Schematic Diagram of Three-Tube Receiver Which Works Well and is Very Easily Constructed.

Fans who would like to experiment with a receiver that will tune in the very low wave-lengths so that they may listen to the broadcasting relay stations which operate on this lower band, will find such a receiver here described.

Fans who are contemplating learning the code should find such a set useful because one trans-Atlantic station at Tickerton operating on a low wave, near 100 meters, sends slowly and gives the code learner a chance to try his skill. The new code fan will also find hundreds of amateur stations sending, the reception of which should give him practice.

The accompanying diagram shows a receiver of very neat appearance which works well and is also very easily constructed.

The following material is necessary to build the set:

- One panel, 7 by 18 by 3/16 inches.
- One glow-lampless tuner (short-wave type).
- One low loss variable condenser, 0.0005 mfd. capacity.
- One Midget variable condenser.
- Two audio transformers, ratio 3 to 1.
- One grid condenser, 0.0025 mfd.
- Three sockets, standard base.
- Three rheostats.
- One subpanel.
- One double-circuit jack.
- One single-circuit jack.
- Two four-inch dials.
- Seven binding posts.
- Three tubes.
- One grid lock, two megohms.

The filament and plate battery leads may be embedded in a special subpanel, and this greatly simplifies the wiring of the receiver.

The transformers and tube sockets should be mounted on the subpanel in the positions shown.

Grid Condenser Mounting. Mount the grid condenser directly on the grid terminal of the detector tube socket. To facilitate the wiring, all possible connections to the instruments on the subpanel should be made before attaching the subpanel to the main or control panel. These connections are as follows: The positive filament connection to all tube sockets; all connections to the first audio-frequency transformer for detector jack (if one is used); and the secondary terminals of second audio transformer.

The drilling of the main control panel is next in order. The distance between the center shaft of the tuner and the center shaft of the secondary condenser is approximately five and one-half inches. The center hole for the detector filament control is three and three-quarters inches from the shaft hole of the variable condenser. Inasmuch as drilling templates are supplied with all these instruments, it is a simple matter to locate the mounting holes.

When the control panel has been drilled and the various instruments mounted in place, it should be fastened to the subpanel. Be sure that you have carefully followed the factory instructions for connecting the detector filament control. The small black bushing must be placed over the smaller of the two mounting screws so as to insulate the soldering tin, to which the battery lead is connected, from the metal endplate of the filament control.

Make all leads as short and direct as possible and prevent them from touching one another, particularly the plate and grid leads.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Good Ground Connection Is of Great Importance

A good ground connection is vital to the best operation of the radio receiver. On circuit sets, where the amount of energy employed is small, the additional volume resulting from the use of a good ground or several good grounds is readily noticeable. The increase in volume with tube sets is not so pronounced, but the range of the receiver improves as the efficiency of the ground connection is increased.

The best ground connection is made by connecting to the cold water pipes, or to a pipe or iron rod driven into the ground until it reaches moist soil. In either case the connection between the ground wire from the set and the metal of the pipe is of utmost importance. Simply wrapping the wire around the pipe is a makeshift.

It is difficult to solder a wire to a pipe, especially if the pipe contains water. Scrape or file the surface of the pipe until all paint and rust have been removed. Place a ground clamp around the prepared spot, tighten the clamp and then solder the ground wire to the clamp. In this way a good connection is assured.

Inasmuch as the ground clamp is usually located in some out-of-the-way place, to be forgotten after it is installed, it is most important that it be constructed of good material that will not rust or corrode. When buying a ground clamp try to secure one that is constructed of copper, is rugged and substantial; that has a wide band, so that a good surface contact can be secured all around the pipe instead of in one or two points, and can be easily installed.

Switch Arrangement for Testing Out Radio Set

In making comparative tests of radio sets it is advantageous to have a double throw switch by which either of two sets may be quickly connected to the antenna, to the ground and to the batteries. The arrangement of a switch to do this is complicated by the fact that various manufacturers use different methods of connection between the "A," "B" and "C" batteries.

Considering only two plate voltages and one bias voltage, a nine-pole double-throw switch would seem to be required in order to prevent short circuit of the batteries due to differences in interconnection in the sets. These nine points would be: —antenna, +90, +45, —B, —A, —A +C, —C and ground.

An investigation shows that a six-pole switch can be made to do the work, because the 90 volt, the 45 volt and the —C are all insulated in any receiver. These three points can there-

MISS SPRING VOGUE APPEARS; NOVEL FABRICS IN BLOUSES

SPRING has knocked—to say "Come on out, the weather's fine!" and Miss Vogue has opened the door and stepped outside to join her caller. She is the observed of all observers, and we have been on the lookout to see what she will wear.

To begin with the coat, it appears to be of ottoman silk or some other fabric with a lustrous corded surface. In a light, wood brown shade. Its lines are straight, like those of its forbearers of the winter, but they are easier and it is very simply designed and lined with crepe de chine, also in light brown. Spring has banished fur from the collar, sleeves and all other positions—except one. Such is the affinity between fur and coats that fur still kisses the hem of this garment where it appears in a fluffy band, shading through brown and tan to white.

Miss Vogue has other coats but we may be sure this one is correct. Being simple in design and rather casual in style it will prove adaptable to almost any sort of wear.

There are many coats in the spring collections that have no trimming and there are just as many that have decorations, mostly in hand effects, of embrodery, applique work, and outline needlework. A pretty whim of the season discloses scenery sketched in light cloth coats. It began with Chinese subjects but has wandered into other fields. Handings of self material appear on coats of ribbed silk, made by cutting the bands so that the rib runs in a direction different from that in the coat.

If the story of overblouses and tunic blouses could be divorced from that of the fabrics used to make them it would be short and quickly told. But fabrics have changed the they rely upon separate collars of lact or sheer fabrics to provide the proper neck finish.

The tunic blouse is as varied as dresses are and is made of the same materials. Printed silks are at their best in these long blouses worn over plain skirts, and the plain silk appears in yokes and bindings on the tunic. Two colors, in plain crepe de chine, make very handsome tunic blouses, in which wide handings of a darker shade are introduced in the tunic and the two colors merged by embroidery.

Worn Like Choker

In place of a fur neckpiece the smart woman often wears a choker scarf that wraps her neck after the fashion of the old-time stock. An extremely smart scarf is of heavy white crepe with a wide border of black satin at each end.

Youthful Gown

A youthful gown of cherry-red velvet is embroidered with white wool in narrow bands. The pockets are softly embroidered and there is a bit of the flowing scarf.

The Plaided Coat

The newest coats for crisp days are of plaid with huge collars and cuffs of fur. Quite often the fur continues down the front of the coat to the hem. The plaids are very gay.

Dinner Frocks

A most unusual dinner frock is made of lace dyed a deep wine color, trimmed with ribbons of matching color.

WORTH WHILE DISHES

Fresh fruits of all kinds are essential for health. Out orange juice or oranges are just as good for a growing child as the best milk, whole wheat bread and fresh vegetables, as well as pure butter, and should be given daily.

Dainty Bran Muffins.—Sift together one cupful of pastry flour, one cupful of graham flour, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of sugar, add the bran from the sifter—there should be at least one-half cupful—and mix with the dry ingredients. Beat one egg, add one cupful of milk and when well blended add to the first mixture; stir in one tablespoonful of melted butter and drop by spoonfuls into a hissing-hot, well-greased iron gem pan. Bake twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Swedish Timbale Cases.—Beat the yolks of two eggs, add one-half cupful of milk, stir little by little into three-fourths of a cupful of flour sifted with one-half teaspoonful of salt. Set aside for an hour before using. Dip a timbale iron into hot fat, let stand two or three minutes, drain and dip into the batter which has been put into a small bowl or cup; let the iron drop into the batter up to a half-inch from the top, then drop into the fat and cook until crisp and brown. Shake off the cooked case and repeat. Serve creamed mushrooms, sweetbreads or any creamed vegetable in the cases.

Real Clam Chowder.—Whore fresh clams are obtainable, for six persons use three pints of clams measured solid, drained from the juice. After picking over carefully they may be scalded in the juice. Next remove the soft part and put the tough portions through a meat chopper. Take six slices of bacon, cut into strips, put into a chowder kettle and fry until crisp; add one onion sliced thin and cook until soft, add the liquor from the clams, the tough part and six potatoes sliced. Cover with just enough water to cook; when done add the soft part of the clams, one fourth of a cupful of butter, salt, pepper and a pint of rich milk or cream. Just before serving add a dozen milk crackers.

Fruit Salad Supreme.—Peel half a dozen oranges with a sharp knife, cut the pulp into pieces, and one cupful of marshmallows into quarters, using the scissors. Cut into halves one cupful of large white grapes, cut into dice three slices of pineapple; mix all together and arrange on lettuce. Mask with cream dressing and garnish each serving with a cherry and half of a walnut.

Seasonable Good Things.

For those who do not care for the luscious mince pie of our New England grandmothers this may be liked:

Nut Mince Pie.—Mix together in order given one-half cupful each of chopped walnut meats and raisins, one cupful of chopped apple, one-half cupful of dark corn syrup, one-fourth cupful each of cider vinegar, molasses and any kind of canned fruit juice, one-half teaspoonful each of allspice and cloves and one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and salt. Add enough crushed crackers to make the mixture of the right consistency and fill a large pastry-lined plate. Cover with pastry and bake slowly in a moderate oven.

Luncheon Croquettes.—Take three-fourths of a pound of cottage cheese, one cupful of chopped carrots, one onion chopped fine, one tablespoonful of flour, two eggs, salt and pepper to taste. Boil the carrots and onion until tender. Season the cheese, add one egg well beaten, then the cooked vegetables. Mold into croquette shapes, roll in cornmeal, dip into a beaten egg and fry in deep fat until crisp and brown. Serve with or without a sauce.

Fig Marmalade.—After washing one pound of pulled figs, soak them overnight, then cut fine and put over the fire with the water in which they were cooked. Cook until tender, add the rind of a lemon, grated, two ounces of chopped candied or preserved ginger, then the juice from one lemon and two cupfuls of sugar. Simmer until thick. Pour into small glasses.

Steamed English Currant Pudding.—Prepare a rich biscuit dough, roll out one-half-inch thick in a long strip. Spread over the dough a layer of preserved currants, roll up, lap the ends, lay in a cheesecloth and boil or steam for an hour. Serve with cream and sugar.

Cabbage With Cheese.—Cook a firm, shapely head of cabbage, removing as much of the heart as possible without spoiling the shape. When well-cooked in salt water drain and place on a hot flat plate. Pour over it a rich white sauce, to which one cupful of finely grated or minced cheese has been added. Stir until the cheese is dissolved before adding to the cabbage. Serve cut into pie-shape pieces. This is not only an appetizing dish but one which is most attractive in appearance.

Wanted a Witness

Dora's aunt gloomed at her severely over the breakfast table. "As I glanced into the drawing-room last evening, I saw you with a young man's arm around your waist."

"Yes, auntie," said Dora brightly. "I was waiting for you to pass the door and see us. You see, young men are so very slippery nowadays, one can't have too many witnesses!"

I had been this way more or less for ten years, but the last two years was just terrible. I took medicines, but got little relief until I began to take the Vegetable Compound. I took three bottles before I could see any change at all. I have taken seven in all and am improving right along. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and take the Liver Pills. Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

BLOCKING THE WAY

THOSE apostles of laziness who can never find time to do anything as it ought to be done are crossly through life complaining in their serious moments that they are lagging leagues behind their rivals, and never getting anywhere. They admit this without any apparent sense of shame or compunction of conscience. Sometimes to their intimates of like ilk they boast of their shortcomings in a spirit of bravado. A business that distinguishes them from what they disdainfully term the "common class," to whom they will scarcely nod a courteous good morning, needs in their minds to put them upon a worshipful pedestal. Daily they go about their task in an altho manner, shunning responsibility as a lion avoids a pool of water. Everything they do is half done. Careless in observing how the proficient save time and energy, and thus make of work a pleasure instead of a drag, these listless persons are always in trouble, scowling and finding fault, even when everything about them is cheerful. Their desks or benches are continually in confusion, quite in keeping with their unsystematic minds. When urgently needed no paper or tool is in sight or reach. It is generally hidden somewhere in a disordered heap. Precious minutes are lost while searching for the elusive thing, and should the task of finding it happen to be more vexatious than usual, some innocent fellow-worker is openly charged with pilfering. Then a storm breaks and the atmosphere is surcharged with anger, which in the customary silliness of cooling off is likely to leave the principals for days and days in sulky humors. Persons of this character are doomed to fail in everything they undertake, except in the making of quarrels and the wrecking of friendships. Blameful themselves, they pile their sins on the blameless. Whenever they are found there is turmoil, inefficiency, disloyalty and unhappiness, four danger signals which block the way in every track of endeavor to promotion to the higher ranks.

to it, having originally been Moody-man or valiant man. Endoubtedly the family is of English origin. The first to settle here was William Moody of Ipswich, England, who came to this country in the Mary and John in 1633 and first settled at Bayfield, Mass. In the home he built there, his heirs were born for the next two hundred and twenty years. It is said that this William Moody belonged to an ancient English family which "went down with the house of Lancaster in 1471." William married Sarah Pierce and had four sons, whose names were Samuel, Joshua, Caleb and William. Josiah, a Harvard graduate, was a famous minister in his day, which was the ancestor of Dwight Moody. It is the boast of the Moody family that from the time of Joshua Moody the family never lacked for an exceptionally great preacher. Joshua outshone them in the Seventeenth century, Samuel in the Eighteenth and Dwight Moody in the Nineteenth century. SEASONABLE FOODS

FOR a luncheon or dinner dish the following will be enjoyed:
Browned Pressed Veal.
Cook three and one-half pounds of veal and one-half pound of lean pork until the meat falls from the bones. Season and reduce the liquor to three-quarters of a pint. Pour this over the meat and mix thoroughly, then pack in a pan. When cold, slice, dip in egg and crumbs and brown in butter.

Banana Fluff.
Cut seven bananas into slices, sprinkle with lemon juice and sliced coconut; let stand an hour on ice. Put the fruit through a fruit press and add one cupful lacking a tablespoonful of powdered sugar. Fold into the mixture the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs and turn into a freezer; turn until it begins to turn hard, then add a pint of cream that has been whipped until stiff.

Curried Bananas.
Put a cupful of desiccated coconut into a dish with a cupful of milk; if the fresh coconut is used add its own milk, if enough. Peel and slice a half-dozen bananas and put them with two tablespoonfuls of butter in which a tablespoonful of curry has been heated; brown lightly. Add a teaspoonful of the essence of anchovies, a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne and, last of all, the coconut and milk. Simmer for fifteen minutes, then stir in a well-beaten egg. Serve in a well of freshly bottled rice.

Famous Americans Born in Month of February

Children born in February have all the odds of obtaining greatness in their favor. Figures compiled by Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, director of the Hall of Fame, show that more men and women enrolled in the hall were born during February than in any other month. Twelve of the sixty-three persons who have niches in the hall had their birthdays that month. They were Mark Hopkins, February 4; William Tecumseh Sherman, February 8; Daniel Boone, February 11; Peter Cooper, February 12; Abraham Lincoln, February 12; George Peabody, February 18; Alice P. woman Palmer, February 21; George Washington, February 22; James Russell Lowell, February 22; Emma Willard, February 23; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, February 27, and Mary Lyon, February 28. Doctor Johnson's list showed that April was second with eight Hall of Fame members. June was last with only two.

The work required infinite patience. In ancient times in the Far East and in Europe crystals were supposed to be ice in permanent form. In Japan small crystals were said to be the breath of the Great White Dragon, while the larger ones were supposed to come from the Violet Dragon.

Most headaches due to lack of internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons form in the accumulated food waste and are carried to all parts of the body. Headaches follow. Biliousness, insomnia, lack of energy, all result from constipation, which if unchecked will lead to serious results.

Avoid Laxatives—Say Doctors

A noted authority says that laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition. Medical science has found in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless. Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

McCORMICK-DEERING

There is a Reason!

There is a reason why McCormick-Deering Tractors are increasing in popularity by leaps and bounds. There is a reason why these sturdy, completely equipped tractors are rapidly replacing cheaper tractors in all sections of the country. There is a reason, also, why the farmers and orchardists of one county in California bought, during 1924, over a hundred McCormick-Deering tractors—more than all other makes combined in the same period.

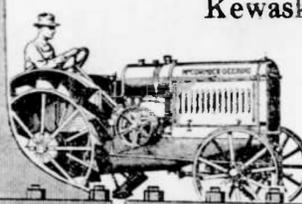

The reason is that McCormick-Deering 10-20 and 15-30 Tractors are the long-lived kind, and are by far the most economical per year of service.

The crankshaft and crankball bearings in every McCormick-Deering are guaranteed against breakage for life. There are ball and roller bearings at 28 points, and all wearing parts, including cylinders, are replaceable. Entire frame is in one sturdy unit. All gears and important wearing parts are enclosed, running in oil. All parts are easily accessible, easily removed. Complete equipment includes throttle governor, wide platform, adjustable drawbar, Alemite lubricating system, impulse magnets, fenders, etc. Weight is distributed perfectly for good traction and safe operation. Short turning radius for convenient handling.

All in all, the McCormick-Deering is the tractor for every farmer in this community. Let us show you what it will do for you, then we'll tell you how easily you can own one.

O. K.'S SEARCHING AUTOS FOR BOOZE

U. S. Supreme Court Holds No Warrant Is Necessary to Hunt Rum.

Washington.—Federal prohibition agents may lawfully stop automobiles and other vehicles and search them for contraband liquor without a warrant, the Supreme court decided in a case from Michigan brought by George Carroll and John Kiro.

In another liquor case decision, brought from Georgia by Sig Samuels, the court held that states may, under the Constitution, make unlawful the possession of liquor acquired legally before enactment of the federal prohibition act.

Chief Justice Taft delivered the opinion. Justices McReynolds and Sutherland dissenting in the former, and Justice Butler in the latter.

It was the intent of congress to make a distinction between the necessity for a search warrant in the searching of private dwellings and of automobiles, the chief justice stated.

There is no provision in the Constitution which demands all searches of autos without a warrant, he said, adding that it prohibits only "unreasonable" searches or seizures.

The rule to be applied in determining the legality of a seizure without a warrant, as laid down by the court, is whether the seizing officer has reasonable or probable cause for believing the automobile has contraband liquor in it which is being illegally transported.

This is ample protection to the individual, in the opinion of the court. Carroll and Kiro had been negotiating with federal enforcement agents for the sale of liquor, and the court held there was ample justification for the stopping and searching of their automobile near Grand Rapids, Mich., without a warrant.

Justice McReynolds and Justice Sutherland were of the opinion the rule was unconstitutional. They protested against the arrest and search of persons upon mere suspicion, and declared evidence so procured should not be used in the courts.

In the Georgia case it had been shown that Samuels had placed in his collar liquor lawfully obtained before the passage of the prohibition law, and before the state of Georgia made possession of intoxicating liquor unlawful. Chief Justice Taft asserted that states could make unlawful the possession of such liquor even though it was permitted by the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

Clark, Last of Copper Kings, Dies in Gotham

New York.—Ex-Senator William A. Clark, eighty-six years of age, last of the Montana copper "kings," and rated as one of the fifth men in the world, died at his Fifth avenue mansion. He was a victim of pneumonia. His death came within twenty-four hours of the announcement that his daughter, Mrs. Mary Clark Kling, had become the secret bride of Marius De Lathauz of Los Angeles.

Mr. Clark died in the magnificent home where he had amassed an art collection valued at $3,000,000, to which he admitted the public occasionally.

Seven Persons Killed in Canada by Quake

Quebec.—The earthquake which shook the eastern half of the United States, including Chicago, is charged with seven deaths in Quebec and the St. Lawrence river district of Canada. One death was in this city. Five occurred at points along the south shore of the St. Lawrence, where people are reported to have been killed either from shock or from falling chimneys.

The seventh was at St. Anne de la Parade, about 75 miles from here, where an aged woman died from shock.

The point where the quake is believed to have been most severe is at St. Paul's bay, 90 miles below Quebec, where the earth is reported to have "shimmied" for 25 minutes.

The Roman Catholic church here was wrecked and many homes were demolished. The Palais station in Quebec was badly damaged.

PRESIDENT EBERT OF GERMANY DIES

Succumbs After Operation for Appendicitis.

Berlin.—Friedrich Ebert, first President of the German republic, died here on Saturday morning. President Ebert recently was operated on for appendicitis. Peritonitis developed and his physicians abandoned hope for his recovery.

Friedrich Ebert was born in Heidenberg in 1871. The son of a tailor, he turned to the trades and became a harness maker.

Later he became interested in politics and took an active part in the activities of the Socialist party. He became the editor of a Socialist paper and in 1900 was elected to the Bremen city council on the Socialist ticket.

In 1912 he was sent to the Reichstag from Bremen and a year later was elected leader of the Socialist party. When the imperial government collapsed and the kaiser and crown prince fled from the country, Prince Max of Baden, who had been appointed regent, named Deputy Ebert chancellor.

On February 11, 1919, he was elected President of the German republic. Though he proved too conservative for many of his former Socialist supporters, during the crisis in which he crushed Bolshevism and held the warring sections of the young republic together, President Ebert was essentially a man of the people.

Stepping from the simplicity of a workman's life to the glamour of a politician was not altogether to his liking, from a social point of view. Nor was his simple, home-loving wife, Frau Luise Ebert, overwhelmed by the climb to fame.

President Has Power to Pardon Guilty of Contempt

Washington.—The President possesses unlimited power under the Constitution to pardon persons held guilty of criminal contempt of the federal courts, and that power is entrusted to the Executive to afford a check on possible judicial inflexibility.

This is the gist of a decision handed down by the Supreme court in the case of Philip Grossman of Chicago, who was pardoned by President Coolidge of criminal contempt of the Federal district court. The opinion, read by Chief Justice Taft and from which there was no dissent, frankly concluded the wisdom of the provision of this check upon the judiciary.

QUAKE SHAKES ONE-HALF U. S.

Center of Shocks Placed Somewhere in Vicinity of Great Lakes.

Chicago.—An earthquake, said to have been the severest that has shaken the United States since 1775, was felt throughout the nation Saturday night. The tremors, which varied in duration from one to ten minutes, affected the New England states, southeastern Canada, the eastern seaboard as far south as Florida and the West and Southwest as far as the Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

According to Prof. B. E. Johnson at the University of Chicago observatory of the United States weather bureau, the center of the quake was about 800 miles from Chicago.

The seismograph at the university recorded the severest shock at exactly 8:25 p. m. Slighter tremors were still being recorded at 10:25.

Locally the shock was felt for a minute, and it extended to all parts of the city. Numbers of residents were alarmed and left their homes. Others reported the swaying of pictures and furniture.

Washington.—While "lesser shocks" are "probable" in the region shaken by the earthquake, Father Tendorf, Georgetown university seismologist, said no disturbance of pronounced intensity was to be expected.

The disturbance, he estimated after careful study of the grams of his five seismographs, centered about 620 miles from Washington, and its "epicentral point" was somewhere in the vicinity of the Great Lakes, with the "break" possibly at a depth of ten miles.

Toronto.—Officials of the meteorological office were unable to state definitely the extent of the earth tremors. The roof and walls of St. Mary's cathedral in Shawinigan Falls, Quebec, were cracked and in Montreal several plate glass windows were broken.

Senator-Elect Deneen Given McCormick's Seat

Chicago.—Senator-elect Charles S. Deneen was appointed by Governor Small to fill out the remaining days of the term of Senator Merrill McCormick of Illinois in Washington, who died on Wednesday. Bartley was graduated from Indiana university at Bloomington, where he began newspaper work.

Rivers, Harbors Bill Passed by the Senate

Washington.—A deadlock which threatened to tie up rivers and harbors legislation ended with the passage of the bill without a record vote. The bill, previously passed by the house and authorizing expenditures aggregating about $41,000,000, had been before the senate the greater part of the day and evening. The total in the senate bill was about $20,000,000 more than carried in the house measure.

Nick Longworth Will Be Next Speaker of House

Washington.—Representative Longworth of Ohio will be the speaker of the house of representatives. He was nominated over Representative Martin B. Madden of Chicago at a caucus of the Republican representatives in the Sixty-ninth congress. The vote was: Longworth, 141; Madden, 85.

This action is equivalent to election, as the Republicans have a decisive majority in the new house.

Chicago.—Fire of an unknown origin, that for a time threatened to spread to other parts of the stock yards, destroyed a beef-cutting plant of Armour & Co., at Forty-third and Loomis streets. The loss was estimated at more than $300,000.

Sheep and cattle in pens near the burning building were in jeopardy and as the blaze increased in intensity they were removed to other pens.

The TRUANT SOUL

"WHO'S THERE?"

SYNOPSIS—Nurses in the southern hospital at Avonmouth are agitated by the insolent treatment accorded them by Dr. John Lancaster, head of the institution, and there is a general strike of unrest, into which Joan Wentworth, probationary nurse, is drawn. Doctor Lancaster is performing a difficult operation, for which he has won fame. Joan, with other nurses, is in attendance. She is upset, through no fault of her own, and makes a trivial blunder at a critical moment. The patient dies and Doctor Lancaster accuses her of clumsiness. She is suspended, her actions meaning the end of her hope of a career as a nurse. Without relatives or friends, and desperate, Joan, urged by her secretary, goes to Doctor Lancaster and asks him to overlook her blunder and renege her. She overhears a violent altercation between Doctor Lancaster and other men she does not see. Joan is struck by the favorable change in the appearance and demeanor of the doctor, recalling that at times in the hospital he has been gentle and thoughtful and at others supercilious and bullying. He tells her he can do nothing for her at the hospital, but offers her a position in a nursing institution in the country, telling her she can be of "great assistance" to him. A man named Myers demands she tell him what the doctor had said to her. She denies him the information, and he covetously threatens her. At the institution, which is owned by Doctor Lancaster, Joan finds Myers. He tells her he is the secretary, she instinctively dislikes and fears him. The only patient at the institution is a Mrs. Dana, demurely but haughtily. Joan is vaguely uneasy, feeling that there is some mystery about the place. Doctor Lancaster arrives, accuses her of deceiving him, declaring her intention of leaving. He tells her he is the patient who needs her, saying he wants to help in a "big way," but makes no further explanation. She decides to stay. Evidently Doctor Lancaster is afraid of Myers, and Joan discovers that the doctor is a victim of the morphine habit. Joan takes charge of him, helping him to overcome temporarily his craving for the drug. Myers accuses her of "meddling," but she refuses to leave or to give up her care of the patient. Mrs. Fraser, the matron, admits all at the institution are afraid of Myers, but will say why. She begs Joan to "save" the doctor. Joan in a measure succeeds in freeing Lancaster from his craving for drugs.

remember what Jenkins said this morning. You must go slowly with a confirmed drug-user like myself.

"Stop! Don't listen to me!" he added suddenly. "You can trust me, Miss Wentworth. I'm going to fight this out, and win."

"You are winning," answered Joan, bending over him. "Don't forget that. Say I am winning whenever the pain seems uncontrollable and your will seems gone. It won't last long, Doctor Lancaster, you are your own self at this moment, and nothing can harm you. Fight the good fight!"

He caught her hand and carried it to his lips. "Miss Wentworth, you are my good angel!" he cried. "I secured the services of an angel unawares," he added, looking at her with that pathetic humor which went straight to her heart. "I want to win for your sake. But why are you taking so much trouble for a worthless old fellow like me?"

"Don't flatter yourself that it is all for you, Doctor Lancaster. Perhaps I may want to save the most distinguished surgeon in the South."

At her words he started; he stared at her, and then fell back upon the pillow, hiding his face. Joan turned away. Again she had touched some hidden spring of memory; what it was she could not know, but it was evident that she had wounded him to the quick.

Perhaps it was the contrast between the office he held and the man he had become. Perhaps it was the knowledge of his secret bondage which had broken him down at last and driven him back to the institute and Myers.

"Miss Wentworth, I want you to lock my door and take away the key," he said. "I may have a secret supply somewhere."

"I don't think you have," answered Joan. "You have none in this room, have you?"

"No."

"I believe that. And, anyway, I am going to trust you. That is part of your fight. I am going to trust you till six."

He said good night in a low tone and turned away. Joan went up to her room. She lay down, but did not undress. She was afraid, and she admitted that she was afraid, and nothing but Lancaster's desperate need of her would have kept her an hour longer in the institute. But she was exhausted from the day, and soon she was asleep.

She slept that sleep which brings no recreation for the jaded body or the overwrought mind. All the while she was back with Lancaster in his room below, in spirit. She knew that, as he had said, the drug bondage was only the climax of his difficulties. What had there been that had wrecked the man? Jenkins' hint at stolen funds? Of one thing she was sure: Lancaster, sunk as he was, was incapable of dishonesty. No, she must have played a wrong construction on Jenkins' words.

And in her sleep her brain went on puzzling over the problem. Only her body was quiescent, and it lay wearily in the bed like some chained captive.

But suddenly the urgent summons of the brain shook from it the fragments of sleep. Joan listened intently, awake upon the instant, as some wild creature of the woods that senses danger. Somebody was coming along the corridor.

The footfalls were so soft and stealthy that she might have thought she was dreaming but for the sense of imminent danger, the knowledge of some malevolent design. The steps stopped and began again, the merest touches of sound against the silence of night, the lightest pattering of bare feet outside the door.

Then the door began to open.

There was no moon, and the faint starlight outside only seemed to render darker the obscurity within. Yet, through the darkness Joan knew that a hand lay on the door jamb, and that a figure watched her across the room.

She leaped from her bed. "Who's there?" she called, in tones that seemed to shock the silence.

She could see nothing now, and she dared not turn aside to light her lamp. She knew that the figure was crouching somewhere. She heard the softest breathing, but could not locate it in the room. She felt the atmosphere of evil that surrounded her. She started to cross the room, groping, with arms outstretched. Then she found the intruder had hung herself upon it.

Her left hand closed about a wrist, supple and strong. Her right hand held another hand. They wrestled in the darkness, their bodies tense but motionless, only the hands and wrist muscles at strife. Not a sound came from their lips.

Joan thought it was a woman's hands she held. Her fingers sought the menace in the closed lists. The left hand of the intruder was empty; but in the right was a jagged piece of a broken tumbler that tinkled to the floor.

Chapter VII

Joan had had supper with Lancaster, and it was night, and once more the fight was raging.

She had sat on the veranda with him, had talked with him, had seen the better soul of the man rise to the surface as he struggled with the morphine devil; then she had given him his half dose again, and, as his strength revived and the agony departed, she had seen the facile, lying spirit enter into him.

He was lying, wrapped in his dressing gown, upon his bed, and she sat at his side, at grips with the devil in him that clamored for its victim's body, that it might possess it entirely, as surely a devil as any spirit of evil, though its shrine was a little glass bottle holding a few drops of fluid.

She was fighting for Lancaster, fighting for the better Lancaster again, and he was writhing in torment and pleading with her to go, to leave him to his fate, since the suffering was intolerable and subjection preferable.

There was an hour of hideous battle, but somehow she managed to keep him quiet till midnight. And, seated beside him, watching him, Joan came to the conclusion that this was one of those strange cases of double personality of which she had read in medical books. It was impossible to reconcile this Lancaster in any way with the man whom she had seen—mentally at the hospital, and with the tyrant of the operating room. For that man was essentially base and ignoble, and this man was honor and truth, when the morphine fiend retired, baffled for a space, and under that pitiful load of shame she sensed the cleanness of the man's soul and its integrity.

Somehow she held his devil at bay until midnight, and then, with a second victory to his credit, he stretched out his arm for the hypodermic. Then Joan saw the look of contentment come into his face, heard the satisfied sigh—and there was the old Lancaster before her, shifty, furtive and false.

No, not altogether, for something of that victory remained with him, the promise of renewed manhood; the morphine devil was losing its grip. Ground had been won. It should never be ceded. Joan swore that she watched by the bedside.

"Doctor Lancaster, you have promised me to sleep till six," she said. "Can I trust you?"

"How can you doubt my word, Miss Wentworth?" asked Lancaster, with an affection of surprise. "Of course you can. You know, I am not a regular user of drugs. I have been overworked, and I took morphine to make me sleep, and somehow it got hold of me. I think I must be unusually susceptible to the drug."

The old lie of the stupid drug devil! But Joan had the storekeeper key, and she knew that it would require a hammer or a pick to break down the strong door. And she would wake and hear him and fight again as she had fought that morning.

"Then I am going to bed till six," she said.

"But, Miss Wentworth," he protested, "six hours is an impossibly long period. Every three hours is my time, and now that I am on half-doses—you

LOOKING IN ON THE LEGISLATURE

Public logging for convicted wife beaters is provided for in a bill introduced in the legislature by Senator Ben Gortelmann, Milwaukee.

The bill provides that between the hours of sunrise and sunset every man whose wife shall be whipped or beaten or throng in the courthouse yard, within full view of the public.

For the first offense the sheriff or a deputy would administer nine strokes of the whip, and for each succeeding offense 25 lashes would be applied. All the lashes to be on the exposed back.

The assembly has put on final passage a bill lengthening county school terms from eight to nine months and a bill aimed to prohibit the holding of a referendum.

It killed the Raible bill to permit men not lawyers to hold the office of county judge in counties of less than 17,000 population and the Thomason bill for the semi-annual payment of taxes.

Gasoline Tax Passes Senate The administration highway bill, carrying a distribution program of approximately $15,000,000 raised from automobile weight tax, a 2-cent gasoline tax and federal aid, has passed the state senate with but one dissenting vote, which was cast by Senator White of Winnebago.

Four amendments to the bill were voted down. One of these was introduced by Senator Titus, Fond du Lac, who sought to reduce the automobile registration fee contemplated under the bill to $10.

The bill now goes to the assembly, where it is slated for early consideration. Never before in Wisconsin history has a bill of such major importance and with as much money involved had such rapid progress through a legislative body. It is said.

Eugenics Law Change Defeated The attempt of Miss Mildred Barber, Marathon assemblywoman, to widen the scope of the Wisconsin eugenics law was defeated by the assembly, 66 to 29. That body voted the measure, which would have required physical and mental examinations of women as well as men before issuance of marriage licenses, to indefinite postponement.

Miss Barber declared the measure was intended to give the same protection to men contemplating marriage that now is afforded to women and to protect the public generally.

The Minnesota legislature is asked to appoint a committee to join with a Wisconsin group to investigate alleged pollution of boundary waters between the two states in a resolution currently in the assembly. The state senate already has adopted the resolution.

The senate has refused, 14 to 18, to order to enrollment and third reading a resolution by Senator Walter Polakowski for the creation of a state printing plant.

Committee O. K.'s Tax Bill Passage of the administration tax bill has been recommended by the senate finance committee by a vote of 3 to 2.

This is the measure which repeals the personal property offset, places a franchise tax of 4 per cent on corporations and a tax on dividends.

The senate finance committee also recommended indefinite postponement of the bill by Senator Oscar H. Morris of Milwaukee, reducing income taxes 25 per cent, and declaring the public policy of the state concerning taxation. The vote on this measure also was 3 to 2.

The lower house also killed the Cady bill directing the state tax commission to prepare data covering the cost of the present state administration for the last three years as compared with the last three years of the preceding administration.

End of Capitol "Proms" Seen Permission to use the state capitol for promenades and balls, other than official or legislative functions, probably will be denied in the future, as a result of statements made on the floor of the state senate in connection with the holding of the recent junior prom of the University of Wisconsin.

A large number of senators went on record as favoring a resolution which would bar the use of the capitol to all such organizations seeking permission after this year.

In the course of debate on the question of granting permission to the cadet corps of the state university for a military ball, half a dozen senators claimed the prom had been improperly conducted and that hoodlums had been taken out in 1925.

The number of the bill brought sharemate to the function by the drinking of liquor and unseemly conduct.
