Has Violin Made in 1610
C. H. Wagner of the Division theatre orchestra of this city, recently had the good fortune to come across a rare old violin, the product of one of the world's greatest violin makers and dating back to 1610. While looking through the shop of a violin dealer in Milwaukee he ran upon the instrument in a collection of some 30 violins gathered in Europe by Paul Moeng Markenskirchen and only recently brought to Milwaukee. The violin is the handiwork of Antonio and Geronimo Amati, the instrument still bearing over 200 pages and the print, while by its makers. The label, although dim with age, for the most part is still legible. Recognizing its almost priceless qualities, Mr. Wagner gladly paid the dealer the price asked—$1,000.—Beaver Dam Argus.

LOMIRA MAN HELD FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Herman Schuland, a well known citizen of Lomira is held under $5,000 bail, in connection with the death of Miss Lorna Wagner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wagner of Fond du Lac, who was struck and killed by an automobile bus, owned by the Wisconsin Automobile Co. in the town of Lomira, Saturday evening, shortly after five o'clock. The unfortunate lady was found lying near a culvert in a pool of blood. She was visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Krause and had gone to the A. McCham home shortly before five o'clock to telephone to her mother, that she would be home on the 8 o'clock bus. The girl was evidently struck by a car on her way to the Krause home. On Saturday evening she left Schuland and four other officials of Fond du Lac, visited the Schuland home and confiscated the Buick sedan of Herman Schuland. The sheriff stated that there was blood on the bumper, right fender, hub of right wheel and throttle. Two different kinds of lenses were also found in the rear lights of the car. On Monday morning an investigation he found the bundle to be that of a girl who was still sleeping.
Herman Schuland stated that he was not guilty of hitting the girl, but said that he came upon her with his car, as he was driving on the road which runs between Schuland and the Milwaukee police force.—Hartford Times

SUNKEN ROAD AGAIN REPAIRED

Through good work on the part of the county road and bridge committee and county highway commissioner Charles Johnson, the road near the Thos. Volm farm, three miles west of here, which sank out of sight in the marsh several weeks ago, has again been filled up by the county road crew now at work there. Reports given out by the county road officials are to the effect that this stretch of road is today and will be in the future better than ever, and no longer will traffic be dangerous through the swamp, as road now has a solid foundation, and the heavy weight of gravel hauled upon it has caused not a portion of it to sink any further.

LOCAL OFFICE GETS PICTURE OF KEWASKUM'S FIRST POSTMASTER

Lyman G. Wheeler and Leverett C. Wheeler and wives of Milwaukee and District Attorney H. Schmidt of West Bend were in the village last Saturday afternoon and while here, the Wheeler brothers presented Postmaster Erwin Koch with a large portrait of the late Nathan Wheeler, who was the first postmaster of Kewaskum in 1846. The portrait was given to Mr. Koch as a gift and now hangs in the lobby of the post office, as a token of respect and remembrance to the late postmaster. The citizens of Kewaskum are grateful for the gift made. Through the younger generation does not know anything about him, however, the history and the fact of knowing who he was moves of great interest to them, and the portrait is greatly appreciated. To the old settlers of this village and community Nathan Wheeler is well remembered and to them it brings back to mind sweet memories of bygone days. At the time Nathan Wheeler was postmaster here, he resided on a farm now owned and managed by Roman Backhaus, located just south of the village limits, at which place the post office was then also located. During the time Mr. Wheeler was postmaster, traveling was very poor and transportation was slow, mail was received here once a week from Fort Washington. A brief history of the late Nathan Wheeler is as follows:
Nathan Wheeler was born October 21, 1781, about three miles and a half east of Worcester, Mass., in the town of Shrewsbury. He was of the Seventh generation of the Wheeler family, beginning with Geo. Wheeler, who came from Cranford, Bedfordshire, England, in 1635, and was one of the founders of Concord, Mass.
Nathan Wheeler, son of Artemas Wheeler, lived at Shrewsbury, Mass., Bridport and Middlebury, Vermont, and Milwaukee county, Wisconsin, in 1840, and Kewaskum, Wis., from a time prior to 1846. Artemas Wheeler, father of Nathan, answered the Lexington call, April 19th, 1775, as one of the "minute men" Corporal in Capt. Job Lushings Co. in Col. Ward's Regiment, and he afterwards served under several enlistments in the war for independence.
Nathan Wheeler married Susannah Heard of Rutland, Mass., daughter of Mark Heard. Eight children were born of this marriage, of whom the oldest was Lyman Wheeler, later of Milwaukee county, Wis., born Jan. 6, 1806. After the death of his first wife, Nathan Wheeler married Amara, who lived at Kewaskum, of which marriage one daughter, Sarah, was born at Kewaskum (she died unmarried in Florida).
Nathan Wheeler owned 240 acres in the south half of Section 9, town of Kewaskum, Wisconsin, which is now within the city limits of Kewaskum. The U. S. Patent of this land was issued to him in 1846.
Nathan Wheeler died in the town of Kewaskum, Milwaukee county, Wis., Sept. 13, 1859. He is buried in the Wauwatosa cemetery. The portrait is presented to Kewaskum by his grandsons Lyman G. Wheeler and Leverett C. Wheeler of Milwaukee county.

New Light Thrown on Etruscan Origin

One of Most Puzzling Mysteries of History May Be Solved by Discovery.

Washington, D. C.—"One of the most puzzling mysteries of history, the source of Etruscan civilization, famous rival of Rome, may be solved by the discovery announced from Italy of a very ancient city near Ferrara," explains a bulletin from the National Geographic society and continues: "Tombs recently found beneath the mud deposited by the Po river are of a period antedating the founding of Rome and indicate an Etruscan origin. Romulus, founder of Rome, suckled by a she-wolf according to legend, found the Etruscan people firmly established when he began Rome. Legend gives them a league of twelve cities thriving on the rich fertile plain to which Egypt, Greece and Africa paid bounteous tribute in gold, silver, scarabs, rare vases and priceless gems. Pisa, famous today for its leaning tower, was a small village of rich, extravagant, voluptuous Etruria. All the great cities have vanished.

Fell Victims to Luxury.

"Etruscans are supposed to have entered Italy from the Po region. Whether they came from Macedonia, the home of Alexander the Great, or whether they were a colony established by Greece in the days of her grandeur may be decided by the remains of the lost city discovered near Ferrara. Like Rome, Etruria fell victim of her sin. Diodorus wrote, 'Their country was so fertile they derived therefrom not only sufficient for their needs but enough to supply them with luxuries. Twice a day they partook of elaborate repasts at which the tables were decked with embroidered cloths and vessels of gold and silver. The servants were noticeable for the richness of their attire. In fact, giving themselves up to sensuous enjoyments they had naturally lost the glorious reputation their ancestors had won in wars.'

"Etruria today is a country of rich fields and deep rocky ravines. Ferrara, too, where the ancient Etruscan city has been unearthed, is a dismal faded flower living on the memories of its glorious blooming in the bright days of the Italian Renaissance.

Reminders of Famous Names.

"Scraps of graceful cornices and weather-worn marble remind the visitor of famous names; of Lucretia Borgia, who had been married four times by her father, Pope Alexander VII, at the age of twenty-two; of Tasso who wrote 'Jerusalem Delivered' while living under the patronage of the famous Lucretia. Titian achieved his first great success in Ferrara with magnificent renaissance canvas for the altar of the church of San. Then there was Aldus. Even today men who deal with type the whole world know and praise the work of this man, who, following close on the heels of Gutenberg, inventor of printing, produced type which is still a standard of grace. It was Aldus, also, protegee of Lucretia, living at the magnificent ducal palace of Ferrara, who developed what is now known as italic type.

"Aldus was no less a scholar than a printer. His emissaries and fellow-workers scoured Greece and Constantinople for the fast disappearing Greek gems of literature. He produced the first Greek grammar and saved to the world priceless works of Horace, Plato, Socrates and other writers, philosophers and singers who will always be intellectual giants of civilization.

Made Fine Art of Wickedness.

"Brilliant and colorful as was the Italian Renaissance period it was also corrupt, licentious, immoral and wicked beyond belief. Great works of Titian, Bellini, Raphael were balanced by diabolical murders, by assassination bought and paid for, by poisonings, by intestine wars, by religion and political life both sunk in a morass of evil practices. Into such a setting a famous son of Ferrara was born, the noted Savonarola. He forewarned the corrupt court life and like a prophet of the Old Testament went through the land preaching against

INFANT PRINCE OF INDIA

The very youthful maharaja of Cooch Behar, only seven, has returned to his native domain with his mother and sister, after studying for some time in England. The child is ruler over 600,000 and has an income of about $150,000 a month. His father died recently in London.

"So powerful did Savonarola become that enemies plotted his death. Finally he and two of his followers were tried by a jury of their enemies, condemned to death, hanged, and their bodies burned. Amid the memories of great courts, great painters and great martyrs of Ferrara lives, sleepy and stolid under the sun and the Italian blue sky. Now with the discovery of the Etruscan town a new memory is added to the already long list."

Should the party emerge safe and sound, unlike all others that have ventured up the Cobra, the world promises to be considerably enriched by their journeyings. Not only are they carrying along arms and ammunition for big game hunting and trapping, but three motion picture cameras and thousands of feet of film are a part of the Narwhal's outfit. Two movie photographers will attempt to secure for an American film company pictures of the strange and cannibalistic people that are said to be found along the Cobra in its far interior reaches. Hunters aboard the Narwhal also will seek to bring back specimens of rhinoceros, elephants, orang-utans and several species of deadly snakes.

Artificial Light Will Increase Yield of Eggs

The hen has a long wait between evening feeding and morning feeding during the long nights of winter. Her crop capacity for food is sufficient to keep the digestive organs busy for about eight hours. After that she must call upon her reserve supply of food to maintain body energy, and it is this reserve supply of food which she uses in the manufacture of eggs. That is where the benefit of artificial light comes in. Lengthen the short days of winter so that the hen can consume the same amount of feed that she does during the natural laying season and you have a good chance of getting the same egg production that comes in the natural laying season. All the hen needs in addition to good feed and comfortable quarters in winter is more daylight.

Keeping Farm Accounts Is of Greatest Value

According to the department of farm organization at the University of Illinois, probably the greatest value of keeping farm accounts is that it enables the farmer to diagnose his own situation. If at the end of the year he finds that his farm is less efficient than the average of a considerable number of farms keeping the same kind of records, in crop yields, in return for capital invested in and fed to live stock, the number of acres of crops worked per man and per horse, or in the amount of expense for a given income, he will know where and he can study out the way in which he can make changes that will increase his net income.

Experiment Station Is Intended to Benefit All

The agricultural experiment station is not a model farm, neither is it a rich man's plaything, nor is it self-supporting. It is a laboratory, indoors and out of doors, in which the great problems of agriculture, horticulture and animal husbandry are worked out for the benefit of all.

Not Difficult to Wean Colt by Proper Feeding

It is common practice to wean colts at from four to six months of age. If the colt has learned to eat grain, there should be no difficulty in the weaning process and it should not suffer any setback in its growth. Ground oats, bran and cornmeal, one-third of each by weight, to which is added a little oil meal make a good ration for the weaning. Provide good pasture and in the winter, clover or alfalfa hay. Be sure it has plenty of fresh water at all times.

Serious Alfalfa Pest.

Alfalfa nematode is a very serious alfalfa pest. The pest spreads readily, even by means of implements used in the fields. Where the disease is established, crop rotation is the only means of control and alfalfa should not be grown on the field for a period of three or four years.

Pigs Gain on Little Feed.

Pigs have the ability to make a pound of gain on less feed than any other farm animal. This characteristic has enabled them to get the edge on other classes of live stock.

Baltimore, Md.—Laughter prolongs life, joy has a therapeutic value and joyous dancing statuary carries the mind into a spirit of play, declared Henry K. We take life too seriously in America. In Europe you can hear good, hearty laughter, but very rarely here. We smile, but seldom laugh. "Those of us who buy art for our homes should buy joyous art, and art dealers should fill their stores with jolly satyrs, dancing nymphs and chubby, rollicking children in amusing and interesting poses." Increase Income by Crop Rotation

Tennessee Farmer Is Successful by Adopting New System of Management.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
A farmer in Henderson county, Tennessee, has been running his farm for the past six years according to a system of crop rotation and management worked out with his county extension agent.

Cotton Returns Small.

Previous to this time practically nothing was grown on this and other farms in the county but cotton and, even with the greatest economy, not more than $500 could be cleared a year. In 1916 the new system was started. Under it, cotton is grown in rotation with pasture crops on the hill land, each field in turn producing cotton two years and pasture for six years. On the level land, hay and corn are rotated, with peas planted at the last cultivation of the corn to keep up the soil fertility and furnish some hog feed. Under the new system as much live stock as the pastures will feed has been added, chiefly hogs, sheep, and some mules, with cows to furnish milk for the family.

Big Features of System.

The three main features of the system are, first, increase in soil fertility; second, economy in labor; and third, several sources of income. In 1922, this farmer, J. F. Pope, spent only $150 in labor, chiefly for chopping and picking cotton. He can do most of the work himself, with the aid of his two sons, ten and twelve years old. The main money crop is still cotton, but cotton grown on soil steadily increasing in fertility. Live stock, corn, and hay are also sold. Last year over $800 worth of live stock was sold from the farm and $1,750 worth of cotton, the farm and other crops, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture, leaving an ample supply of feed for the next year. The year's expenses are covered by the $150 spent for labor and $238 for fertilizers and incidentals. The farm income has increased each year since the new system was adopted.

Mr. Pope's neighbors have watched the development of the farm closely, and a number are working out systems along similar lines for their own farms, according to reports.

Artificial Light Will Increase Yield of Eggs

The hen has a long wait between evening feeding and morning feeding during the long nights of winter. Her crop capacity for food is sufficient to keep the digestive organs busy for about eight hours. After that she must call upon her reserve supply of food to maintain body energy, and it is this reserve supply of food which she uses in the manufacture of eggs. That is where the benefit of artificial light comes in. Lengthen the short days of winter so that the hen can consume the same amount of feed that she does during the natural laying season and you have a good chance of getting the same egg production that comes in the natural laying season. All the hen needs in addition to good feed and comfortable quarters in winter is more daylight.

Keeping Farm Accounts Is of Greatest Value

According to the department of farm organization at the University of Illinois, probably the greatest value of keeping farm accounts is that it enables the farmer to diagnose his own situation. If at the end of the year he finds that his farm is less efficient than the average of a considerable number of farms keeping the same kind of records, in crop yields, in return for capital invested in and fed to live stock, the number of acres of crops worked per man and per horse, or in the amount of expense for a given income, he will know where and he can study out the way in which he can make changes that will increase his net income.

Tree on Church Won't Be Killed

For three years efforts have been made to destroy this tree, growing in the tower of Trinity Diocesan church in Washington, but the tree has come back to life. The latest attempt to destroy it was made by boring holes in the tower and filling them with acid, but the limbs soon sprouted out as before. Now the members of the church have come to believe that there is some significance to the persistent growth of the tree and that it perhaps means new life and spiritual growth in their little church.

Diseases of Cabbage Family Preventable

Bulletin Says Rotation of Crops Is Advisable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Practically all the crops which belong to the cabbage family, such as cauliflower, broccoli, Brussels sprouts, kohlrabi, collards, and kale, turnips, radishes and rape, are subject to the same diseases. Such diseases, says the United States Department of Agriculture, are preventable in the main by simple means of plant sanitation.

A new bulletin just issued by the department as Farmers' Bulletin 1351, Cabbage Diseases, treats of the spread of the various diseases and their control. Some of the more important cabbage diseases discussed in this bulletin are black-leg (foot-rot, wilt), soft rot, root-rot (wilt), downy mildew, white rust, drop (watery soft-rot), spot diseases of cauliflower, black leaf-spot (black mold), ring spot, powdery mildew, and damping-off.

Rotation of crops should be practiced, avoiding crops which belong to the cabbage family and other closely-related crops. Mustard and related weeds which harbor cabbage pests should be kept down. Drainage water and refuse from diseased cabbage fields will carry infection. So will stable manure with which diseased material has been mingled.

The seed bed is often the source of infection. The greatest pains should be taken to insure healthy plants. Locate the seed bed in new ground, if possible, or sterilize by steam the soil used. Clubroot is avoided by the free use of lime and by setting healthy plants. Disinfect all cabbage seed before planting, to prevent black-rot and black-leg. Yellowing is due to a fungus which persists in the soil for many years. Varieties of cabbage resistant to this disease are available.

A copy of this bulletin may be secured, as long as the supply lasts, from the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Finds Beef Type Can Be Good Milk Producer, Too

"It is possible for the best type of shorthorn to be a heavy milk producer," says Dr. C. W. McCampbell, head of the animal husbandry department in the Kansas state agricultural college. "This was demonstrated by the department at the Sni-A-Bar farm belonging to the W. K. Nelson estate, near Kansas City.

"The show at the Sni-A-Bar farm was the first strictly shorthorn show in the United States. The best herds throughout the country were shown. One of the most interesting features was an exhibit of the heavy-milking, thick-fleshed shorthorns forming an experiment now being conducted by the animal husbandry department."

The chief purpose of this experiment referred to by Doctor McCampbell is to show that it is possible for the best type of shorthorn to be a heavy milk producer. The cows in this experiment are giving from 1,000 to 1,500 gallons of milk a year and their calves are winning prizes at the international live stock shows each year.

Desirable All-Egg Meal Developed in Ohio

A process has recently been developed by some poultrymen in Ohio, which may make a desirable feed by converting the by-product eggs from hatcheries into an all-egg meal for poultry feeding. According to these men, about half of all the eggs that go into hatcheries finally become a by-product from which little value has been realized. In fact, they say, many hatcheries are obliged to pay for the removal of this product. The process consists in passing the liquid eggs over a heated revolving drum, which cooks and dries the product. The new feed is said to be rich in protein, vitamins, fats and minerals, and in tests seem to be proving a good feed for growing chicks.

Watch Your Grading in Offering Fruit for Sale

Grading laws in many states are making better returns possible for better growers. The public has confidence in a standard grade, and it is to the interests of farmers and fruit growers to maintain proper standards. As a matter of self-protection any one offering fruit for sale must see to it that the fruit grades up to the label. When inspection shows otherwise things may be a little uncomfortable for the packer. If you are putting up "choice" stuff which is supposed to be sound, ripe, of one variety, of a certain size, free of dirt, insect, disease, or weather injury, see that the fruit is all of this, and more. A little extra quality has never been known to hurt the reputation of a man putting up a fruit pack.

Simple Treatment Will Prevent Grain Diseases

Oat smut, one of the most widespread and destructive diseases of small grains, caused by a fungus which lives inside the oat plant and transforms the head at maturity into a dusty black mass of spores, can be easily controlled by a disinfectant treatment of the seed at planting time, the best treatment so far perfected being that with formaldehyde, according to Dr. W. D. Moore, extension plant pathologist, who urges farmers to use this form of insurance against serious loss.

Preparing for Clover.

If clover is to be established on land where it has grown previously and to be put in a cultivated field, the land may be prepared with a cultivator and the seed sown on top of the land and brushed in lightly.

Hogs Build Up Soil.

Hogs, like other live stock, build up the soil quickly. Even in the course of two or three years an enormous difference may be seen in the soil and the crops produced thereon.

MAGIC OF HARDY NORSEMEN

Believe That Charms Could Give Preternatural Strength and Protection.

Besides the priests, the Norsemen had their soothsayers, and they also believed that, by the power of the runes, the dead could be made to speak. "Galdar," and another kind of magic practiced by women was called "seid."

It was thought that these wise women possessed the power of raising or allaying storms and of hardening the body so that the sword could not cut it. Some of their charms were supposed to give preternatural strength, others the power of crossing the sea without the aid of a ship, of creating and destroying love, of assuming different forms, of becoming invisible, of giving the "evil eye."

Both men and women thus supernaturally endowed, it was believed, could charm garments so as to protect the wearer from injury. They could set a horse's head on a stake, and with certain imprecations, throw havoc into the camp of an enemy.—Detroit News.

Brilliant Midwinter Hats; Breakfast Caps and Bandeaux

SINCE the majority of women choose their winter garments in sedate shades they should be thankful to their millinery for bringing into their costumes a touch of color that relieves the monotony of black, brown and dark blue. Midwinter hats, regardless of their outline, are, for the most part, colorful. The influence of Persia and China introduced in early fall models still lingers in certain shapes of metal cloth and in rich and intricate embroideries on velvet or satin. Even when black is used for the body of the hat it is usually set off with bright trimmings or sparkling ornaments of silver or rhinestones. How effectively designers introduce color in their creations may be seen in the group of hats pictured here. The little cloche shown at the top is of black velvet with a sectional crown embroidered in vivid colors and headed with silver bands. At the right is a matron's hat of henna velvet trimmed with a veil and ostrich plume of the same shade. A tiny wreath of flowers ornaments the upturned brim. Lace and ostrich, in a lovely champagne shade, appear also on the black satin picture hat shown at the left. The two hats below are of brocade and velvet, respectively. That at the left, of Persian inspiration, is developed in brilliant tones of red, green, black and gold, trimming of striped

The crown sections are embroidered in bright-colored chenille and gold thread and a narrow band of gold ribbon completes the trimming. Pretty breakfast caps and headbands always find themselves in vogue during the Christmas time, and the new vintage is all ready for gathering in. These cheerful little affairs were never more alluringly pretty than they are this year, and never more varied. The usual ribbons, laces, nets and small flowers are used for making them, but have been put together in

Health and good looks —the reward of internal cleanliness

HEALTH and good looks go hand in hand. If you do not keep clean internally, your looks and health are undermined together. A clogged intestine breeds poisons that reach every part of the body. These poisons ruin the complexion and undermine health. Constipation brings on such ailments as headaches, bilious attacks, and insomnia—each of which saps your health and vitality. Soon much more serious conditions follow.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives
 Aggravate Constipation
 Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation.

Physicians Favor Lubrication
 The lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Not a Medicine
 Nujol is not a laxative and cannot gripe. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world.

Don't give disease a start. Adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. Nujol is not a medicine. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

A New General Motors Achievement

The public has long looked forward to the day when a six-cylinder automobile could be had in the low price field. Manufacturers, knowing that the six-cylinder principle is the most popular, have long aspired to produce a car to meet this insistent public demand.

The immense facilities and vast resources necessary for such a big task have made individual makers hesitate to attempt such a gigantic job as would be necessary to properly develop and finally produce, in volume, such an ideal car.

But the great General Motors Corporation, with its almost limitless resources in men and money, its big experimental and development engineering laboratories, its great purchasing power, and its many big manufacturing plants, has at last achieved what has long been recognized as the ideal car—a six at a low price.

The Olds Motor Works, the oldest manufacturer of motor vehicles on a commercial basis in the United States and one of the oldest Divisions of the General Motors group, was selected to produce this wonderful car. With its immense modern plant, and with a factory force long trained in the making of quality automobiles, the Olds Motor Works is the natural and logical choice.

Never before in automobile history in this country has such an important and far reaching announcement been made. Never before has the American public been able to buy, in the low price field, a six-cylinder car, with its smoothness of operation, its flexibility its economy, its ease of handling and its low up-keep cost. Until now, six cylinders have meant relatively high initial cost. Now, in the Oldsmobile Six, all these things, plus Oldsmobile beauty and Oldsmobile quality, can be had at a price never before possible.

BIG PACKERS DEFY U. S. GOVERNMENT

Swift Company Declines to Permit Federal Supervision of Business.

CALLED TRADE INTERFERENCE

Chicago.—Swift & Co. packers, will decline to "permit the Department of Agriculture to place auditors permanently in their offices, with power to examine at all times their books, papers, and other documents."

The Swift company, Wilson & Co., and the Cudahy Packing company were directed by Henry C. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, to make their records available to government auditors.

No statements were forthcoming from the other two companies, but reports indicated they would support the Swift & Co. stand. Representatives of all indicated their belief that Secretary Wallace's order involves an "invasion of constitutional rights."

"We claim on behalf of the 45,000 stockholders," said Mr. Swift, in his formal statement, "the right which the Constitution guarantees to all citizens of being permitted (in the absence of specific charges) to conduct our business peacefully, without interference from government agents."

"If the government has power to maintain accountants in our office, as it claims, it also would have the power to establish such accountants permanently in all business offices in the country, a situation which we believe is unthinkable."

"The proposed inquiry is not founded upon any complaint or charge of any violation of law, but is for the purpose of obtaining complete, detailed information as to all business of the company. Such a sweeping inquiry must be considered an attempt to seize power reserved to the several states under the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States."

"Until the court decides the packers and stockholders' act to be in broad in its scope as Secretary Wallace contemplates it to be, judging from the notice served upon us, Swift & Co. must decline to comply."

STRESEMANN AND CABINET ARE OUT

Quit When Legislative Body Refuses to Give Vote of Confidence.

DECIDING BALLOT 230 TO 157

Berlin.—Having forced the issue by demanding a vote of confidence forthwith, Chancellor Stresemann went down to defeat in the reichstag, the deputies withholding their approval of the cabinet by a vote of 230 to 157. After discussing the situation which he painted as highly critical both in Bavaria and the Rhineland with representatives of the German and foreign press, Dr. Stresemann immediately went to President Ebert and turned in the resignations of himself and his ministers.

Just fifteen minutes after the reichstag had fixed Chancellor Stresemann down a messenger boy dashed into an anteroom and placed a telegram in the chancellor's hand. "I had hoped to receive this news earlier," Herr Stresemann said. "A treaty between France and the German industrialists was signed at Dusseldorf. This agreement will bring comparative peace to the Ruhr and Rhineland, because the German industrialists agree to keep their mines and factories operating, and the workmen can now earn their bread. It is my chief accomplishment."

"I could not tell the reichstag how near we were to an agreement in the Ruhr, because the French would not then have signed it."

"We had to make the French believe we seriously intended to throw the entire responsibility for feeding the idle Ruhr and Rhineland population upon them. I waited two days for news of the signing of the agreement, but it did not come in time."

"I wonder what the French have happened if the telegram came fifteen minutes earlier."

TO REMAIN IN EXILE

Former Kaiser Must Not Return to Germany.

Paris.—The allies, through the council of ambassadors, agreed to send two communications to Germany, one stating that the allied military control commission will resume its work in Germany and directing the Berlin government to give it adequate protection and facilitate its work, and the other agreeing to let the ex-crown prince remain in Germany as a German farmer, but insisting that the ex-kaiser must not be allowed to return.

Having dispatched these two notes to the German charge d'affaires, the ambassadors sat back to wait for Germany's answer which, if in the negative, will merely bring the two issues back to where the wrangling started. As far as the ex-crown prince is concerned Germany is merely told that she will be held responsible for anything he may do, the possibilities of penalties only arising in some distant future when the allies "might be constrained to a concert on proper measures." But if the ex-crown prince behaves himself and the ex-kaiser does not return to Germany the allies accept the German government's pledge to this effect at its face value.

The city hall question calls for a $125,000 bond issue, while the referendum on the hospital proposition is to be taken merely to give the council indication of majority opinion that will determine whether they will make plans for such a hospital.

According to records submitted to the Winnebago county board of supervisors by the county register of deeds, S. B. The property includes the Myers theater and four stores. The building is three stories high and the theater is one of the oldest in Wisconsin.

The enrollment is made up of 4,713 men and 2,920 women. There are 2,272 freshmen at the university compared with 1,897 last year.

Chippewa Falls.—Licensing of dance halls in rural districts, eliminating passout checks, setting the minimum age limit of dancers at 16 years, and providing for inspectors to enforce regulations were provisions of a drastic ordinance passed by the county board of supervisors meeting at Chippewa Falls in annual session.

Viroqua.—The Vernon county board passed a very drastic ordinance regulating dance halls throughout the county, requiring license, dances to be held strictly under supervision of officials created for that purpose. A move was instituted to do away with services of the county nurse, but that was defeated.

Fond du Lac.—Knocked from his wagon when an automobile driven by C. L. Sihliwood of Marinette struck it from the rear, George Brown, 66 years old, of Fond du Lac, landed on his head at the edge of the road and suffered severe concussion of the brain in addition to injuries to his shoulders and hip.

Monroe.—Monroe's public rest room maintained by the city and the Women's club is serving a new purpose. Girl pupils who come from rural sections bringing their lunches, use the room for dining space at the noon hour since they have no comfortable accommodations in the school buildings.

Menasha.—Thomas Coyle, widely known resident of Menasha, is in Theda Clark hospital at Neenah suffering from throat burns which are said to have been caused by iodine. It is said that Coyle was found lying on a street suffering from burns.

La Crosse.—Mrs. Caroline Doerr, 91, resident of La Crosse for 55 years, is dead. Her husband, Valentine Doerr, was one of the pioneer hotel keepers of that city, operating for many years the State Street house.

Stevens Point.—Daylight thefts of automobiles in the down town business district, Stevens Point, has aroused the ire of the police, who are spreading a dragnet to include Wisconsin Rapids, Wausau, Waupaca, Chippewa Falls and other central Wisconsin towns.

Couderay.—Vincent Bender, 7-year-old Indian boy, suffered a fracture of his leg while at play on the school grounds at Couderay when his older brother tripped him.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Relieved of Nervousness and Other Distressing Ailments by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound five years ago, and it has done for me what no other medicine could. I was suffering from nervousness, headache, and other ailments, and I was unable to get on my feet. I found your box and read the story of a woman who had been troubled just as I was, and I came to take your medicine. It has done for me what no other medicine could. I am now a healthy, happy woman, and I can do all the things I used to do. I have no more nervousness, headache, or other ailments. I am truly grateful to you for what you have done for me. I have recommended your medicine to all my friends, and I hope you will continue to do good for many more women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a great blessing to all women of middle age who are suffering from nervousness, headache, and other ailments. I have found a splendid medicine. For the relief of all these ailments, I have depended upon to relieve the troubles common at that time. Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of nearly fifty years of service and thousands of women who testify to its merit, as does Mrs. Engstrom. You should give it a fair trial now."

Thanksgiving
Oh! Thanksgiving day is here.
And a good time of the year,
Swift it comes and swift it goes—
So swift that no one knows,
You can see the children run,
And they're having heaps of fun,
People rushing down the street
To get the goodies to eat.
Every one is glad and gay.
For this great Thanksgiving day,
Let us thank our Father on high,
For all the great things gone by,
And our great Lord so brave,
He who gave health and wealth to our grave.
