than three weeks elapsed between the death of Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British explorer, and its announcement to the world when the body arrived at Montevideo, Uruguay.

Sir Ernest died aboard the steamship Quest, on which he was making a fourth antarctic voyage, while anchored off South Georgia island on Jan. 5. His body was taken to Montevideo on the first leg of the trip home aboard the Norwegian steamship by Prof. Cruvel.

Captain Hussey bore a death certificate made out at South Georgia island, reading:

"I, Alexander Macklin, certify to my best knowledge and belief that the cause of death was arteriosclerosis of the arteries of the heart.

After supper Shackleton went to the cabin and talked with his companions. At 3:30 on the morning of Jan. 5 he felt sharp pains in his back and called the doctor, who had hardly begun preparing remedies when the explorer died without uttering another word.

Sir Ernest Shackleton was born in 1874. He was a third lieutenant in the British national antarctic expedition in 1901, and in 1907-09 commanded an expedition which got to within ninety-seven miles of the south pole.

On board the Quest, a little 200-ton ship, Sir Ernest set sail from England last September on what was to have been a two-year voyage.

The voyage had as its objective not only oceanographic research, but the exploration of a petrified forest and the location of a "lost" island, Tuamaki, the adjacent waters of which had not been sailed for more than ninety years.

Sir Ernest was an Irishman. He was educated at Dublin college, and after graduation went to sea, choosing sailing ships. It was in 1900, when the "little voices" called him to the south seas, that he organized the expedition to the south pole which brought him his greatest fame.

LAND GROWS RICH

Wonderful Development of Canada in Forty Years.

FOUR DECADES AGO LITTLE CONSIDERED, TODAY ONE OF THE GREATEST GRANARIES AND DAIRYING CENTERS.

The recent announcement that the sale of the first section of Canadian Pacific land was sold forty years ago, and when you read that the first carload of wheat was shipped from Winnipeg forty years ago, the changes that have taken place since then are matters of reminiscence, but yet of interest.

Forty years ago the shipment of one carload of grain was a notable exploit. Today, Canada ranks as the second largest wheat-producing country in the world, with 325,185,500 bushels, 90 per cent of which was grown in the three prairie provinces.

Forty years ago scarcely any of the rich soil had been brought under cultivation. The farm machinery of the time was crude; there were no competent advisers; government experimental farms were a blessing that came years later.

A last curtain, and they knew. Over one of the sharpest and wisest of the descending precipices, cascading down through the aspines and underbrush and striking the trunks of a score of trees on its way, the heavy car had fallen like a bomb. And Peter saw that it was Alix's car, and with a great cry he sprang over the bank and, slipping and stumbling, followed its track down to the canyon, and fell on his knees beside the mangled figure that, erect and strong, in its striped blue gingham, had been Alix only a few short minutes ago.

She had been flung clear of the car, and although every bone in her body was broken, by some miracle the face, except for a deep cut where the brown hair met the turned forehead, was untouched. And as he caught her in his arms and bent over her with the bitterness of death stroking his own heart, a soft, thick blood loosened and fell like the south of her hand upon his own, and it seemed to him that in the tranquil face and in the very look of the closed and fast-shadowing eyelids he caught a glimpse of Alix's old smile.

Peter forgot everything else in the world. He held her close to him and put his face against her face, and perhaps she had never so truly been his own as in this moment of their parting, when the quiet autumn woodland, shot with long shafts from the sinking sun, came with his bitter cry: "No, Alix—not dead! My wife—my wife!"

There were other men and women gathering fast now, and the whole little valley was beginning to ring with the tragedy. After a while some sympathetic man touched Peter on the arm to say that Mrs. Lloyd had fainted, and that if he would please tell them what to do about the other man—he was not yet dead—

Peter roused himself, and with help from half a dozen hands on all sides he carried Alix up to the road and laid her upon a motor robe that some kindly spectator had spread in the deep dust.

Presently he was conscious that a small, slight woman with disheveled hair and with her face streaked with dust and tears was standing beside him, and looking down at her, he saw that it was Cherry.

"Yes, Cherry?" he said, moistening his dry lips.

"Peter," she said, "they say Martin's living—he was screaming—" She grew deathly pale and faintness swept over her, but she mastered it. "He was caught by that tree, she said, and he is living. Will you tell them—tell one of these men—that if he will help me, we can drive him home. If you'll tell him that, then I'll get a doctor—"

"Yes, I will," Peter said, not stirring. His eyes had the look of a sleep-walker; he nodded slowly and gravely at her, like a very old man. "You—" he said to a man who had stopped his car near by and who was pressing sympathetically close. "Will you—?"

"If you'll sit in the back seat, dear, and just rest his poor head," a woman said to Cherry. Peter saw that they were lifting Martin's big, senseless form in tender hands and carrying it through the little group. There was a shudder as Martin moaned deeply. Peter went and sat on the low bank by Alix again, and lifted one of her limp hands, and held it. Ah, if in God's mercy and goodness she might rouse, he thought, that one slight ray of hope would flood all the world with light for him again! But she did not stir.

"Gone?" said Cherry's heartrending voice, a mere whisper, beside him. He turned upon her lifeless eyes.

"Gone," he echoed.

"Oh, Alix—my darling! My own big sister! Cherry sobbed, falling to her knees and passionately kissing the peaceful face. "Oh, Alix, dearest!"

The women about broke into tears. Peter pressed his hand close against his aching eyeballs, wishing that he might cry.

"She drove here," he heard a man's voice saying in the silence, "and she must have lost control of her car for a minute. Then—do you see?—the wheel slipped on the bank. Once it got this far, no power in God's earth!"

"No power in God's earth!" another man's voice said in solemn confirmation.

"Peter," Cherry said, "will you come to me as soon as you can? I shall need you."

"As soon as I can," he answered absently.

The car drove away, and he heard Martin moan again as it moved. "Joyce," said a man's kind voice close beside him. He recognized the voice rather than the distressed face of an old friend and neighbor. "Joyce, my dear fellow," he urged affectionately, "tell us what we may do and we'll see to it. Pull yourself together, my dear chap. Now, shall I telephone for an ambulance? You must help us just a little here and then we'll spare you everything else."

"Thank you, Fred," Peter answered after a moment. "Thank you. Will you help me take my wife home?"

"You wish it that way?" the other man said anxiously.

"Please," Peter answered simply. And instantly there was moving and clearing in the crowd, a murmuring of whispered directions.

After a while they were at the mountain cabin, and Kow, with tears running down his yellow face, was helping them. Then they went into the old living room, and Alix was lying there, splendid, sweet, untouched, with her brave, brown forehead shadowed softly by her brown hair, and her lashes resting upon her cheeks, and her fingers clasped about the stems of three great, creamy roses.

There were other flowers all about, and there were women in the room. White draperies fell with sweeping lines from the merciful veiling of the crushed figure, and Alix might have been only asleep, and dreaming some heroic dream that lent that secret pride and joy to her mouth and filled those closed eyes with a triumph they had never known in life.

Peter stood and looked down at her, and the men and women drew back. But although the muscles of his mouth twitched, he did not weep. He looked down at her, while an utter silence filled the room, and while twilight deepened into dark over the cabin and over the mountain above it.

"So that was your way out, Alix?" Peter said in the depth of his soul. "That was your solution for us all? You would go out of life, away from the sunshine and the trees and the hills that you loved, so that Cherry and I should be saved? I was blind not to see it. I have been blind from the very beginning."

Silence. The room was filling with shadows. On the mantel was a deep bowl of roses that he remembered watching her cut—was it yesterday or centuries ago?

"I was wrong," he said. "But I think you would be sorry to have me face what I am facing now. You were always so forgiving, Alix; you would be the first to be sorry."

He put his hand over the tigerish pain that was beginning to reach his heart. His throat felt thick and choked, and still he did not cry.

"An hour ago," he said, "if it had been the best thought of what this meant to you might have reached me an hour ago, it would not have been too late. Alix, one look into your eyes an hour ago might have saved us all! Fred," Peter said aloud, with a bitter groan, clutching tight the hands of the old friend who had crept in to stand beside him. "Fred, she was here, in all her health and joy and strength only today. And now—"

"I know—old man—" the other man muttered. He looked anxiously at Peter's terrible face. In the silence the dog whined faintly. But when Peter after an endless five minutes turned away, it was to speak to his friend in an almost normal voice.

"I must go down and see Cherry. Fred. She took her husband to the old house; they were living there."

"Helen will stay here," the old man assured him quickly. "I'll drive you down and come back here. We thought perhaps a few of us could come here tomorrow afternoon, Peter," he added (thudly, with his reddened eyes filling again, "and talk of her a little, and pray for her a little, and then take her to—rest beside the old doctor—"

"I hadn't thought about that," Peter answered, still with the air of finding it hard to link words to thought. "But that is the way she would like it. Thank you—and thank Helen for me—"

Peter nodded, raised his arms across his chest, and stared into the early dark. There was no other way to go than past the very spot where the horror had occurred, but Thompson told his wife later that poor Joyce had not seemed to know it when they passed it. Nor did he give any evidence of emotion when they reached the old Strickland house and entered the old hallway where Cherry had come dying in, a few short years ago, with Martin's first kiss upon her lips.

Two doctors, summoned from San Francisco, were here, and two nurses. Martin had been laid upon a hastily moved bed in the old study, to be spared the narrow stairs. The room was metamorphosed, the whole house moved about it as about a pivot, and there was no thought but for the man who lay, sometimes moaning and sometimes, ominously still, waiting for death.

"He cannot live!" whispered Cherry, ghastly of face, and with the utter chaos of her soul and brain expressed by her tumbled frock and the careless, pushed back and knotted masses of her hair. "His arm is broken, Peter, and his leg crushed—they don't dare touch him! And the surgeon says the spine, too—and you see his head! Oh, God! It is so terrible," she said in agony, through shut teeth, knotting her hands together; "it is too terrible that he is breathing now, that life is there now, and that they cannot hold it!"

He led Peter into the sitting room, where the doctors were waiting.

"Is there any hope?" he asked, when Cherry had come away on one of the restless, unnecessary journeys with which she was filling the endless hours. One man shook his head, and in the silence they heard Martin groan.

"It is possible he may weather it, of course," the other man said doubtfully. "He is coming out of that first stupor, and we may be able to tell better in a short time. The fact that he is living at all indicates a tremendous vitality."

Cherry came to the door to say "Doctor" on a burst of tears. The physicians departed at once to the study, and Peter was immediately summoned to assist them in handling the big frame of the patient. Martin was thoroughly conscious now; his face chalk white, Cherry, agonized, knelt beside the bed, her frightened eyes moving from face to face.

There was a brief consultation, then Cherry and Peter were banished.

Peter watched her with a confused sense that the whole frightful day had been a dream. Once she looked up and met his eyes.

"He can't live," she said in a whisper.

"Perhaps not," Peter answered very low. Cherry returned to her somber musing.

"We didn't see this end of it, did we?" she said with a pitiful smile after a long while.

"Oh, no—no!" Peter said, shutting his eyes and with a faint, negative movement of his head.

"Poor Cherry—if I could spare you all this!" knighting his fingers and feeling for the first time the prick of bitter tears against his eyelids.

"Oh, there is nothing you can do," she said faintly and wearily after a while. And she whispered, as if to herself, "Nothing—nothing—nothing!"

CHAPTER XIX.

It was all strange and bewildering, thought Peter. It was not like anything he had ever connected in his thoughts with Alix, yet it was all for her.

The day was warm and still, and the little church was packed with flowers and packed with people. Women on weepers and men in black, too, rather to his amazed surprise. The organ was straining through the warm, fragrant air, and the old clergyman, whose venerable, leonine head, in its crown of snowy hair, Peter could see clearly, spoke in a voice that was thickened with tears. Strangers, or almost strangers, had been touching Peter's hand respectfully, timidly, had been praising Alix. She had been "good" to this one, "good" to that one, they told him; she had always been so "interested" and so "happy."

Her coffin was buried in flowers, many of them the plain flowers she loved, the glories and stock and verbenas, and even the sweet, sober wallflowers that were somehow like herself. But it was the roses that scented the whole world for Alix today, and fresh creamy buds had been placed between the waxen fingers. And still that radiant look of triumphant love lingered on her quiet face, and still the faint ghost of a smile touched the once kindly and merry mouth.

They said good-by to her at the church, the villagers and old friends who had loved her, and Peter and two or three men alone followed her down along the winding road that led to the old cemetery. Cherry was hanging over the bedside of her husband, who still miraculously lingered through hours of pain, but as Peter, responsive to a touch on his arm, crossed the church porch to blindly enter the waiting motor car, he saw, erect and grave, on the front seat, in his decent holiday black, and with his feet held in his hands, Kow, claiming his right to stand beside the grave of the mistress he had loved and served so faithfully. The sight of him, in his clumsy black, instead of the usual crisp white, and with a sad and tear-stained face shook Peter strangely, but he did not show a sign of pain.

The twisted low branches of oak trees threw shadows on the grave when they finally reached it, and sleep were cropping the watered grass of the graveyard. The soft autumn sky, the drift of snowy clouds across the blue, the clear shadows on brown grass, under the oaks—all these were familiar. But Peter still looked dazedly at his black cuff and at the turned earth next to the doctor's headstone. Telling himself again that this was for Alix. How often he had seen her sitting there, with her bright face sobered and sweet, as she talked lovingly, eagerly of her father! They had often come here, Peter the more willingly because she was so sensible and happy about it; she would pack lunch, button herself into one of the crisp blue and wains, chatter on the green in her usual fashion. And it, for a few moments, the train of memory fired by the sight of the old doctor's grave became too poignant and tears came, she always scolded herself with that mixture of childish and maternal emotion when they reached the old house, and that Peter had seen her use to this very father years ago!

He remembered her, a tall, awkward girl, with a volume of Dickens slipping from her lap as she sat on a hassock by the fire, tossing her father, scolding and reproaching him, blushing red on her high cheekbones, untidy black hair, quick tongue and ready laugh; that was the Alix of the old days, when he had criticized and patronized her, and told her that she should be more like Anne and Little Cherry!

He remembered being delegated, one day, to take her into town to the dentist, and that upon discovering that the dentist was not in his office, she had taken her to the circus instead. She had been about thirteen, and had eaten too many peanuts, he thought, and had lost a pertness in full sight of the grandstand. But how grateful and happy she had been!

"Dear little old blue petticoat!" he said. "Dear little old madcap Alix—" There was silence, the silence of immation, about him. He came to himself with a start. He was up on the hills, in the cemetery—this was it!

He led Peter into the sitting room, where the doctors were waiting.

"Is there any hope?" he asked, when Cherry had come away on one of the restless, unnecessary journeys with which she was filling the endless hours. One man shook his head, and in the silence they heard Martin groan.

Salt and dampness. Salt is what is called "hygroscopic," that is, it eagerly absorbs moisture. In fact, both air and salt are absorbers of moisture and it is a contest between them as to which gets it. Results depend on atmospheric conditions. Ordinary atmosphere always contains a proportion of moisture, and warm air is apt to be more humid than cold, as it absorbs and holds water vapor more readily than cool air. Salt has such an affinity for moisture that under such conditions it draws it from the air. When the air becomes dry, the moisture is given up by the salt, which in turn becomes dry as it returns the moisture to the air.

Turks See Good Omen. The occultation of Venus with the crescent moon, seen at full noon recently at Constantinople, has naturally been regarded by the Turks as a good omen, remarks the London Morning Post. For the crescent moon, with a star between the horns, has been used by the Ottoman Turks as their military and religious emblem since the Thirteenth century.

The crescent itself has played a conspicuous part in the history of that part of the globe for well over 2,000 years. It was made the badge of Byzantium in 329 B. C., when the sudden appearance of a crescent moon revealed the approach of the Macedonian army.

Make Funnel From Eggshell. When it is desired to fill narrow-necked bottles and a funnel is unavailable, one can be improvised from an eggshell. The shell should be quite dry, and a small opening made at the bottom. Stand the shell so that the hole is well over the opening of the container to be filled, and proceed as with a regular funnel.

Her husband's insurance money often will enable a woman to have better clothes than his salary ever did.

Funny how selfish most wives are. They insist on doing all the knocking of their husbands themselves. Just let any of the neighbor women start to help them out along that line and it will make 'em madder than a wet hen.

Not all the women are interested in this birth control, but they all show the most marvelous control of their own birthdays.

The only time most of us experience any difficulty in swallowing is when we have to choke down our own words.

A bachelor always thinks in a home where peace and harmony reigns the wife either has the most angelic disposition or else her poor boob of a husband hasn't any more backbone than a jelly fish.

Progress has its drawbacks. When we are angry we never can get half the satisfaction spinning a revolving door that we used to get in slamming the old fashioned kind.

The silver lining to a bald head is the consolation you will no longer have to worry about the dandruff on your coat collar.

Are these the choice dishes the doctor has sent us?
Is this the great poet whose works so content us?
This Goldsmith's fine feast, who has written fine books?
Heaven sends us good meat, but the devil sends cooks—David Garrick.

WHAT TO EAT
A very pretty apple to serve on the plate with a slice of cold boiled or roasted ham is the following:
Rosy Apples—
Core and peel very smoothly enough even-sized apples to serve; cook in a sirup of equal quantities of sugar and water, or a thinner sirup may be used if desired, adding two or more tablespoons of the tiny red cinnamon drops and mashing the apple while cooking, with the red juice. Do not cook until the apples lose their shape or the sirup its beautiful color.
Glezed Onions With Steak.—Cook small, even-sized onions until soft, but firm enough to hold their shape. Make a sirup of one cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of stock; cook to the soft-half stage; add the onions and continue to cook for two or three minutes. Lift out when the sirup begins to discolor and place the onions around the steak on a hot platter.

Tongue for Luncheon.—Boil the tongue until tender, in meat stock that has been seasoned with carrots, onions, parsnips, sweet marjoram, chervil and a very little mint, adding salt and pepper, celery, salt and cayenne to taste. When the tongue is well cooked remove the skin, brush over with beaten egg and strew with fine bread crumbs. Bake for half an hour to brown the crumbs, basting every eight minutes with vinegar and water in equal parts. Remove from the oven and let get cold. Place on a long platter and slice into thin slices, allowing it to retain its shape. Spread a thick mayonnaise over triangles of toast; decorate these by covering with thinly sliced plimentoes, and arrange them around the sliced tongue. Garnish with parsley.

Orange Layer Cake.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter, one cupful of sugar and two egg yolks. To this add one-fourth of a tablespoonful of salt and the grated rind of an orange. Sift together one-fourth of a teaspoonful of soda, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one and one-half cupfuls of flour. Add this alternately to the first mixture with one-half cupful of orange juice; add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff and pour into well-buttered and floured cake pans. Bake together with the following icing: Take three table-spoonfuls of orange juice, the grated rind of one-fourth of an orange and sufficient confectioner's sugar to spread.

Now, blessings light on him that first invented this same sleep! It covers a man all over, thoughts and all, like a cloak; it is meat for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, heat for the cold, and cold for the hot. It is a certain coin that purchases all the pleasures of the world cheap, and the balance that sets the king and the shepherd, the fool and the wise man, even—Cervantes.

For those who are fond of fish the tuna will be an especial favorite.

Tuna Loaf.—Take one large can of tuna fish, flake with a fork and remove all bones and skin. Add one cupful of bread crumbs, one teaspoonful of lemon juice, one teaspoonful of chopped green pepper, two eggs, paprika and one teaspoonful of salt. Mix all the ingredients together, roll in the form of a firm loaf, roll in flour and place in a greased bread pan. Dot with bits of butter and bake thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Serve unmolded on a hot platter with:

Sauce for Tuna Loaf.—Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add two tablespoonfuls of flour and mix well, add slowly one cupful of milk, stirring constantly, and cook two minutes. Remove from the fire and add one egg yolk well beaten. Season with salt and pour around the fish loaf.

Apple Ice.—Cut up six large tart apples and boil with four cupfuls of water the rind of one lemon until soft. Drain, add two cupfuls of sugar and boil for three minutes. Add the juice of two lemons and the juice of an orange and freeze.

Pecan Cookies.—Cream one-half cupful of butter and one cupful of brown sugar together; add two eggs one at a time, beat well, add one cupful of honey and one teaspoonful of vanilla extract; then add one cupful of chopped pecan meats, one-fourth of a cupful of milk and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add a teaspoonful of baking powder to one cupful of flour, adding more flour to make a dough that can be rolled out. Chill, roll out and cut in diamond shapes. Bake on greased tin in a brisk oven. These cookies are better when they are kept a few days.

Excavations in Egypt show a shepherd of 6,000 years ago playing a leather-covered lute. On one side is his dog, on the other a lamb. Love of music was a characteristic of the earliest civilizations.

Place of Cabbages and Snakes. Cabbages and snakes are the chief features of New Year Island, a tiny speck in the Bass Strait, between Australia and Tasmania. The cabbages are twelve feet high. In four months two soldiers killed 1,050 snakes.

Not Really Remarkable.
"Do you know anything about palmistry, Herbert?" she asked. "Oh, not much," he answered, "although I had an experience last night which might be considered a remarkable example of palmistry. I happened to glance at the hand of a friend, and I immediately predicted he would presently become the possessor of a considerable amount of money. Before he left the room he had a nice little sum handed to him." "And you foretold that from his hand?" "Yes, it had four aces in it."

Goodyear Tires Really Cost Less

In our business, giving the customer his money's worth is largely a matter of selecting the right merchandise to sell.

That is why we sell Goodyear Tires, Tubes and Tire Saver Accessories.

In the end, it costs you less to buy a fine product in a modern, perfectly equipped shop than to buy unknown goods from so-called "bargain houses." Our Service After Sale is best for you, and because it is best for you, it is best for us. We run our business on that basis.

A Visit to Your Old Home Town

Don't you wish you could make one? But, of course, you haven't the time. It's a fast world! And it's a long, expensive trip. Perhaps, some day!

But just as often as not, "some day" never comes. And you have to be content with just sending your memory back on a sky-larking trip among the ghosts of yesterday.

However, those "ghosts" are very much alive, chances are, and are doing a lot of interesting things you'd like to know about. True, you may be getting letters regularly from mother or father, or sister or brother—but they seldom, if ever, mention good old Tom, Dick or Harry. What of them? Somebody knows!

You bet somebody knows! That "somebody" is the KEWASKUM STATESMAN, your Home Town Paper. Why, it's got stories about Tom, Dick and Harry today. You ought to keep in touch with them—and you can! It's easy—

SEEING IS BELIEVING.

Sure, everyone has a few personal friends who can be made to believe he is a merchant, when he isn't even a good storekeeper, but there are thousands of people who would be reminded all the time that he was in the game regularly if he carried an ad in the STATESMAN. Seeing is believing, and more than ever so since old man Volstead took a shot at us. And when a man sees, he has to believe. Where do you stand on the question? Do you keep your light so hidden that only the bushel basket shows? You have heard of the man who would not let loose of a dime until he saw the milled edges of two dollars? "You ain't it." Do you want the STATESMAN to guarantee results? Come in and talk it over.

Goes All Over The Universe

A Kewaskum lady wrapped a bundle in the STATESMAN and sent it to a relative, who is a missionary in China. Eleven weeks later she got a letter from the relative asking if there was any chance of getting a pair of No. 6 shoes that had been advertised in a local store. That ad didn't cause a sale in that particular instance, but it was possible.
