PHONE COMPANY HOLDS HEARING

A hearing on the affairs of the Theresa Union Telephone company was held at the Association of Commerce rooms in Fond du Lac by the state railroad rate commission on Thursday C. A. Seifert represented the commission.

The inquiry by the commission is being made upon complaint of stockholders in Campbellsport, it is declared, who allege that the company has not declared dividends, that its reports show no record of stock sales and that it has not been managed to the best interests of the stockholders.

It is alleged that the capital stock of the company jumped from $38,000 to $75,000 with no record shown in the reports of money paid into the company for the stock.

Officials of the company declare that the complainants do not understand the financial reports of the company. It is maintained that in 1921 the company was granted an increase in rates which came just at a period of financial changes which caused a loss to the company of 134 subscribers when Campbellsport stockholders protested. In 1922, there was a sleet storm it is alleged, which caused a loss to the company of $15,000 to $20,000 and the company has not paid a dividend since. Officers of the company claim that money of the company has been paid in making up the loss and that now there is no indebtedness and that the company has a small surplus.

The Theresa Union Telephone company is capitalized at $100,000, of which approximately $75,000 stock has been sold, it is declared. The company is said to have 133 stockholders and 852 telephone subscribers.

MEMORIAL

Barbara Schaeffer in memory of our dear daughter and sister who died seven years ago April 9, 1919: Just a thought of you dear Barbara, Just remembering fond and true, Just a token of affection
That our hearts still ache for you
Not lost to the ones who love you,
But only gone on before,
To the beautiful isle of somewhere,
Where parting is no more.

"SINFUL EMIL" TO APPEAR IN THE STATESMAN

Through the courtesy of the Milwaukee Journal, this paper has been granted permission to use the new serial, "Sinful Emil" or "What Price Passion" by Oswald Arrowroot, now being run in the green sheet of the Journal. The entire story is woven about a young farm lad from Kewaskum, who has grown tired of the narrow confines of farm life and yearns for the bright lights of the city.

He leaves his rural surroundings and his himself to the great city of Milwaukee where he becomes acquainted with the bypaths and pitfalls of city life. Don't fail to read every installment of this great serial. The people of this community are going to love the story. It is the most talked of story of the present day. Order your copy of the Statesman today, in order to get in on the ground floor.

"LORRAINE OF THE LIONS"

Posed on the parapet of a country mansion, Lorraine Livingston, was about to be dashed to the ground by a huge gorilla that had her in its grasp. Summoning her strange power over animals she forced the beast to drop her on the ledge, the animal falling to its death a moment later.

As a feminine version of Tarzan the story in which this incident appears will be shown at the Opera House on Sunday evening. It is called "Lorraine of the Lions", a "Universal-Jewel" production, with Norman Kerry as star and Patsy Ruth Miller opposite him.

The girl is shipwrecked on a deserted isle at the age of seven. Here she grows up with wild beasts as her only companions, until she is rescued twelve years later. The girl's experiences on the South Seas Island with her galaxy of pets including twenty lions, two tigers, a gorilla and thirty monkeys make an interesting narrative.

But when she takes the gorilla back to civilization with her she runs into a series of exciting adventures which surpass even her thrilling jungle life. The animal shows a strange tinge of jealousy and refuses to allow the girl to have human companions.

Norman Kerry plays the part of the girl's lover while Patsy Ruth Miller takes the title role. The story which was written by Isadore Bernstein is directed by Edward Sedgwick. Others in the cast are Fred Humes, Joseph J. Dowling, Philo McCullough, Harry Todd, Frank Newburg, Rosemary Cooper, Doreen Turner, Jackie Goodrich and W. Stewart McCrea.

Bresnahan Is Back With McGraw

John Joseph McGraw, who dabbles in real estate, baseball pennants and develops baseball players and managers, is shown here with Roger Bresnahan, Giant coach and famous catcher. Bresnahan was the best catcher in the big leagues more than fifteen years ago and was the first man to introduce shin guards for catchers. Bresnahan is acting as coach and teaching the young Giant pitchers some of the tricks of the trade.

Sports authorities are again trying to define an amateur. He is believed to be a person who will not turn professional unless the money looks big enough.

McGraw as Pennant Winner
John McGraw has had the distinction of being with 13 clubs that won pennants. It was with the Baltimore club in 1884, 1885, 1886 that he had his first touch of pennant life. He won pennants in 1884, 1895, 1911, 1912, 1913, 1917, 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924 for the New York Giants. The last four years of pennant winning were in successive seasons, thereby equalling the record Charlie Comiskey and the St. Louis Browns made quite a few years ago.

FEW HURLERS ARE GOOD AS HITTERS

Host of Big League Pitchers Never Hit Home Run.

Here is a list of hurlers who were strong on long-distance hitting. Naturally there are but a few of them. A host of hurlers in major league baseball never made a four-base hit and but few of them hit out the double number in triples. Walter Johnson has hit out more two-base hits than any hurler the same ever had. Of course, this has reference only to hurlers who were doing duty on the firing line when these records were made.

It took Walter a long time to amass them but he hit out 87 doubles during his career in big league baseball. "Babe" Ruth failed to equal this mark during his time as a hurler but he served only five seasons in that capacity. George Mullen, of the Detroit club, from 1902 until 1913, hit out 72 doubles. Al Orth, famous as a hurler and later as an umpire, was a heavy hitter and a regular one too. In his time as a big leaguer he hit out 52 doubles, 25 triples and nine homers. Otis Crandall, of the Giants, during 1908 until 1915, was a great batsman for he lacked but two points of the .300 class when he finished his big league career. He hit out 37 doubles, 19 triples and 9 homers during his time in the big show.

Such hurlers as Guy Hecker, Bobby Carruthers, Dave Foutz, Jack Stivets, Charlie Ferguson, Bill Kennedy, Scott Stratton, Win Mercer, who were in the game during the eighties and nineties no doubt had records in total bases which touched the 400 mark but the data is not available, that is, the correct data. Jack Stivets, if his exact record in two-base hits were obtainable, would lead all hurlers in that line.

Grover Alexander, while his percentage in extra base hits doesn't reach the .300 mark, made a lot of long distance hits for he had 48 doubles, 11 triples, eight homers in the 1,241 times he stepped to the plate. "Babe" Ruth leads in home runs with Walter Johnson next, Crandall third and Al Orth fourth. Art Nehf, a regular 190 batsman, made seven homers during his time in big league baseball. He has been known to have knocked out two homers in a single game.

Here are the averages of hurlers who reached 300 or better in total bases. It will be seen that but few hurlers reached that mark during a space of 10 years and it is some feat for the boys who do the firing to accomplish it.

Here are the names of 15 hurlers who gained a reputation as hard hitters and one of them—"Babe" Ruth—has earned the distinction of being the hardest hitter the game ever had.

"Big Bill" Edwards

William H. (Big Bill) Edwards, football captain and lineman in his days at Princeton and widely known grid-iron referee, has been named president of the newly formed American League of Professional Football Players, the organization sponsored by Red Grange and his manager, C. C. Pyle.

Sport Notes

A golf putter that sights like a gun has been perfected.

Faavo Nurmi broke 29 records while in the United States last year.

Five racing tracks will be in operation near Chicago this season.

All a man on skis is said to need is a clear head. That and considerable optimism.

There are 22 reasons why Helen Willis eventually will win the title. They are her years.

Tommy Murphy again led the Grand circuit light-harness drivers in 1925 with winnings of $18,305.

Henry Sackett, a junior, has been elected captain of the 1926 basketball team at the University of Chicago.

Tommy Milton of Beverly Hills, Cal., famous automobile racing driver, announces his retirement from the track.

John L. Sullivan's opinion of prize fighters who don't prize fight would be interesting, but probably not printable.

Charley Brookings, former University of Iowa track captain and Olympic star, holds 23 records in the dashes and hurdles.

It is reported in London that several English owners of race horses will enter their thoroughbreds on American tracks this season.

John T. Blossom, graduate director of athletics at Yale university, will retire at the close of the present college year to re-engage in business in Cleveland, Ohio.

Loren Murphison, world's premier indoor sprinter and holder of the British 100 and 220 yard titles, will defend his foreign titles in London next summer.

Football and basket ball were the only self-sustaining sports at the University of Pennsylvania during the academic year 1924-25. Thirteen of the fifteen sports fostered by the council lost money.

The Norwich university polo team will visit England, Scotland and France next fall and play a series of matches with prominent teams of those countries.

The Columbus (Ohio) Concourse association has just been formed by pigeon fanciers of that city. A series of races will be held starting May 9 and concluding with a 1,000-mile race late in the season.

Some of the desire to see Helen Willis a champion grows out of the fact that most of her countrymen can pronounce her name.

Watch the little boy whose mother says he never gets into a fight. He will be the world's champion heavy-weight pugilist some day.

Sports authorities are again trying to define an amateur. He is believed to be a person who will not turn professional unless the money looks big enough.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinski of 526 1st Ave. Milwaukee, Wis., writes that she became so weak and run-down that she was not able to do housework. She saw the name Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the paper and sent to her husband, "I will try that medicine and see if it will help me." She says she took six bottles and is feeling much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who lives in Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., writes as follows: "A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and since taking it I feel like a different woman."

With her children grown up, the middle-aged woman finds time to do the things she never had time to do before—read the new books, see the new plays, enjoy her grand-children, take an active part in church and civic affairs. Far from being pushed aside by the younger set, she finds a full, rich life of her own. That is, if her health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, say they owe their vigor and health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are recommending it to their friends and neighbors.

COLOR IMPORTANT IN TOPCOAT; FOR THE BIG AND LITTLE GIRL

It is good to be living in the present day, when one can wear, in the name of fashion, colors as bright and joyous as the tints of the rainbow. Such a season for color as this! Even our cloth topcoats, which once we thought must appear in tone as neutral as shy pussywillows in springtime, now take on color.

Indeed color is playing a role so vastly important that it all but counts more than the actual styling of the garment. It is a fact, a garment may flare without sacrificing the slim silhouette which is as popular as ever. The majority of simple cloth coats are collared with dainty spring fur, as is true of the model in the picture.

In all clothes for youngsters, beginning with the little tots and going on to those of the sub deb, one sees repeated, or reflected, the style points that were first presented for grownups. Evidently spring's new modes became the inspiration of those designers who occupy themselves with be fashioned most simply, free from any novel detailing, yet if it registers an important new shade, its style significance is pronounced at a glance.

Green is one of the leading color themes for this season, especially soft-toned shades. Even the fads have lost all soberness, as they take on a touch of rose. Then there are the rose tones themselves which have been so assertive among Palm Beach colorings and which bid fair to repeat their vogue throughout spring and summer modes. As to navy and gray, they are pre-eminently smart colorings of coats, hats or frocks.

No less fascinating than the coloring of our spring coats, are the materials from which they are made. There is an impressive air of refinement about the exquisitely textured wools featured the needs of the younger generation. They have not even omitted the note of greater elaboration in spring styles and so little missy is going to be somewhat less simply dressed than she has been. This is true, at any rate, of her dressup and party frocks.

When taffeta came rustling in the makers of children's clothes pounced upon it for nothing is better suited to youthful wearers. It is used alone and in combinations of many sorts, with other materials, for pretty dresses and party frocks for the little miss. It is particularly well adapted to making self-trimmings—as ruffles, ruches and shirtings or puffs. The little frock pictured in an illustration, in which puffs of taffeta, shirred over a cord at each edge, form a trimming for the dress. It is easily fast-throughout all fashion's realm. Emphasized among leading fabrics are twills, reps and wool bengalines.

Inspired by choice fabrics of perfect coloring, the stylist is making it a point to carry the thought of superior workmanship and careful detailing into the moderate-priced coat as well as the more costly types. The coat in the picture may be in almost any coloring of one's choosing. Fine twill is the medium chosen for its development. Its outstanding detail when it comes to its styling is that extra fullness has been acquired by introducing a subtle flare at the side seams in conjunction with a pointed waistline brought from the back to under the arms. Thus has genius adopted the lined into rosettes and flower forms. This simple and pretty frock has a belt of ribbon and little flowers made of it set at intervals along the puffs.

The jumper mode is developed in dressy frocks, with skirts of finely plaited georgette or other light materials, and worn with blouses of gay printed silk that harmonize in color. The combination of georgette and other fabrics is prettily worked out in dresses with skirts of the georgette trimmed with a lattice work of silk or wool fabric, joined to a long bodice of the same fabric with a georgette vest. Gay and pleasing colors are chosen for little girls' party frocks.

New Type of Hose
The hosette is a new type of stocking developed at the demand of a well-known film star. It ends below the knee and has a top resembling those of men's golf hose, which is turned back. The stockings, however, instead of being of the heavy golf type, are sheerest chiffon.

They resemble pajamas in general appearance, but pajamas are essentially to sleep in and no one could sleep in trousers of silver lace surmounted by a Cossack coat of velvet, lace and marabou, fastened by a tight sash girdle. Nor could one doze comfortably on painted red velvet and heavily embroidered black satin.

New Tea Gown
The latest tea gowns are known as trow-trows because the important parts of them are a type of trousers.

New Printed Silks
The new silks for spring have designs which are considered representative of the spirit of American life.

TIMELY DESSERTS

For the early spring months, having tired of heavy rich desserts, we turn with enjoyment to lighter and easier digested dishes.

The is so well liked that it is more often served than any other dessert. When it is served with a filling as an open pie, it is more easy of digestion. Lemon, custard, and different fruit pies are all among this class of pies. The following is a good lemon pie:

Queen of Lemon Pie.—Beat the yolks of three eggs. To one cupful of sugar add a tablespoonful of butter; when well creamed add a tablespoonful of flour and mix with the eggs. Grate the yellow rind of a lemon and squeeze the juice, add with one cupful of milk to the other mixture. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff and fold in lightly, then pour into a lined pastry shell, unbaked. Bake slowly until thick and well browned.

Deimonico Pudding.—Turn a pint can of peaches with the syrup into a pudding dish. Heat one pint of milk in a double boiler, add one-third of a cupful of cornstarch stirred to a smooth paste with one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-half cupful of cold milk. Stir and cook in the hot milk until the cornstarch is thoroughly cooked. Cover and let stand for a few minutes. Beat the yolks of two eggs, add one-third of a cupful of sugar, beat again, add to the hot mixture, continue beating until the egg is cooked, then pour over the peaches. Beat the egg whites until stiff, add four tablespoonfuls of sugar, cover the pudding and place in a slow oven at first, then brown quickly. Serve either hot or cold.

Prune Patties.—Take one-half cupful of stewed prunes, stone and mash, add one beaten egg yolk, a pinch of salt, a grating of nutmeg, a teaspoonful of flour and sugar to taste, a half cupful of sweet milk. Mix and pour into pastry-lined patty pans. Bake until a light brown. Spread the tops with a meringue made from the egg white and a little sugar. Brown lightly in a moderate oven.

Maple Junket.—Warm just lukewarm, one quart of milk, add one dissolved junket tablet, one-third of a cupful of maple sugar and pour into sherbet cups. Serve when firm with grated maple sugar and cream. If the maple sugar is not to be obtained use brown sugar with a few drops of maple flavoring.

Dresden Crumbs.—Melt chocolate and stir in as many dry, finely grated crumbs as the chocolate will cover. Serve with cream and sugar.

Food Suggestions.
A pretty salad for a party is prepared as follows: Place a slice of pineapple on a tender lettuce leaf; in the center of the pineapple place half of a banana and top with a red cherry. Pass salad dressing on the side of the salad.

Cream of Onion Soup.—Slice four onions and cook in boiling water until soft, changing the water once during the cooking. When tender, rub the onions through a sieve and to a cupful of the pulp, prepare the following: Melt a tablespoonful of butter; when hot add two tablespoonfuls of flour. Stir until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan, then add three cupfuls of cold milk and cook until smooth; after ten minutes add the onion and the liquid in which they were cooked. Boil up once and serve.

Hot Water Ginger Bread.—Take one cupful of sugar, one beaten egg, a half teaspoonful of salt, one-half cupful of melted shortening a tablespoonful of ginger, one cupful of molasses, and three cupfuls of flour. Mix and stir until well blended, then add one cupful of boiling water into which is stirred a scant teaspoonful of soda. Pour into a well-greased dripping pan and bake 40 minutes. Serve hot, cut into squares with cottage cheese and apple sauce. This dessert is especially good with whipped cream.

Satisfy Soup.—Scrape and clean three bunches of satisfy cut into dice and soak for 15 minutes in cold water. Drain, cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Add a quart of milk, butter, salt and pepper to season. Bring to the boiling point, add three milk crackers (rolled) and serve at once.

Spanish Eggs.—Cook together one cupful of stewed tomatoes and a clove of garlic finely minced, one chopped onion, two sweet green peppers chopped. Cook gently until reduced to half. Spread on thin slices of buttered toast and lay a poached egg on each slice.

Hash Roll.—Prepare a rich biscuit dough and roll out one-half inch thick. Spread with hot, moist and well-seasoned hash. Roll up and bake in a hot oven. Serve on a hot platter with a rich brown or tomato sauce.

Laisure and Laziness
Laisure is time for doing something useful; this leisure the diligent man will obtain but the lazy man never; so that, as Poor Richard says, a life of leisure and a life of laziness are two things.—Benjamin Franklin.

Eloquence in Hiding
Eloquence may be found in conversations and in all kinds of writings; it is rarely found when looked for, and sometimes discovered where it is least expected.—La Bruyere.

Is your car a General Motors Car?

IF YOU own a Chevrolet, a Pontiac, an Oldsmobile, an Oakland, a Buick or a Cadillac, you own a General Motors car.

"But what," you may ask, "does that mean to me?" It means just this:

General Motors is a family of companies building motor cars and trucks and such other famous automotive products as Fisher Bodies, Delco and Remy electrical systems, Harrison radiators and AC spark plugs. Still other General Motors products are Delco-Light electric power plants and Frigidaire electric refrigerators. There are General Motors plants in 44 cities, employing 120,000 people; and sales and service organizations in 144 countries.

General Motors uses the combined resources of this great family for the benefit of each member. It effects great savings in the purchase of quality materials; it provides the best of engineering talent; it maintains the world's largest research laboratories and proving ground for automobiles; and it assures the permanence of its various divisions and the products which they make.

In other words, General Motors has every facility and every incentive to maintain quality and to offer value for the price; and the current models of General Motors cars are offered as the greatest values in the history of the automobile industry.

MRS. K. ENDLICH KEWASKUM.

NEWS OF THE BADGER STATE

Fond du Lac—Because the county board last November refused to appropriate $175 for grading examination papers, students of the rural schools of Fond du Lac county may not have their annual graduation exercises this year.

Milwaukee—With 2,826 arrests in March, according to the monthly report of the police department last compiled, all records for arrests during any one month in the city's history were broken.

Bellevue—Civil war veterans will dedicate the Cushing memorial park here in May. E. B. Helastreet, Lake Mills, assistant adjutant general of the Grand Army of the Republic, announced.

Marquette—Reports from East Middle Inlet, Marinette county, are that meadow mice have attacked the orchards in that vicinity since the heavy snows and in many instances completely ruined them.

Fond du Lac—State Senator William A. Titus, Fond du Lac, has been elected chairman of the state council of the American Legislators' council, according to notices received here from the association's headquarters in Denver.

Stoughton—Atty. James M. Clancey, 68, widely known in democratic circles in the state, died at his home here.

Madison—Minnesota authorities having failed to connect Mrs. Mayme Hodge of La Crosse with the mysterious death of the Rev. Knute Hirkeland in Minneapolis, Gov. Blaine directed the application for extradition of the woman.

Milton—John Hill Babcock, 80, next to the last Civil war veteran living here, died in Mercy hospital, Janesville.

Menasha—For the eighth time within a few weeks Walter Finch, 9, submitted to an operation for abscess of the brain, performed by a Chicago specialist at an Appleton hospital.

Watsonville—Arrested after he had attempted to hold up a gasoline filling station attendant with a hammer, a man who said he was Conrad Felton, 26, of Oshkosh, strangled himself with his belt in a cell at the city jail here.

Madison—Preliminary expense statements of candidates for judicial offices in the recent elections show that in most instances the cost of campaigning was light.

Dubuque—John H. Troeger, veteran of the Civil war, in which he served in the Sixteenth Wisconsin Infantry, and a former commander of John Ross post, G. A. R., at Monticello, died here at the age of 92.

Marquette—John B. Deroster, 81, born in Green Bay, and a resident of this city for more than 70 years, died at Marquette. Mr. Deroster was a survivor of the historic Peshtigo fire of 1871.

Sharon—Farmer patrons of the United Milk Co., condensery plant at Sharon, went on a strike refusing to deliver milk at the prices quoted April 1 by the company, $2.19 a hundred for 3.5 milk from tested herds and $1.92 for that from untested cattle.

Wauwatosa—Paul J. Bergman, 25, of Fort Atkinson, died suddenly here at the home of O. D. Austin, his wife's father, where he and his wife were visiting. Death was attributed to apoplexy.

Fond du Lac—Consistent reforestation programs were urged by Assemblyman George W. Blanchard of Edgerton in an address before the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League.

Madison—At a special meeting the Taylor county board authorized payment of plow and labor bills incurred this winter in removing snow from main highways.

Sturgeon Bay—Commercial whitefish have been successfully hatched in great numbers at the state hatchery here. Supt. Percy Weaver reports a high per cent hatch during the last few days.

Superior—Wolves are slaughtering deer in northern Wisconsin, running down the animals made easy prey by the deep crust covered snow which still lies in the woods.

Kenosha—The wine plant at the state penitentiary, Waupun, went into operation on a 24-hour basis April 1.

Oshkosh—Asserting that the "wet" agitation sweeping across the country does not represent the true sentiment of the farmer and that a return to light wine and beer would mean a direct blow to the dairy industry and agriculture as a whole, the Winnebago county agricultural council has gone on record strongly opposing modification of the Volstead act.

Green Bay—Bernard A. Leonard, 82, of De Pere, descendant of an early colonial family, died of pneumonia, following an attack of influenza.

Madison—The third annual all-Wisconsin high school music contest, which is to be conducted by the school of music of the University of Wisconsin, will open with preliminary competition in the various normal schools April 23-24.

Madison—The Wisconsin Telephone Co. has been authorized by the state railroad commission to increase its rates at Sheboygan.

Manitowish—That a fine of $150 for violation of liquor laws, assessed more than a year ago against Joseph Radey, Branch saloon keeper, never has been paid was revealed when a warrant for his arrest was issued, charging him with selling liquor to Oscar Wroslon and others Feb. 5, a few hours before Wroslon killed his wife.

Wabeno—For the first time in many years the advent of April has found ice roads of loggers here still in usable condition.

Madison—The first rift in organized labor circles here since the railroad shopmen's strike in 1922 appeared when members of the plasterers' union went out to enforce their demands for a 25 cents an hour increase in wages.

Wabeno—Arrangements are being made for the annual oratorical contest of the Northwestern Wisconsin Oratorical and Declamatory League which will be held here April 16.

Richland Center—According to Mrs. Scott Barnes, county treasurer, the amount of real estate and personal property delinquent taxes in Richland county this year will not be more than 50 per cent of that returned a year ago.

Tomah—Caught in the current, Joseph Schindler, 2, was swept through a storm sewer 200 feet long and caught in the ice at the other end until he was rescued by Arthur Backus.

Sheboygan—Sixty-three persons have applied for citizenship papers and will have their hearings April 12, when circuit court opens here.

Oshkosh—Henry F. Dowling, chief of the Oshkosh police department for 20 years and a member of the force for more than 30 years, is dead.

Madison—Dr. John P. Brown, superintendent of the Central State hospital for the insane, Waupun, has resigned because of ill health, the state board of control has announced.

Sheboygan—Lyman Ballard, Milwaukee, a salesman, was arrested here as a drunken driver. In police court he said he wasn't drunk, he just wanted to fool the officer.

Clintonville—An old time fiddlers' contest will be held at Clintonville April 14. It will be held in the armory of that city to decide the championship of three adjacent counties, Outagamie, Shawano and Waupaca.

WETS OPEN ASSAULT ON VOLSTEAD LAW

Great Twelve-Day Tournament Attracting National-Wide Attention.

Washington—With five white-haired United States senators as judges, the great twelve-day tournament of the wets and the dries is in progress.

By agreement the wets were first in the fray. Their leading champions in the United States senate, William Cabel Bruce (Dem., Md.), who nearly half a century ago won against Woodrow Wilson as the best debater in Princeton university, and Walter Evans Edge (Rep., N. J.), once chosen governor of his state by 70,000 plurality, led off in the debate.

The first witness heard was the chief prohibition enforcement officer of the land, Brig. Gen. Lincoln Clark Andrews, assistant secretary of the United States treasury.

The first sitting of the committee of senators appointed by the senate to hear nationwide testimony as to the advisability of modifying the prohibition law and of repealing the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States lasted three hours.

Almost as obviously antagonistic and antagonized was Senator Thomas J. Walsh (Dem., Mont.), noncommittal in speech and manner, but known to be deep seated dries.

The opening fanfare, sounded by Senator Bruce, combined patriotic rhetoric and appalling statistics on what he denounced as the tyranny of prohibition and the scandal of attempted enforcement.

The floor manager of the hearing on behalf of the wets is Julien Codman, a Boston lawyer, who told the committee that he represented the joint legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor, the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, Moderation League, Inc.

Mr. Codman made it clear that the wets, in asking for modification of the prohibition law to permit "beer of an alcoholic content of 4 per cent or less," are but taking their first step.

Then Mr. Codman defined the "minimum demand" of the wets, saying: "I feel that we have a peculiar right to respectfully demand from the committee as our minimum that they report with favor senate bill 3118 (Senator Edge's bill), which, to put it shortly, substitutes for the words: 'more than one-half of 1 per cent,' where they occur in the Volstead act, the words 'intoxicating in fact.'"

A point which the wets will emphasize throughout the six days which they are allowed in this 12-day tournament is that prohibition enforcement not only does not enforce, but that the attempt to enforce it is destroying the usefulness of the federal courts.

WASHINGTON BRIEFS

Owing to the number of witnesses waiting to be heard, no end of the hearings of the house agriculture committee on farm relief proposals is in sight.

A substitute for the Volstead act to prohibit manufacture, sale, importation and exportation of distilled liquors and thus in effect permit beer and wines and other nonfermented beverages has been offered in the house by Representative Carew (Dem., N. Y.).

Flat rejection of a request from Charles E. Hughes, counsel for the American Petroleum Institute, for data collected by the President's oil board was announced by Secretary of the Interior Work, board chairman.

An invitation was taken under consideration by President Coolidge to speak in Chicago, July 14, dedicating a memorial building erected by the Elks. The invitation was extended by a committee of former exalted rulers.

German Trade Leader Dies—Muhlheim, Germany.—August Thyssen, an outstanding figure in Germany's industrial world during the last decade, is dead here. He was eighty-five years old.

Gustav Geffroy Dies—Paris.—Gustav Geffroy, president of the Concerto academy, is dead here, aged seventy-one. He was well-known as a writer and was Clemenceau's companion in the fight for revision of the condemnation of Captain Dreyfus.

Refuses to Wed Thaw—Atlantic City, N. J.—Evelyn Nesbit, asked about a reported attempt at reconciliation with her former husband, Harry K. Thaw, declared "If he were the last man in the world, I would not remarry him."

Destroyers Leave Manila—Manila.—Destroyer divisions 43 and 45 of the United States Asiatic fleet left Manila for the South Philippine Islands and Singapore, after which they proceed to Shanghai.

DIRIGIBLE COMMANDER

Lieut. Com. Charles E. Rosendahl, who has been appointed commander of the United States dirigible Los Angeles, a sister ship to the ill-fated Shenandoah. Commander Rosendahl, was the senior surviving officer of the Shenandoah tragedy.

CHURCHES MAKE BIG GAIN IN PAST YEAR

Members and Communicants Increased 800,000 in 1925.

New York.—The number of members and communicants of churches in America increased 800,000 during 1925, according to the annual census of the Church Herald, made public a few days ago.

The increase in communicants or members shown in the Methodist group was 220,183. The Western Catholic bodies were second with an increase of 203,990.

Ex-Gov. Davis, Cleared, May Seek Office Again

Topeka, Kan.—Cleared of all charges of attempting to sell pardons and paroles while he was governor of Kansas, Jonathan M. Davis refused to say definitely whether he would seek that office again in further vindication of his name.

A district court jury acquitted the former governor and his son, Russell, of a charge of accepting $1,250 from Fred W. Pollman, a convicted forger, for a pardon.

Senate Committee 10-2 for Rail Merger Bill

Washington.—The senate interstate commerce committee, by a vote of 10 to 2, reported favorably on the Cummins compulsory railroad consolidation bill.

The measure provides that American railroads be given a five-year term in which to arrange voluntary mergers under approval of the interstate commerce commission, and that at the end of the specified term, the commissioners be authorized to compel consolidations.

Ban on Army Politics

Mexico City.—President Calles reiterated his warning that army officers must keep out of politics or get out of the army, voted first when he told Gen. Arnulfo Gomez, commander of the Vera Cruz military zone, that he must stick to army business or resign.

Sugar Crop 27,642,000 Tons

Washington.—A world sugar production of 27,642,000 short tons for the current season, representing an increase of 43 per cent over the estimates for the harvested 1924-25 crop, is forecast by the Department of Agriculture.

Food for Polar Flyer

New York.—Eight tons of provisions were delivered to the Brooklyn navy yard for Lieutenant Byrd's attempted flight to the North pole.

Fire Destroys 400 Homes

Manila.—More than 3,000 persons have been rendered homeless by a fire, which destroyed 400 houses in the town of Kinnugayn, Cebu province.

Business Section Burns

St. Louis, Mo.—Fire practically wiped out the business section of Carter, S. D. The loss was estimated at about $100,000.

COMMITTEE FAVORS WATERWAY SCHEME

House Body Adopts Engineers' Report, Recommending Its Construction.

Washington.—Chicago and the state of Illinois scored heavily in the fight to complete the Illinois river link in the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway, when the house rivers and harbors committee adopted the army engineers' report, recommending its construction.

The success of the Chicago and Illinois interests was gained in the face of strong opposition. Members from the eastern and lakes states were solidly lined up against the proposal.

The army engineers' report adopted by the house committee provides Chicago with an uninterrupted flow of 8,250 cubic feet of water from Lake Michigan for a period of five years, or until such time as the United States Supreme court or congress takes final action in the settlement of the water diversion and lake level controversy.

The committee's action also allots a sum of $1,350,000 of federal funds to be used for building a waterway in the Illinois river 9 feet deep and 200 feet wide, from Utica, Ill., to Grafton, Ill. The work, to be carried out in accordance with the recommendations of the War department, also provides for the removal of two state-built dams at Henry and Copperas Creek, Ill., necessary dredging and modification deemed necessary in federal dams at Kampsville and La Grange, Ill.

On recommendation of W. E. Hull, Republican of Illinois, the committee asked that the two federal dams at Kampsville and La Grange be re-surveyed by the War department engineers, with the view of their entire removal.

It was the contention of Mr. Hull that their presence would seriously impede traffic in the improved waterway. In the event of removal of the two dams being found impracticable, it was suggested they might be modified to conform with the locks at Lockport, Joliet, and at other points between the Chicago sanitary district drainage canal and Utica.

Though Representative Michelson, Republican of Chicago, demanded that the committee fix the ratio of diversion from Lake Michigan at 10,000 feet, and though Mr. Hull expressed himself as supporting this larger amount, both representatives felt that rather than imperil passage of the omnibus bill because of a provision not in accordance with the army engineers' report, it would not be well to insist on greater diversion or removal of the federal locks and dams.

Gov. W. L. Harding of Iowa opposed consideration of the New York state canal project as a substitute for the St. Lawrence waterway. The cost, he contended, would be prohibitive. One item was the removal of 82 railroad bridges now crossing the barge canal.

Holds Huerta's Acts Binding Upon Nation

Washington.—The general claims commission of the United States and Mexico announced that any obligations entered into by the "spurious government of Huerta" are binding upon the present Mexican government.

Train Kills Three in Auto

Detroit, Mich.—Joseph Puzze, his wife Rose and daughter, Stella, four years old, were killed and Joseph Dubtes and his wife were injured when an automobile was struck by a Grand Trunk passenger train here.

Rebuild Historic Ship

Sentle, Wash.—Masts and rigging spars on the historic brig Constitution, which is being rebuilt at the navy yard near here, are to be of Douglas fir grown in the Pacific Northwest.

Jail Phony War Cripple

New York.—Daniel Heffernan lacked practice as a cripple, so he failed in the art and was sentenced to six months in the workhouse. The fact he posed as a war cripple caused him to get the maximum penalty.

Perishes in a Blizzard

East End, Sask.—Mrs. H. C. Hansen, a farmer's wife, perished in a blizzard while driving her cows to the barn. Her husband found her body only 500 yards from the house.

For Killing Americans

Washington.—Arrest of four Mexicans believed to have slain Rex McIlhenny and wounded two other Americans near Mazatlan, Mex., has been reported to the State department by Ambassador Sheffield at Mexico City.

Last of Seventeen

Berkeley, Cal.—George W. Rumble, eighty-two, who claimed to be the last survivor of the 17 men who escaped from the Andersonville prison during the Civil war, is dead here.

Breeders Try to Improve Flocks

More Interest Developed in Production of High Egg-Laying Strains.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

For many years the efforts of poultry breeders to improve their flocks were confined largely to breeding for the type and color demanded by the "Standard of Perfection," and little attention was paid to developing high egg production.

To show that high egg production and good standard quality can be combined to a high degree in chickens, and to encourage breeding along these lines, was the purpose of the exhibit displayed by the United States Department of Agriculture at the Madison Square garden poultry show held in New York city a few weeks ago.

The male birds of the department's exhibit were all of excellent standard quality and were bred from hens which had laid from 200 to 250 eggs in their pullet year. Most of them had a pedigree which included several generations of producers of 200 eggs or more.

Breeding for Eggs.—Breeding fowls for high-egg production was given a great stimulus by the inauguration of egg-laying contests in this country about 15 years ago. These contests are now being held in every section of the country. A number of hens entered in these official contests have laid more than 300 eggs in one year. The highest producing hens are now coming from flocks which have been pedigree bred for egg production for a period of years. A large per cent of the hens entered in these contests are White Leghorns, but just as large egg records have been made by other popular breeds, such as Plymouth Rock, Rhode Island Red, and Wyandotte.

Good Care of Bees

The spring brood-rearing period is the time when the bees are going to need a large amount of stores to bring about the excess population of bees to gather the surplus crop. It requires a cell of honey to produce one worker bee. Seventy thousand bees will require 70,000 cells of honey—a thousand cells to one pound of honey. Protection should be provided to enable the bees to carry on their brood-rearing without interruption. A wind-break may be the protection, or perhaps packing, or the hive may be wrapped in newspapers or tar paper.

Seed Corn Tests

A summary of all seed corn tests conducted by Iowa State college and of tests reported to the college, including 45,003 ears gathered from 17 counties, representing all sections of the state, showed that only 53 per cent germinated strongly. The conclusion which crop extension specialists reached some time ago is that most of the corn planted in Iowa in 1925 will have to be given the individual germination test.

TREATED SEED WILL GREATLY INCREASE YIELD OF POTATOES

Extensive Tests Conducted on Kansas Farms.

An average increase of 40 bushels of potatoes per acre was obtained by seed-potato treatment during the past five years, extensive tests conducted on a total of about 200 plots on the farms of Kansas growers indicate.

In some instances the increase in yield was not more than 10 or 12 bushels per acre, while in other cases it ran as high as 135 bushels per acre. Not only was the yield of potatoes increased, but the quality also was raised.

Growers are now using one of two disease control methods, either the cold corrosive sublimate, or the hot formaldehyde. For the small grower the cold corrosive sublimate is probably the best because with it potatoes can be quickly and conveniently treated.

Corrosive sublimate can be secured from almost any drug store in powdered form. It is dissolved at the rate of one ounce in eight gallons of water. The powder is dissolved first in a jar of hot water and then poured into eight gallons of water. Whole, uncut, potatoes are then allowed to soak in this solution for one and one-half hours, after which they are dried, cut and planted. This treatment will kill most of the troublesome diseases that are carried on the seed. It has been satisfactory to those growers who only have a small patch to plant.

Formaldehyde is used at the rate of one pint to 15 gallons of water. The solution is then heated to 124 to 128 degrees Fahrenheit. The potatoes are dumped into the solution and allowed to remain there for three minutes.

Sowing Scarified Sweet Clover Seed in Pasture

Sweet clover may be sown in an old pasture by sowing scarified seed during the early spring, and covering the seed with a disk or harrow, or by allowing the stock to trample the seed in. It can also be seeded by sowing the unscarified seed during the late fall months, or even during the winter when the ground is not covered with snow. It should be kept in mind that sweet clover is quite sensitive to acid soils, and that when seeding in an old pasture the young sweet clover plants must compete with the sod that has already become established. Better stands are usually secured when the ground is plowed and the sweet clover seeded with a small grain crop.

Illinois Farmers Favor Limestone to Help Soil

More than three-fourths of a million tons of agricultural limestone have been applied on over 250,000 acres of Illinois land by farmers of

Consider Drilled Corn to Be Better for Silo

Except on weedy land, drilled corn seems to be rather better for silage than checked corn, the chief advantage being that it cuts a little easier with a corn blower. If the ground is weedy, it may be that the weeds can be kept down fairly well in the drilled corn by the use of a furrow opener on the corn planter followed by a rotary hoe or harrow at frequent intervals while the corn is young.

Twenty years of experimenting at the Ohio station indicate that on rich land the most food value per acre with corn for silage can be obtained when five kernels are planted per hill in hills three feet six inches apart each way, or when the corn is drilled in with a kernel dropped every eight inches. Of course, thick planting of this sort makes lots of rubbins, but five pounds of rubbins have just as much food value as five pounds of big ears when they are put into the silo. At any rate, the Ohio experiments indicate that on rich land the greatest net food value per acre for silage or corn fodder can be obtained by decidedly thick planting.

Gypsum Considered as a Direct Soil Fertilizer

Gypsum, according to Iowa tests, does not have the ability to neutralize acid soils even though it does contain calcium the same as limestone. It has no alkalinity, and, therefore, cannot take the place of limestone. On the other hand, gypsum does not have any injurious effect on the soil, as is sometimes believed. The Iowa station says: Gypsum should be considered as a direct fertilizer, as it supplies calcium and sulphur to plants. It also has some value in certain soils as an indirect fertilizer, for laboratory experiments have shown that it has the property of making native potassium available to plants, and hence, might, in some cases, take the place of expensive potassium fertilizers. The bulletin covering this work may be had by writing for No. 232, bulletin section, Iowa State college, Ames, Iowa.

Farm Hints

A load of lime makes good ballast on the trip home from town.

The biggest profits in farming go to the man who watches the so-called little things.

When planting seed potatoes be sure that it is good seed, free from diseases that will ruin crop and profit.

The bee keeper who made the right provisions for his apiary last fall needs to give slight thought to them this spring.

The European corn borer spends about 11 months out of the year as a caterpillar in the green and dried stocks of corn.

Chief among the new farm pests is the European corn borer, which may create untold havoc unless properly checked this year.

Keep Poultry Feed Bill at a Reasonable Level

The food buyer who knows the make-up of all kinds of feeding stuff can save many dollars by taking advantage of every chance the market affords. The price of a food is often no guide to its value. Poor crops often make certain grains advance in price out of all proportion to other grains and mill products. On the other hand a food which is very plentiful for the time, or a refuse food too little known to meet with ready sale may be bought at a great bargain. By comparing the nutrients the feeder will get a very fair idea of relative food values. The per cents of protein, carbohydrates and fats are of course of main importance. The potential energy or fuel value is also a good general indicator of the nutrient present. Refuse or second-class products usually for poultry can be bought very cheap in large cities, and the poultryman who knows the values of these substances can keep his feed bill at a reasonable level even when standard grain feeds are scarce and high.

WARY BEAVER

Synopsis—Part wolf, part dog—when two months old Baree has his first meeting with an enemy. Papayuhisew (young wolf) fighting hard, the antagonists are suddenly plunged into a swollen creek. Baree, buffeted, and half drowned, Baree is finally flung on the bank, but the water has destroyed his sense of direction and he is lost, lonely and hungry. For many days his life is one of fear and distress. He meets various creatures of the wild and goes through a undergrowth. He is learning more and more. He strays into the trapping grounds of Perrot and Nepeesa. Nepeesa wounds Baree with a rifle, but he escapes.

The wings made a great tumult about Baree, but they did not hurt him. He was not a fish. He was a wolf. His gnarled nose felt as he got the taste of Oohoomisew's blood, and through him there surged more hotly the desire to kill this monster of the night, as though in the death of this creature he had the opportunity of avenging himself for all the hurts and hardships that had befallen him since he lost his mother.

Oohoomisew had never felt a great fear until now. The lynx had snapped at him but once—and was gone, leaving him crippled. But the lynx had not snarled in that wolfish way and it had not hung on. A thousand and one nights Oohoomisew had listened to the wolf-howl. Instinct had told him what it meant. He had seen the packs pass swiftly through the night, and always when they passed he had kept in the deepest shadows. To him, as for all other wild things, the wolf-howl stood for death. But until now, with Baree's fangs buried in his leg, he had never sensed fully the wolf-fear. It had taken it years to enter into his slow, stupid head—but now that it was there, it possessed him as no other thing had ever possessed him in all his life.

Suddenly Oohoomisew sensed his beating and launched himself upward. Like huge fangs his powerful wings churned the air, and Baree felt himself lifted suddenly from the earth. Still he held on—and in a moment both bird and beast fell back with a thud.

Oohoomisew tried again. This time he was more successful, and he rose fully six feet into the air with Baree. They fell again. A third time the old outlaw fought to wing himself free of Baree's grip; and then, exhausted, he lay with his giant wings outspread, blessing and cracking his bill.

Under those wings Baree's mind worked with the swift instincts of the killer. Suddenly he changed his hold, burying his fangs into the under part of Oohoomisew's body. They sank into three inches of feathers. Swift as Baree had been, Oohoomisew was equally swift to take advantage of his opportunity. In an instant he had swooped upward. There was a jerk, a rending of feathers from flesh—and Baree was alone on the field of battle.

Baree had not killed, but he had conquered. His first great day—or night—had come. The world was filled with a new promise for him, as vast as the night itself. And after a moment he sat back on his haunches, sniffing the air for his beaten enemy; and then, as if defying the feathered monster to come back and fight to the end, he pointed his sharp little muzzle to the stars and sent forth his first babyish howl-into the night.

Chapter III

Baree's fight with Oohoomisew was good medicine for him. It not only gave him great confidence in himself, but it also cleared the fever of wildness from his blood. He no longer snapped and snarled at things as he went on through the night.

His wound was much less painful the next day, and by nightfall he scarcely had noticed it at all. Since his almost tragic end at the hands of Nepeesa, he had been traveling in a general northeasterly direction, following instinctively the run of the waterways; but his progress had been slow, and when darkness came again he was no more than eight or ten miles from the hole into which he had fallen after the Willow had shot him.

All sounds now held a meaning for Baree. Swiftly he was coming into his knowledge of the wilderness. His eyes gleamed; his blood thrilled. For many minutes at a time he scarcely moved. But of all the sounds that came to him, the wolf-cry thrilled him most. Again and again he listened to it. At times it was far away, so far that it was like a whisper, dying away almost before it reached him; and then again it would come to him full-throated, hot with the breath of the chase, calling him to the red thrill of the hunt, to the wild orgy of torn flesh and running blood—calling, calling, calling. That was it, calling him to his own kin, to the bone of his bone and the flesh of his flesh—to the wild, fierce hunting packs of his mother's tribe! It was Gray Wolf's voice seeking him in the night—Gray Wolf's blood inviting him to the Brotherhood of the Pack.

Baree trembled as he listened. In his throat he whined softly. He edged to the sheer face of a rock. He wanted to go; nature was urging him to go. But the call of the wild was struggling against odds; for in him was the dog, with its generations of subdued and sleeping instincts—and all that night the dog in him kept Baree to the top of his rock.

Next morning Baree found many crawfish along the creek, and he feasted on their succulent flesh until he felt that he would never be hungry again. Nothing had tasted quite so good since he had eaten the partridge of which he had robbed Sekoosew the ermine.

In the middle of the afternoon Baree came into a part of the forest that was very quiet and very peaceful. The creek had deepened. In places it banks swept out until they formed small ponds. Twice he made considerable detours to get around these ponds. He traveled very quietly, listening and watching. Not since the ill-fated day he had left the old windfall had he felt quite so much at home as now.

It seemed to him that at last he was treading country which he knew, and where he would find friends. Perhaps this was another miracle mystery of instinct—of nature. For he was in old Beaver-tooth's domain. It was here that his father and mother had hunted in the days before he was born. It was not far from here that Kazan and Beaver-tooth had fought that mighty duel under water, from which Kazan had escaped with his life without another breath to lose.

The forest grew deeper. It was wonderful. There was no undergrowth, and traveling under the trees was like being in a vast mystery-filled cavern through the roof of which the light of day broke softly, brightened here and there by golden splashes of the sun. For a mile Baree made his way quietly through this forest. He saw nothing but a few winged flittings of birds; there was almost no sound. Then he came to a still larger pond. Around this pond there was a thick growth of alders and willows; the larger trees had thinned out. He saw the glimmer of afternoon sunlight on the water—and then, all at once, he heard life.

There had been few changes in Beaver-tooth's colony since the days of his feud with Kazan and the others. Old Beaver-tooth was still older. He was fatter. He slept a great deal, and perhaps he was less cautious. He was dozing on the great mud-and-brushwood dam of which he had been engineer in chief, when Baree came out softly on a high bank thirty or forty feet away. No noiseless hand Baree had been. He saw the glimmer of afternoon sunlight on the water—and then, all at once, he heard life.

Baree had not killed, but he had conquered. His first great day—or night—had come. The world was filled with a new promise for him, as vast as the night itself. In the middle of the afternoon Baree came into a part of the forest that was very quiet and very peaceful. The creek had deepened. In places it the puppih longing for companionship that was in him.

Down there, on a clean strip of the shore that rose out of the soft mud of the pond, waddled fat little Unisk and three of his playmates. Unisk was just about Baree's age, perhaps a week or two younger. But he was fully as heavy, and almost as wide as he was long. Nature can produce no four-footed creature that is more lovable than a baby beaver, unless it is a baby bear; and Unisk would have taken first prize at any beaver baby show in the world. His three companions were a bit smaller. They came waddling from behind a low willow, making queer little clucking noises, their little flat tails dragging like tiny sledges behind them. They were fat and furry, and mighty friendly-looking to Baree, and his heart beat a sudden, swift pit-a-pat of joy.

But Baree did not move. He scarcely breathed. And then, suddenly, Unisk turned on one of his playmates and bowed him over. Instantly the other two were on Unisk, and the four little beavers rolled over and over, kicking with their short feet and snorting with their tails, and all the time emitting soft little squeaking cries. Baree knew that it was not fight, but frolic. He rose up on his feet. He forgot where he was—forgot everything in the world but those playing, furry balls. For the moment all the hard training nature had been giving him was lost. He was no longer a fighter, no longer a hunter, no longer a seeker after food. He was a puppy, and in him there rose a desire that was greater than hunger. He wanted to go down there with Unisk and his little chums and roll and play. He wanted to tell them, if such a thing were possible, that he had lost his mother and his home, and that he had been having a mighty hard time of it, and that he would like to stay with them and their mothers and fathers if they didn't care.

In his throat there came the least bit of a whim. It was so low that Unisk and his playmates did not hear it. They were tremendously busy.

Softly Baree took his first step toward them, and then another—and at last he stood on the narrow strip of shore within half a dozen feet of them. His sharp little ears were pitched forward, and he was wiggling his tail as fast as he could, and every muscle in his body was trembling in anticipation.

It was then that Unisk saw him, and his fat little body became suddenly as motionless as a stone.

"Hello!" said Baree, wiggling his whole body and talking as plainly as a human tongue could talk. "Do you care if I play with you?"

Unisk made no response. His three playmates now had their eyes on Baree. They didn't make a move. They looked stunned. Four pairs of staring, wondering eyes were fixed on the stranger.

Baree made another effort. He groveled on his forelegs, while his tail and hindlegs continued to wiggle, and with a sniff he grabbed a bit of stick between his teeth.

"Come on—let me in," he urged. "I know how to play!"

He tossed the stick in the air as if to prove what he was saying, and gave a little yip.

Unisk and his brothers were like dumplings. And then, of a sudden, some one saw Baree. It was a big beaver swimming down the pond with a sapling timber for the new pond that was under way. Instantly he loosed his hold and faced the shore. And then, like the report of a rifle, there came the crack of his big fat tail on the water—the beaver's signal of danger that on a quiet night can be heard half a mile away.

"Danger!" it warned. "Danger—danger—danger!"

Scarcely had the signal gone forth when tails were cracking in all directions—in the pond, in the hidden canals, in the thick willows and alders. To Unisk and his companions they said:

"Run for your lives!"

Baree stood rigid and motionless now. In amazement he watched the four little beavers plunge into the pond and disappear. He heard the sounds of other and heavier bodies striking the water. And then there followed a strange and disquieting silence. Softly Baree whined, and his whine was almost a sobbing cry. Why had Unisk and his little mates run away from him? A great loneliness swept over him—a loneliness greater even than that of his first night away from his mother. He had not found comradeship. And his heart was very sad.

Poor Baree! Even the playful little beaver are afraid of him!

Historic Pistol Has Had Many Duplicates

There are indications that Alexander Hamilton was riddled with bullets that summer morning on the heights at Weehawken. There are too many pistols to believe there was just one shot. Every now and then the pistol that Burr used turns up somewhere or other.

What It Really Costs to Operate Your Radio Set

Although it appears to be an exceedingly difficult figure to arrive at, the calculation based upon information given by one of the outstanding concerns of the country leads to the conclusion that the "B" battery costs only from two to three cents an hour. Dry cell "B" batteries were used exclusively in these tests.

Making the Receiver Selective—Three Methods of Connecting the Wave Trap Are Shown in the Diagram.

Selectivity, this is the battle cry that has taken the place of the watchword of old, for of what use is a set that is able to tune in the Pacific coast stations if it can't tune out the nearby locals. In the old days of not so long ago when all broadcasting was done on 400 or 360 meters and 500 watts was considered super-power, the sharp tuning qualities of a receiver were not very important factors in its construction. Now, however, come requests for information on how to tune out XYZ while ABC is on, how to tune out the locals and how to separate the locals.

If you have a manufactured five or more tube set that does not tune sharply, there is little you can do to remedy it. Any good five-tube set employing two stages of tuned R. F. should be able to separate and tune out local stations that are not closer than 20 meters. If your set does not do this it is either not efficient or you are using an aerial that is too long. With a five-tube set you can use a much shorter aerial than one would suppose, and still get comfortable loud-speaker reception on most of the larger stations within 1,000 miles.

Cut Through Interference. It is from the owners of the blower, the two, three and four-circuit receivers that most of the complaints regarding nonselectivity come. For them we can suggest the wave trap, and if it is made with care and of low-resistance parts the user will be able to cut his path through interference with greater ease.

Wave traps in general are of two kinds: Those that are shunted across the antenna and ground and called "acceptors" and those that are in series with the antenna and ground and called "rejectors." A rejector prevents one frequency from getting into the receiver and lets all others pass.

It cuts a slice out of the stations that are on the air. An acceptor provides a convenient by-pass for all frequencies but the one that the listener desires to hear.

A wave trap is simply a good coil shunted by a condenser and designed so that it will tune from the lowest to the highest broadcasting station. A good wave trap may be made from one of the antenna couplers with condenser units that are being sold for use in a tuned radio frequency set. Three methods of connecting the wave trap are shown in the diagram. When in series with the antenna, as in No. 1 or No. 3 the wave trap may be set at the wave length of the interfering station and that station will not interrupt until the tuning of the trap has been changed. When across the input to the receiver as in No. 2, a trap will let into the set only the signal that is desired and makes tuning somewhat more complicated, but when the user becomes more accustomed to using it he will find that it helps considerably.

Converting Into Wavemeter. A wave trap, besides its use as a filter, can be conveniently converted into a wave meter by calibrating it in wave lengths. It need only be placed near one of the coils of the receiving set to indicate the frequency of the incoming signals. When the wave trap condenser is turned a sharp decrease in signal strength for the non-regenerative receiver will be noted, and a click will be noted with an oscillating receiver when the wave trap is in resonance with the circuit of the receiving set. By calibrating the condenser settings from a few of the well-known broadcasting stations a curve may be drawn showing the relation between the condenser settings and the wave length at the various dial readings.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

ETHER WAVES

Adding new electrolyte does not charge a storage battery.

A cloth dampened in ammonia will keep the top of the storage battery clean.

With proper care a vacuum tube should give from 700 to 1,000 hours' service.

The efficiency of a storage battery is measured by the ratio of an output to the input, generally in amperes hours.

due to electromagnetic waves sent out by vibrating electric current in the sparking apparatus and picked up by the little coil of wire. It is not difficult to understand that a vibrating current might send out waves when one considers analogies. When you drop a board into a pond of water, it splashes up and down and sends out waves. When you pound a drum, the tightly-stretched drumhead vibrates and sends out sound waves into the air.

A Battery Brief

To have a battery working at its best efficiency, the terminals should be kept free from corrosion, a scale which is formed by the electrolyte or acid. To get rid of it, scrape the terminals until there is a bright lead finish. Washing the terminals with ammonia or some other alkaline solution will neutralize any acid that may be present and prevent corrosion. Take care that none of this solution gets into the battery, as it will neutralize acid in the battery and also stop its action.

causing an electric spark. Nearly he had a loop of wire the ends of which were a hair's breadth apart. He noticed that every time there was a spark in his apparatus, another spark would jump across the gap in the loop of wire. Hertz' sparking apparatus was the first radio transmitter, and the little loop of wire was the first radio receiver.

FOREFATHERS OF RADIO

By GEORGE LEWIS
of The Crosley Radio Corporation.

In 1887, Heinrich Hertz, a German physicist, conducted the experiments which resulted in scientists accepting Maxwell's theory of electromagnetic waves as a fact, and in engineers developing the practical use of these waves in radio.

As the story goes, Hertz was experimenting with some apparatus for

Builds up weak bodies

"One whole year I dreaded measles. Indigestion caused cramps, vomiting."

From Mother Nature's storehouse we have gathered the roots, barks and herbs which are compounded, under the famous Tanlac formula, to make Tanlac.

If your body is weak and under-nourished, if you can't sleep or eat, have stomach trouble or burning rheumatism, just you see how quickly Tanlac can help you back to health and strength.

Don't delay taking Tanlac another day. Stop at your druggist's now and get a bottle of this, the greatest of all tonics. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

Better Crystal Tuning

The sharpness of tuning and selectivity of radio crystal sets is greatly improved by shunting the crystal detector across about one-half of the inductor coil, instead of across the full coil.

Rules for Distant Reception
The reason many fans are unsuccessful in the reception of distant stations is that they are unfamiliar with the operation of their receivers. Careful tuning is essential. If distant stations are to be received, rapid rotation of dials, no matter how good the receiver is, never will facilitate the reception of DX stations. The dials should be rotated slowly and carefully.

It dry cells or storage battery, is usually somewhat less than the "B" battery cost on the same receiver.

These approximations are based upon the assumption that the receiving set is in use for an average of two hours a day and that each "B" battery is maintained in service until each 45-volt unit falls to 34 volts.

On a five-tube receiver using the larger heavy duty "B" battery the up-keep expense would be approximately three cents an hour. Using the same set, but combining the "B" and "C" batteries, the expense would be approximately two cents an hour.

Observatory on Sinai

Dr. C. G. Abbot of the Smithsonian Institution, who went to Asia in quest of a suitable place for a third sun observatory, recently visited the Sinai Peninsula, which is famous in Biblical history as the place where Moses received the Ten Commandments. But after looking over the country Doctor Abbot decided that the place would never do for an observatory station. "We looked earnestly at the Sinai Peninsula and tried to see Mount Sinai," he wrote to Washington, "but clouds lay over the sky all along, and these and a rather low altitude and forbore, barren inaccessibility seemed to me enough objections to solar research." It is hoped that a station for solar observation in Asia will increase the possibility of making reliable weather forecasts for the entire world. Doctor Abbot will next visit South Africa for the same purpose.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Gene to Davy Jones

The expression "Davy Jones' Locker" is used among sailors to denote the bottom of the ocean, especially as the grave of those drowned at sea. "Davy Jones" is the sailors' synonym for death, and hence to say of a person that he died, that he has gone to "Davy Jones' locker."

"This same Davy Jones, according to the mythology of sailors, is the fiend that presides over all the evil spirits of the deep, and is seen in various shapes warning the devoted wretch of death and woe."—Smollett's Peregrine Pickle.

GEHL

Service

That's what you pay for when you buy farm machinery—do you always get it?

When you buy a GEHL implement you know you will—you have this assurance because you can have a GEHL factory expert on the job in big time if your new spreader don't start off right—likewise if need a repair part you know how to get it quick. That makes it certain that you will get top-notch service from your GEHL machine even if it were just an ordinary spreader, and it's far from that.

If you think they are all the same you'll be surprised to see the difference in the GEHL. It's multiple blade wide spread adds an extra pulverizing and spreads evenly—out beyond the wheels. The auto type steering stops all pole lash—it is low down—easy to load—pulls easy—in fact, it has every advantage you would expect.

Two sizes—with either standard or wide tired wheels if you want them. Drop in and look them over at your local dealer—they're handled in Kewaskum by

Dangers to Gems

As pearls consist of carbonate of lime, vinegar and other acids will eat away the polished surface in a short time. Hot water is fatal to an opal, destroying its fire and sometimes causing it to crack. Soap is a deadly enemy of the turquoise. If a turquoise ring is kept on the hand where sweat is a short time the blue stones will turn to a dingy green.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

The Dog and the Egg

A big black retriever named Peter, belonging to a farmer of East Leake, near Loughborough, England, has shown a partiality for a pullet, while being on bad terms with the rest of the feathered inhabitants of the farm. Every morning the dog has walked over the dog's nose and out of its kennel and laid down to himself. He has eaten the egg.
