AREA TEST HEARING HELD AT WEST BEND

A hearing was held at West Bend Thursday on the petitions circulated among farmers, calling for an area bovine tuberculosis test in Washington county. Dr. Larson, State Veterinarian conducted the meeting, which was attended in spite of bad weather conditions. No objections were raised affecting the legality of the petitions signed by over sixty per cent of the cattle owners of the county, consequently the petitions were declared legal.

SOUTH ELMORE

Ewald Rauch of Kewaskum spent Sunday with home folks. Mrs. Ed. Scheid and sons called on Mrs. E. Reinhardt Sunday. Henry Struebing of Elmore spent Sunday with N. Reinhardt. Mrs. Geo. Klein spent Monday afternoon with Mrs. Philip Jung. Walter Keller called at the A. Eichstadt home near Batavia Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Sidek of Milwaukee called on Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jung Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rauch spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Christ Mathieu. Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Jung of Barton spent Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scheid. Mabel Lade and Bill Elsner of Fond du Lac visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Mike Scheid and family. Marcella Mathieu and Lorinda and Ludmilla Mathieu visited Sunday evening with Miss Mildred Rauch. Miss Marcella Mathieu of Elmore visited a few days with Miss Lorinda Mathieu. She returned home Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Spradow and Eldon of Lomira visited Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Klein and family. Erwin Basler, Mr. and Mrs. Ch. Scheid and Miss Lena Jung were business callers at Kewaskum Friday afternoon. The Misses Lorinda and Ludmilla Mathieu, Erna Glass, Martha Buch and Esther and Lena Jung and brother Wilmer visited a pleasant Monday evening with Miss Ethel Reinhardt and brother Bill. About thirty-five neighbors and friends gathered at the home of John Jung Saturday evening to celebrate Mr. Jung's birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Zielicke and son Aaron, Emil Broecker, Geo. Wehling Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rauch and family, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Klein and sons Ferney and Melvin, Mr. and Mrs. Christ Mathieu, Mr. and Mrs. H. Jung and Martha Buch, Mr. and Mrs. Ph. Jung and family, Mrs. H. Rauch and brothers and Ewald Rauch of Kewaskum. The evening was spent in playing cards and social conversation. At 12 o'clock a delicious lunch was served by Mrs. Jung assisted by Mildred Rauch, Martha Buch and Lena Jung, after which the guests departed wishing Mr. Jung many more such celebrations.

TO HOLD EXAMINATION FOR RURAL CARRIER

The United States Civil Service Commission has announced an examination to be held at Kewaskum, Wis., receipt of applications for which will close March 17, 1926 to fill the position of rural carrier at Kewaskum, Wis., and vacancies that may later occur on rural routes from that post office. The date of examination will be stated on admission cards mailed to applicants after the close of receipt of applications. The salary of a rural carrier is $1,300 per annum with an additional $20 per mile per annum for each mile or fraction thereof in excess of 21 miles. The salary on shorter routes varies from $2,450 to $2,600 per annum, according to length. Appointments to both positions will be made from the same register. The examination will be open only to citizens who are actually domiciled in the territory of the post office where the vacancy exists. Applications must be on file with the commission at Washington, D. C., prior to the close of business on the date specified above. At the examination, applicants must furnish unmounted photographs of themselves taken within two years.

ACCOMPLISHED FARMER-MUSICIAN

Herbert Fromm, one of the Fromm brothers who operate a silver fox farm near Merrill, Wis., and a former resident of Washington county, is not only successful in the raising of silver foxes, but has also gained the reputation of being an accomplished musician. An article appearing in Sunday's Milwaukee Journal gives the following glowing account of Mr. Fromm:

"So busy making money on the farm that he hasn't time to take advantage of his artistic talents on the concert stage is the peculiar dilemma which confronts Herbert Fromm, one of the Fromm brothers of silver fox fame, whose home is at Hamburg, Wis. A master of the piano and violin he lately has become an accomplished accordion player. His fox farm and ginseng growing activities have kept him from accepting several attractive offers to do concert work.

"Mr. Fromm studied the violin for 10 years and has done some concert work both with that instrument and the piano. Just now, however, his chief interest is in perfecting a mastery of the accordion, which he says his work made easy for him to learn to play. He has an expensive 120-key instrument and has been pronounced by music critics in this district as much superior to many of the present day accordion concert artists.

"A few public appearances have been made by Mr. Fromm in the last year at local theaters, lodges and community gatherings, but his engagements at a few of these have had to be broken by pressing duties at the farm, he says. Asked what music critics had to say of his skill on the accordion, Mr. Fromm explained that his Alsatian shepherd and hunting dogs "howl their appreciation" when he plays selections from the Italian operas at his farm home.

"Scorning jazz and modern 'tunes' that lend themselves so well to the gymnastic execution of the long haired concertina artist, Mr. Fromm plays only the favorite operas and German concert waltzes and military marches. "Mr. Fromm's playing is unusual for one not on the concert stage," was the comment of Leon Matthews, secretary of the Wausau Conservatory of Music, who has taken a great interest in the fox farmer artist. "He plays only the best of the operas and classics and the repertoire of difficult operas which he has memorized is astonishing."

"Mr. Fromm is from a musical family. The six brothers and their father used to have their own family orchestra. The days before the fox farm prosperity are well remembered by Mr. Fromm—days when the family lived in a log cabin.

"Father used to play the violin every evening," Mr. Fromm recalls. "After we had gone to sleep father would hang the violin up on a rafter so high that none of us boys could reach it."

"Provision for taking care of his farm interests so as to enable him to follow a musical career for a time is being considered by Mr. Fromm, who says that if he makes such an arrangement he probably will go into vaudeville."

Mrs. William Hennings visited with her sister, Mrs. M. Calvey Thursday. Henry Ramthun is sporting a new Overland sedan and so is Frank Kutz. Clyde Hennings installed a radio in the home of Mrs. B. G. Romaine. Mr. and Mrs. Anton Seifert and son Clarence were business callers at Milwaukee, and while there visited relatives for a few days this week.

Louis Ramthun recently purchased an Olds sedan from Mr. Morris of Waukesha. Mrs. M. Calvey entertained Mr. and Mrs. Anton Seifert and Mr. and Mrs. William Hennings at a 6 o'clock dinner Tuesday evening, in honor of Mrs. Hennings, Mrs. Seifert and Mrs. Mich Calvey's birthday anniversaries, which all occurred in the same week. Mr. and Mrs. George Romaine and Mrs. Anna Romaine all of New Prospect were entertained at the William Hennings' home Sunday. George Theyer and Norman Seifert visited Sunday afternoon and evening with Vincent Calvey. Aton Seifert and son Clarence were business callers at Fond du Lac Saturday.

WEST BEND PEOPLE IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Nic Fellenz of West Bend, had an experience last Sunday evening which they will no doubt long remember, when the Buick touring car in which they were riding tipped upside down in the ditch on Highway No. 28, near the William Ramthun farm home about three-quarters of a mile east of this village. Mr. and Mrs. Fellenz had spent the day with Mrs. Fellenz parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Radtke, and were on their way home. When they reached a point near the Ramthun farm home the car started to skid on the slippery road tipped over in the ditch, pinning the occupants beneath. Mr. and Mrs. Fellenz were extricated from underneath the wreck by occupants of another car who happened to drive along shortly after the accident had occurred. The unfortunate people were brought to this village where Mrs. Fellenz, who had suffered a sprained wrist was given medical attention. Mr. Fellenz escaped injury. The machine was not badly wrecked.

BOLFONVILLE

Louis Vorpahl Sr., is quite ill at this writing. Mrs. Art. Woog is quite ill with pneumonia. Emil Dettman is the owner of a new Studebaker sedan. Al. Koth and Erna Burkholz spent Monday at Milwaukee. Joe Weiss was a business caller at Kewaskum Wednesday. Mr. and Mrs. O. Liepert were Kewaskum callers Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. O. Marshman were Kewaskum callers Tuesday. Rev. J. Bloede called on the C. Eisentraut family Monday afternoon. Mrs. Chas. Eisentraut spent Saturday evening with Mrs. Frank Oettinger. Mrs. Emley of Batavia is spending some time at the Frank Oettinger home. The program held here in the school hall on Tuesday evening was quite largely attended. Mrs. Augusta Schiewel of Batavia is spending some time here with the Art Woog family. Mrs. Frank Oettinger is able to get up again after being confined to her bed the past week. Mrs. Julius Geier of St. Michaels is spending some time with the Frank Oettinger family. Alex Pesch of the town of Scott is employed at the Wm. Faricht home for the coming summer. Mr. and Mrs. O. Liepert and Mr. and Mrs. W. Lionart and children spent Sunday with the Frank Oettinger family at New Fane. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Stutz of West Bend and Clifford Stutz and wife of Milwaukee spent Sunday with the Chas. Stutz family. Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Stutz and Clifford Stutz and wife spent Sunday evening with the Oscar Schneider family near Batavia. Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Marshman, Cora Marshman, Walter Lionart, Edie Crestena and Louis Mattinger were very pleasantly entertained at the Mrs. Geo. Mattinger home Tuesday evening. The occasion being her son Lawrence's birthday anniversary.

SAW A WOLF AT RICHFIELD

A large sized gray wolf, particularly noted by his large sharp-pointed ears and stubby but bushy tail, was observed in the vicinity of Richfield Tuesday by Dr. Wiley Seoby of Milwaukee, who had been visiting in Richfield and was on his way home to Milwaukee. Mr. Seoby, in company with another Hartford party were motoring east on highway 15 and when about a half mile east of the village of Richfield, his attention was called to an animal near a farm yard that did not resemble a dog. As the four-footed creature observed the automobile it set out across country at a rapid pace, heading west, presumably for some of the swamp land regions around Holy Hill.—Hartford Times.

"THE HOME MAKER" REALISTIC PICTURE

Physicians may find something to interest them in "The Home Maker" Universal-Jewel King Baggot production featuring Alice Joyce and Olive Brook and directed by King Baggot. It will be screened at the Opera House tomorrow, Sunday. The point of particular interest to the medical profession has to do with the age-old question—"Should a doctor tell?" There is scarcely a physician or surgeon in the country who at some time or another in his career has not been called upon to answer just that question and has had to find the answer to it in his own conscience. Sometimes it has confronted him in a law court and sometimes he has faced it in his own office or in the bosom of the family whose doctor he has been for years. However, it is doubtful if more than a few have ever been called upon to answer the question under the same circumstances as was Dr. Merritt in "The Home Maker." This part is played by George Fawcett, one of the screen's foremost character actors. Dr. Merritt has been the Knapp family physician for years and has peered deep into their troubles. Lester Knapp, the character impersonated by Brook is suffering from paralysis, paralyzed from the hips down. (Then one day his wife, Eva Knapp. (Miss Joyce) discovers a change in his condition unknown to Lester. She summons the doctor. Later Lester too has become aware of the change. Dr. Merritt arrives at the house and learns that Eva's suspicions are correct, having interviewed Knapp alone. Knapp pleads with the doctor not to tell Eva. Dr. Merritt says it cannot be done, that he must tell Mrs. Knapp. The doctor struggles with his own conscience—should he tell? Knapp redoubles his pleas and finally wins the doctor to his way of thinking. Dr. Merritt keeps the secret. Doctors may disagree on the question of whether Dr. Merritt did the right or the wrong thing.

OLD SETTLERS MEET

The fifty-first annual gathering of the Washington County Old Settlers' club, held in the Masonic temple in this city on Monday, was a success—a most enjoyable affair, one which reflected great credit upon the very able and painstaking officers of the club, to all participants in the excellent program, and to the sturdy old pioneers who came to the gathering to prove their loyalty to the organization in which they have the honor of being members. The reception committee was on the job, giving all the glad hand, to young settlers as well as to the pioneers, their cordial greetings making all who entered the hall feel at home among friends, and from the time the members of the club were welcomed until they bid a fond goodbye upon leaving, their stay was a continuous pleasure—a get-together better than which none was more interesting in the history of the club.—West Bend Pilot.

APPOINT ANOTHER TRAFFIC OFFICER

Sheriff John Frey, County Clerk R. G. Kraemer and Highway Commissioner Chas. H. Johnson, Washington County's Traffic officers committee, met at the court house at West Bend last Wednesday and appointed Bernard Gehring of St. Lawrence as the third traffic officer for Washington county, to patrol highways 15 and 55. If Mr. Gehring proves himself to be as efficient as Arthur "Boots" Jacob of West Bend and Julius Korlinske of Hartford, present officers, Washington county's main traveled highways will be patrolled by as able officers as can be found anywhere in the state.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given to the qualified electors of Joint School District No. 5, of the Town and Village of Kewaskum, that a special meeting of said district will be held on the 5th day of March 1926 at eight o'clock in the afternoon, for the following purpose of considering and taking some action on the disposition of the old school building and the real estate upon which said building is situated. Meeting will be held at new school house. Dated this 26th day of Feb. 1926. Signed Emil C. Backhaus District Clerk

WORST BLIZZARD OF ENTIRE WINTER

This vicinity was swept by a blinding snow storm on Thursday, when about a foot of snow fell during the day. All highways were practically blocked, greatly hampering traffic on the same. Reports reached here during the day that a number of automobiles were stalled along Highway 55, and also that a number of machines slipped off into the ditch where they tipped over. No one was reported injured, however. Trains were delayed for several hours. No great damage was reported from telephone and telegraph companies.

OAK SANATORIUM NEWS

The Oak San Clan held a regular meeting on January 29th. A long discussion on motion picture machines followed but as yet no decision has been reached as to which type of machine we will purchase.

On February 13th we enjoyed a movie entitled "Air Mail". The projector was rented from the Pewaukee High School. At our next movie we hope to have our own machine.

On St. Valentine's Day the patients were treated to a special supper. The decorations in the dining room were attractively carried out in the valentine colors. We all enjoy having the holidays take on a festive appearance and we are grateful to our superintendent.

In the evening Miss Bresnahan entertained the lady patients at a card party given at the nurses home. It was a Valentine party with appropriate decorations carried out in the apartments. Rummy and five hundred were played. Miss Dorothy Huebner winning high honors in rummy and Miss Anna Katsuros in five hundred. Dainty refreshments were served after which the guests departed all reporting an enjoyable evening.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF WISCONSIN

In the matter of Paul F. Steinhardt, Bankrupt. IN BANKRUPTCY. To the creditors of Paul F. Steinhardt, of Sheboygan Falls, in the County of Sheboygan, and district aforesaid, a bankrupt:

Notice is hereby given that on the 17th day of February, A. D. 1926, the said Paul F. Steinhardt was duly adjudicated a bankrupt; and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at the office of the undersigned referee, in room 520, National Security Building, in the city of Sheboygan in said district, on the 5th day of March, A. D. 1926 at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly come before said meeting.

Dated February 18, 1926. A. C. PRESCOTT, Referee in Bankruptcy.

WILL PRESENT PLAY

By special arrangements with Samuel French of New York, the West Bend Woman's Club will present to the public next week, March 1, and 2 Frank Craven's comedy "The First Year." This play was first produced in New York by John Golden and since then has enjoyed long runs in Chicago and other large cities. "The First Year" can be whole heartedly recommended as one of the most amusing popular comedies. It is full of quaint humor, old fashioned homely sentiment, the kind that people who see the play will chuckle over tomorrow and the next day. The play is under the direction of Mrs. Geo. Moores. Admission for the regular performance will be 50 cents, 15 cents extra for reserved seats. Reserved seats were put on sale at Regner's Pharmacy at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning. The performance will begin promptly at 8:15 p. m.

ELECTRIC SHOP IN NEW QUARTERS

The Kewaskum Electric shop conducted by Leo Skupniewitz, was moved from the Chas. Meinecke Sr., building on Fond du Lac Ave. into the Frank Hepps store on East Main street on Thursday, where Mr. Skupniewitz will conduct the same in the future. He also intends to keep the store open every day during the week.

Reports are current that a restaurant will be opened in the Meinecke building vacated by Mr. Skupniewitz, said restaurant will be conducted by a Mr. Janssen from Minnesota. Further particulars will be published later.

WILL START TO SAW LUMBER MARCH 1st.

I, the undersigned will start to saw lumber at my place after March 1st. Bring your logs to my saw mill at your earliest convenience, A No. 1 lumber guaranteed. I am also in a position to do all kinds of feed grinding. 2 29 2t. Wm. Heberer

TEACHERS' MEETING WELL ATTENDED

The grade teachers of West Bend, Kewaskum and the surrounding grade school teachers met for their group study at Kewaskum Saturday, February 20. Twenty-five teachers were in attendance. The program consisted of class demonstrations and a round table discussion. Miss Bogda gave a demonstration with the second grade in arithmetic. The four grades were given a unit assignment in geography on the Congo Region by Miss Mellina. County supervisor Genshow showed how the unit plan is used in supervised study with an eighth grade class Miss Senn presented work in sixth grade arithmetic.

After the class room demonstrations the teachers gathered in the high school auditorium for a round table discussion which was led by Mr. Genshow. At the close of the program county superintendent Buckley gave a discussion of the value and importance of supervised study.

The meeting was visited by the county supervisors of Racine and Kenosha counties.

AUCTION SALES

Commencing at one o'clock p. m. sharp on Saturday, February 27, the two-story frame house, lot and household furniture, formerly owned by the late Mrs. Barbara Fellenz, located on East Water street, just north of the South Side Park hall, in the village of Kewaskum, will be sold at public auction. Terms will be made known on day of sale. Gerhard Fellenz, Administrator. Geo. F. Brandt, Auctioneer.

Beginning at 9 o'clock a. m. sharp, on Thursday, March 4th, 1926, Peter Schroeten will sell at Public Auction on his premises, situated 4 1/2 miles north of Kewaskum on Highway 55 in the town of Auburn, 3 horses, 9 fresh milk cows, 2 yearling heifers, 3 heifer calves, 50 chickens, 700 bushels of oats, all farm machinery, and all kinds of household furniture and kitchen equipment. See bills for particulars. Peter Schroeten, Proprietor. Geo. F. Brandt, Auctioneer.

Beginning at 12:30 p. m. sharp the undersigned will sell at Public Auction on the John Emierich farm, located 5 1/2 miles southwest of Kewaskum, 2 miles south of St. Brigids, 2 miles southeast of Wayne, or 2 1/2 miles northeast of Kohlsville, 10 milk cows, 2 heifers, 1 one and one half year old bull, and full line of farm implements too numerous to mention. The auction will be held on Tuesday, March 2, 1926. Terms under $10.00 cash, sums over $10.00 on good approved note with six months time to pay for at 6 per cent interest. K. A. Honeck, Owner. Geo. F. Brandt, Auctioneer.

On Thursday, March 11, 1926, beginning at 10 a. m. sharp, the undersigned will sell at Public Auction on his farm located 4 miles northwest of Kewaskum, 4 miles south of Campbell-sport, 2 miles west of Elmore, better known as the Jac Schaeffer farm, a large amount of personal property too numerous to mention. Terms made known on day of sale. Warm lunch served at noon. John Volm, Proprietor. Geo. F. Brandt, Auctioneer.

COUNTY FAIR DATES ARE SET

Labor day week—September 8 to 10 are picked by officers. "A Real County Fair In Wisconsin's Best County" is the slogan adopted by the officers of the Washington County Agricultural Society, when they met at West Bend last week, the purpose of the meeting being to set dates. Fond du Lac county, our adjoining county, was slow in setting their dates and when they found themselves unable to obtain a large carnival company they chose the dates that the Washington County Society had picked. Our Fair dates now are Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, September 9 and 10. The officers are busy now trying to hook good free attractions, and all other things that go to make the fair a good one. The officers, directors and county fair committee of the County Board will do their utmost in making the 1926 fair of the Washington County Agricultural Society "A Real County Fair In Wisconsin's Best County."

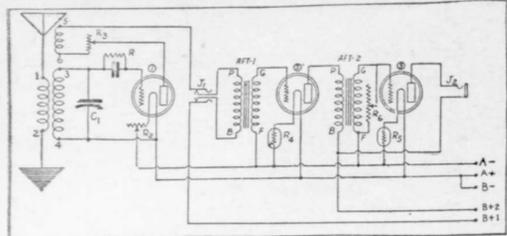

ST. JOHN'S LUTHER CHURCH

Tomorrow, Sunday being the large Sunday of the month, there will be English services at 7:30 p. m. at St. John's Luth. church, New Fane.—C. J. Gutekanst, Pastor.

SPRING ELECTION APRIL 6th

The annual spring election will be held on Tuesday, April 6th, and the time is now here for candidates seeking offices to make the necessary arrangements.

RADIO

Electrical Diagram of a Resistance-Controlled Set.

By PERCY WARREN

The most that can be accomplished on three tubes, in volume and DX, is by the use of the three-circuit tuner, followed by two transformer stages of audio. There are many variations of the fundamental design of the detector part and there are respective advantages in each. The set shown herewith has the following main features:

(1) A variable resistor controls regeneration. (2) A variable resistor controls volume on the audio side. Smooth regeneration control is obtained by using a fixed resistor with the variable resistor in parallel or, as in this case, in series with the plate coil.

The detector, placed in inductive relation to the grid of the tube, produces feedback, which makes the tube oscillate when the resistance is not high enough to prevent that.

One terminal of the variable resistor R3 should go to the plate and the other to the coil. Now as we vary the resistance of this, we can increase or decrease the effective inductive value of the detector.

Wiring the Set.

On the tuner, used in the detector circuit, there are six posts, each one of which is numbered. Post 1 goes to the antenna clip on the terminal strip. Post 2 goes to the ground clip. Post 3 goes to one terminal of the grid condenser and to the grid leak R. The other terminal of this combination goes to the G post of socket 1. Post 3 also goes to the stationary plates of the only variable condenser, C1. Post 4 goes to the rotary plates of this same condenser, and to the P post of socket 1. Post 4 is internally connected to one terminal of the stationary detector winding. One terminal of the resistance R1 goes to the P post of socket 1. This has 6 marked on the post. Post 5 goes to the top terminal of a double-circuit jack, if such a jack is to be used. Otherwise connect this terminal to the P post of the AFT 1. The B post of this AFT goes to the B-1 post (Det. on strip). If the jack is to be used, connect the B post to the inner terminal, and the bottom to the B+ Det. clip. The G post on AFT 1 goes to the G post on the socket 2. The F post on AFT 1 goes to the A- clip. The P post of AFT 1 goes to the B post of socket 2. The B post goes to the terminal of the single-circuit jack. The G post goes to the arm of the clorostat, and to the G post of socket 3. The resistance wire post of this clorostat goes to the F post on the AFT 2. The B posts of both AFTs go to the B+ Amp. clip. Now you can use two individual ballast resistors, R4 and R5, as per diagram, which are placed in the negative leg of the amplifier tube filaments. All the F+ posts go to the A+ clip. Connect the A+ to the B-

List of Parts.

- One 3-circuit tuner (includes coils and R3). One .0005 mfd. variable condenser (C1). One 2 meg. leak (R1). One .0025 mfd. grid condenser. Two low ratio audio-frequency transformers (AFT1, AFT2). One single-circuit jack (J2). One double-circuit jack (J1). Two amperites (1A or 99, R4, R5). One clorostat (R6). One 4-inch dial. One 20-ohm rheostat (R2).

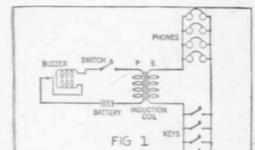

To Build Loop

A loop one foot square will work with a sensitive receiver. Set the two crosspieces in the shape of an X and attach the upright pieces to one of them. Cut slots in the end of each of the four ends of the crosspieces to receive four pieces of hard rubber 7 by 1 by 1/4 inch. Now wind 26 turns of loop wire or standard single lamp cord 1/4-inch apart about the rubber pieces set perpendicular to the frame of the loop.

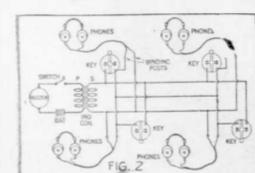

For Code Practice in Radio Communication

Those who have a longing to know the code used in radio communication will find the circuit shown in Figures 1 and 2 useful in the practice of sending and receiving dots and dashes. The system is especially applicable to radio clubs, school classes, and other organizations desiring a means for group practice.

The material needed is a buzzer capable of producing a high-frequency note, a telephone induction coil, a switch, a key and pair of phones per person, and the necessary batteries. By arranging the parts as shown in Figure 2 the circuit may be controlled by any one of the keys.

As may be seen from the schematic diagram in Figure 1 the secondary key-telephone circuit is a series parallel one allowing provision for additional operating positions, the signal being heard in all the phones. In this way it is possible to maintain intercom-

How to Avoid Troubles With Tubes in Your Set

Perhaps you have experienced the sensation of turning on the tubes of your set and found they did not light. At first you perhaps thought you had connected a high voltage across the filament or that in some way while working around the set the "11" battery possibly came in contact with an "A" battery line. This may have happened, while it may be the tube is not in the socket properly. The clip on the "A" battery may have slipped out to such an extent that it has not made an electrical contact, or it may be a broken or loose connection from moving the set in some way or other. There is not so much trouble with the tubes not lighting as in the tubes lighting and not functioning properly. Some of the tubes work perfectly in one position on a set while in another they will not receive a signal. The 201 "A" type tube with the purple color, as is said, is much better for the radio frequency than any other type. For the detector of regenerative sets the tube with the slight coloring on the communication between the several receiving points. By putting the buzzer in a continuously operated circuit, the tone produced will be more constant than if the several keys were used to interrupt the buzzer circuit. Also, by placing the keys in the secondary side of the circuit there will be no appreciable "lag" or "key thump" in the signals as transmitted.

Dust in Sets Is Cause of Loss in Efficiency

Dust in radio sets is often the cause of a large loss in efficiency. This is especially true in wet weather, when the dust becomes damp, and allows the feeble radio currents to leak. The worst places for dust to be allowed to collect is about binding posts and terminals, and between the plates of rotary variable condensers. It may be removed from between wires and around terminals with a small brush, about two inches wide. The engineers in laboratories often use pipe cleaners, the same as used for cleaning the stems of ordinary smoking pipes, for removing dust from between condenser plates and from other otherwise inaccessible places. It would be good practice for the set owner to carefully dust his set in this way, as often as once a month.

Keep Tube From Vibrating

If the tube elements are not rigid, they will vibrate easily, producing rattling and howling noises. A tube that vibrates easily is said to be microphonic. Such a tube will produce distorted sounds when the loudspeaker is tuned in the direction of the set, because the sound wave, striking the receiver, causes it to vibrate, and the grids of the tubes to shake.

A "Lazy" Switch

Hook an ordinary electric switch in the negative A lead to your set, lengthen your lead so it will reach to your pillow and you have a battery cut-off switch that will save many a step after you retire, with the loud speaker operating.

Inside and not clear glass is much better, while for the detector of a Neutrodyne the clear glass tube is better.

You have probably heard a good deal about matched tubes. There is a great deal of difference in the results you get from tubes. The average dealer simply tests the tube to see that it lights, then passes it over to you. If, however, you have a set using five or more tubes, you will probably be surprised at the results you would get in both volume and distance if you replaced your present tubes with a set that had been picked out and matched properly. Just one weak tube will often reduce the efficiency of the set 50 per cent.

If you suspect that your tubes are weak, have them reactivated. This is a process that has been used by large tube manufacturers for a long time, but only lately has an outfit been available to the general public. This process puts new life into an old tube.

25 Miles Range of Crystal

Twenty-five miles is the limit a crystal set can receive under normal conditions at night.

Hope Nevers Will Add Needed Punch

Ernie Nevers, Pacific Coast Star.

Ernie Nevers, all-American football star, college baseball, basket ball and gridiron hero, will be the observed of all observers when the Browns gather at their training camp at Tarpon Springs, Fla., late in February. No athlete has broken into the major leagues with more publicity than has attended the signing of Nevers by St. Louis. He is the young athlete's efforts.

Nevers will have a sympathetic manager. George Sisler, leader of the St. Louis Americans, came to the big leagues straight from college. Sisler thinks highly of the college athlete. He believes that the college training makes the university athlete a better prospect because he can learn more quickly than the sand-lotter.

Remember Sisler.

Sisler came to the Browns from Michigan university, where he had been a star batter and pitcher. George was a great batter even then. But persons who remember Sisler's debut will be inclined to be patient with Nevers. George swung at bad balls. He was not a finished batter, but he had the ability, the baseball instinct and in a couple of years he was a star. Even in his case it took a long time to determine his proper place on the field and it was Fiedler Jones who finally decided that the young Michigan graduate was a first baseman.

Owner Phil Ball, Business Manager Bill Friel and Secretary Willis Johnson consider Nevers a great prospect. They consider him only that, however. Baseball always is a gamble and the club was willing to pay high for Nevers' signature, on the chance that he might develop into another Sisler or Friel.

A Great Athlete.

Nevers is a sturdy athlete. He has tremendous speed and persons who have watched him in action on the mound predict that he will rank some day with the best of the right-handers.

While his greatest fame was achieved on the gridiron, his admirers say that if college baseball drew as much attention as football Nevers would be as well known for his baseball as for his ability as a pigskin warrior.

Sisler does not need a great deal of added strength to turn the Browns into a championship team. If Nevers should deliver as a good pitcher or a hitter, he might add just the needed power. It certainly was a good chance to take.

Ineffectiveness Blamed for Many Large Scores

Some evidence to support the claim of the ball makers that big scores were due to pitching ineffectiveness rather than to the lively sphere may be found in the records of low-hit games for the season.

The figures show 58 of these battles after July 4, the date set by the manufacturers for the curbing of the batters by the league flingers. These 58 games range from 1 no-hit battle to more than 40 four-hit contests. The total includes both leagues. Less than one-fifth of the number appeared in battles previous to July 4, which is regarded as the half-way mark in the season's schedule.

Tom Davies Selected as Grid Coach at Rochester

Tom Davies, of Pittsburgh, all-American half-back selection in 1918, 1920 and 1921, has been appointed head football coach at the University of Rochester, under contract for three years.

Davies, regarded as one of the greatest stars developed by Glenn Warner at Pittsburgh, will begin his work in March, when he takes over the squad for spring practice. He succeeds Herbert A. Lorenz, who resigned recently after two years with Rochester.

Jockey Is a Star

Willie Garner, youngest member of the riding family of Garners, is proving a real sensation on the New Orleans race track. The other day Garner was either one, two or three in six of the seven races. He is being heralded as the coming foremost jockey of the country.

Correct Golf Attire

Here's what a Chicago clothing manufacturer prescribes as the correct male attire for playing on the golf links for 1929: British shorts—knee-length pants which introduce the golfer's bare knees—and "plus fives," which go "plus fours" one better and are semi-Turkish in general ensemble. The colors must be cedarwood, silver, rust, sherwood and onion, or many patterns designed after the tartans of the Scottish clans.

LEONARD TO WAIT RING FANS' CALL

Will Fight Rocky Kansas When Public Demands.

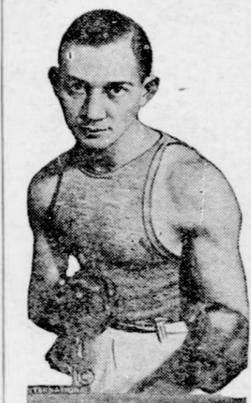

Will Benny Leonard, retired lightweight champion of the world, fight Rocky Kansas of Buffalo, who recently won the title of champion from Jimmy Goodrich, also of Buffalo, winner of the New York lightweight tourney to determine a successor to Leonard?

Reports have been sent out from New York to the effect that Leonard would meet Kansas in an open air show in New York some time during the coming summer.

Benny at the present time is making a vaudeville tour of the country and it is all good advertising for him, and Benny is a good enough showman to know the benefit of such talk.

Despite the advertising arising from the controversy Benny Leonard is not seeking notoriety, but is sticking close to his show work.

During a talk in his dressing room Benny made it plain that he is not anxious to return to the ring, although he likes boxing for the sport and exercise he gets out of it. "Many have approached me lately regarding a match with Rocky Kansas for the title," said the retired champion, "but I have not even given it serious consideration. In the first place, if there was anything doing it would be done through my old manager—Billy Gibson—for he is the only one whom I would work with. I have beaten Rocky three times and feel that the public would not want to see us in the ring again.

"As I said before, I do not wish to enter the ring again, not because of all that soft stuff about mother, etc., but for the very good reason that I wish to retire from the game.

"I have the greatest respect in the world for my mother's wishes, but she has made no request here and would not. She stated her side long ago, preferring to have me quit the ring and I have always respected it.

"If the public should ask me to come back and meet the best lightweight in the world I would do so, for the reason that it was the public, or rather boxing fans, who made me and I owe it to them to do their bidding. So that is where the matter rests—entirely with the fans. If they want me to come back I will do so, otherwise not."

Sporting Squibs

Jiu-jitsu is being taught at Montreal A. A. A. by boxing teachers.

The record attendance for a football game in England is 131,072.

The Elisons are trying to get Toronto to switch Outfielder Frank Gilhooley to them.

Blair V. McMillin, Jr., an end on the 1924 Pittsburgh football team, has been elected captain of the 1926 squad.

Al Niehaus, first baseman, has been sold by the St. Paul association club to Atlanta of the Southern association.

Freddie Welsh, former lightweight champion, is said to be the only vegetarian who ever won a world boxing title.

Ernie Nevers, all-American full-back this year, is planning to enter the University of Wisconsin to finish his college course.

Quincy of the Three-I league has traded Pitcher Bert Grimm to Decatur for Outfielder Vic Ruedy and Pitcher Guy Morrison.

Luis Firpo, Argentine heavyweight, has begun light training for his match against Emilio Spilla of Italy, to be held early in March.

William Neunix, former Boston A. A. hurdle star, has been appointed head of the physical training department of the Boston English high school.

Earl Hamilton, formerly on the pitching staffs of the St. Louis and Detroit American league clubs, who retired from baseball last season, has signed to report to the Los Angeles team this spring.

Everett Bankston, hard-hitting outfielder of Columbia of the South Atlantic league, has been sold to Richmond of the Virginia league.

E. M. Macfarlane, who recently won the New Zealand open golf championship, is reported to be seriously thinking of visiting this country.

Earl Neale, former Cincinnati Red player, and later scout and coach, has been engaged for two more years as coach of the University of Virginia football team.

Good Luck

Secretary Hoover was talking at a Washington reception about America's unexampled prosperity. "Such prosperity as ours was never seen before," he said. "Some people attribute it to our lack of laziness." Mr. Hoover smiled and added: "Laziness is a slow traveler, and poverty soon overtakes it."

The real cause of bad breath

"You cannot 'cover up' unpleasant breath for any length of time. The only way to rid yourself permanently of it is by removing the cause.

"Sometimes poor teeth are responsible. But the commonest cause of a coated tongue and offensive breath is constipation. You may not realize that your intestines are slow in eliminating waste matter, or that your breath is objectionable. But others will notice it.

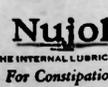

"Get rid of constipation, and your breath will become fresh and sweet. Even more important, you will notice an immediate improvement in your health and spirits."

Nujol relieves constipation in Nature's own way

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. It does not affect the stomach and is not absorbed by the body. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is so safe, so gentle, and so natural in its action.

Nujol simply makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness, it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time. Ask your druggist for Nujol today. Remove the cause of bad breath and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

Music in Colors

We often have heard music described as colorful. Now music in colors has become an actual fact. A machine recently invented by M. R. Ulrich of Portland, Ore., says Popular Science Monthly, projects music on the screen in the form of color patterns that vary in delicate shade and form according to changes in the sound vibrations of melodies or harmonies being played or sung.

Honor Mme. Seivine
At the Carnavalet museum this year will be observed the three hundredth anniversary of the birth of Mme. de Sevigne, the famous letter-writer of the seventeenth century. The Paris municipal council has voted 30,000 francs (about $1,200) for the purpose. A special exhibition of portraits, souvenirs and documents associated with the distinguished letter-writer will be shown in the section of the building in which she lived for several years. The museum possesses a large collection of her documents but other museums will lend from their collections to make the exhibition complete.

Havana Gets Skyscraper
In Cuba, up to the present time, the highest buildings were about ten stories, which would equal the height of a 20-story building in the United States, owing to the fact that higher ceilings for all floors have to be allowed there on account of the climate. However, Havana is to have a new building 20 stories high, which will correspond with the highest buildings used for business and hotels in the United States.

Finer Transportation at Lower Cost

More Buicks are now being sold than ever before in Buick history. And an important reason is the fact that, though expensive to build, a Buick may be inexpensively purchased.

Buick could spend less money building its chassis, and still keep the quality up to the average in Buick's price class. The famous Buick Valve-in-Head engine is a more expensive type to build. Buick could use a steering gear less expensive than the 5-control-surface steering mechanism which adds so much to Buick's driving ease. The Torque-Tube Drive also adds expense to Buick manufacture, as do the "Sealed Chassis," the "Triple Sealed Engine," full pressure engine lubrication, the Buick multiple-disc, dry-plate clutch, and Buick mechanical 4-wheel brakes.

Buick closed bodies are built by Fisher to the most exacting standards laid down by any manufacturer today.

Quality, regardless of its cost, rules Buick design. But thanks to the sustained popularity of this quality, purchasers actually pay less for it. Vast volume gives Buick owners finer transportation at lower cost. Your next car should be a Better Buick!

LARGEST INHERITANCE TAX IS PAID

The executors of the will of J. Fred Wittenberg, deceased, late of the city of Cedarburg, made an inheritance tax return to the State Treasurer on Tuesday of $18,723.32 for state inheritance taxes due from said estate. The amount due for inheritance taxes in this matter has not as yet been determined by the County Court. The executors in making a tender at his time, which is within one year of the date of the death of Mr. Wittenberg, were enabled to take the discount of five per cent allowed by law. Ninety-two and one-half per cent of this tax goes to the state and seven and one-half per cent to the county. The tax paid in this estate is more than twice as much as the tax paid in any other estate in this county.—Port Washington Pilot.

The Model 8 New Idea Spreader

The Triumph of 25 Years of Spreader Building

Details for Your Information

Color—Beautiful rich yellow, with olive green trim. Artistic and distinctive.

Construction—A special high carbon steel is forged into the parts that make up the frame work of this model, making it actually "as strong as steel." The result is a machine that is not only much lighter in weight but is much stronger and more durable.

Axle—Pivot Axle or Auto Steer, arranged to permit short turning, with a safety stop to prevent wheels cramping. The front and rear wheels track—60 inches center to center. Turning radius 11 1/2 feet. Bolster held in place by side sills. Front axle secured by strong angle steel braces and plates. Front axle ends forged from cold rolled steel in one piece, strengthened by heavy casting. Steering rods protected by hardened steel bushings, eliminating all wear. No adjustments necessary—this is done at the factory. Oscillating main axle prevents bed from twisting on uneven ground.

Cylinder Bars—Angle steel, with pointed teeth riveted in. Anti-wrapping shields prevent straw and twine from wrapping about shafts and cylinders. Cylinders arranged to prevent choking and to reduce draft, but close enough for perfect pulverizing.

Distributor—A distinctly NEW IDEA feature and is covered by strong patents. The shape of the binders and their relative position are vitally necessary for perfect, even, wide spreading. The material used is a heavy gauge copper bearing steel that is both rust and acid resisting. These blades are riveted to castings fastened to the shaft.

Rear Axle—Cold rolled shafting has the feed cam swaged on one end and drive sprocket hub on other. Runs on self-aligning bearings.

Bearings—All bearings are self-aligning and provided with spring top oiler. All bearings are small inexpensive journals, held in place by steel forgings.

Feeding Mechanism—Operated from rear axle. Four changes of conveyor speeds: 4, 8, 12 and 19 loads per acre, or can be shut off entirely by lever at operator's right side. Safety key prevents load from feeding into cylinder when out of gear.

Conveyor—Traveling chain type of tempered steel chain riveted to steel bars running over solid bottom.

Bed—Finest grade oak and pine—1 1/2 inches wider in rear than in front to prevent choking. Drive—Operated from rear axle. Large sprocket wheel bolted to the main sprocket hub that is keyed to axle. Securely fastened by press fit. Tempered steel transmission drive chain raised or lowered by drive lever at operator's left. Spring tension holds chain in place.

Upper Cylinder and Distributor driven by tempered steel chains from main cylinder. Short chains for each drive prolongs the life of chain and secures lighter draft.

Bottom of Bed—Matched bottom boards nailed to heavy cross pieces with cement coated nails to prevent loosening. Fastened to main side sills by 5 steel cross bolts the full width of machine.

Side of Bed—Grooved boards matched and riveted to steel uprights which are riveted to main sills. Main side sills forged out of one piece. One piece construction, lighter in weight, but far more durable than the old type. Steel braces prevent bed from spreading. Front and rear ends are held rigid by end gate in front and angle steel arch in rear.

Castings—All castings are made in our own foundry, of a mixture of steel and iron, called semi-steel, very strong and tough.

Forgings—At every point possible, high carbon forged steel parts are used. Forged steel is strong and flexible—resisting tremendous strains. Its use not only reduces the weight of the machine but makes it stronger and more durable.

Oak and Yellow Pine of the highest grade free from all defects, are used for wood parts

OLIVER OCTOBER by GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

From all sides boomed the shouts and curses of a quickly revived posse.

"Kiss 'em!" "Kill the scoundrels!" "Beat their heads off!" "Get him! Get him!"

Suddenly a strange voice rose above the clamor, rich, full, vibrant, it fell upon puzzled ears, and once again there was pause.

All eyes were upon the owner of this wondrous clarion voice. A startling figure she was, standing erect upon the front seat of Lansing's car.

"Mon of Rumley! Hold! Hold! I command you!" Is there one among you who has not heard of the gypsy's prophesy of thirty years ago? Let him speak who will, and let him speak for all!

A score of voices answered. "Aye!" she went on. "You all have heard it. I ask one of you—any one of you—to stand forth and tell the rest of this craven mob what the gypsy fortune teller said on that wild and stormy night."

"She said the baby son of Oliver Baxter would be hung for murder before he was thirty years old," bawled someone.

"And what else did she say?" rang the voice of Josephine Judge.

"Oh, a lot of things that don't matter now," yelled a man back in the crowd. "Get busy, boys. We can't—"

"Stop! Listen to me, vintlers! You believe she spoke the truth when she uttered that prophesy? Answer!"

"Yes!" came from a hundred throats. "Then you must know that this boy was adjudged innocent of this crime on the day he was born," fell slowly, distinctly from the lips of Josephine.

"I will repeat the words of the gypsy woman. She said: 'He will not commit a crime he did not commit.' Speak! Are not those the words of the gypsy?"

Absolute silence ensued. It was as if the crowd had turned to stone.

"And so," she cried, leveling her finger at the men in the front rank, "you have done your part toward making the prophesy come true. You have hung Oliver October Baxter in spite of the fact that you were told thirty years ago that he would be innocent."

The mob stood rooted to the ground. A sudden shout went up from those in the front rank—a shout of relief.

Oliver October was struggling to his feet, assisted by Jane and Lansing. His arms, released from their bonds, were thrown across their shoulders, his chin was high, he was coughing hoarsely.

"Don't try to speak yet, Baxter," cautioned Lansing. "Plenty of time. You're all right. You'll be yourself in a few minutes. Thank God, we got here when we did."

They got him into the forward car, where he huddled down between Jane and her mother. They heard him whisper hoarsely, jerkily:

"Never mind about me—I'm—all right. They won't try it again. Look after Aunt—Serepta first. She's hurt. They left her—lying up—"

"Don't worry, old top," cried Sammy eagerly. "I'll go back and look out for her. You go along with Doc. He'll be right up. All you need is a good rest."

"Near the road," roared a score of voices as Lansing's car moved slowly forward, and off the sides, down the slope and up the bank, slunk the sordid figures. The mob blood-thirsty scowled or, with a blood-thirsty smile, they snuggled to mock them with its silence.

An hour later Sammy Parr extended himself somewhat irrelevantly in the passenger sitting-room.

"Say, Miss Judge, you were great. I never heard anything like that speech of yours. And your voice—why, it gave me the queerest kind of shivers."

Jessamine was pacing the floor, her brow knitted in thought. She was muttering to herself, Oliver, lying on a couch, smiled up into Jane's lovely eyes. Then he sat up.

"Sammy," he cried out thickly but with the ring of enthusiasm in his voice, "do me a favor, will you?"

"Yes," said Sammy, springing to his feet.

"Stand up with me. I'm going to 'speak'!" cried Sammy. "I'll not only stand up with you, old boy, but I'll be your lean on me."

"Now," gasped Serepta Grimes, in great agitation.

"Yes—now!" cried Jane softly, and for the first time that night the color came back to her cheeks.

CHAPTER XIII

Mr. Gooch Sees Things at Night

Horace Gooch was going to bed. He had had a hard day, and it was nine o'clock. He had a book, a well-worn copy of "David Harum," but he did not begin reading at once. He was thinking of the many dark and lonely nights old Oliver Baxter had spent in North Swamp. It gave him a creepy feeling. He tucked the covers a little more tightly under his chin—but still the creepy feeling persisted.

"Ho, Horace!"

Someone was knocking at the front door—and the voice! There was only one voice in the world like that.

Mr. Gooch went to the window. He hesitated a moment, then boldly drew the curtain apart.

"Hello, Horace," came wafting up to Mr. Gooch. "That you? Say, open up and let me in."

Mr. Gooch grasped the window frame for support.

"Good G—d!" he gulped, but in a voice so strange and hollow that he did not recognize it as his own.

The figure drew nearer the house. "I'm Ollie Baxter. For goodness' sake, Horace, don't tell me you've forgotten your only brother-in-law. I—"

"Go away! You're dead!"

"You come down here and let me in," cried the other. "I'll derned soon show you I'm not dead."

Mr. Gooch was not convinced. It was Oliver Baxter and he was very much alive.

"Well, what do you want?"

"I want to come in and spend the night with you, that's what I want."

Presently the two were seated in Gooch's warm kitchen.

"Now," demanded Mr. Gooch, "where have you been all this time?"

Mr. Baxter stretched out his wrinkled legs, and filled his pipe and lit it, all the while keeping his keen little eyes on his brother-in-law.

"Well, sir," he began presently; "I hunted this country over before I found her. She remembered everything. It took me nearly two weeks to get her to admit that she lied, and I guess she wouldn't have done it if I hadn't offered her a hundred dollars to tell the truth."

"Are you talking about the gypsy who told his fortune?" inquired Mr. Gooch, comprehending suddenly.

"Yes, Omsen Marguerite. I finally got her to confess that everything she said was false. Oliver ain't going to be hung any more than you or I. All spite work, she says. Got mad at all of us."

"So that's what you've been up to, you blamed old idiot," exclaimed Gooch. "Letting us all think you were dead! That reminds me—I was just wondering whose body it is, since it can't possibly be yours. The one they found in the swamp yesterday, I mean."

Mr. Baxter inquired with sudden interest: "In the swamp, eh? Out in one of the ponds? Why, it must be Tom Sharp's body. Tom Sharp was killed with an ax right out there on the edge of the swamp thirty years ago. He was killed by a gypsy—say, Horace, if they think that body is mine, who is supposed to have killed me?"

Mr. Gooch experienced a strange and unsuspected softening of the heart.

"A man that used to work around your place," said he, after a moment's hesitation.

Silence fell between them. Mr. Baxter was thinking profoundly, his brow wrinkled, his eyes fixed on one of his bony hands.

"Just so it wasn't—Oliver," he said at last, swallowing hard. He had removed the gaudy muffler. His Adam's apple rose and fell twice convulsively. "I'd hate to have people think he did it."

"Don't worry about that," said Mr. Gooch brusquely. "Get along to bed now."

[THE END.]

When London Trembled

The little earthquake experience along the east coast section of Canada a few months ago recalls to mind the report of an earthquake shock which was experienced in Great Britain, 344 years ago.

"Burbage's men were playing at the Theater and the Curtain, in Shoreditch, April 6, 1580, when suddenly by 'God's admonition' there was an earthquake shock." The news distributors of the day—the bail monger and Bond street merchant—got to work at once.

"At the play-houses," it was said, "the people ran forth surprised with great astonishment, many being 'sore crushed and bruised' from panic at the exit. And the enemies of the stage chimed in:

The house will fall so people say. The earth quakes, let us hast away.

This is the earliest known verse on an English earthquake.—Family Herald.

Phrases That Are Old

A phrase frequently heard is "necessity is the mother of invention." But few realize how old it is. We find it in the "Republic" of Plato: "The true creator is necessity, who is the mother of our invention."

When Disraeli gave the alternative title of "The Two Nations" to his novel "Sybil," to emphasize the gulf which lay between the rich and the poor of the same country, he was echoing Plato. "Any city," said Plato, "however small, is in fact divided into two, one the city of the poor the other of the rich."

Another very modern note is struck by Sir Thomas Moore in "Utopia," where, talking of education and environment, he says: "You first make thieves and then punish them."

TWEED TOPCOATS FOR SPRING; TOTS' DRESSES CIRCULAR CUT

WHO would be without a handsome topcoat in midseason or springtime? A stylish coat under which one's every sort of a frock may be worn, spells economy, comfort, utility and smart appearance all in one breath.

With the popularity of colorful tweeds comes a new interest for coats developed of this fabric. Prominence is given to both straightline models and cape coats while the majority are fur-collared.

In the smart tweed coats attention is focused on color, for it is color which sheds a glow over all spring fashions. All the dusky pastel shades are given prominence but the rose tones, especially bois de rose and Apollonette rose, are outstanding. Even the tans take on a rosy hue, and as buttoned to the sleeves down their entire length.

Just to give home dressmakers, who are in the midst of spring sewing, a hint of the new circular-cut treatment for little frocks this wee tot had her "picture taken." Is it not cunning, this diminutive frock which this tiny girl is wearing, which while it sacrifices none of its childish charm, yet somehow manages to acquire the new smart circular flare?

Observe, too, if you please, that the sleeves extend from the neckline and that is another very stylish feature.

Of course a touch of embroidery adds another note of charm. The handsome yarn tassels and cord at the neck are also a pretty detail. The knickers, which are a part of every tiny child's dress nowadays, are for gray, every message from Paris strengthens one's enthusiasm for it not only for coats but for entire costume ensembles to the minutest detail and accessory.

Soft shades of green are very highly regarded and it is said that for spring goblin blue will take the place of cracklehead, which as every one knows was so popular during the winter months.

Many of the tweed coats are made up with touches of solid-colored flannel, blending or contrasting the characteristic shade in the tweed. This border treatment with a fur collar and handsome crepe lining bespeaks a spring wrap of distinguished and correct style.

The modish tweed coat in the picture carries all the points of proper mode. As to the length of the topcoat, to be sure there are those of extreme trend of mind who will insist on a wrap which is conspicuously strictly tailored, which fact the more accents the decorative details of the frock.

Most commendable materials for a dress made after the fashion of the one shown here are flannel, wool jersey, fine cotton poplin or gabardine.

These fabrics come in all the new and delectable colorings such as navy, sand, gray, rose, peach, lilac, goblin and lavender-blue, flame color and the new wild honey shade. Another fabric which is making a pleasing impression is rayon-alpaca. Then there is linen and real linen, cotton broadcloth and saten, the latter in colors and in black to be added to the list of solid-colored fabrics which make up into tailored smock effects with real satisfaction.

A further emphasis is placed on circular effects, in wee little skirts which ripple full about the Lenline. Very new for even small children are these circular skirts made of solid-colored rayon-alpaca, with a plaided or striped overblouse which also is rayon-alpaca.

After making several of these tailored smocklike frocks as shown in the picture do not neglect to add a smocked peasant skirt or two of the voile done in colorful threads.

The vogue for using several pasted colors together is carried out in the designing of children's dresses. Patches of one-colored voile or linen are applied on another toned background.

Lariat Pearl Necklaces

A lariat pearl necklace, fitting the base of the neck, is just the thing for the "bobbed" girl to wear with the new low-cut evening gowns. This necklace may be worn with the pendant hanging in front or back, preferably at the back, as it relieves the severity associated with the bob. Lariat necklaces have no clasps, but are fastened by slipping the pendant, an irregular pearl, on one end through a loop of small pearls at the other end of the necklace.

Matching Hose Now

Gloves and stockings are the two toilet accessories which fashion demands must match perfectly. This has turned buyers toward the darker shades. In some cases the matching shade is confined to the facings or turned back cuffs of the gloves.

Elaborate Accessories

Very elaborate collars and cuffs, trimmed with lace or embroidery or braiding are used to brighten up the dark velvet and satin afternoon frock.

Forest Profits in Short Period

Not Necessary to Wait Lifetime to Realize Returns From Trees.

Contrary to the current belief one does not have to wait a lifetime to realize returns from forest plantations.

In fact, continues E. L. Sowell, specialist in farm forestry at Rutgers university, trees established on idle lands next spring will yield the owner a very substantial profit in six to ten years.

Interplanting Favored.

Interplanting of pine and Norway spruce or Douglas fir is the answer. In a plantation of this sort Norway spruce is planted at intervals of six feet in rows six feet apart. Pine, preferably white or red pine, is then planted in the alternate intervals.

As the pine grows much more rapidly than the spruce during the first few years, it is best to postpone the planting of the pine at least two years from the time the spruce is set. This allows the spruce trees sufficient time to become firmly established and to assure their not being crowded too quickly by the pine. When planted at this spacing, 1,200 trees of each species are required on an acre.

Under ordinary conditions the spruce will be suitable for Christmas trees when six to ten years old. Trees of this size are now bringing 50 cents to $1.50 per tree delivered at the market.

If two-thirds (800) of the planted trees reach maturity—the mortality is generally much lower—the harvest of crop per acre at present market prices would be worth from $400 to $1,200 delivered.

Profit From Thinning.

The pine is left to grow to timber size. When harvested at forty years of age it will yield 20,000 to 25,000 board feet of lumber per acre, worth $150 to $250 at present market prices standing in the field. In addition it will yield a small profit when the first thinning is made, usually fifteen to twenty-five years after planting, and substantial returns from thinnings at regular intervals thereafter.

The total investment, including taxes and compound interest for a ten-year period, when the Christmas trees are harvested, will not exceed $35 an acre. The additional cost of carrying the pine to maturity is practically negligible.

Farm Inventory Is Very Simple Form of Record

"An inventory can be taken on the average farm in less than half a day, and for the time spent it shows the farmer the most about his business of any records he can keep."

This statement is made by Prof. W. B. Hart of the farm management department at the New York State College of Agriculture.

"A farm inventory is the simplest form of farm financial record that can be kept," he says. "The inventory shows the farmer his net worth above debts, and a comparison of two successive annual inventories will show him whether he got ahead during the year. This is the first step to take in putting a farm on a good business basis, and from such an inventory a credit statement can be made to be filed with the bank where the farmer does business."

"Any farmer borrowing money from a bank should file a credit statement with his bank once a year. The banker is a custodian of the funds of his depositors and should not make loans to any but responsible persons. He is entitled to and should have the information which a credit statement gives and this statement also generally gives a farmer a better credit standing at the bank."

The state college at Ithaca has copies of a form for taking an inventory, with spaces provided for all the items. It also contains complete directions for taking the inventory and for making a credit statement, with blanks for two such statements. This can be had free from the college by writing for it.

Winter Green Feed Very Important for Hens

If one has cabbage or mangels stored in a cellar where they may freeze, it often pays to keep a thermometer in the cellar and give it additional protection, or use a lantern to bring up the temperature if the mercury begins to stand close to 32 degrees.

Frozen green feed is not good for hens, and constant freezing and thawing is not good for the keeping qualities of the feed.

Hens do not like rye grain, but they will eat sprouted rye, and it seems to be a satisfactory green feed. Sprouted oats are generally used. If you make a homemade grain sprouter with wooden trays, heated with a kerosene incubator lamp, be sure the fire risk is not greater than the value of the sprouted oats. In most cases, I think the metal sprouters are a good investment, because the fire risk is greatly reduced.

When mangels are sliced and thrown in the litter, they pick up more or less dirt and straw. Cutting them in halves and laying them in wooden troughs may be a better way. Then the hens can peck out the succulent feed more readily than when the pieces are half-buried in the litter.

Barley Used in Laying Mash Meets With Favor

Farmers with barley to be used as poultry feed, might use it to the best advantage by adopting the Cornell scratch grain and mash mixture for laying hens.

The scratch grain formula consists of 500 pounds of cracked corn, 200 pounds of wheat, 200 pounds of barley and 100 pounds of heavy oats. If good heavy oats are not available, they advise leaving the oats out of the scratch grain mixture.

In the laying mash 100 pounds of ground barley is used in place of the ground oats usually recommended in a ration of that type. The mash consists of 100 pounds each of yellow corn meal, ground barley, middlings, bran and meat scrap containing 50 to 55 per cent protein. Three pounds of fine table salt should be thoroughly mixed in each 500 pounds of the laying mash.

Exercise for Brood Sow

The brood sow should get plenty of exercise during the winter months. The sow that keeps out of doors most of the time when the weather is good is much more likely to produce a strong litter than the sow that lies around in the barn or shed. A sow that is too fat will not produce a strong litter of pigs—neither will she be able to take as good care of them. Give the brood sows the run of a pasture lot during the winter if possible, and scatter some feed over the ground so they will be induced to take plenty of exercise.

TESTS SHOW EARLY SEEDED OATS GIVE LARGER YIELD

Seven-Year Test Made by Nebraska Station.

While there is such a thing as seeding oats too early in the spring, there is no doubt but many farmers are inclined to defer seeding more than several weeks. Oats are a cool weather plant, and for that reason the more its growing period can be stretched while the weather is cool the larger will be the yield.

The Nebraska experiment station has accumulated some valuable data on this subject in recent years that should be generally known.

In a seven-year test, for example, oats seeded on March 31 averaged 58 bushels per acre; those seeded April 12, 46 bushels; and those seeded April 20, 38 bushels. At the North Platte (Nebr.) experiment station in a 14-year test, oats seeded April 8 yielded 28 bushels per acre; those seeded April 18, 25 bushels; and those seeded April 20, 21 bushels.

Average yields of a given crop for periods of seven to fourteen years are pretty reliable and, if figures presented above certainly point to early seeding as being very desirable for oats. What may be said about oats in this respect applies equally to barley and spring wheat. It is important, therefore, to have the ground intended for oats or other small grains in shape to rush seeding operations as much as possible after the season for spring work opens.

FARM NOTES

Grow a cash crop. Once a year it will bring in quite a sum of money.

Just minding his own business will keep a farmer going all the time 12 months of the year.

Pack ice well when you store it. It will not make it any colder, but there may be more of it next summer when you want it.

An acre of twenty-bushel corn fodder made into silage will put twice as much gain on live stock as it will if fed from the shock.

Produce something that your neighboring farmers will want to buy. It may be seed, breeding stock or some variety of food that they don't raise.

Fine seeds that are sown on the surface of the soil should be shaded with muslin or paper, since the germination of some sorts is hindered by direct light.

Keeping farm accounts is one of the farm tasks which should not be neglected. Records show where profits and losses exist. Profitable farming pays. Let your accounts tell you.

Proper Food and Light Are Poultry Essentials

Feeds containing vitamin A, and arrangements for direct sunlight to utilize the vital ultra-violet ray are as necessary part of the poultry farm equipment as chicken houses and pens, experiments of recent years at the Kansas State Agricultural college under the direction of the poultry husbandry department and Dr. J. S. Hughes of the chemistry department have shown.

Salesman For Face Cream Learns a Lesson

New York City, Mr. H. B. Menne writes:—"I was a salesman of creams for healing pimples, blemishes, etc., but when my face broke out with blotches, pimples and blackheads, I tried one salve after another with no results. I found it as impossible to sell skin creams as a bald headed man finds selling hair tonic. Finally I decided I would have to get at the cause—constipation. I was amazed to find that within a few days after taking Carter's Little Liver Pills my skin took on a new healthful look." Druggists, 25 & 75c red packages.

Million-Dollar Houses

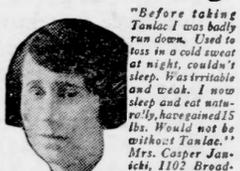

The Princess Galtzine—Aimee Crocker—was talking on the S. S. Paris about Thomas Fortune Ryan's demolition of the Yerkes million-dollar house in order to make himself a garden.

"Oh, well," she said, "million-dollar houses aren't much use, anyhow. Maybe you've heard the story of the coal king who built a white marble palace facing Central park and then said to his wife:

"At last I've given you the million-dollar house of your dreams. How will you enjoy it?"

"The same as all the other owners of million-dollar houses enjoy theirs," she answered—"by spending my springs on the Riviera, my summers at Newport, my autumns in Scotland and my winters in Florida."

Sick bodies made strong

After a spell of Grippe or flu, when your system is all run down and your legs are so weak they can hardly hold up your body, start right in taking Tanlac.

It's wonderful how soon you really do improve! Tanlac salts right in and puts the system in fighting trim. It cleans the blood, revitalizes the digestive organs, gives you an appetite for solid food and makes you feel like a new person.

Nothing will turn the trick quite as fast as Tanlac, made after the famous Tanlac formula from roots, barks and herbs. Buy a bottle today and get started back to full strength and vigor. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

Crystal Gazing Useful

Crystal gazing is not all humbug; it might very well be used in scientific diagnosis, suggests Dr. Lee Edward Tavis of Iowa State university, for crystal gazing is a way of making a person day dream, and this is a border line of the hypnotic state. Doctor Travis himself, says Popular Science Monthly, uses crystal gazing in diagnosing certain types of insanity.

Gossips never talk about themselves. Apparently, they are devoid of introspection.
