TAX EXEMPTIONS NOT ALLOWED

Not infrequently taxpayers include in their income tax returns items that are specifically exempt from taxation. Among these are the following: Proceeds of life insurance policies paid upon the death of the insured. The value of property acquired by gift, bequest, devise or descent. The income from such property, however, is taxable. Returns of premiums on life insurance, endowment, or annuity contracts. Amounts received through accident or health insurance, or under workmen's compensation acts for personal injuries or sickness, plus the amount of damages received, whether by suit or agreement, on account of such injuries or sickness.

Amounts received as compensation, family allotments and allowances under the provisions of the war risk insurance and the vocational rehabilitation act. Pensions from the United States for the services of the beneficiary or another in the military or naval service in time of war.

A bonus paid by a State to its residents who served in the military or naval services during the war with Germany.

Allowances, whether paid by the Government or a person to one who performed no duties, as, for example, to a widow in recognition of the services rendered by her husband, are considered gratuities, or gifts, and are not taxable. The rental value of a dwelling and appurtenances thereof furnished a minister of the gospel as part of his compensation is exempt from taxation.

Dividends or interest, not in excess of $300 received by individuals during the year 1922 to 1926, inclusive, from domestic building and loan associations, operated exclusively for the purpose of making loans to its members, are exempt from tax.

Salaries paid by a State to its officers or employees.

Tax free income need not be included in gross income if it need not be mentioned in an income tax return.

Taxpayers who prepare and file their income tax returns for the year 1923 early have a decided advantage over procrastinators. A little time and thought now in the preparation of a return is excellent insurance against errors, which result to the detriment of taxpayer and government alike. The filing period ends at midnight, March 15, 1924.

NEW TAXATION PROVISIONS TO GO INTO EFFECT

A large amount of real estate tax in this village will be exempt from taxation next year. The exemption will be taken of the homestead exemption law passed by the last legislature. The homestead tax exemption provision specifies that exemption from taxation of $500 may be obtained by the owner of a piece of property who uses it for his own residential purposes. The exemption does not apply unless the owner is actually living in the property. Property which is being rented does not fall within the provisions of the act.

In order to obtain the $500 exemption on property falling within the classification of homesteads, owners must file affidavits with the assessor prior to July informing him of the claim. When the assessments are made by the official the property will be assessed at its full value, but allowance will be made for the exemption claimed. The affidavit is used solely for residence purposes by the claimant. The law as passed by the legislature provides that the provisions for exemption will become effective in the assessment of 1924.

MUSKRAT BITES MAN IN FOOT

Judson, Feb. 5.—A hungry muskrat wandered through the business section at Judson Sunday evening without attracting any notice on the part of pedestrians. Edwin Berkholz, member of the firm of Berkholz and Klug, local electrician, started to enter his electric shop and noticed a dark object on the sidewalk. Thinking it a cat he kicked at it but the animal dodged and set its teeth in Berkholz's foot. He called a dog but the muskrat would not be frightened by the actions of the dog. Mr. Berkholz then killed the animal with his foot. It is probable that the rat came in search of food and could not find its way back to the marsh.

LEGION TEAM WINS TWO GAMES

The local Legion basketball team journeyed to Hartford last Saturday evening, where they played a return game with the National Guard team of that place, defeating that aggregation by a score of 15 to 12. The game was no doubt one of the fastest and most exciting played at Hartford for some time. Hartford tried hard throughout the entire contest to win and put up a strong fight against the local five, but all proved to be of no avail, for the Legion boys put up a brilliant exhibition of basketball, backed up with good pass work, team and floor work, and with a few exceptions outplayed their opponents at every stage of the game. Hartford was first to score by getting a field goal, but this lead of 2 points was for only a brief period of time, for it was soon overcome by our boys when Maurice Rosenheimer, dropped the ball through the basket for a two counter, followed up by another field goal by "Spatz" Miller. Eldon Ramthun a few minutes afterwards took advantage of another opening, and caged the third field goal, ending the first half by a score of 6 to 4 in favor of the locals. In the second half the Hartford quintette tried hard to over come the lead, the closest they could come to it was during the latter part of the half when the score was 10 to 11. Our boys kept right after their opponents and when the half ended the score stood 15 to 12.

On Sunday afternoon the Legion team broke the long string of victories of the Uffenbeck's Jewelry team of Fond du Lac, by defeating them by a score of 10 to 4, at the Kewaskum Opera House. The visitors, put up a good game, doing some good team work and basket shooting, but were outclassed by the local five in every respect. ## LARGE BARN DESTROYED BY FIRE

L. W. Frey, a farmer residing east of the city of Hartford, suffered a second heavy loss by fire last week Wednesday afternoon, when his large barn was completely destroyed. The Hartford Times, in part gives the following account of the conflagration: "What was one of the most disastrous farm fires to have occurred in Washington county in years, took place on the L. W. Frey farm, two miles east of this city, on the Hartford-Slinger road, Wednesday afternoon, in which a brand new barn and contents and adjoining sheds and buildings were destroyed in that fire swept everything within its path. Only heroic work prevented the spread of the flames to a nearby tool shed filled with costly farm tools. A fire of the livestock which were released in time, nothing was saved from the building. All fodder, grain, etc., were consumed in the spectacular blaze which roared with unabated fury for two hours. The countryside was practically deserted at the time, most of the farmers and their families being at Hartford in attendance at the farmers' institute. The total loss has not been estimated. It will run about $12,000 and $15,000, with about $8,000 insurance. The building was new from the basement wall to the peak of the ventilators but two years ago, replacing a large building that was destroyed in the same manner on Aug. 30, 1921.

Mr. Frey, the hired man, and Mr. Frey's brother-in-law, Charles Scheu, who were the only men on the place when the fire was discovered, immediately ran to the stable of the burning barn to save the livestock. Through their efforts 40 head of cattle, including cows, calves and five horses, were released and chased out of the barn to safety. Some 150 chickens and about a dozen milking machines, besides all other contents of the structures were burned and consumed by the flames. In the barn were a Titan tractor, corn shredder, complete stable equipment, separator, pumps, an electric motor, milking machine, besides from 1,600 to 1,700 bushels of grain, including about 75 bushels of barley, some 20 bushels of wheat, some clover seed and alfalfa seed, and the remaining oats. There were also about 25 bushels of corn, and a few bushels of soybeans. The tractor and engine exploded and about five or six loads of clover threshings, and some 15 to 20 tons of oats straw.

The direct cause of the fire is a mystery to the owner, Mr. Frey and his hired man, Leo Geik, were attempting to start a tractor in the barn on the day of the fire. However, their efforts were futile, and the attempt was abandoned. However, after the noon hour, Mr. Frey went to the barn alone to start the machine. After turning it over several times the engine exploded and refused to start. Fully a half hour later Mr. Frey took the magnet out of the tractor and walked to a garage shed nearby to repair the instrument. When he emerged from the shed he saw smoke issuing from the barn doors and he immediately ran to the entrance only to be confronted by the flames. Whether the explosion of the tractor engine a half hour previous to the fire started the blaze, is not known. However, a few days previous Mr. Frey had dropped several matches that he had been and it may be possible that he stepped on one of them while leaving the building, thus starting the conflagration.

This is the second time in two years that the Frey farm has been visited by the fire demon, and a large barn destroyed.

"—To That Undiscovered Country from Whose Bourne No Traveler Returns"

Born December 28, 1856 Died February 3, 1924

Woodrow Wilson

Born, Staunton, Va., Dec. 28, 1856.

Son of Rev. Joseph R. and Jessie Woodrow Wilson. Scotch-Irish ancestry on both sides.

Graduated Princeton U., 1879.

Graduated in law, Virginia U., 1881.

Practiced law, Atlanta, Ga., 1882-1883.

John Hopkins U., post-graduate, 1883-1885.

Married Ellen Louis Axson, Savannah, Ga., June 24, 1885 (died Aug. 6, 1914). Second marriage to Edith Bolling Galt of Washington, D. C., Dec. 18, 1915.

Took up first educational work in 1885, at Bryn Mawr.

President of Princeton University, 1902-1910.

Governor New Jersey, 1911-1913 (resigned when nominated for Presidency in Democratic National Convention, Baltimore, 1912).

Elected Twenty-eighth President of the U. S. Nov. 4, 1912. Renominated and elected for second term 1916-1920.

"I am ready to go!"

With those words—words that revealed the same indomitable spirit and courage which characterized his great career and won him undying world fame—former President Woodrow Wilson closed his eyes to this vale of tears and passed into the land of eternal rest. Indeed, he faced death as bravely as any soldier on the battlefield.

And so "Fins" is written to one of history's most glorious chapters—the life's story of one of the greatest statesmen of all times. His climb from a comparatively unknown professorship at Princeton to the highest honor this nation can bestow; from the plain daily routine of a private citizen to victoriously leading the world's most powerful nation in the most stupendous conflict this universe has ever known and, perhaps ever will know—were deeds of supreme triumph that only a truly great man could have achieved. And they are a matter of record as a brief description of Woodrow Wilson's great public career.

Mr. Wilson—in the words of the immortal Lincoln—had "dared to do his duty as he understood it."

And the nation, as it mourns him to-day, echoes— "His was a duty nobly done. His was a life worth while"

Council Revokes Oberleitner License

At the special meeting of the City Council the license of Otto Oberleitner to conduct a soft drink parlor in the Fraundorf building was revoked and the place closed up. This action on the part of the council was taken because of trouble he has had with Police Officer Murray on several occasions and in order to back up the police force of the city in their efforts to have things conducted in the manner they are supposed to be.—Hartford Press.

Ice Breaks Down Porch

A porch at the rear of the building at 213 Front street collapsed Tuesday morning, a large portion of the three-story structure falling into the river below. The breaking down of the porch was due to an accumulation of ice estimated at six tons. A water faucet on the upper floor of the building had been left running to prevent it from freezing. The water pipe became clogged and the water found its way across the floor and out onto the porch where it rapidly froze. A weight sufficient to break down the structure was not long in accumulating.—Beaver Dam Argus.

Romaine Co. Incorporated

The Romaine Radio company of Fond du Lac has been incorporated under the laws of Wisconsin, according to papers that were filed with the register of deeds. All kinds of electrical equipment and sporting goods will be handled by the new company which is capitalized at $5,000. L. W. Romaine, G. A. Romaine and L. H. Thalheim were the incorporators.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS

No Crows Found to Ob Vandal's Bever Dam Wks., Jan. 31.—Officials of the Canopee Oil company are making little headway towards discovering the vandal who opened valves to their huge storage tanks and let more than $5,000 worth of gasoline run over the frozen ground. A reward of $500 for information leading to arrest and conviction still stands, but has not been claimed. People living near the tanks have not been able to get the gasoline from their wells and are carrying water in all kinds of utensils from neighboring points.

After Fake Solicitors

In order to prevent impostors from soliciting funds under the guise of work war veterans, the M. L. Wood of the American Legion of Mobile, Ala., is assisting business men there by a unique method. When solicitors appear in the business offices with a plea for help on account of being disabled service men, they are handed a card supplied by the Legion post which reads, "If you are an ex-serviceman or Legionnaire seeking help in money, or service officer of the American Legion." If the solicitor is found worthy of help after investigation, the local post will make necessary arrangements. This plan has been approved by Mobile business men and is said already to have had good effect.—Ex.

HEARSE NEARLY DESTROYED BY FIRE

The large auto hearse owned by Smith and Gilroy of Campbellsport, came nearly being destroyed by fire, when Mr. Smith in company with Geo. Braun attempted to get the motor started preparatory for the funeral of Robert Rahling. They were warming up the motor and thawing out the radiator with a blow torch, when a part about the engine burst into flames. The blaze was extinguished by throwing snow upon it. The front fenders of the machine and the paint on the hood was badly cracked.

In a recent order by the Postmaster General all newspapers will in the future be handled just as expeditiously as letter mail.

MEMORIAL

In loving memory of Fred A. Schaefer, Jr., who died February 14, 1923:

(AWAY)

I cannot say and I will not say That he is dead, he is just away, With a cheery smile and a wave of the hand.

He has wandered into an unknown land, And left us dreaming how very fair, It needs must be, since he lingers there.

And you—Oh you—who the wildest yearn For the old time step and the glad return.

Think of him facing on, as Dear, In the love of there, as the love of here.

Think of him still as the same I say, He is not dead—He is just away.

A Friend.

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day? Do you know these troubles are often due to weakened kidneys?

Winter's colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. The kidneys are apt to weaken and fall behind in filtering the blood. Poisons accumulate and upset blood and nerves.

Then comes constant backache, rheumatic pains, headache, dizziness and kidney irregularities.

Don't wait! Delay is often serious. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They are recommended by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

Wm. Acherberg, salesman, 905 Seventh St., Merrill, Wis., says: "A cold beset my kidneys. Sometimes I could scarcely turn over in bed because of the sharp pains. My kidneys were acting too freely and the secretions burned in passage. It took but two boxes of Doan's Pills to cure me. I haven't been troubled since."

Mrs. H. Haug, 1404 River St., Merrill, Wis., says: "I was troubled with dull, bearing-down pains in my back. I was tired and weak. Then, too, my ankles puffed up and my feet pained. I had severe headaches and dizzy spells. I bought Doan's Pills and the pains disappeared. The dizzy spells left and my kidneys acted normally."

Experimental Fur Farm

An experimental fur farm is being established in the northwestern part of New York state by the bureau of biological survey of the United States Department of Agriculture, in order that observations and studies may be made of the habits of fur-bearing animals and of the possibilities of growing them in captivity and producing fur of good quality. A similar farm, which has been operated by the bureau at Keesville, N. Y., will be discontinued as soon as the new one is ready. The new farm is located three and one-half miles from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., on the state highway to Corinth, and is more easily accessible than the old, both by automobile and by bus line. The tract comprises 20 acres, of which approximately 15 are covered by an excellent growth of timber, and will furnish an ideal situation for the desired purpose.

Janiculum Is a Famous Hill

Janiculum is a famous hill in the city of Rome, situated on the right bank of the Tiber, and south of St. Peter's church. It affords a fine prospect of the city and its environs and derives its name, according to tradition, from Janus, the sun god of the Latins. Numa Pompilius, the second king of Rome, was buried there; and Ancus Martius, the fourth king, fortified the hill and connected it with the city by means of the Pons Sublicus, the first Roman bridge. This is the bridge that was so valiantly defended by Horatius Cocles against the Etruscans commanded by Porsenna.

The Janiculum is not one of the "Seven Hills of Rome."—Detroit News.

NEGLIGEE FOR MANY PURPOSES; MILLINERY STYLES FOR SPRING

THERE are so many different types of negligees that it is not possible to do much generalizing about the styles. They are all loose, flowing, comfortable and generally colorful, but it is a far cry from the blousing robe to the tea gown and one garment will not answer for the two extremes. The most popular negligees are those that serve for breakfast wear and for lounging while possessing sufficient dignity to meet anybody who may happen in on an occasional hour.

A pretty negligee that will serve all usual purposes is shown in the illustration. It is made of crepe satin and cut so that it slips over the head. The sleeves of the kimono style reaching to the elbow are merely draperies that are weighted by little satin-covered balls suspended on narrow velvet ribbon. The neck is bound with a bias fold of the satin and small pockets of it are set on at each side with fancy stitching. This particular model gets along without any outside aid from lace or ribbon or little hand-made flowers for decoration. But it has interesting details in its design that make up, for their absence. Little satin-covered balls like those on the sleeves, finish off the grille, which is made of the satin also. Squares of hemstitching about the bottom are cut out on the

At least half of the charm of negligees lies in their color. There is any amount of license in choosing bright and flowerlike shades and tints of the most cheerful colors. ## One Reason for Nervous Disorders

YOUR doctor can tell you that nervous disorders are very common among Americans. One reason for this is found in the fact that they are great coffee drinkers.

Coffee contains caffeine, a drug, prescribed by doctors as an emergency stimulant for the heart and nervous system. It has a tendency to increase blood pressure, develop heart irregularities and cause digestive disturbances.

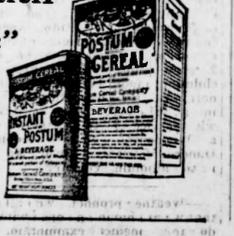

If you feel that coffee is not good for you, serve Postum as your meal-time drink.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage that refreshes and satisfies. It is absolutely free from caffeine or any other irritating drug.

Try a cup of Postum with your dinner or supper tonight. Postum is sold everywhere.

Postum for Health

"There's a Reason" Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in cans) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water; Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either form is about one-half cent a cup.

The Lincoln I Knew

As told by an Aged Westerner to MAUREL SHERMAN in Galena

I FIRST saw Abraham Lincoln in March, 1863, when I made a trip to the East from California via the Isthmus of Panama. It was at the President's levee, and, of course, I wrote to my family in the West, telling them my impressions. This letter proves that I, like many others of the time, misjudged the man and surely underrated his abilities:

Last night I was at the President's levee and saw many of the dignitaries. A few moments ago I saw Burdette and at first view was satisfied of his incompetency to command the army. It is strange that our President and others have so little perception of character. Lincoln is a good-natured Westerner.

Later at one of the White House receptions Mrs. Cole and I waited in the long line to be received. She somehow dropped one of her white gloves and was not conscious of it until we had moved up and it was our turn to greet the President and Mrs. Lincoln. She stood looking about her in dismay for the missing glove, and the President, seeing what had happened, watched her with an amused smile. In a moment he said: "Never mind, Mrs. Cole, I shall have a search made for it tomorrow, and shall preserve it as a souvenir."

This remark, coming from a man to whom book etiquette was a thing unknown, proved him to be an inborn gentleman. His deportment never missed, because it was the expression of his friendly feeling for all. He did not offend because in his heart he felt no animosity for anyone.

His Use of Anecdotes. His profuse use of anecdotes is, of course, a matter of history. I remember one day that Mr. Sherman and I went to see Mr. Lincoln regarding some legislation that concerned California. He could not comply with our wishes in the matter, and in order to let us know that conversation on the subject had terminated, he told us this story:

In the early times in Springfield, there were three churches, all orthodox, a Methodist, a Baptist, and a Presbyterian. A young fellow came there very unexpectedly to preach the Universalist doctrine and to establish a church of that faith. That particular creed was very unpopular at that time, and these three orthodox preachers determined to get together and preach him down. They consolidated their congregations and determined to take turns addressing them. When it came to the turn of the Methodist preacher he began by telling them how happily situated they were, both in temporal and spiritual things, and then, remarked that "there now comes among us a stranger to preach a new doctrine, to establish a new church in which the doctrine will be taught that all men will be saved. But, my brethren," he concluded fervently, "let us all hope for better things."

I went down on the same train with Lincoln when the battle of Gettysburg was dedicated.

The day, November 19, 1863, was overcast and dreary. The morning was spent in inspecting the late battle ground. In the afternoon a comparatively small crowd gathered around a plank platform thirty or forty feet square, about three or four feet above the ground. There were seats on this for the delegations and speakers.

Edward Everett was chosen orator of the day, and he held forth for over an hour in a most masterful oration. I remember that he had a little high table before him on which were cards containing notes, and he referred to these from time to time with no interruption or pause in his speech. When he had concluded the hand played and then, without announcement, Lincoln arose. He laid his coat off, but retained the familiar shawl about his shoulders. I sat but a few feet away, on his right.

He began by stating well-known facts—facts with which we were all familiar. His sentences were short, and I had the impression that sometimes their brevity was due to the fact that emotion choked his utterances. It was one of those times when he seemed weighed down by his responsibilities, and his voice was fairly pathetic in its intonations. Everyone listened attentively, but it then did not seem a remarkable speech, and we were all fairly surprised when he sat down. The audience broke up without expression or demonstration, but I was conscious that Lincoln's remarks had made a tremendous impression.

Discussed Possible Danger.

During the last two years of the war I went in and out of the White House at will. I usually found Lincoln in his own room on the second floor in the southeast corner of the building. In warm weather the door stood open and anyone could go in unannounced. I was accustomed to doing so. Seated at his desk in the farther end of the room, but not facing the door, more with his back to it, I generally found him. He always arose and gave me a cordial welcome.

On one of those days when I went unannounced I saw a look of distress on his face such as I had never seen on any human countenance. I stood still, not wishing to disturb him. Suddenly he saw me and swiftly the look of pain passed as he greeted me with his usual smile. I stayed with him a long time that day and we went over the war maps. It was then I took occasion to mention my fears for him. I had gained access to his room so easily and anyone else might have done the same.

The Country's First Tribute

The first tribute to Abraham Lincoln to be erected in this country, known as the Lot Fidelity statue of the Great Emancipator, has been restored to practically its original position in front of the courthouse in the nation's capital. The statue was once removed from this position, but there was so much criticism that congress finally voted to have it restored.

LINCOLN SAYING

MAJORITY held in restraint by constitutional checks and limitations and always changing easily with deliberate changes of popular opinion and sentiment, is the only true sovereignty of a free people. Whoever rejects it does of necessity fly to anarchy or despotism.—Abraham Lincoln.

A PIONEER'S MEMORY OF LINCOLN

Information of Lincoln's boyhood was that William Herndon, Lincoln's law partner, wanted when he communicated with Dennis Hanks, a pioneer in Indiana and a distant relative of the great man. Hanks' reply to some of Herndon's questions not only faithfully portrays the life of Indiana when Lincoln lived there but shows the old pioneer's accurate memory and dry humor:

Dec. 24, 1865

You speak of my letter written with a pencil, the reason of this was, my ink was froze.

part first, we went to play 4 Corner Billiard and what we called throwing a mail over our shoulders backwards, hopping and half hammer, Resling and so on.

and what Religious Songs. The only Song Book was Dupres old Song Book, I Recollect very well 2 Songs that we used to sing, that was "Jesus and Rain", "When shall I see Jesus and Rain with him above", the next was "How

The Outcome

It is a fact that almost every American girl expects to marry a millionaire. Yet we know there are not nearly enough millionaires to go around. What is the result?

Many a girl marries a poor man who is trying to get rich.

But few people would know of your troubles if you knew enough to keep them under cover.

Recovered

Grand opportunity under discussion, a Plunkville citizen was asked if he had ever been much of it. By way of reply he had this to say:

"Last year I saw an opera called 'La Boheme.' There was a girl in it named Mimi. She was the heroine in fact. Along about the third act, when I had to leave, she was pretty sick! But she must be better now, because I see the opera will be back here next week."

Why You May Need—

There are three main groups of prospective buyers of Chevrolet automobiles and commercial cars.

First, are all who know from comparisons or through the experiences of friends that Chevrolet provides the utmost dollar value in modern, economical transportation of people or merchandise.

Second, the large group of people with modest incomes who have the false impression that so good a car as Chevrolet is beyond their means.

They do not realize that due to engineering excellence and full modern equipment, Chevrolet operating and maintenance costs average so low that during the life of the car, it delivers modern, comfortable, fast transportation at the lowest cost per mile, including the purchase price.

Third, the smaller but very important group of car owners of ample means, only a small percentage of whom as yet realize that Chevrolet as an extra car virtually costs them nothing, due to the reduction in their transportation expenses effected by it.

We respectfully suggest consideration, investigation and comparison of Chevrolet with any other car at any price.

EX-PRES. WILSON SUCCEUMBS AFTER BRAVE STRUGGLE

Life of Former Chief Executive Ebbed Slowly Away; No Pain at the End

Washington, D. C.—Woodrow Wilson, twenty-eighth president of the United States, from 1913 to 1921, died at his home here on Sunday, Feb. 3.

With the whole world watching at his bedside, the distinguished American, recognized as one of the great men not only of his country and his time, but of all countries and all times, came peacefully to his end at 11:15 A. M.

Mr. Wilson's life ebbed away in the sleep into which he sank on Saturday. The last sentence he uttered was on Friday, when he said, addressing his physician:

"I am a broken piece of machinery, Grayson. When the machine is broken—I am ready to go."

"Edith"—His Last Word. The last word he uttered was "Edith," the name of Mrs. Wilson, when she had left the bedside temporarily. When she returned and clasped his hand Mr. Wilson sank into the state of unconsciousness that continued till the end.

A few minutes before he died he opened his eyes, gazed at Mrs. Wilson and others at the bedside, but spoke no word, and then went to sleep for the last time.

"He just went to sleep," Admiral Grayson in describing Mr. Wilson's death. "There were no words spoken. It looked to me as though he had just gone to sleep."

As described by Admiral Grayson, the death of the former president was almost without incident. The only persons in the room at the time were Mrs. Wilson, Miss Margaret Wilson, Mr. Wilson's eldest daughter, Admiral Grayson and the two nurses, Mrs. Rowley and Miss Havelist. Miss William Gibbs McAdoo and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, his other daughters, were not there. Mrs. Sayre is in Siam, and Mrs. McAdoo was on the way across the country from California.

Mrs. Wilson sat at the bedside and held her husband's right hand, the hand that retained feeling and the power of voluntary motion, when paralysis had been four years ago. Left side more than four years ago. Mrs. Wilson was with her husband in the background.

Digestive Upset Caused Relapse. Dr. Grayson, his friend and physician, announced the end of the great war president in the early part of last week but did not reach an acute state until the early morning hours of Feb. 1.

Coolidge Offers Tributes. President and Mrs. Coolidge learned of Mr. Wilson's death while at worship in the First Congregational church. As soon as the service was over they rode directly to the Wilson home and left their cards at the door. After returning to the White House, President Coolidge issued a proclamation of thirty days' official mourning for the death of Mr. Wilson, during which period the flags on all American government buildings throughout the world will be flown at half mast and official entertaining will be suspended.

In this proclamation President Coolidge said Mr. Wilson one of the highest tributes he ever received.

"As president of the United States," said Mr. Coolidge, "he was moved by an earnest desire to promote the best interests of the country as he conceived them. His acts were prompted by high motives, and his sincerity of purpose cannot be questioned. He led the nation through the terrific struggle of the world war with a lofty idealism which never faltered. He gave utterance to the aspiration of humanity with an eloquence which held the attention of all the earth and made America a new and enlarged influence in the destiny of mankind."

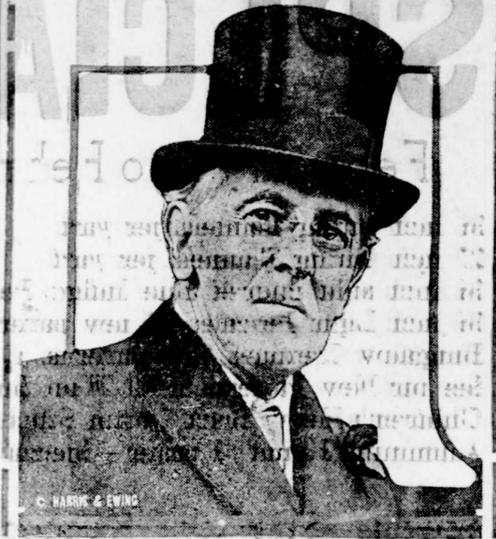

In his proclamation President Coolidge also ordered that military and naval honors be paid on the day of the funeral. Informally, the President also suggested to the Wilson family that the burial ceremony be made a state funeral, held in the capitol, with all official honors accorded, just as in the case of the funeral of a president dying in office.

Green Bay—J. C. Wilman, 64, said to be the oldest engineer in point of service on the Green Bay and Westport road, died at his home in Green Bay after prolonged illness. Mr. Wilman was the son of the late J. H. H. Wilman, one of the leading attorneys of the Green Bay region.

Orono—Wolves are reported numerous near Ononago, in northern Oconto county, and farmers are organizing hunting parties to exterminate the pests.

Florence—Louis Latterman, a farmer near Florence, collected the bounty on the carcass of a timber wolf that weighed sixty pounds. Latterman and his brother, Henry, caught the wolf in a trap.

Sheboygan—Conrad Schonberg, aged 83 years, died at the home of his daughter in Hillsboro, N. D. He was a veteran of the Civil war and operated a farm in the town of Sheboygan Falls for about seventy years. He was born in Germany.

EX-PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON

PRESIDENT WILSON WAS HUMAN PHENOMENON OF GREATEST WAR

At 54 No More Than a University Professor and Political Writer; at 63 in a Place of Power and Fame and Honor Unsurpassed in History—Defended His Unsuccessful Peace Policies to the Last.

History, in determining the place of Woodrow Wilson, 28th president of the United States of America, will pass judgment upon the most prominent world-figure of the events growing out of the most momentous war of all time. From the viewpoint of hundreds of millions of lovers of liberty Woodrow Wilson stood at the zenith, as the ex-lucifer stands at the nadir.

The great war brought to the front many men whose names will live in honor. In the last analysis three men stand out: Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau. Of these three it was Wilson who held the world's eye—Wilson, the human phenomenon of the times, until fifty-four years ago more than a college president and political writer and at sixty-three on a pinnacle of fame and honor and power unsurpassed if ever attained by any man in history.

It is impossible now to differentiate between Woodrow Wilson the man and Woodrow Wilson the head of the most powerful nation of earth in wealth, material and fighting men. Certainly he could not have reached the place he held without great ability and extraordinary capacity for leadership. By virtue of his place he became a focus of world attention as soon as the great war began. Before the armistice was signed he had become a great moral leader with the ear of the peoples of the world. Only as such could he have forced upon the allied world the unwilling acceptance of his project of a league of nations, with its fourteen points as set forth to congress January 18, 1918.

Abroad and at Home. The enthusiasm evoked by President Wilson's visits to Paris, London and in haste or judgment, his "mismatched hand," to use his own expression, with the best of Europe and he got his league of nations before the peace conference and got it adopted.

President Wilson was re-elected in 1916 upon a peace platform. October 25, 1918, just before the congressional elections, he issued an appeal to the voters of the United States asking them, if they had approved of his leadership and wished him to continue to be their unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, to express themselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both houses. The result of the elections was to change the political complexion of both houses, his following: 6th congress—Senate, 51 Democrats and 45 Republicans; house, 219 Republicans and 213 Democrats.

President Wilson in attending the peace conference made several new departures. He left the country during office. He took the office with him, signing acts and making appointments while in Paris. He ignored the senate, though he is empowered by the Constitution to make treaties "by and with the advice and consent of the senate."

He appointed as the American representative in the League of Nations, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Henry White, Edward M. House and General Tasker H. Bliss. He sailed December 4, 1918, and arrived at Paris December 14. The French capital was en fête for the occasion. December 24 he went to England and thence to Italy. He returned to Paris January 8 after a journey that resembled a "triumphal procession."

After the preliminary sessions of the peace conference President Wilson returned to the United States in February, returning to Paris March 15, 1919. He signed the peace treaty June 28, 1919, and returned to the United States July 8. His second term as president expired March 3, 1920.

After his retirement from the presidency Mr. Wilson lived quietly, making a partly successful fight to regain his health. He occasionally went to the theater and rode much in his car about the environs of Washington. He bought a home in Washington and in 1921 formed a law partnership with Bainbridge Colby, who had been his secretary of state, succeeding Robert Lansing. He took part in the funeral procession of President Harding in Washington.

Spoken as an employee of the Spencer Trask company for 20 years. It was found that up until this time none of his relatives had asked for an investigation. One report had it that the tablets had been mailed from Plainfield. Chief of Police Patrick Kieley dealt this.

Tomahawk—The Tomahawk Kraft Paper Co.'s new mill will begin operation May 1. Buildings are now under roof and machines are being installed. The mill will begin with a daily capacity of 40 tons of paper, and an annual consumption of 25,000 cords of pulpwood.

Sturgeon Bay—Mrs. John Roder, 80, was seriously burned about the face and upper body when her home near Sturgeon Bay caught fire and she attempted to smother the flames. Mrs. Roder was alone in the home when the fire started. Neighbors on a nearby farm came to her rescue, but the house was destroyed.

Menasha—Two Appleton men, A. T. Gardner and C. L. Bachelard, narrowly escaped death when their automobile was struck and dragged 40 feet by a switch engine on the right-of-way of the Soo Line railway at a street crossing at Menasha. The car was demolished, but the occupants were only slightly injured.

Marinette—The Wisconsin Public Service Co. will spend $3,000,000 in providing additions and improvements to the gas, electric and street railway systems in the territory of Marinette, according to C. B. Blomquist, vice president of the company. Half a million dollars was spent last year by the company.

Condoresy—About 125,000,000 feet of logs will be cut in the southern part of Sawyer county this season. This will be twice the cut ever made since the hardwood logging started 20 years ago. Shipments now are 100 car loads every 24 hours and they will continue until late in the summer.

Tomahawk—The Tomahawk Kraft Paper Co.'s new mill will begin operation May 1. Buildings are now under roof and machines are being installed. The mill will begin with a daily capacity of 40 tons of paper, and an annual consumption of 25,000 cords of pulpwood.

Sturgeon Bay—Mrs. John Roder, 80, was seriously burned about the face and upper body when her home near Sturgeon Bay caught fire and she attempted to smother the flames. Mrs. Roder was alone in the home when the fire started. Neighbors on a nearby farm came to her rescue, but the house was destroyed.

Menasha—Two Appleton men, A. T. Gardner and C. L. Bachelard, narrowly escaped death when their automobile was struck and dragged 40 feet by a switch engine on the right-of-way of the Soo Line railway at a street crossing at Menasha. The car was demolished, but the occupants were only slightly injured.

Marinette—The Wisconsin Public Service Co. will spend $3,000,000 in providing additions and improvements to the gas, electric and street railway systems in the territory of Marinette, according to C. B. Blomquist, vice president of the company. Half a million dollars was spent last year by the company.

Nowalk—The report of the Nowalk Creamery company for 1923 shows total butter sales of $315,000, cream, amounting to 2,437,421 pounds, was received at their station, the average price paid being 51 cents.

Laona—Frank Offner and Ole Ostie, sawyers working for the O'Connor Lumber Co., near Laona, were killed when a falling tree struck another tree and sent pieces of it flying in all directions.

Phillips—P. S. McGill, wealthy lumber man who was drowned at Phillips several weeks ago, wills, among other benevolent bequests, $25,000 to Phillips.

Rhineland—Alexander Hechman, a woodsman employed by the Brooks & Ross Lumber Co. near Boulder Junction, Wis., was killed instantly when struck by a falling tree.

Medford—The directors of the First National bank at Medford have purchased a strip of land from the Soo line in the heart of the city and will erect a modern bank building on the property. Building work will commence as soon as weather permits.

Brace—The First National bank and the State bank of Bruce have completed the consolidation of the two institutions, the National bank buying out the controlling interest of the State bank.

Waupun—Fifty new residences for the housing of workmen, to be erected at a cost of $200,000, are being planned by the Waupun Association of Commerce as a measure to offset the shortage of labor in Waupun, which is assuming serious proportions.

Superior—A team of valuable horses were drowned and George Boushke, the driver and owner, barely saved his own life by clinging to a piece of ice when his team and sleigh broke through the ice of Superior bay.

Appleton—A storage bin for fertilizers, which, it is claimed, will save farmers at least $500 a year, has been invented by John J. Retter, Appleton, and William F. Wolf, Neenah, who have applied for patents on the device.

BADGER STATE HAPPENINGS

Florence—Six lumber camps are being operated by the Von Platen-Fox Lumber company near Florence this winter, giving employment to nearly 500 men. In addition, the company has four jobbing camps with 100 men. The company plans to cut 35,000,000 feet of timber. Of this amount 6,500,000 feet has been disposed of to the Ford Motor company and other interests. The company's woods equipment comprises seventy teams, three locomotives and three ten tractors.

Superior—Attempt of John Niska to rob a cash register at the Yalug China cafe at Superior, was foiled by Miss Edith West, waitress. Niska opened the cash register when there was no one in the front part of the cafe. Miss West was in the kitchen and saw the man as he scurried up the door with the girl at his heels. Two policemen nabbed Niska, who is in jail awaiting trial.

Neenah—As a safety measure, the Winnebago county board has adopted a resolution urging all persons traveling on county highways at night to equip their vehicles with adequate lights. A number of accidents were caused last summer by unlighted vehicles. Pedestrians are warned to carry lanterns or some adequate form of illumination.

La Crosse—With a newly purchased dredge the city of La Crosse will start work as soon as the ice goes out of the river on the dredging of two new bathing beaches, one adjoining the new tourist camp in Pettibone park and the other on the north side, and the dredging of a motor boat harbor back of Isle La Poudre.

CHAPTER XII

At the Farmers' Institute.

Every town county has its Farmers' Institute. Usually it is held in the county seat, and in a gathering of farmers for the purpose of listening to improving discourses and addresses both instructive and entertaining. The Woodruff district was interested in the institute, however, because of the fact that a rural-school exhibit was one of its features that year, and that Colonel Woodruff had secured an urgent invitation to the school to take part in it.

Such exhibits are now so common that it is not worth while for us to describe it; but then, the sight of a class of children testing and weighing milk, examining grains for viability and food seeds, planning crop rotations, judging grains and live stock was so new in that county as to be a real sensation of the institute.

Two persons were a good deal embarrassed by the success of the exhibit. One was the county superintendent, who was constantly in receipt of undesired compliments upon her wisdom in fostering really "practical work in the schools." The other was Jim Irwin, who was becoming famous, and who felt he had done nothing to deserve fame. Professor Withers, an extension lecturer from Ames, took Jim to dinner at the best hotel in the town, for the purpose of talking over with him the needs of the rural schools.

"You've got to come down to our farmers' week next year, and tell us about these things," said he to Jim. "Can't you?"

Jim's brain reeled. He got to a gathering of real educators and tell his crude notions! How could he get the money for his expenses? But he had that guineas which goes with supreme confidence in the thing dealt with.

"I'll come," said he.

"Thank you," said the Ames man. "There's a small honorarium attached, you know."

Jim was staggered. He tried to remember what an honorarium is. Was he obliged to pay an honorarium for the chance to speak before the college gathering? Well, he'd save money and pay it.

"I'll try to take care of the honorarium," said he. "I'll come."

The professor laughed. It was the first joke the gangling innovator had perpetrated.

"It won't bother you to take care of it," said he. "But if you're not too extravagant it will pay your expenses and give you a few dollars over."

Jim breathed more freely. An honorarium was paid to the person receiving the honor, then. What a relief!

"All right," he exclaimed. "I'll be glad to come."

"Let's consider that settled," said the professor. "And now you must be going back to the one-house. My talk on soil sickness comes next. I tell you, the winter wheat crop has been—"

But Jim was not able to think much of the winter wheat problem as they went back to the auditorium. He was worth the appreciation of a college professor, trained to think on the very matters Jim had been so long mulling over in isolation and blindness!

Callista Simms thought she saw something of a glint and "saint-like about the comely face of her teacher as he came to her at her post in the room in which the school exhibit was held. Callista was in charge of the little children whose work was to be demonstrated that day, and was in a state of exaltation to which her starved being had hitherto been a stranger. Perhaps there was something similar in her condition of fervent happiness to that of Jim. She, too, was doing something outside the sordid life of the human cabin. She yearned over the children in her care, and would have been glad to die for them—and besides was not Newton Bronson in charge of the corn exhibit, and a member of the corn-judging team?

To the eyes of the town girls who passed about among the exhibit, she was poorly dressed; but if they could have seen the clothes she had worn on that evening when Jim Irwin first called at their cabin they could perhaps have understood the sense of well-being and happiness in Callista's soul at the feeling of her dress, and the "boughten" cloak she wore—and any of them, even without knowledge of this, might have understood Callista's joy at the knowledge that Newton Bronson's eyes were on her from his station by the big pillar.

"Hello, Callista!" said Jim. "How are you enjoying it?"

"Oh," said Callista, and drew a long, long breath. "I'm enjoying myself right jolly. Mr. Jim."

"Any of the boys come along tonight to see?"

"No," said Callista. "The boys are all at the school board meeting."

Perhaps there was something similar in her condition of fervent happiness to that of Jim. She, too, was doing some-

the school board have stopped by this morning."

Jim looked about him. There they were now, over in a corner, with their heads together. He went toward them, his face still beaming with that radiance which had shone so plainly to the eyes of Callista Simms, but they saw in it only a grin of exaltation over his defeat of them at the hearing before Jennie Woodruff. When Jim had drawn so close as almost to call for the extended hand, he felt the repulsion of their attitudes and sheered off on some pretended errand to a dark corner across the room.

They resumed their talk.

"And as I was sayin'," went on Bonner, "I want to get this guy, Jim Irwin. An' he's the cause of his gettin' in the school, I'd like to be on the board to kick him off; but if you fellows would like to have some one else, I won't run, and if the right fellow is named, I'll line up what friends I got for him."

"You got no friend can git as many votes as you can," said Peterson. "I tank you better run."

"What say, Ez?" asked Bonner.

"Suits me all right," said Bronson. "I guess we three have had our fight out and understand each other."

"I don't like the way Colonel Woodruff acts," said Bonner. "He rounded up that gang of kids that shot us all to pieces at that hearing, didn't he?"

"I tank he was just interested in how Jennie managed it."

"Well," said Bonner, "he seems to take a lot of interest in this exhibition here. I think we'd better watch the colonel. That decision of Jennie's was crooked."

"Well," said Hankon Peterson, "talk of crookedness wit' Jennie Woodruff don't get very fur wit' me."

"Oh, I don't mean anything bad, Hankon," replied Bonner, "but it wasn't an all-right decision. I think she's stuck on the guy."

The caucus broke up after making sure that the three members of the school board would be as one man in maintaining a hostile front to Jim Irwin and his tenure of office. It looked rather like a foregone conclusion, in a little district where there were scarcely twenty-five votes. The three members of the board with their immediate friends and dependents could muster two or three ballots each—and who was there to oppose them?

CHAPTER XIII

The Colonel Takes the Field.

Jim stood apart and alone with his thoughts after his rebuff by the currying members of the school board. "I don't see," said a voice over against the cooking kitchen, "what there is in this to set people talking. Buttonholes, Cookies! Huhup!"

It was Mrs. Bonner who had clearly come to scoff. With her was Mrs. Bronson, whose attitude was that of a person born between conflicting influences. Her husband had indicated to the crafty Bonner and the subtle Peterson that he was still loyal to the school board, but while consorting with the censorious Mrs. Bonner she evinced restiveness when the school and its work was condemned. Was not her Newton in charge of a part of this show? Was he not an open and defiant champion of Jim Irwin, and a constant and enthusiastic attendant upon not only his classes, but a variety of evening and Saturday affairs? And had not Newton become a better boy—a wonderfully better boy?

Mrs. Bronson's heart was filled with resentment that she also could not be enrolled among Jim Irwin's supporters. And when Mrs. Bonner sneered at the buttonholes and cookies, Mrs. Bronson, knowing how the little fingers had puzzled themselves over the one, and young faces had become flourey and red over the other, thared up a little.

"And I don't see," said she, "anything to laugh at. I'd like to help them."

Mrs. Bronner was far too good a diplomat to be cornered in the same enclosure with a rupture of relations. "The little things ought to be helped—at home and by their mothers."

"Well," said Mrs. Bronson, "take them Simms girls, now. They have to have help outside their home."

"Yes," agreed Mrs. Bonner, "and a lot more help than a farm-hand can give in school. I shouldn't wonder if there was a lot of us not know about why they come north."

"As for that," replied Mrs. Bronson, "I don't know as it's any of my business so long as they behave themselves."

Again Mrs. Bonner felt the situation getting out of hand.

"Ain't it some of our business?"

"I have invited him to make an address."

son; and Jim and Jennie are both of age, you know."

"Yes, but how about our schools being ruined by a love affair?" interjected Mrs. Bonner, as they moved away. "Ain't that your business and mine?"

Instead of desiring further knowledge of what they were discussing, Jim felt a dreadful disgust at the whole thing. Jennie was against him, he believed, and as for her being in love with him—to hear these women discuss it was intolerable. He felt his rage redoubled as at the hearing of some horrible indecency. And while he was raging inwardly, paying the penalty of a publicity to which he was not yet hardened, he heard other voices. Professor Withers, County Superintendent Jennie and Colonel Woodruff were making an inspection of the rural-school exhibit.

"I hear he has been having some trouble with his school board," the professor was saying.

"Yes," said Jennie, "he has. Proceedings before me to revoke his certificate."

"On what grounds?"

"Incompetency," answered Jennie. "I found that his pupils were really going very well in the regular course of study—just like he seems to be neglecting."

"I'm glad you supported him," said the professor. "I'm glad to find you helping him."

"Really," protested Jennie, "I don't think myself—"

"What do you think of his notions?" asked the colonel.

"Very advanced," replied Professor Withers. "Where did he imbibe them all?"

"He's a Brown Mouse," said the colonel. "A phenomenon in heredity—perhaps a genius."

"Ain't I?" replied the professor. "A Mendelian segregation, you mean?"

"Certainly," said the colonel. "The sort of mind that imbues things from itself."

"Well, he's rather wonderful," declared the professor. "I had him to lunch today. He surprised me. I have invited him to make an address at Ames next winter during farmers' week."

"He?"

Jennie's tone showed her astonishment. Jim the underling, Jim the ox. Jim the thorn in the county superintendent's side, Jim the country teacher! It was stupefying.

"Oh, you wasn't judge him by his looks," said the professor. "I really do hope he'll take some advice on the matter of clothes—put on a cravat and a different shirt and collar when he comes to Ames—but I have no doubt he will."

"He hasn't any other," said the colonel.

"Well, it won't signify, if he has the truth to tell us," said the professor. "Has he?" asked Jennie.

Why Man Favors Right Hand

Was Necessary in the Days When the Heart Was Guarded by the Left Arm.

The Pathfinder prints an interesting theory of why we are right-handed. Most persons are right-handed. Only one in every twenty is left-handed. Why are people right-handed? They may have been born that way. It's true, but why? There's a reason for most of them, if you can only puzzle it out. A way back in the beginning, the chief occupation of man was fighting. In battle he carried a shield in one hand and a weapon in the other. It was not much work to carry the shield, but the quick left hand of the body. Those who shielded their left side—thus protecting the heart—were the ones who usually came out victorious. Down through the ages this selection continued, the right hand gradually becoming more proficient.

Deepest Gas Well.

The depth of natural gas wells varies greatly from less than 1,000 feet to more than 6,000 feet, the deepest well now producing reaching 6,822 feet.

Palm Oil Valuable.

Oils derived from the West African oil palm are believed to have more value than those from any other vegetable source.

London.—As one workers' government to another, the Russian soviets have expressed their gratitude to Downing street for its recognition of them, and has promised to "make every effort to settle all disputes, questions and misunderstandings."

Action on Great Britain's notice that friendly relations would be resumed was taken in Moscow by the second Union Congress of Soviets. After M. Litvinoff had explained the note, the soviet assembly adopted a resolution of acceptance, which was made public here by the Russian trade delegation.

This resolution "notes with satisfaction this historic step, one of the first acts of the first government of Great Britain chosen by the working classes.

"The workers and peasants' government of Russia, which originated in the great revolution, has made a struggle for peace as its foremost objective, and throughout its existence has persistently striven for a re-establishment of normal relations with all peoples," the Russian reply continues.

"The working class of Great Britain throughout this period has been a true ally of the working class of the soviet republics in their struggle for peace. The peoples of the soviet republics remember the efforts of the working classes in Great Britain and advanced sections of the British public opinion for ending the boycott, blockade and armed intervention.

"The intense atmosphere of international relations today is fraught with dangers of new world conflicts, justly constituting a subject for anxiety among the working people of all countries, and this step of the British labor government acquires a special, striking importance. This second congress of soviets declares that co-operation with the peoples of Great Britain and the soviet republic is as before one of the first cares of the soviet republic, which, in keeping with its preceding policy of peace, will make every effort to settle all misunderstandings and develop and consolidate economic relations."

"On what grounds?"

"Incompetency," answered Jennie. "I found that his pupils were really going very well in the regular course of study—just like he seems to be neglecting."

"I'm glad you supported him," said the professor. "I'm glad to find you helping him."

"Really," protested Jennie, "I don't think myself—"

"What do you think of his notions?" asked the colonel.

"Very advanced," replied Professor Withers. "Where did he imbibe them all?"

"He's a Brown Mouse," said the colonel. "A phenomenon in heredity—perhaps a genius."

"Ain't I?" replied the professor. "A Mendelian segregation, you mean?"

"Certainly," said the colonel. "The sort of mind that imbues things from itself."

"Well, he's rather wonderful," declared the professor. "I had him to lunch today. He surprised me. I have invited him to make an address at Ames next winter during farmers' week."

"He?"

Jennie's tone showed her astonishment. Jim the underling, Jim the ox. Jim the thorn in the county superintendent's side, Jim the country teacher! It was stupefying.

"Oh, you wasn't judge him by his looks," said the professor. "I really do hope he'll take some advice on the matter of clothes—put on a cravat and a different shirt and collar when he comes to Ames—but I have no doubt he will."

"He hasn't any other," said the colonel.

"Well, it won't signify, if he has the truth to tell us," said the professor. "Has he?" asked Jennie.

Why Man Favors Right Hand

Was Necessary in the Days When the Heart Was Guarded by the Left Arm.

The Pathfinder prints an interesting theory of why we are right-handed. Most persons are right-handed. Only one in every twenty is left-handed. Why are people right-handed? They may have been born that way. It's true, but why? There's a reason for most of them, if you can only puzzle it out. A way back in the beginning, the chief occupation of man was fighting. In battle he carried a shield in one hand and a weapon in the other. It was not much work to carry the shield, but the quick left hand of the body. Those who shielded their left side—thus protecting the heart—were the ones who usually came out victorious. Down through the ages this selection continued, the right hand gradually becoming more proficient.

Deepest Gas Well.

The depth of natural gas wells varies greatly from less than 1,000 feet to more than 6,000 feet, the deepest well now producing reaching 6,822 feet.

Palm Oil Valuable.

Oils derived from the West African oil palm are believed to have more value than those from any other vegetable source.

RUSSIA ACCEPTS BRITAIN'S OFFER

Promises to Settle All Misunderstandings if Recognized.

London.—As one workers' government to another, the Russian soviets have expressed their gratitude to Downing street for its recognition of them, and has promised to "make every effort to settle all disputes, questions and misunderstandings."

Action on Great Britain's notice that friendly relations would be resumed was taken in Moscow by the second Union Congress of Soviets. After M. Litvinoff had explained the note, the soviet assembly adopted a resolution of acceptance, which was made public here by the Russian trade delegation.

This resolution "notes with satisfaction this historic step, one of the first acts of the first government of Great Britain chosen by the working classes.

"The workers and peasants' government of Russia, which originated in the great revolution, has made a struggle for peace as its foremost objective, and throughout its existence has persistently striven for a re-establishment of normal relations with all peoples," the Russian reply continues.

"The working class of Great Britain throughout this period has been a true ally of the working class of the soviet republics in their struggle for peace. The peoples of the soviet republics remember the efforts of the working classes in Great Britain and advanced sections of the British public opinion for ending the boycott, blockade and armed intervention.

"The intense atmosphere of international relations today is fraught with dangers of new world conflicts, justly constituting a subject for anxiety among the working people of all countries, and this step of the British labor government acquires a special, striking importance. This second congress of soviets declares that co-operation with the peoples of Great Britain and the soviet republic is as before one of the first cares of the soviet republic, which, in keeping with its preceding policy of peace, will make every effort to settle all misunderstandings and develop and consolidate economic relations."

Washington.—The names of William G. McAdoo was involved in the senate oil investigation when Edward L. Doheny testified that he had paid Mr. McAdoo a total of $250,000 for legal services in connection with a number of oil transactions.

Mr. Doheny also declared that he had paid large sums to Thomas W. Gregory, Lindley M. Garrison and Franklin K. Lane, all cabinet members under the Wilson administration, and George Creel, an adviser in the administration. The cabinet members were not employed until after their connection with the government was ended and their right to accept such position was not questioned.

A statement issued by the White House indicated the selection of another attorney in a statement to the effect that Mr. Gregory might find it embarrassing to serve because of his former connection with Mr. Doheny.

The statement that Mr. McAdoo had been in the employ of Mr. Doheny brought a vigorous protest from the democratic presidential candidate, who declared that the introduction of his name was unjust, in that his connection with Mr. Doheny had nothing to do with leases and was confined to Mr. Doheny's Mexican interests. Mr. McAdoo also said that the retainer which was received by his firm amounted to $25,000 a year for four years.

While Mr. Doheny was on the stand before the senate committee, the house adopted the Walsh resolution proposing court action to annul the Teapot Dome and California leases. The resolution passed by a vote of 120 to 4.

The KITCHEN CABINET

"Thank God for tea! What would the world be without tea? How did it exist? I am glad I was not born before tea."

"The gentle fair on nervous tea feels. While gay good nature sparkles in her eyes."

EVENING TEA

The serving of tea gives one the opportunity for social intercourse and rare sociability, excuse enough for a cup of the beverage which cheers but not inebriates." On Sunday night our New England ancestors liked a bowl of nutty and creamy milk, with a bit of salt codfish for an appetizer. For those of their sturdy and less practical descendants a more palatable supper to them may be found in the following suggestions:

Oysters cooked in the chafing dish are a well-liked supper dish. They may be served as a stew, in a white sauce on toast, or fried. When fried, dip them in milk, then in seasoned crumbs and fry in butter to give them just the right flavor. Be sure they are well-cooked through, but not overdone and tough; either condition is most undesirable.

The salad has now come to have such an important place in the luncheon, dinner or supper menu that no such meal seems complete unless provided with some kind of a salad. Even in the cold climates lettuce may be found at a reasonable price. If used, a leaf or two of head lettuce lasts quite a while in a small family. Place it in an earthen jar with just the moisture left after giving it a good washing, cover closely and keep in a cool place; it will be crisp and fresh to the last leaf. Parsley, too, washed and put into a pint or quart jar, sealed and kept where it is cool will keep for two weeks. It may need a dipping into water once during the time to revive it, but the moisture keeps it fresh and green.

If there are little people to have supper with the grownups, drop a little sugar sirup on animal crackers and press them in the center of a salted water in a standing position. They will soon be firm. The children like these and they are better for them than cake, especially of the rich varieties.

For a simple supper dessert there is nothing nicer than sponge cakes with a dish of canned fruit. These may be drop cakes, baked in gem pans, or in a loaf or roll, as one's fancy dictates.

Fried sardines make a nice supper dish; drain them from their oil, dip in lemon juice and saute or fry in deep fat. Serve with lemon slices garnished with parsley.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

A Story of Success

How Studebaker Cars became leaders

145,000 people last year paid $200,000,000 for them

THE most talked-about cars among fine cars are the Studebaker Sixes—at $975 and up. Sales have almost trebled in the past three years. The demand for these cars, growing by leaps and bounds, has been Motordom's chief sensation.

Over $200,000,000 was last year spent for Studebaker models. Now we wish to explain, to all who are interested, the reasons for that success.

Studebaker has always led

For 72 years the name Studebaker has stood for quality and class.

Studebaker equipages, in the carriage days, held premier place. The White House owned them in the days of Grant and Harrison.

Now we make motor cars only. But the Studebaker name, in this modern field, simply had to maintain its prestige.

We had the money, we had the incentive—we who now control. And our one ambition has been to maintain the Studebaker place.

$90,000,000 assets behind us

Studebaker assets are $90,000,000. We have $50,000,000 in modern plants and equipment.

Not old plants re-adapted. We have spent $22,000,000 in new plants in five years. We have equipped them with 12,500 up-to-date machines.

Over $3,000,000 was spent on drop forge plants alone. Another $10,000,000 on body plants, to maintain our prestige in coach building.

We believe that no other plant in the country is so well equipped to build quality cars as Studebaker.

Engineering—$500,000 yearly

We created an engineering department which costs $500,000 yearly.

There are 125 skilled men there who devote their time to studying betterments in cars. They make 500,000 tests yearly.

There is a department of Methods and Standards. They decide and fix every standard in these cars.

We spend $600,000 yearly to machine all surfaces of crank shafts, just as in Liberty Airplane Motors. That is the reason for that perfect balance, that absence of vibration.

Every Studebaker car is Timken-equipped. The Special-Six and the Big-Six have more Timken bearings than any car selling under $5,000 in America. The Light-Six more than any competitive car within $1,000 of its price.

Open cars have real leather upholstery. They cost $25 more per car than imitation leather.

Our closed cars have Chase Mohair upholstery. This is made from the soft fleece of Angora goats. And a Sedan requires from 15 to 18 yards.

Velour for this upholstery would save us up to $100 per car.

Note the finish of every detail. Mark the infinite care. They add 25% to labor cost on luxurious closed bodies.

Note the completeness of our larger closed cars. The nickel-plated bumpers, the extra disc wheels and cord tires, the steel trunk, the courtesy light, etc. Think what they would cost you, bought as extras.

Thus we have made the Studebaker the leader of quality cars. We have built a demand exceeding 145,000 cars per year.

Learn the results of these efforts, in fairness to yourself. Don't buy a car at $1,000 or over without knowing what we offer.

Compare the parts and details. Mark the advantages we offer—scores on scores. Our experience is that 95% of those who do that buy a Studebaker car.

Learn why 145,162 bought Studebakers in 1923

Studebakers hold the top place in the fine car field today.

In 1919, the public paid over $80,000,000 for 39,356 Studebaker cars.

In 1920, the public paid over $100,000,000 for 51,474 Studebaker cars, an increase of 31% over 1919.

In 1921, the public paid over $120,000,000 for 66,643 Studebaker cars, an increase of 29% over 1920.

In 1922, the public paid over $155,000,000 for 110,269 Studebaker cars, an increase of 66% over 1921.

In 1923, the public paid over $201,000,000 for 145,162 Studebaker cars, an increase of 32% over 1922.

In 1924, business has opened with Studebaker as never before. Learn why all these buyers preferred Studebakers.

Our factories employ 1,200 inspectors, to make 36,000 inspections on all Studebaker cars. Few flaws, few mistakes can escape them. That, we believe, is the finest organization ever devoted to motor car building.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Forecasting A Tremendous Spring Demand

739,626

more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.

The Railroad Dollar

SOME men in public life are proposing to Scamp reductions in rates with no thought of making such reductions possible by aiding in the reduction of expenses.

THE railroads today are returning back to the people by way of wages, purchase of materials and supplies, and taxes, almost all the money they take in.

IF REDUCTIONS in rates are to be had, there must first be some way of reducing expenses.

THE present level of freight rates is not caused by the valuation of the railroads nor by the net return they are receiving.

IN 1922 each dollar received from patrons of the Chicago and North Western Railway Company was used as follows:

Paid for materials	32.66 cents
Paid for taxes	6.16 "
Paid for labor	48.92 "
Paid for interest	7.67 "
Paid for rentals	0.59 "
Paid for dividends	4.00 "
Total	100.00 "

A STUDY of the foregoing table will show where the railroad dollar is going.

In answer to a communication the Secretary of State has given out the information that owners of converted cars, that is, touring cars of roadsters, equipped with box, must pay a dollar license fee if the machine is operated as a pleasure car and at other times as a truck. There are many such machines in Washington county and the information will be of general interest.—Hartford Press.
