INSTALLATION OF LEGION OFFICERS

The open-air installation of the officers of the newly organized legion post of Kewaskum No. 384, held at the band stand on upper Main street, on Monday evening, was largely attended and made a decided hit among those who attended. Members from the Ray Dickopp Post, West Bend, Charles Hamm Post of Random Lake, Pearson Brown Post of Campbellsport were in attendance.

The Kewaskum Concert Band furnished concert music before the opening of the evening's program. Dr. E. L. Morgenroth, Village President, was appointed chairman of the meeting. The program was opened by community singing, "America" accompanied by the band. Following the song Dr. Morgenroth introduced F. Ryan Duffy of Fond du Lac, state Commander of the American Legion, who gave a very impressive and interesting talk on the work and purpose of the Legion and also the work of the local post. The program was then given by the village can look upon the local post. In his opening address he congratulated the ex-soldiers of this village and vicinity in perfecting an organization of the legion post in Kewaskum. He then congratulated the citizens of this village and community in being fortunate to have an organization of this kind within their midst, and also the part that this community played in the world war. The state Commander then went on telling of how through the pressure of the legion disabled soldiers finally received proper attention by the government. He also told of the millions of dollars that was made by war profiteers, which, if it would have been wisely spent among the soldiers upon their return, they would have been on a far better financial basis. Mr. Duffy is indeed a very able and forceful speaker. His address was very attentively listened to by all present, who speak very highly of him in the able and efficient manner he addressed the audience. Following his address the installation of officers then took place. The officers installed were: Post Commander—Theodore Schmidt; Vice-Commander—Maurice Rosenheim; Post Adjutant—Carl Schaefer; Post Sergeant—Arthur Schaefer; Post Finance Officer—Peter Haug; Post Historian—Walter Schaefer; Post Chaplain—Louis Bath. After the installation work, Post Commander, Theo. Schmidt gave a short talk in behalf of the members of the Kewaskum Post, expressing words of thanks to State Commander Duffy for his work, to Dr. E. L. Morgenroth, to the members of the band and to all the members of the different legions who were present and to all who attended the program. His talk was followed by a community song, "Star-Spangled Banner" accompanied by the band. It was followed by memorial exercises in honor of the late President Harding, on which Mr. Duffy gave a brief talk, requesting that all present remain silent with bowed heads for ten seconds, as a token of respect for the deceased commander-in-chief, Albert Bron, director of the band, was then called on to sound taps which was followed by the song "America" concluding the evening's program.

With the perfecting of the organization of a legion post, Kewaskum and community have fallen in line with the rest of the cities and villages in keeping abreast with the times. It is the earnest desire and intention of the officers and members of the post to fulfill the duties that a legion stands for. The large attendance Monday evening, was indeed very encouraging to the members of the organization. It is hoped that the same encouragement will be given the post in all future time, and that the citizens of the village and community will not hesitate at any time to cooperate with the post.

PORT WASHINGTON BOOSTERS HERE

About thirty-five members of the Port Washington Advancement association made a booster trip to this village Friday, to interview local business men and to keep in touch with the projected plan to secure part of the 2,500 miles of road that the state highway commission is now making a survey. The trip was made in automobiles and stops were made at Knellsville, Fredonia, Waubesa, Fillmore, Boltonville and St. Michaels. The visitors were received by the local businessmen, and after talking over matters concerning the road project were escorted to the Republican House where they partook of a sumptuous chicken dinner.

FATAL ACCIDENT

A fatal accident occurred east of Johnson Creek last Thursday evening causing the death of a traveling salesman, John I. McGee of Milwaukee. The accident occurred on County B, trunk highway. The coroner said McGee, who was driving, apparently was confused by driving over a strange road and in attempting to make a turn at a cross road near the Schlessner farm the machine sloughed while going about thirty miles an hour, and overturned. Both men were thrown clear of the accident. When Timberman regained consciousness Mr. McGee was dying. Death was reported due to a broken neck. No inquest.

Young Men Will Go Around World

A number of friends tendered a farewell surprise party last week Thursday evening to Percy Sackett of Campbellsport, who with Elmer Anderson of Whitewater left Monday for a trip around the world. Mr. Sackett was employed at the Campbellsport Telephone Exchange for a year and during the past two years was a student at the Whitewater Normal. The men expect to spend a year in their travels, sailing from San Francisco. The course so far planned is in Japan, the Philippine Islands, China, India, Gibraltar and England. Returning to the United States they will land either in New York or New Orleans, their homeward route has not been definitely planned.

Theresa Farmer Gets Threatening Letter

The past week it has been rumored that a prominent young farmer living southwest of Theresa received a letter which threatened the lives of his family if he did not remove from the immediate neighborhood. The letter stated that three graves would be dug near the farmers home. Upon examination of the farm the three graves were found. We have learned from good authority that an old grudge perhaps the cause of receiving the mysterious letter. The letter was written in German. Postal inspectors have been assigned to the case and an early solution is looked for.—Lomira Review.

FINISH PAVING ON HIGHWAY 55

The paving on the Brogan & Schaefer contract on State Trunk Highway 55, in the town of Auburn, Fond du Lac county, was completed Tuesday. This makes 3.6 miles finished this year. The whole contract was for 4.8 miles. The job was to have been done last year but the contractor was unable to get enough cement. Shoring is in progress and will soon be completed making a continuous stretch of 4.8 miles. The Lampert Construction Company on Highway 55, will close the gap at the O'Brien farm this week. This will provide a continuous concrete pavement from Wauocusta north to the city.

Spaeth Packing Co. Has $30,000 Fire Loss

The Spaeth Packing Co., just north west of the city, in the town of Hartford, suffered a serious loss last Thursday forenoon when the plant and all adjoining buildings, with contents were totally destroyed. The loss is estimated conservatively at $30,000, with insurance of $24,000. The factory property was 30 x 250 feet one story high, of frame construction. A 100-foot portion was used as a warehouse and contained 24,000 cans of prepared pork sausage and 43,000 empty cans that were to be used in the beet harvest.—Hartford Times.

MAN FOUND DEAD NEAR HARTFORD

The body of an unknown man was found hanging from a rafter in an old store building located about a mile north of Hartford last Sunday afternoon. The decomposed body was found by boys from Hartford who while out taking pictures by chance happened to enter the building, upon doing so were shocked to discover the body. The fact that the strap with which the man had strangled himself had broken under the weight of his body has left officers to believe that the man had been dead for six or eight months. Efforts to identify the man, up to the present time have failed. Nothing could be learned from his pockets or on his clothes that gave any clue as to his name or from where he comes. 30 cents was found in one of his pockets. From general appearances the man hung himself with a belt, a necktie and a handkerchief. The remains were taken to the Westenberg undertaking parlors at Hartford, where they will be held for about a week, during which time efforts will be made to identify the man.

FIRE INSURANCE RATERS WILL BE HERE

Due to the high fire insurance rating recently made by the Wisconsin Inspection Bureau, Fire Insurance Raters, and which has caused considerable complaint on the part of property owners in the village, Dr. E. L. Morgenroth has been successful in having Assistant Manager Gustin with two or three raters of the Bureau visit Kewaskum on Wednesday afternoon, August 15, 1923. They will make their headquarters at the city hall from two o'clock on. All property owners who wish to discuss matters with these men in regards to the high rating are requested to appear at the city hall.

Yeggs Make Mess of Safe Blowing

The safe in the office of the Bolden Brothers Lumber Company, at Hartford, was blown about three o'clock Wednesday morning, but the yeggs hastily fled from the scene when the neighborhood was aroused by the report. Few clues have been obtained, according to the chief of police, but it is thought there were two men and that escape was made in a high powered car.—Hartford Press.

HOME-COMING BIG SUCCESS

The home coming celebration held in this village Saturday and Sunday, under the auspices of the Kewaskum Concert Band, was largely attended and proved to be a great success. On Saturday evening, the streets which were decorated with the national colors, were crowded with people from far and near. During the evening, the band consisting of thirty-five pieces furnished concert music, which was greatly enjoyed by all. From nine o'clock on a dance was held at the South Side Park hall. On Sunday morning the Kewaskum Concert Band again furnished and concert music on Main street. At one o'clock an industrial parade was held. The line of march started from the city hall, and proceeded east thence west on Wilhelmia street, up Malt House street to Fond du Lac avenue, then south on the avenue to the intersection of Main street, east on Main to the South Side Park. The parade headed by Carl Hafemann, dressed in an Uncle Sam costume and Isabelle Miller as "Liberty", consisted of the fire men, band, floats, horse back riders, comic presentations and "Prof. Boots Famous Clown Band", the latter drew wide attraction not only in the parade but in the park as well, every member seemed to be well adapted for the character they represented, all playing their parts so well, that no one could help but enjoy having them play and the amusement they afforded to the large number of visitors who had come to spend the day. The band was under the leadership of "Prof. Boots" of Milwaukee. It is estimated that over 4,000 people were in attendance at the picnic in the park in the afternoon. The band concert, dancing, taking chances on winning at concession stands, formed the main pastime. The festivities were closed by a big dance in the large pavilion in the evening. This dance was attended by the largest crowd that has attended any of the band concerts in this village for years. Between five and six hundred dance tickets were sold. The Sonora phonograph given away was awarded to E. Schacht of the town of Farmington.

OF INTEREST TO OUR FARMERS

SPRAY THE ORCHARD AGAIN

The spray application for the second brood of codling moth should be made now, sometime before the 15th of August. The formula employed is the same as in the earlier sprays, namely: 1 gal. of liquid lime sulphur, 1 lb. arsenate of lead, to 40 gal. of water. If using dry lime sulphur, use 3 1/2 lbs. as equal to 1 gal. of the liquid form. This spray solution should be applied when the temperature is below 86 degrees F. in the shade. Choose a cloudy day if possible when the temperature is low to avoid lime sulphur injury on your trees and fruit. If you must spray on a hot sunny day, use only one-half the prescribed amount of lime sulphur. However, if the brown rot disease is attacking your apples you must use the full amount of lime sulphur in your spray, or else this disease will not be controlled.

WILL HOLD POULTRY CULLING DEMONSTRATIONS IN CO.

County Agricultural Agent, Milton H. Button, has completed arrangements whereby 8 poultry culling demonstrations are to be given at various places throughout the county by Prof. J. B. Hayes, of the Poultry Department of the University of Wisconsin. The loafing hen that eats heartily but does not turn this food into meat is easily detected. In fact the difference between a laying and non-laying hen is so easily told that all those attending these meetings can cull their flock of non-producers after attending this meeting. For years Washington County farmers have been at a loss to non-producing cow thru the agency of the cow testing associations. Now we hope to eradicate the non-producing hen by holding poultry culling demonstrations on their farm who may have it by notifying your county agent.

Milton H. Button, County Agent.

THE WONDERS OF THE DUNES

The Wonders of the Dunes, the long promised book by Geo. A. Brennan, representing the work of forty years as a naturalist and historian of the Dune-Chicago Region, is now completed. It is written in a very simple and pleasing style, and the boys and girls will enjoy reading it as much as the grown folks will. This book contains about 300 pages, with illustrations and maps, and will be appreciated by all lovers of nature. It describes the beauties of the Dunes, its rare plants, birds, and animals, and its wonderful history, from the Mound Builders to the present time, including the discovery near Waverly Beach of the site of the little French fort, Petite Fort, 1750-1800, and also the correct location of the Revolutionary battle of December 5th, 1780, which was fought at Michigan, City, instead of South Chicago. It tells about the old French fort at Chicago, and also explains why Chicago, the Dunes, etc. were claimed by Spain in 1781. It describes the Dune-Chicago Region. The Bobbs-Merrill Publishing Co., of Indianapolis, Ind., has agreed to publish 2,000 copies of "The Wonders of the Dunes." The price is $2.50.

All lovers of nature who wish a copy of this fascinating book are asked to please order now of the Bobbs-Merrill Co.

WISCONSIN'S BIGGEST FAIR PROMISED FOR THIS YEAR

The best planned exhibition in history will be thrown open to the public by the Wisconsin State Fair on August 27th, according to those in charge. The closing day will be on September 1st.

"The liberal offer of premiums for educational displays has aroused wide interest in the exhibits," says Secretary O. E. Remey. "Visitors will find each department a complete little fair in itself."

A big exhibit of livestock is assured. Breeders of purebred animals are turning out in force to make the livestock show an unusually successful one. Show officers are cooperating with the livestock men in putting on an educational campaign to stimulate more interest in the raising of farm stock of high type, and heavy sales of breeding stock are expected to result from it.

Women and children will find much to interest them in the woman's and children's departments. Boys and girls enrolled in club work have entered exhibits good enough to win prizes in many of the open classes, in competition with seasoned exhibitors. Many mothers will have to exert to beat their daughters when judges place the awards.

The entertainment program, which is being worked out in detail for each day, will present the best amateur and professional talent it has been possible to engage. Building and grounds are being hurried into shape for the opening day. Everything will be in spick-span condition.

WILL HAVE FREE CHEST CLINICS

A series of free chest clinics have been scheduled for Washington County, according to an announcement received here from the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, which will conduct the clinics. The schedule is as follows: Hartford—August 20 and 21, Slinger—August 22, West Bend—August 27 and 28, South German—August 29. The building in which the clinics will be held have not yet been announced but it is expected that they will be decided upon in a few days.

SHADOWS WITH A STAR CAST AT THE MOVIES

Local movie fans will have the opportunity to see screenland's wickedest villain at work when they attend the Preferred Picture, "Shadows" at the Opera House beginning Sunday evening, Aug. 19.

Those who remember the time when the old Egan company was making one and two reels, will recall the sinister countenance of Walter Long. Since those early days Long has been much sought after by casting directors who wished some dirty work done in a forthcoming production.

Probably the most famous characterization Long ever created was that of Gus, the renegade negro who chased Mae Marsh over a cliff in "The Birth of a Nation." After playing in the great Griffith picture he achieved fame in many other notable successes. In the past few months he has received honorable mention everywhere for his evil ways as Biff Dooley in "The Dictator" and as the outlaw in "Blood and Sand". In the character of Daniel Gibbs, the brutal admiral of Urkey's fishing fleet, in "Shadows" he has again found an unsympathetic but interesting role to fill.

WEST BEND JUVENILE BAND TAKES PRIZE

The guests included Harry Koch, Rosamary Haug, Howard Wittmann, Audrey Koch, Howard Schmidt, Charlotte Romaine, Doris May Rosenheim, Richard and Harriet Driessel, Georgia and Ione Schmidt.

FIND BODY IN CEDAR LAKE

The body of Henry Castenholz of Milwaukee, who drowned in big Cedar Lake a week ago last Sunday, was found last Sunday morning by Capt. T. F. Boutin, a former life guard. The body was found in 104 feet of water, it was still clinging to the boat that capsized. The body was in perfect condition, due to the cold water at that depth. The remains were taken to Milwaukee where the funeral was held on Tuesday at 8 a. m. from the residence of his father.

NATION MOURNS AT HARDING BIER

Vast Throngs Pay Tribute to Dead Chief as Funeral Train Crosses the Continent.

Washington—The flag draped casket of Warren Gamaliel Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States, was drawn gently into the capitol in the evening of Tuesday, August 7, by a funeral train that had crossed the continent from San Francisco, where the president died of apoplexy on August 2.

Nine hours late was the train, which east of Chicago crawled through great crowds reluctant to end their tribute. It was after 10 o'clock when it arrived, but tens of thousands who stood for hours beneath a blazing sun and through a humid evening still stood sorrowfully from railroad plaza to White house.

Passes New President Tenderly the casket was carried through the terminal, past the new president, Calvin Coolidge, and his cabinet, standing in silent tribute. Tenderly it was placed on an artillery caisson and drawn through the lane of silent thousands to the great mausoleum that had been Mr. Harding's home.

The guard of honor—marines, seamen, and soldiers—lifted it from the caisson under the portico of the White house, and carried it for a night of rest into the East room in which had lain Lincoln and McKinley.

Then the new president, his cabinet, high officials of the government, military escort withdrew, leaving to Mrs. Harding her dead.

Casket Taken to Capitol For one night the casket remained in the White house, then it was taken to the capitol building where the president's body lay in state until taken to Marion, Ohio, for burial in the Harding family plot. Mrs. Harding supervised all the details of the funeral arrangements at Marion. These arrangements provided for the interment of her husband's body in the Harding family plot in the cemetery on the outskirts of Marion and not for placing his remains in a vault pending decision as to their ultimate resting place. Mrs. Harding bore up well, showing remarkable fortitude and courage.

Mrs. Harding Bears Strain Mrs. Harding stepped off the funeral car when it arrived Tuesday night, leaning on Secretary Christian's arm and with Dr. Sawyer on her other side. The band in the concourse began playing "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

Mrs. Harding walked erect, but slowly along the station platform. While her hand was on Secretary Christian's arm she apparently needed no support. She at once entered an automobile and was whisked away through a side street to the White house. Her appearance and the reports of those who had made the trip with her from San Francisco set at rest widespread rumors that she had suffered physical collapse. It was said she had shown no sign of breaking under the strain.

Mrs. Harding reached the White house at 10:45 p. m., just as her husband's body was being taken into the president's room at the station. She walked into the house unaided.

Inside the executive mansion which she had left six weeks ago as the first lady of the land, the widow was greeted only by old friends and members of the family. A plan to have Mrs. Coolidge and the ladies of the cabinet present to meet her was canceled at her own request.

Mrs. Harding did not see the funeral cortege arrive. She went at once to her room when she reached the White house, long before the procession had turned into Pennsylvania avenue a mile away.

Vast Throngs Greet Train When the funeral train reached Ohio it was running six hours behind the schedule outlined for it when it left San Francisco, August 3rd, on the 3,000-mile transcontinental trip.

Through the trip through Iowa and Illinois, including Chicago, caused the train to lose time on its eastward journey, the tribute paid to the memory of the late president throughout that section will be told and retold for years to come.

Every city, town, hamlet and cross-road along the route of the funeral special contributed its masses of men, women and children, whose silent, reverent tribute to the dead surpassed any ovation to the living.

Wheels of industry were stopped as the train passed manufacturing sections of cities en route and the workmen joined the throngs that crowded over the tracks and impeded the passage of the engine drawing the special.

Train Slackens Speed Thronging thousands were afforded an opportunity to view the train and pay a moment's tribute of respect when Mrs. Harding requested railroad officials to lessen the speed of the train to 10 miles an hour when passing through the smaller cities.

The train was delayed two and a half hours coming into Chicago and Milwaukee—Preparations for Wisconsin's "no-carnival" state fair, Aug. 27 to Sept. 1, the first large fair without a midway to be held in the United States since "midways" were made famous by the Chicago world's fair in 1893 are being watched with considerable interest by superintendents of county fairs throughout the state and by superintendents of other state fairs, according to Secretary O. E. Remy. Midways and carnivals have been an integral part of all fairs for more than twenty-five years, and the the dense mass of humanity that waited there caused a further delay. The funeral party was joined outside of Chicago by Dr. George T. Harding, Jr., brother of the late president, and Dr. Carl Sawyer, Marion, Ohio, son of Brig. Gen. Sawyer, the president's personal physician.

Indiana, not to be outdone by her sisters to the west, paid an almost continuous tribute Monday night as the train thundered along in the darkness. Those who reverently waited the passing of the train could be distinguished by those aboard only by the lights at the station platforms and the glare of auto lights at almost every point where the railroad crossed a highway. But they were there and they were able to present their respects to the honored dead and catch a glimpse of the flag covered coffin, with its military guard, on the last car.

Ohio Pays Homage to Son Those of the dead president's own state in particular, were not to be denied. They who had honored him so signally in life were no less concerned that he should in death receive that honor befitting one of Ohio's sons who had fought the good fight and died in his country's service.

Throughout the long night and early morning as the train alternately crawled and flew across the state, Ohio came from its factories, its farms, from its offices and shops to stand quiet and uncovered before the tracks over which one of Ohio's most noble sons was being borne back to rest for a time where the remains of two other great Ohioans—Garfield and McKinley—have rested under the dome of the capitol.

Greatest Journey of Sorrow Never before in the history of America has there been a journey comparable to this caravan of sorrow that for five days wended its way across the continent. Quite probably there never will be one again.

There were crowds such as never before witnessed in this country. No one could estimate with any degree of accuracy the number of people who left work and their homes to do him reverence.

And everywhere there have been flowers—wreaths and blankets and bouquets of every bloom known to the horticulturists. The floral offerings that filled the long black train came from donors of every description. There were great wreaths from the state governments; ornate compositions from municipalities; great clusters of roses from private gardens; wreaths from posts of the American Legion; from fraternal orders of every kind; and there was one cluster of simple blue corn flowers tossed aboard by a woman in Iowa. There was even a great cross of Gold-ened, emblazoned by blue flowers with the significant initials, "K. K. K."

Simplicity Features Last Harding Rites

Marion, Ohio—Simplicity almost approaching severity characterized the last rites of Warren G. Harding when his body was brought here from Washington.

Carrying out the expressed desire of Mrs. Harding, only brief services were held.

There was no imposing funeral cortege to the cemetery, made resplendent by bright uniforms and glimmering sabers; no trooping of horses, no rumble of artillery wheels, no marching organizations. The grandeur was its simplicity and its sadness.

Not even the "President's Own," Troop A, Ohio National guard cavalry, Cleveland, which acted as escort of honor when Mr. Harding was inaugurated president, participated, other than to maintain quietude

WISCONSIN DELEGATION AT HARDING'S FUNERAL

Madison—The following twelve Wisconsin citizens were appointed by Gov. Blaine to represent the state at the obsequies of President Harding in Washington: Emanuel L. Philipp, Francis E. McGovern and E. H. Kronschaek of Milwaukee; Edward S. Scofield, Oconto; William H. Upham, Marshfield; William H. Hatton, New London; William H. Armstrong, Racine; A. M. Brayton, Madison; John T. Murphy, Superior; Dan W. Grady, Portage; C. E. Broughton, Sheboygan; Alfred T. Rogers, Madison. Col. William C. Brumder, Milwaukee, was appointed special representative of the governor to attend the burial of President Harding at Marion, Ohio.

Madison—Speeders in Dane county are "too anxious to plead guilty." This is the opinion of Clarence Bakken, Madison, chief of 128 speeders in traffic squad. Out of 128 speeders since Apr. 1 only two have pleaded not guilty and fought their cases. The arresting officer is not entitled to witness fees in cases where the offender pleads guilty.

Neenah—Leading milk dealers at Neenah have announced an increased price of 1 cent a quart. Under the new schedule, milk will retail at 10 cents a quart.

Fond du Lac—R. W. Fairchild, superintendent of schools at Fond du Lac for three years, has accepted the position as head of the public schools at Elgin, Ill.

Racine—A horseshoe throwing contest will be one of the features of a big Labor day community picnic at Racine, to be held in Midway park.

General impression has been that the success of fairs has been more or less dependent upon these features. The state fair board, in deciding to eliminate the carnival this year has taken the initiative to test out a steadily growing belief that this form of amusement is not essential to large attendance.

Guy Pitt, a Fremont clam fisher on the Wolf river, who gets clams for the button factories in Fremont found a pearl recently, valued at $2.50.

Sketch of President Warren G. Harding's Life

Warren Gamaliel Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States, was born November 2, 1865, on his grandfather's farm just outside the village of Blooming Grove, in Morrow county, Ohio. He was descended from Holland Dutch on the one side and liberty-loving Scotch on the other. His father, Dr. George T. Harding, is still a practicing physician in Marion, O., despite his advanced age of seventy-nine years. His mother was Phoebe Elizabeth Dickerson Harding.

Mr. Harding was a self-made man in the best sense of the phrase. He worked on his grandfather's farm and attended the village school until he was fourteen years old, then he entered the Ohio Central college at Iberia. He worked his way through that institution by cutting corn, painting his neighbors' barns and helping on the grading of the roadbed of the T. & O. C. railroad. He also played in the village band and was editor of the college paper.

When he graduated from the college, Warren went to work in the village printing office. At the time he was nineteen years old, his father moved to Marion with the family and there aided Warren financially in gaining control of the Marion Star, of which he was publisher until after he assumed the office of president of the United States. Already he knew how to set type and to do all the other duties of a printer, and when the linotype was introduced he learned to operate that machine. Always he carried as a pocket piece the printer's rule he used in those days.

The Star was his idol and he was very proud of it and of the more than friendly relations that existed between him and his employees. There was never a strike on the paper, and Classed, when in the senate, as a conservative, President Harding did not depart markedly from conservative lines when in the White House, though his supporters always said he was as progressive as the good of the country warranted and as conditions permitted. He, like President Roosevelt, had a great coal miners' strike on his hands, and labored hard and with a measure of success to bring it to a peaceful and just end.

Arms Limitation Conference. The outstanding accomplishment of his administration was the great international conference for the limitation of armament held in Washington, opening on Armistice day, November 11, 1921. At his instigation the conference was authorized by congress and after feeding out the big powers and finding them agreeable he issued invitations to Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Japan, China, the Netherlands and Portugal. Each country sent some of its most eminent statesmen as delegates, those of the United States being Secretary of State Hughes, chairman of the conference; Senators Lodge of Massachusetts and Underwood of Alabama, and ex-Secretary of State Elihu Root.

The conference adjourned February 6, 1922, after negotiating these treaties:

A covenant of limitation to naval armament between the United States, Great Britain, France, Japan and Italy.

A treaty between the same powers as to the use of submarines and noxious gases in warfare.

A treaty between the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan relating to their insular possessions and their insular dominions in the Pacific, with a declaration reserving American rights in mandated territory.

about 1910 he instituted a profit-sharing plan whereby the employees received dividends that were paid them in the form of stock in the paper. Mr. Harding was identified also with the industries that sprang up in Marion as it grew from a town of 4,000 to a city of more than 30,000. He was a director in a bank and in several manufacturing companies, and was a trustee of Trinity Baptist church.

His Rise in Politics. As editor and publisher of a lively Republican paper it was inevitable that Mr. Harding should take an active interest in politics, and his attainments brought him to the front in the state. He was a member of the Ohio senate from 1900 to 1904, and then served as lieutenant governor of the state. In 1910 he was the Republican nominee for governor, but was defeated. In 1915 he was sent to the United States senate, serving until 1920, when he resigned to make the campaign for the presidency. In the pre-convention campaign that year he had been looked on as one of the possible nominees for the high office, but his defeat in the primaries for election of delegates from Ohio seemed to spoil his chances. However, the conservative leaders of the Republican party prevailed in the gathering in the Chicago Coliseum, and Mr. Harding was nominated. His campaign was based largely on opposition to American participation in the League of Nations, and was so successful that in the election of November 4 he received 404 electoral votes to 127 for James M. Cox, the Democratic nominee. He was inaugurated March 4, 1921, with a degree of simplicity in the ceremonies that pleased the American people.

GOTHENBURG 300 YEARS OLD

Chief Port of Sweden Was Founded by the Great Monarch, Gustavus Adolphus.

Gothenburg, the chief port and one of the greatest industrial centers of Sweden, in this summer celebrating the three hundredth anniversary of its foundation by Gustavus Adolphus, says the Detroit News. The Dutch, at the beginning of the Eleventh century, were the greatest maritime traders in Europe and Gustavus Adolphus persuaded a number of Amsterdam merchants to settle in Gothenburg, where they were given special privileges. So much, indeed, was the Dutch element in the population esteemed that it was ordered that the records of the city should be kept in two languages, Swedish and Dutch.

The rapid growth of the city attracted large numbers of Scottish and English traders, who settled there and except for such as the numerous canals, the character of the city, so far as foreign elements go, retains more traces of its early British settlers than it does of the Dutch.

His Limit

He cut the class this week, however, because he could not think of anything to talk about.—Arizona Whoo Doo.

be almost a certainty that President Harding would be re-nominated in the Republican national convention of 1924.

Mr. Harding's home life was ideal save that he had no children. He and Mrs. Harding, who was Miss Florence Kling of Marion, were devoted to each other and she was always his true helpmate, both in Ohio and in Washington. In the national capital Mrs. Harding quickly made herself loved and during the Western trip she was more eager even than the President to meet and mix with all kinds of people.

His Western Trip. President Harding's Alaska trip was originally planned for the summer of 1922. He inherited the so-called

Mrs. Warren G. Harding

"Alaska problem." Alaska seemed to be on the down grade, with decrease in population and mining output, threatened extinction of the fishing industry and numerous other unfavorable symptoms. The situation apparently called for the establishment of a definite Alaskan policy. Various plans were discussed, including a transfer of control to the Interior department from the score or more of governing bureaus. President Harding's plans for 1922 came to naught, but this year he determined to get first-hand information. He was accompanied by Secretary Work of the Interior department, Secretary Wallace of the Agricultural department and Secretary Hoover of the Department of Commerce, all of whom are immediately concerned in the Alaskan situation.

The President left Washington at the end of June and journeyed leisurely to the Pacific Northwest by special train, making speeches at St. Louis, Denver, Helena, Spokane and two cities. Incidentally he visited two of the national parks. First he went to Zion in Utah, the newest of our national parks, which is a many-colored gorge cut by the Rio Virgin. Next he visited Yellowstone in Wyoming, created in 1872, the first national park in history and largest and most famous of the nineteen parks of our system. Here he motored, boated, fished, fed the bears and had a good time. His plans also included a visit to Yosemite upon his return trip, but that was abandoned.

Saw Much of Alaska.

The President celebrated the Fourth of July in the United States and then started for Alaska on the U. S. transport Henderson. His Alaskan trip was extensive. He went the length of the new government railroad and visited the capital, Juneau, and the principal cities.

On his return trip Mr. Harding stopped off at Vancouver, creating precedent in that he was the first American President to step on Canadian soil.

The President arrived at Seattle July 27 and reviewed from the bridge of the Henderson a fleet of a dozen or so battleships under command of Admiral H. P. Jones, each of which gave him the national salute of twenty-one guns. Even then he was suffering from the ailment that resulted in his death, and soon after that the rest of his trip, which was to include a return to the East via the Panama canal, was cancelled.

President Harding made a public address at Seattle, setting forth his views on the Alaskan situation. Some of his points were these:

"Alaska for Alaskans."

"There is no need of government-managed, federally-paid-for hot-house development. . . there must be no reckless sacrificing of resources."

"Alaska is destined for statehood in a few years."

"Where there is possibility of betterment in federal machinery of administration, improvement should and will be effected."

Other conclusions presented by President Harding were:

That generous appropriation should be made for road building.

That the federal government should be more liberal in encouraging the technical, scientific and demonstration work in agriculture.

That restrictions should be laid on the fisheries and on the forests.

That the development of the coal mines must await time and economic conditions.

That the government should retain ownership and operation of the Alaskan railroad.

far as foreign elements go, retains more traces of its early British settlers than it does of the Dutch.

COOLIDGE TAKES UP HIS DUTIES AS PRESIDENT

His Venerable Father Administers the Oath of Office in Country Home.

ASKS CABINET TO REMAIN

Announces His Intention to Follow Out the Policies Inaugurated by Harding—Goes to Washington to Assume Duties.

Washington.—Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth President of the United States, is here in Washington at the head of the executive branch of the government. Like the 100 per cent efficient United States marines, he has the situation well in hand. The presidency is functioning without friction.

Calvin Coolidge took the oath as President of the United States at Plymouth, Vt., at 2:47 a. m. Friday, August 3. The ceremony took place in the living room of the residence of the new President's father, John C. Coolidge. The oath of office was administered by the father, who is a notary public. The text of the presidential oath had been telephoned to Mr. Coolidge at Plymouth from the White House.

Statement by New Chief.

President Coolidge received the news of the death of President Harding and of his own elevation to the presidency at ten minutes before midnight, standard time, Thursday.

Mr. Coolidge received the first news through telegrams from George C. Christian, Jr., secretary to President Harding.

Mr. Coolidge issued the following statement:

"Reports have reached me, which I fear are correct, that President Harding is gone. The world has lost a great and good man. I mourn his loss. He was my chief and my friend. It will be my purpose to carry out the policies which he has begun for the service of the American people and for meeting their responsibilities wherever they may arise.

"For this purpose, I shall seek the co-operation of all those who have been associated with the President during his term of office. Those who have given their efforts to assist him I wish to remain in office, that they may assist me.

"I have faith that God will direct the destinies of our nation."

The following telegram was sent to Mrs. Harding:

"Plymouth, Vt., Aug. 3, 1923. "Mrs. Warren G. Harding, San Francisco, Cal.: We offer our deepest sympathy. May God bless you and keep you.

"CALVIN COOLIDGE, "GRACE COOLIDGE," Message Tells of Death.

The telegram announcing the death of the President was as follows: "Palace hotel, San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 3, 1923.—Mr. Calvin Coolidge, Plymouth, Vt.: The President died, instantaneously and without warning, while conversing with members of his family, at 7:30 p. m. His physicians report that death was apparently due to some brain embolism, probably an apoplexy.

"GEORGE B. CHRISTIAN, JR., "Secretary."

This telegram was brought to the Coolidge home at Plymouth Notch by W. A. Perkins of Bridgewater, who owns the telephone line running from Bridge-water to Plymouth. About five minutes later newspaper men arrived in Ludlow.

A drive of thirty miles through mountains brought them to the Coolidge summer home.

Mr. Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge retired about an hour before the messages were "eased. Ten minutes after the arrival of the newspaper men, Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge came down into the sitting room of the summer home. Mr. Coolidge was dressed in a black sack suit and wore a white tie. Mrs. Coolidge wore a white gown, white shoes and a white hat. Mr. Coolidge was very pale and showed deep regret for President Harding's death. He seated himself at the table while Mrs. Coolidge brought coffee and read the telegrams he had received.

He then called his assistant secretary, Irving Gelsler, and dictated his statement and the telegrams Mrs. Harding.

Mrs. Coolidge weeps. In the meantime people were coming from all directions. Mr. Coolidge gave orders that a telephone line be opened for use as press headquarters.

Meanwhile, the new first lady of the land sat weeping softly and waiting in sympathy for the bereaved lady in San Francisco.

"What a blow—what a terrible blow to poor Mrs. Harding! She will have had such a heavy burden to bear on her own illness, to bear up under now this!"

Finally Secretary Gelsler went with the press copies of the statements, and pushing back a photograph album and the family album on the center table, Mrs. Coolidge busied herself with the weeping distribute them.

The newspaper men had gotten out of sight when another graph messenger arrived with the presidential oath from Washington. In the same sitting room with its hand-branded rug, its venerable colonial furniture, its wood stove and its family Bible—Mrs. Coolidge received the oath of office from his father, and became America's thirtieth president.

PRESIDENT CALVIN COOLIDGE

Calvin Coolidge is a quiet, reserved man, known to his friends as "Cal." For more than twenty years he has been in political life, starting immediately after finishing his first political office in the council of Northampton, Mass., where he had settled. For years he has been in office in that city, then as those of city solicitor and then he was elected to the Massachusetts house of representatives. He won a seat in the state senate in 1912.

Coolidge was lieutenant governor of Massachusetts and in 1919 was elected to the governorship in the campaign won by the Republican party several years. He was governor for two years. CHAPTER III

MR. HERSHEIMER

Mr. Julius P. Hersheimer was a good deal younger than either Tommy or Tuppence had pictured him. He was of middle height, and squarely built to match his jaw. His face was pug-nosed but pleasant. No one could have mistaken him for anything but an American, though he spoke with very little accent.

"Get my note? Sit down and tell me right away all you know about my cousin."

"Your cousin?"

"Sure thing, Jane Finn."

"Is she your cousin?"

"My father and her mother were brother and sister," explained Mr. Hersheimer meticulously.

"Oh!" cried Tuppence. "Then you know where she is?"

"No!" Mr. Hersheimer brought down his fist with a bang on the table. "I'm damned if I do! Don't you?"

"We advertised to receive information, not to give it," said Tuppence severely.

But Mr. Hersheimer seemed to grow suddenly suspicious.

"See here," he declared. "This isn't Sicily! No demanding ransom or threatening to crop her ears if I refuse. These are the British Isles, so keep the funny business, or I'll just sing out for that beautiful British policeman I see out there in Piccadilly."

Tommy hastened to explain.

"We haven't kidnaped your cousin. On the contrary, we're trying to find her. We're employed to do so."

Mr. Hersheimer leaned back in his chair.

"Put me wise," he said succinctly.

Tommy fell in with this demand in so far as he gave him a guarded version of the disappearance of Jane Finn, and of the possibility of her having been mixed up in unwarlike "some political show." He alluded to Tuppence and himself as "private inquiry agents" commissioned to find her, and added that they would therefore be glad of any details Mr. Hersheimer could give them.

That gentleman nodded approval.

"I guess that's all right. I was just a little hazy. Just trot out your questions and I'll answer."

For the moment this paralyzed the Young Adventurers, but Tuppence, recovering herself, plunged boldly into the breach with a reminiscence culled from detective fiction.

"When did you last see the deceased, your cousin, I mean?"

"Never seen her," responded Mr. Hersheimer.

"What?" demanded Tommy, astonished.

"No, sir. As I said before, my father and her mother were brother and sister. Just as you might be—Tommy did not correct this view of their relationship—but they didn't always get on together. And when my aunt made up her mind to marry Amos Finn, who was a poor schoolteacher out west, my father was just mad! Said if he made his pile, as he seemed in a fair way to do, she'd never see a cent of it. Well, the upshot was that Aunt Jane went out west and we never heard from her again.

"The old man did pile it up. He went into oil, and he went into steel, and he played a bit with railroads, and I can tell you he made Wall Street sit up!" He paused. "Then he died—well, fall—and I got the dollars. Well, would you believe it, my conscience got busy! Kept knocking me up and saying: 'What about your Aunt Jane, what about west?' It worried me some. You see, I figured it out that Amos Finn would never make good. He wasn't that sort. End of it. I hired a man to hunt her down. Result, she was dead, and Amos Finn was dead, but they'd left a daughter—Jane—who'd been torpedoed in the Lusitania on her way to Paris. She was saved all right, but they didn't seem able to hear of her over this side. I guessed they weren't hustling any, so I thought I'd come along west, and speed things up. I phoned Scotland Yard and the Admiralty first thing. The Admiralty rather choked me off, but Scotland Yard were very kind indeed, they would make inquiries, even sent a man round this morning to get her photograph. I'm off to Paris tomorrow, just to see what the Prefecture is doing. I guess if I go to and fro hustling them, they ought to get busy!"

The energy of Mr. Hersheimer was tremendous. They bowed before it.

"But say, now," he ended. "You're not after her for anything? Contempt of court, or something British? A proud-spirited young American girl might find your rules and regulations in war time rather irksome, and get up against it. If that's the case, and there's such a thing as graft in this country, I'll buy her off."

Tuppence reassured him.

"That's good. Then we can work together. What about some lunch?"

Oysters had just given place to Sole Colbert when a card was brought to Hersheimer.

"Inspector Japp, C. I. D. Scotland Yard again. Another man this time. What does he expect I can tell him that I didn't tell the first chap? I hope they haven't lost that photograph. That western photographer's place was burned down and all his negatives destroyed—this is the only copy in existence. I got it from the principal of the college there."

An unformulated dread swept over Tuppence.

"You—you don't know the name of the man who came this morning?"

"Yes, I do. No I don't. Half a second. It was on his card. Oh, I know! Inspector Brown. Quiet, unassuming sort of chap."

A veil might with profit be drawn over the events of the next half-hour. Suffice it to say that no such person as "Inspector Brown" was known to Scotland Yard. The photograph of Jane Finn, which would have been of the utmost value to the police in tracing her, was lost beyond recovery. Once again "Mr. Brown" had triumphed.

The immediate result of this setback was to effect a rapprochement between Julius Hersheimer and the Young Adventurers. All barriers went down with a crash, and Tommy and Tuppence felt they had known the young American all their lives. They abandoned the discreet reticence of "private inquiry agents," and revealed to him the whole history of the joint venture, whereat the young man declared himself "flicked to death."

He turned to Tuppence at the close of the narration.

"I've always had a kind of idea that English girls were just a little moggier. Old-fashioned and sweet, you know, but scared to move around without a footman or a maiden aunt. I guess I'm a bit behind the times!"

The upshot of these confidential relations was that Tommy and Tuppence took up their abode forthwith at the Ritz. In order, as Tuppence put it, to keep in touch with Jane Finn's only living relation, "and put like that," she added confidentially to Tommy, "nobody could boggle at the expense."

Nobody did, which was the great thing.

"And now," said the young lady on the morning after their installation, "to work! We should map out a plan of campaign."

"Hear, hear!"

"Well, let's do it. To begin with, what have we to go upon?"

"Absolutely nothing," said Tommy cheerily.

"Wrong!" Tuppence wagged an energetic finger. "We have two distinct clues."

"What are they?"

"First clue, we know one of the gang."

"Whittington?"

"Yes. I'd recognize him anywhere."

"Hum," said Tommy doubtfully. "I don't call that much of a clue. You don't know where to look for him, and it's about a thousand to one against your running against him by accident."

"I'm not so sure about that," replied Tuppence thoughtfully. "There are places in London where simply everyone is bound to turn up sooner or later. Piccadilly circles, for instance. One of my ideas was to take up my stand there every day."

"Honestly, I don't think much of the idea. Whittington may be in London at all."

"That's true. Anyway, I think clue No. 2 is more promising."

"Let's hear it."

"It's nothing much. Only a Christian name—Rita. Whittington mentioned it that day."

"Are you proposing a third advertisement? Wanted, female crook, answer to the name of Rita?"

"I am not. I propose to reason in a logical manner. That man, Danvers, was shadowed on the way over, wasn't he? And it's more likely to have been a woman than a man—"

"I don't see that at all."

"I am absolutely certain that it would be a woman, and a good-looking one," replied Tuppence calmly. "Now, obviously, this woman, whoever she was, was saved."

"How do you make that out?"

"If she wasn't, how would they have known Jane Finn had got the papers?"

"Correct."

"Now, there's just a chance, I admit it's only a chance, that this woman may have been 'Rita.'"

"And if so?"

"If so, we've got to hunt through the survivors of the Lusitania till we find her."

"Then the first thing is to get a list of the survivors."

"I've got it. I wrote a long list of things I wanted to know, and sent it to Mr. Carter. I got his reply this morning, and among other things it inclosed the official statement of those saved from the Lusitania."

"But the great point is, is there a 'Rita' on the list?"

"That's just what I don't know," confessed Tuppence. "You see, very few Christian names are given. They're nearly all Mrs. or Miss."

"Who knows? You may have met Mr. Brown already."

Tommy nodded. "Their complaints, matters," he murmured thoughtfully. "Well, we've just got to get down to it, that's all. We'll start with the London area. Just note down the addresses of any of the females who live in London or roundabout, while I put on my hat."

Five minutes later the young couple emerged into Piccadilly, and a few seconds later a taxi was bearing them to The Laurels, Glendower road, N.7, the residence of Mrs. Edgar Keith, whose name figured first in a list of seven residing in Tommy's pocketbook.

The Laurels was a dilapidated house, standing back from the road with a few grimy bushes to support the fiction of a front garden. Tommy paid off the taxi, and accompanied Tuppence to the front doorbell. He pressed the bell. Tuppence withdrew to a suitable spot.

"How Would They Have Known Jane Finn Had the Papers?"

A shatteringly-looking servant, with an extremely dirty face and a pair of eyes that did not match, answered the door.

"Good morning," he said briskly and cheerfully. "From the Hampstead borough council. The new Voting Register, Mrs. Edgar Keith lives here, does she not?"

"Yess," said the servant.

"Christian name?" asked Tommy, his pencil poised.

"Eleanor," spelt Tommy. "Any sons or daughters over twenty-one?"

"None."

"Thank you," Tommy closed the notebook with a brisk snap. "Good morning."

"Good wheeze, wasn't it? And we can repeat it ad lib. Where's the next draw?"

"Mrs. Vandemeyer, 20 South Andley mansions. Miss Wheeler, 43 Clapton road. Bittersen. She's a lady's maid, as far as I remember, so probably won't be there, and, anyway, she's not likely."

"Then the Marfall lady is clearly indicated as the first port of call."

South Andley mansions was an imposing-looking block of flats just off Park Lane. No. 20 was on the second floor.

Tommy had by this time the glibness born of practice. He rattled off the formula to the elderly woman, looking more like a housekeeper than a servant, who opened the door to him.

"Christian name?"

"Margaret."

"Tommy spelt it, but the other intererupted him."

"No, g. e. e."

"Oh, Marguerite; French war, I see." He paused then plunged boldly. "We had her down as Rita Vandemeyer, but I suppose that's incorrect?"

"She's mostly called that, sir, but Marguerite's her name."

"Thank you. That's all. Good morning."

Hardly able to contain his excitement, Tommy hurried down the stairs. Tuppence was waiting at the angle of the turn.

"You heard?"

"Yes, oh, Tommy!"

Her hand was still in Tommy's. They had reached the entrance hall. There were footprints on the stairs above them, and voices.

Suddenly, to Tommy's complete surprise, Tuppence dragged him into the little space by the side of the lift, where the shadow was deepest.

"What the—"

"Hush!"

Two men came down the stairs and passed out through the entrance. Tuppence's hand closed tighter on Tommy's arm.

"Quick—follow them. I don't know who the other man is, but the bigger of the two was Whittington."

WISCONSIN NEWS

Important Events of the Week Around the Badger State

Madison—Salaries for the employees of Wisconsin's state government amount to nearly $900,000 each month, a report prepared by the office of the secretary of state shows. The payroll of regular state workers is shown to number 5,346. The tabulations by the secretary of state for a recent month show that regular employees drew salaries totaling $886,557.06. The amount paid to part time workers was not contained in the report. According to the salary report, there were 1,765 employees of boards and commissions drawing salaries of $274,449.12 each month; 1,034 employees of charitable and penal institutions getting $77,528 a month; 539 employees of normal schools receiving $305,280 a month and 2,008 employees of the university getting $425,998 each month. The 5,346 state employees whose salaries approximate $900,000 each month run government disbursing, exclusive of highways, to more than $22,000,000 annually to carry on its function, according to official reports.

Rice Lake—John F. Dietz, of Cameron Dam fame, who has made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Herman Voltz, of Rice Lake, since his release from Waupun, claims to have proofs in his possession, positive evidence that Oscar Harp, for whose death he was convicted, was never killed; that the box supposed to contain his remains was filled with some heavy substances; that no persons accompanied the corpse as required by law, and that the casket was never opened before being placed in the ground. Dietz recently made a visit to Poplar Hill cemetery at Rock Elm, in Pierce county, where the records show that Harp was buried, and notified the officials of Rock Elm that an effort would be made to get a permit to exhume the remains in the grave. Dietz served in prison from 1910 until 1920, when pardoned.

Park Falls—The Park Falls Lumber Co. of Park Falls has a large force of men at work building nine immense dry kilns, having a capacity of 500,000 feet of lumber and a daily output of 40,000 feet of dried lumber. All will be under one roof containing 55,000 square feet, the building will be solid reinforced concrete. The dry kilns will be 100 feet in length and heat generated from live steam will be forced into the kilns by hose, electrically-driven fans. These kilns will practically double the output of the mill by hastening shipments, instead of having to wait for huge piles of lumber to dry in yards. It will mean the employment of 150 additional men. The company has enough hardwood to run for 20 years.

Madison—State printing for the fiscal year cost Wisconsin $263,937.68. David Atwood, state printer has announced. During the previous year the total cost was $348,707.71 or $85,763.06 more than for 1923. This saving was accomplished by letting contracts below the maximum allowed under the statute. Mr. Atwood's report says. Contracts are shown to have been let at prices ranging from 10 to 40 per cent below the maximum allowed by law.

Sturgeon Bay—Frank N. Graess, identified with Sturgeon Bay fruit organizations, was severely burned about the face and upper part of the body by concentrated ammonia. The accident occurred at the pre-cooling plant of the Fruit Growers' union, of which the injured man had charge. In turning a valve on one of the pipes Graess received a full charge of the fluid in the face and was nearly suffocated.

Madison—The state highway commission reports that excellent results are being obtained in Dane county from the application of tar surface to gravel roads. Surfacing is being done at the cost of about $1,000 a mile.

Beloit—Announcement of the acceptance of Le Roy Davidson, University of Illinois, of the position as assistant in the department of economics at Beloit college was made at Beloit.

Oconto—Edward Beaudin, Oconto, has a flock of wild ducks, which he is raising for use as decoys for the duck hunting season next fall. The old pair of birds were captured last fall and domesticated.

Madison—The Community Union, centralizing agency for 14 Madison charitable organizations, will ask for $103,875.44 in a financial campaign to open Sept. 29 and close Oct. 8. Judge M. B. Rosenberry of the supreme court is chairman of the union.

Hurley—Sixteen federal agents recently visited Hurley, the oasis of Wisconsin, and seized 3,650 gallons of mash, 245 gallons of moonshine and 105 gallons of good liquor. It was the largest single raid in that town since the notorious raid of Dec. 28, 1920.

Birchwood—Goldie, the 3 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Becker, Barron county, was seriously scalded when hot water accidentally tipped over on the child while she was at play. The child will recover.

Fond du Lac—With more than 23 miles of concrete road laid since the opening of the highway construction season, the Fond du Lac county highway commission is more than nine miles ahead of its 1923 record up to Aug. 1.

Antigo—The pack of early peas of the Antigo Canning company exceeded the estimate by more than 4,000 cases. Late peas, which constitute about two-thirds of the total pack, are now being canned.

Watertown—A report showing the expenditure of $1,592,873 annually was presented to the delegates at the close of the Lutheran Charities association of the synodical conference at Watertown. This covers the work in all parts of the country. Of this $1,021,187 is spent for hospitals; $119,815 for orphanages; $36,895 for home finding societies; $212,480 for educational institutions; $152,789 for homes for aged; $46,637, city missions; $3,070, deaconess societies, and $1,592,873 total through 60 institutions. About 625 persons are employed and 211,107 persons directly benefited.

Madison—Miss Maybelle M. Parks, director of the state juvenile department, has announced her resignation to the state board of control. Miss Parks asserted that she is starting on a three weeks' vacation that she is entitled to and will not return. She asserted that a reduction in salary from $250 a month to $160 had nothing to do with her resignation. Her main grievance, she cites, is that the board of control took over most of her supervisory powers and left her what she terms a clerical position.

Green Bay—The new hydro electric plant at Johnson Falls on the Peshigo river 70 miles north of Green Bay, completed by the Wisconsin Public Service Co. at a cost of $550,000, was placed in operation last week. From the moment that it started until the river falls or civilization finds no need for electric energy, this plant will generate 12,000,000 kilowatt hours every year. Converted into terms of coal this is equivalent to 18,000 tons of coal annually, or about 60 carloads. The completion of the plant has been delayed 13 years by unfavorable legislation.

Sturgeon Bay—Aug. 25 will be a red letter day for farmers of the Door peninsula. On that day a mammoth farmers' picnic will be combined with the annual station day at the Door county experimental farm. E. J. Delwiche, widely known field crop specialist, has charge of the demonstrations. County Agent E. G. Bailey and A. A. Granovsky of the station are receiving the co-operation of the county agricultural committee to make it the biggest farmers' gathering held in years.

Oneida—Lacking the business support of the Indian population of the Oneida reservation, the Oneida State Bank has quit business. Affairs of the bank are in good shape, but the Wisconsin banking commission advised closing. Deposits and obligations have been taken over by the State bank of De Pere. Only about 100 depositors had been obtained since organization of the bank in 1920. C. D. Morrissey, cashier, declared.

The difficulty is caused by a combination of decaying vegetation and refuse dumped in the river by several large industrial plants.

Madison—Truck owners in Wisconsin whose license under the new weight tax law would be more than under the former flat fee system, are re-registering in large numbers, the secretary of state's office announces. Most of the owners are paying their added fees under protest, however, the department says.

Hurley—Joseph Becker, statistician of the agricultural department at Washington, visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Becker of Hurley, while making a tour of the west to establish a uniform system of reporting agricultural statistics to the federal government. He was formerly stationed at Madison.

Cuba City—Prof. Housmann, for the past two years an expert in the making of sulphuric acid at the plant of the National Ore Separating Co. at Cuba City, fell down a flight of stairs while carrying a bucket of acid and the fiery liquid ran over his arms and face. He was removed to his home in a serious condition.

Tomah—E. L. Liddle, Monroe county agricultural agent, who has been passing a two week vacation at Clarion, Iowa, believes in combining business with pleasure, as he brings back word that he has orders for two or three carloads of Guernsey and Holstein cattle open for delivery Sept. 1.

Sturgeon Bay—G. E. Leach, mayor of Minneapolis, filed suit before District Judge Mathias Baldwin of Minneapolis for a divorce from his wife, a former Door county girl, on the charge of desertion. The case is held under advisement.

Evansville—Roy Lee, 29 years old, employed as a lineman for an electric company at Evansville, was instantly killed while repairing a faulty wire.

Fond du Lac—Six years after his escape from the state prison camp at Taycheedah, Dewey Hudson, alias Ray, has been located in California and will be returned to the state prison at Waupun.

Glenwood City—Hurled 30 feet into the air by a bull which he was attempting to tie up on his farm south east of Glenwood City, I. F. Meyer met instant death when he struck the ground.

Madison—The pig survey by the state crop reporting service at Madison shows, according to an announcement, that shipments to market have increased 15 per cent over last year, with a total of 1,459,000 hogs sent to market.

Birchwood—Farmers throughout Barron and Washburn counties have started the annual oats crop harvest. The oats are in excellent condition despite a long dry period earlier in the season.

PERIOD WHEN THE WOMEN RULED

By Far the More Important Sex in Early Days of the World, is Recent Statement.

Recent research, by some French professors, into the ways of women of a hundred thousand years ago, have given an unexpected jolt to preconceived ideas. Now the professors declare that woman, in the days of our cave-dwelling ancestors, was regarded as of the more important sex. Men held a secondary position, tolerated for the sake of the food and skins provided. Women ruled, and were the inventors of the earliest arts and sciences. It was the woman's ingenuity which devised snares for animals and made gloves of scarlet. Women taught ways of making clothing from skins of animals, and by the efforts of their brains improved the lot of all the human race. "Woman's cunning and wit were the outcome of her lack of physical strength, which obliged her to resort to strategy rather than force. On the whole, the prehistoric woman apparently held the same position that she does today, according to these gentlemen, who may however have a different opinion for us tomorrow.

Thought and Habit.

Life, in a way, seems to be an accumulation of habits; physical habits and mental habits. We do things one certain way for years and we think certain thoughts for years. We think oftentimes, just because it is a habit, that that we do and what we think is the right way to do and think. We may have contracted a bad habit and never have known it. We may have been wrong for forty years.

DODGE BROTHERS ANNOUNCE

Important improvements in the appearance and riding comfort of their motor cars.

Dodge Brothers have not simply brought out a complete new line of motor cars. They have done something infinitely wiser and better than that.

They have brought new beauty, new riding ease and new mechanical perfection to the product on which their reputation as builders has been founded.

They have built a better and a more desirable line of motor cars—yet basically and fundamentally the identity of their product remains the same.

The same sturdy engine is under the hood; the same dependable chassis, improved in numberless details, underlies the body.

But the rear springs—now underslung—have been materially lengthened. The wheelbase, is longer, and the combined result is a notable improvement in riding qualities.

Bodies of all types have been designed to give improved appearance, and greater comfort. Lower, longer, with deeper seats and more leg room, the lines of these new cars are low-slung and graceful—the interiors are comfortable and roomy.

New head lamps and fenders, especially designed by Dodge Brothers to conform with the general lines of the car—a long straight hood and cowl effect—longer and wider running boards—unusually wide doors—combination stop signal and tail lamp—and instruments attractively grouped on raised panel—are a few of the numerous body innovations common to all types.

1924 Models Are the Finest Big-Sixes Studebaker Ever Built

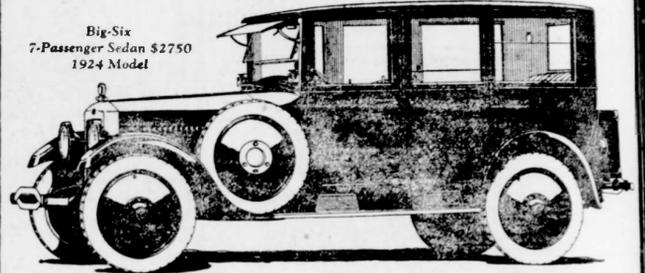

The enthusiasm with which the new 1924 model Studebaker cars have been received locally is an indication of the reception they have enjoyed throughout the country.

No wonder. They are emphatically the most compelling values Studebaker ever offered and the public knows that Studebaker has been a consistent leader, year after year, in the amount of intrinsic value per dollar invested.

The Big-Six Sedan and the Coupe are the finest cars that have ever borne the name Studebaker. They provide all the performance, all the comfort, and all the dependability that any car will give—at a price that smaller producers cannot approach.
