THE THIRD FOLIAGE SPRAY

1. Time of Application
The third foliage spray for fruit trees should be applied at from 10 to 20 days after the calyx spray was applied, depending upon the frequency of rainy days and high temperature immediately following the calyx spray. If much rain and high temperature prevail for days immediately after the calyx spray, it will be well to apply the third spray about 10 days after the preceding calyx spray, so as to better control scab infection and insect infestation.

2. Materials to use:
A. 1 gallon liquid lime sulphur and 1 to 1 1/2 lbs. of lead arsenate to each 40 gallons of water. Note: If dry lime sulphur is used, it is necessary to use from 3 to 3 1/2 lbs. to each 40 gallons of water in place of the 1 gallon of the liquid lime sulphur.
B. Formula for 19 gallons of solution for small sprays: To 10 gallons of water add 14 oz. of dry lime sulphur and 4 to 6 oz. of lead arsenate.

3. Efficiency in Spraying:
All spraying should be done so that every square inch of both upper and lower surface of leaf and fruit will be covered with a film of the spray solution. Occasionally sprayed branches should be examined to ascertain how thoroughly the job is being done. Keep up the pressure. The mist spray is the only efficient spray. Keep the spray solution in thorough agitation all the time. Spray all trees whether in bearing or not. They all need this protection.

4. Pest Controlled:
The pests controlled by this spray are: First brood of codling moth; curculio of apple, plum and cherry; spring cankerworm; tent caterpillar; green fruit worm; currant worm on currants and gooseberry bushes; scab on pears and apples; brown rot on plums; "shot-hole" fungus of cherry, etc.

5. Special Notices:
A. Watch the gooseberry and currant bush leaves for plant aphid and spray with nicotine-sulphate solution before the "lice" have had a chance to multiply very much and before they have caused the leaves to curl. (See Spray Circular 158 at your County Agent's office).
B. In the case of tender leaved varieties use Bordeaux mixture (4-4-50) in place of the lime sulphur to avoid foliage "burn". This Bordeaux mixture may be purchased in powder form. Use it according to directions on the container. The usual amount of arsenate of lead is used with it to control insect pests.

DEATH OF MRS. FLORA FLEISCHMAN

At the home of her daughter, Mrs. Julius Klocke, two miles south of Campbellsport occurred the death of Mrs. Flora Fleischman, a former well known and highly respected citizen of Kewaskum. Deceased had been ill for only a short time with a complication of diseases. She was born Dec. 23, 1853. Her husband died 20 years ago. She is survived by her daughter Flora, (Mrs. Julius Klocke) and one son Charles of Campbellsport, a sister, Mrs. Ida Maden of Chicago and a brother Louis Backhaus of Kewaskum. The funeral was held Wednesday at 9:30 a. m., with services in the Elmore Reformed church. Rev. Wm. Zenk officiated. Interment was made in the congregation's cemetery.
Mrs. Fleischmann for many years successfully conducted a meat market in this village, now owned by Philip McLaughlin. Her many friends here join in extending heartfelt sympathy to the surviving relatives.

NOTHING SMALL ABOUT CLEM REINDER'S AD

If the Statesman is late this week in reaching its readers, it may be fairly charged to Clem Reinder and his bouncing big two-page advertisement, one of the largest ever printed in Kewaskum and this shop, and every line was set at this office and with our own type. This big poster announces his big 15-day sale of furniture which started this morning from the special features and tremendous price cuts made this surely is a wonderful opportunity for people of this community to save on furniture. Don't miss it by those and get some of the bargains offered.

ATTY. WM. MEILAHN SEEKS BERGER'S POST

On Monday afternoon the traffic was again heavy, as the pleasure seekers were on their way homeward bound.

FREE CHEST CLINIC FOR COUNTY

The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association will conduct two free chest clinics in Washington county this month. The first clinic will be held in West Bend on June 8th and 9th at the City Hall, and the second at Hartford on June 10th and 11th at the Washington School. Clinic hours will be from 8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. at each place. The clinics are free to everyone but children under 16 years of age must be accompanied by a parent or some other older person.

Every effort is being made by those in charge of the clinics to get out persons who most need the examination, but as it is impossible to reach everyone personally the public is urged to cooperate. Persons who should be sure to attend the clinic include those who have had contact with the disease; persons who have ever had tuberculosis and should make sure that it has not recurred; persons who have diseases of the chest other than tuberculosis; anemic and underweight children; and all those who have any of the following symptoms: fatigue, lack of pep, loss of appetite and weight, indigestion, vague pains in the chest, afternoon fever and a persistent cough or cold. These symptoms may, of course not mean tuberculosis but they do indicate that something is out of order and the only safe thing to do is to find out what they do mean. A clinic examination costs nothing and may save much unnecessary suffering and expense.

Thoroughly Modern Hog House With Warmth and Cleanliness Chief Aim

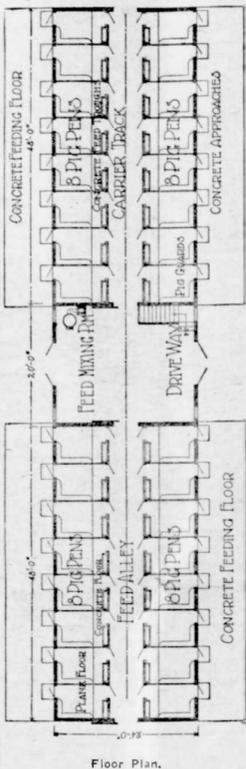

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The day has long since passed when any old kind of a pen was considered good enough for the pigs and the pork-producing section of the farm stock was left to wallow in the mud and filth. The old idea was that pigs preferred a muddy pen and thrived best under such conditions, but modern enlightenment has shown that the same rules which apply to all other animals apply with equal force to hogs. The result has been that on all the progressive farms design provision is made for the proper care of hogs.

To make the biggest profits the hog raiser wants big healthy hogs that produce the most pork in proportion to the feed consumed, pork that is of quality a carrier track is provided to facilitate the work, and each pen has its individual trough. Each pen also has an individual door opening directly to the outside feeding floor, which is of concrete. The floor inside is also of concrete properly sloped for drainage. Plain concrete floors are satisfactory for the hog house, except that for the farrowing pens, half-plank floors are provided to keep the young pigs up above the drafts. Of course, ample bedding must be used, and if the hogs are given the same careful attention that is given to high-grade cattle it will be found that they are as clean in their habits as any other stock.

There are doors which shut off the feed house from each of the wings of this hog house, and there are also doors at the ends of the wings. These are sliding doors carefully hung and fitted snugly to eliminate unnecessary drafts. Such a hog house as this is a real asset to the farm, not only because of its fine appearance, but because of the increased profits which it will make possible in the raising of hogs.

the best quality and clean to pass inspection and bring the highest price. To get these results he takes pains to provide the right kind of a hog house. This means a building which is light and well ventilated, dry and warm, in which the herd can be cared for with the least possible labor and where there is suitable storage space for feed.

Housing for 32 hogs is provided in the hog house shown here, and it is designed along the lines mentioned. The width, 24 feet, is standard, but the building may be made of any desired length to provide for more or less pens according to the size of the herd. A glance at the plan shows the general design of a central feed house with wings at either side containing the pens. This is a convenient arrangement, but for a small herd which is to be greatly increased later, the feed house might be built with only one wing, and a second wing at the other side added later, when needed.

This is a tightly-built frame building with a saw-tooth roof. This type of roof assures good ventilation and gives the advantage of all possible sunlight. The pens at the front are lighted by the lower row of windows, while the windows above admit the sunshine to the back row of pens. The central feed house has a driveway through it so that feed may be hauled directly in and save handling. The feed is stored in the loft above which is reached by a stairway. ## Pictures and Mirrors

Give Finishing Touch

Pictures serve an admirable purpose in the decoration and furnishing of the small home. By the very nature of their location on the wall they occupy none of the floor space that is so valuable in the small dwelling. If a little room has been rather crowded with furniture, pictures on the wall carry the eye upward and bring the attention from the lower part of the room to the upper, where there is a greater appearance of space.

Then, too, the subjects of the pictures may be chosen with a view to increasing the apparent size of the room. Pictures with a rather deep perspective give the eye a feeling of looking into a valley, down a corridor, into a valley, along a river, or otherwise creating an appearance of distance.

To do this removes much of the cramped feeling that invades a small room overcrowded with furniture.

The choice of color in pictures also will have much to do with the decorative scheme of the room, and the same effect of spaciousness can be created with the judicious use of mirrors.

Sun Parlor Pleasant for Children's Room

A sleeping porch or a little sun parlor attached to the child's room is a welcome novelty. There is need for furniture for it to choose from—chairs, rockers, tables, tea carts, sofas and chaise-longues. A fern stand is indicated, or boxes for window gardening, for there is a secret bond between children and flowers. A canary in its cage makes a colorful spot, and surely the sunroom is the very place for a sand table. But do you know what the children would adore? A swing, a real porch swing, complete with bright striped awning and cushions, and no bigger than dad's chair.

Mahogany Is Favored Wood for Furniture

Since the early part of the eighteenth century, mahogany has been one of the most favored woods in the manufacture of furniture. However, it was first noticed by a carpenter on board Sir Walter Raleigh's ship in 1585 for its great beauty, hardness and durability. Cabinet-makers were delighted with the new wood because it lent itself so well to delicate carvings. It was found to be more workable than oak and walnut. Mahogany is found in Africa, but most of it used in the United States comes from Cuba, Mexico and Central America.

Wrought Iron Popular in Decoration of Home

Wrought iron has become increasingly important in home decoration of late, and not only in the plan of the modern house itself—in lighting fixtures, grill doors, etc.—but in the furnishings of that home. Whole pieces of occasional furniture are now being developed in wrought iron; among them, telephone sets, console tables, coffee tables and small chairs. Wrought-iron lamp bases, candleabra, smoking stands and plant stands, too, have refreshing notes to add to modern interiors.

Interior Door Is Made Feature in Modern Home

The interior door nowadays serves a decorative as well as practical purpose. It does more than keep out drafts and assure privacy; it is in itself a feature of the decorative scheme of the room. This has come about through the popular desire for painting the woodwork of a room some light, jaunty color, if not white or cream. And, of course, the doors should match the wood trim in tint.

The outlining of the door panels in a contrasting shade is always a pleasing effect; and, in addition, the door may be decorated with decorative transfers, which are easily applied and have the appearance of painted designs.

Another attractive finish is to varnish the natural wood of the door and then decorate it with a deep-tone finish. The design should be conventional for library or living-room, floral for bedroom or dining room, and should be in colors which contrast with the wood of the door and harmonize with the prevailing color scheme of the room. Jade, black, gold and old blue are colors that looked well on mahogany finish; brown, orange, dull red and silver, on oak; while on walnut shades of light tan and gold are effective.

Saving Paint

Frequently it is a bit wasteful to throw out the paint or enamel left over in the can. If only a little remains, the air in the can will render it unfit for further use if merely capped. Preserve by carefully pouring over it low-melting paraffin wax, cooled to just above the "setting point."

Use Small Rugs

Use small rugs sparingly in living rooms, as they tend to break up floor space, which is better covered with a few large rugs. Small rugs look well between rooms. In odd jobs, in halls and in front of important pieces of furniture. A home study of furniture equips one to purchase intelligently.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Riceless Day

The Chinese are now conducting a campaign that is very much different from anything we have ever seen in this country. We are used to all sorts of campaigns to promote the eating of certain foods, but in China they are now conducting a campaign to get people not to eat rice. This is necessary, says the Progressive Grocer, because the heavy rice consumption usually leads to famine at the end of the year.

Freshen a Heavy Skin

Instructions Obeyed

The other day A. J. Stout, superintendent of the Topeka schools, and a member of the board, were out inspecting some work being done around one of the school buildings. They went over to look at some bushes planted in one corner of the school grounds. "Hey, youse guys," piped a youngster about seven years old. "Teacher says you mustn't tramp around these bushes and spoil them."

The two men saw the point, thanked the boy and went away.—Kansas City Star.

On and Off

Countess Catherine, at a dinner party in New York, discussed without bitterness the failure of her play, "Ashes," in both New York and London. "My play wasn't shocking enough," she said. "Nowadays men want such shocking plays, don't they? A man said to me the other night: 'You women only go to church to see what other women have got on.' 'And you men,' said I, 'only go to the theater to see what we've left off.'"

Help That Achy Back!

Are you dragging around, day after day, with a dull, unceasing backache? Are you lame in the morning, bothered with headaches, dizziness and urinary disorders? Feel tired, irritable and discouraged? Then there's surely something wrong, and likely it's kidney weakness. Don't neglect it! Get back your health while you can. Use Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands, and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Wisconsin Case

M. E. Beckwith, prop. above medical shop, 223 North 3rd St., La Crosse, Wis., says: "I had a dull pain in my back. The soreness and lameness across my kidneys made me uncomfortable, and the muscles of my back were sore and stiff. My kidneys were sluggish, too. Doan's Pills rid me of the complaint."

BASEBALL SQUIBS

Jess Petty, Brooklyn left-hander, continues to pitch sensationally. Washington has sent pitcher Jimmy Lyle to the Birmingham club of the Southern league on option.

Roy Akin, baseball coach at Trinity university, Waxahachie, Texas, has been signed as a scout by the Cleveland American league club.

Syracuse has obtained infielder Yatz Corrigan from the St. Joseph club of the Western league. He has been doing a utility role in good shape.

The Martinsburg club of the Blue Ridge league has obtained Catcher Thompson from the Scranton club of the New York-Pennsylvania league.

Carl Schmell continues to play fine ball for the Toronto Leafs. His fielding has made the fans forget all about Gehring, who is now with the Detroit Tigers.

A young outfielder named Shannon, who holds the nickname of "Spike," has been doing fine work for Asheville. His hitting has been close to sensational and his fielding excellent.

Rochester has sent Rube Mallett, young pitcher, to the Macon club of the Sally league, on option, while Henry Thormahlen, left-hander, has been sent to Bridgeport of the Eastern league.

Bryan Johnson, left-handed pitcher, who has been pitching for the Pawnee Indians of Pawnee City, Neb., for the last ten years, has been signed by the Marshalltown club of the Mississippi Valley league.

Lowell the New England league has obtained Shortstop Joe Prusback from the Jersey City club of the International league, while Mike Dwyer, an outfielder, has been sent on by the Newark club.

Connie Mack will probably carry ten pitchers throughout the season. The Athletic staff was cut to that figure and incidentally to the 25-player limit when Kit May was sent to Reading of the International league.

Born With One Arm, Girl Is Star Athlete

The fact that she was born with only one arm, and that the left, has not proved an insurmountable handicap to Hilda Hays, sixteen years old, star of the girls' basketball team of Dougherty (OKIA) high school. Hilda is playing her third year on the basketball team. Her regular position is center, although she plays every position on the court well, I. L. Cromer, Dougherty coach, avers. Nor is the girl's athletic prowess confined to the basketball court. She is an excellent swimmer, solo dancer and equestrienne.

THORPE RETIRES FROM ALL SPORT

Yields to Age and the Call of the Wild.

Jim Thorpe, colorful Indian athlete, has heard the call of age. His announcement of retirement came after he had led the St. Petersburg professional football team through a scorching battle with the Winter Haven club for which less than 300 paid admissions.

"One must quit some time," said Thorpe. "My earning days in athletics are at an end and while sports have been my livelihood, I have really played for the love of competition. Now I have a yearning to hunt and fish back with my people."

He is preparing to satisfy his yearning and return to his home at Yale, Oklahoma, there amid his people to hunt and fish.

Thorpe, now forty, has been active in the world of sport for 20 years coming to Carlisle Indian school in 1908.

He immediately attracted attention. In 1912 he won the individual championship in the Olympic games at Stockholm, Sweden, but later was charged with professionalism and returned his medals, presented by the King of Sweden.

After the Olympic games, he turned to professional sports, entering baseball as a member of the New York Giants, later being associated with teams in the American association and the International league.

Football, however, claimed Thorpe's attention each fall since he entered Carlisle. The past season he started with the New York Giants pro football team, later going to Florida to organize a team to play "Red" Grange's eleven at Tampa.

In his last game, Thorpe had two former Carlisle stars on his team, as in Carlisle days—Little Twig at end, and Pete Calne at fullback. At times in the game, Thorpe showed flashes of former brilliance, getting off two punts for 65 yards and an attempted 50-yard dropkick which missed the crossbar by inches.

Ralph H. Hogan, Junior at University of Iowa, was elected captain of next year's basketball team. Hogan is married and lives at Iowa City, Iowa.

Besides being the woman lawn tennis champion of Spain, Senorita Alvarez is a remarkable skater, an expert in skiing and a star billiard player.

Olympic games for women only will be held in Gothenburg, Sweden, August 27 to 29. All nations have been invited to send two competitors for each event.

B. F. ("Bunny") Oakes, line coach in football and instructor of wrestling at the University of Tennessee, will be line coach at the University of Nebraska next season.

Helen Willis is having a wonderful time. Princesses and duchesses and divinity students are flocking to see her play and they are enthusiastic over her beauty as well as ability.

Improve Soil to Increase Crops

Several Middle West States Show Gains in Acreage of Legumes.

The concerted drive in the Middle West for improved soil fertility and better crop rotations is accomplishing its purpose as shown by figures compiled by A. J. Surratt, crop statistician for the Illinois Department of Agriculture. According to the census reports for 1924, as compared to those of five years before, the states of Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin, all show a gain in the acres of legumes per 100 acres of cultivated crops. This is accounted for largely by the educational campaign put on by agricultural colleges, county agents, the press and other agencies.

Michigan Heads List.

This report shows that of the states named, Michigan heads the list with an increase in legume acreage of 7.37 per 100 acres of cultivated crops; Missouri is next with 5.79 acres; then follow Wisconsin, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa in the order named. Each of these states now has more than ten acres of legumes per 100 acres of cultivated, thus devoted to legume growing.

Legumes, per 100 acres cultivated crops, showed a gain in the last five years: In Illinois, from 7.35 to 10.34, or 3.91 acres; in Indiana, from 9.53 to 14.15, or 4.55 acres; in Iowa, from 10.50 to 12.25, or 1.75 acres; in Michigan, from 22.65 to 30.02, or 7.37 acres; in Missouri, from 7.97 to 13.76, or 5.79 acres; in Ohio, from 12.98 to 17.63, or 4.65 acres; in Wisconsin, from 24.31 to 30.10, or 5.79.

Factors Increasing Profits.

Farmers generally have seen the advantage of better crop rotations and higher crop yields as factors in reducing costs and increasing profits. Inability to grow legumes because of soil deficiencies, principally of lime and phosphorus, has in the past discouraged many farmers from growing these crops. Educational work has shown how to grow better crops of alfalfa, clovers, soy beans and other high-yielding legumes through use of lime and fertilizers, inoculation and improved cultural practices. With the desire to grow more legumes and the adoption of proper methods of soil treatment, it is expected that the acreage of the soil-building crops will increase rapidly. Live stock and dairy farmers want such crops for their high-protein feeding value and grain and truck farmers want them for cover crops and manure crops.

Soy Beans Superior as Emergency Crop for Hay

About this time of year a certain number of dairymen find that they are not going to have enough good cow hay, clover or alfalfa. For such men, says the crops specialist of the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, there is nothing that will beat soy beans as an emergency crop.

Soy beans may be planted alone or in mixture with sudan grass or sorghum, advises the specialist. They should be inoculated if they have never been planted on the field before. Although they require to lime, they will make a satisfactory growth on land which has not been limed for years. They are an easy crop to grow. They are the equal of alfalfa in feeding value and they leave the ground in good condition to sow wheat or other crops that follow.

POTATO GROWERS VICTIMS OF TRICKS BY DEALERS IN SEED

Much Substitution of Varieties by Dealers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Potato growers who purchase seed potatoes do not always get the particular varieties they order. There is so much substitution of varieties by seed potato dealers that the growers are seeking the passage of control measures which will correct the evil. Substitutions, either careless or willful, are more apt to be made, says William Stuart, potato specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, for the newer or less known varieties. Purchasers who order "fancy names" or "new and highly advertised" varieties are more likely to be victimized, he says, than those who stick to the widely known varieties.

Mr. Stuart ordered 139 different varieties last year from 61 different seedsmen. Many firms replied that they were "just out" of that particular variety. Of the 98 named varieties that were received, 25 per cent proved to be varieties other than those specified in the order. In one instance, three varieties were ordered from a dealer advertising himself as "reliable." Three different packages were received, all of which proved to be the same variety, but not of any one of the three varieties ordered.

Farm Hints

Alfalfa hay, home-grown grain, and pure-bred sires spell dairy success. Screens around the dairy early in spring mean less flies later in the year.

The first grass is watery and poor feed for stock; and the stock are also hard on the first grass.

Clean culture of the corn crop is needed if the European corn borer is to be conquered.

Legumes such as sweet clover and alfalfa cannot grow in acid soil. That is why farmers are putting lime on their soils.

There are many requisites to be considered before setting out an orchard. A fertile piece of land must be selected—one which is capable of producing 30 bushels of wheat to the acre.

One of the worst pests in raspberries is the mosaic disease. It cannot be controlled by any known spray. The only way is to get rid of the plants and set new ones from inspected fields that are free of this disease.

One trouble with feeding sweet clover is the internal hemorrhages caused by sweet clover that is somewhat spoiled or moldy. There seems to be little possibility of stopping this disease when it once attacks an animal, report college veterinarians.

Tomatoes Easy to Raise If Carefully Cared For

Tomatoes are easy to raise if they are carefully cared for. They can be planted in seed pots, kept in the basement near the furnace, and be replanted in the garden as soon as the danger of frost has passed. And early ripe tomatoes bring fancy prices on the market. They are one of the best-paying vegetables that can be raised the country over, says a writer in the Successful Farmer.

Formalin Is Effective Against Scab of Potato

Formalin is effective against common potato scab and is used at the rate of 1 pint formalin to 30 gallons of water. Seed should be soaked for 1/2 to 1 1/2 hours, then spread out to dry before replacing in containers. Either use new containers or be sure that the old ones are sterilized. Formalin treatment will not control black scurf.

Well Prepared Seed Bed Favored for Many Crops

The cheapest and easiest time to cultivate corn or any other crop, is before the seed is planted. If the seed bed is thoroughly well prepared and all of the surface well pulverized, the crop is in the best condition to start growing. It will even pay if weather conditions permit, to delay planting a few days for the sake of letting the first weed seeds start to grow, and then going over the field an extra time with the harrow to uproot them. When the seed is put into a warm, mellow, well cleaned soil, it has a real chance to start growing and to get ahead of noxious weed growth.

AID TO BEAUTY

AMERICAN YOUTH

Under this young woman's skillful hands the front of the Administration Building of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition Association quickly takes on a delightful aspect. She directs gardeners where to place the small trees and shrubs about the great stucco building. She is doing her share to make the big celebration of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence a success.

Elizabeth (“Betty”) Clark, 13, of Cedars, Delaware, is one of that state's girl candidates for the American Youth Award, established by the directors of the Sesqui-Centennial International Exposition, to be held at Philadelphia from June 1 to December 1 in observance of 150 years of American Independence. If “Betty” is finally chosen to represent Delaware she will be given a week's trip to the Exposition and to Washington and the White House, where she will receive a medal from the hands of President Coolidge.

Badger State Happenings

Day—Carl Haas, a graduate of the Illinois school, has not missed a day's attendance in his twelve years of school life.

Lady Smith—A contingent of fifty fry was planted by Lady Smith sportsmen in a rearing pen in Pulaski lake, Rusk county.

Madison—Peter Munson, 53, a farmer living near De Forest, was trampled by a herd of cows which became frightened by a crash of lightning.

Baraboo—Twelve the 1925 number of tourists visited Devils Lake State park during the Memorial day holiday this year, according to Louis Roche, commissioner at the lake.

Peotiche—Fire demolished the Chicago & North Western railroad passenger station and freight depot and caused a blast of oil in tank cars here. The cause of the blaze has not been ascertained.

Stoughton—A fire truck and pumper but 13 feet long and 56 inches wide has been completed by a local plant for use in a Japanese city. Despite its size the little engine throws a stream equal to 320 gallons a minute with 120 pounds pump pressure.

Marsfield—The Rev. Joseph F. Veda, for 19 years pastor of St. John's Catholic church at Marsfield, died after a five days' illness with pneumonia. He was educated at Campion college and at St. Francis seminary, Milwaukee.

Madison—Barth B. Smith, 80, president of the Dane County Bar association and past commander of the local G. A. R. post, died at his home here. He was the only man known in this vicinity who took part in Sheridan's ride to the sea.

Madison—Carroll D. Atwood, 72, chairman of the state tax commission, died here of heart trouble. Few men connected with state administrative affairs are better known throughout Wisconsin than was Atwood. He has been connected with the state tax commission since 1911 when the income tax law was first enacted.

Manitowish—Francis Eaterly, 19, of Evanston, Ill., is dead and James B. Cahill, of Two Rivers, is seriously injured as the result of a trial attempt at Cahill's new airplane. The plane purchased recently in Chicago, took a nose-dive into the bank of a creek near Two Rivers, shortly after the take-off.

Madison—The prohibition party will have at least three candidates for governor in the September primary. Arthur A. Buckman, one of the trio, has announced here. Mr. Buckman, who was the prohibition candidate for governor in 1924, said the other candidates for the gubernatorial nomination will be David W. Emerson, Ashland, and Alexander McElathron, Holcombe.

Madison—The Italians of Madison, in the interest of better citizenship and education, have voluntarily formed an organization through which they expect to promote these ends among themselves. The club has been active for about five months with members meeting once a month to hear speakers on various subjects in English and Italian. At present the club has a membership of 90.

Madison—The University of Wisconsin is to have two homecomings this year: one in November and the other in June 21, when commencement exercises are held in Camp Randall stadium. President Glenn Frank has sent 35,000 invitations to alumni of the university, asking them to be present at commencement, June 18 to 21. A joint committee of administrators and alumni members is arranging for class reunions. Classes whose numerals end in 1 and 6 are to meet this year.

Milwaukee—Market quotations: Butter—Creamery, fresh extras, tubs, 36c; extra extra, 37c; 28c. Cheese—Swiss, 18c; 19c; daisies, 19c; 19c; longhorn, 19c; 20c; brick, 18c; 19c; Limburger, 22c; 23c. Eggs—Frisch gathered, 28c; live, 28c; poultry—Fowls, 20c; broilers, 20c; chickens, 17c. Potatoes—Wisconsin, 100 lb. sacks, $2.75; 100 lb. Barges—Choice in fancy, 75c; fair to good, 60c; 72c; Corn—No. 3 yellow, 60c; No. 3 white, 60c; Oats—No. 3 white, 40c; No. 2, 34c; 35c. Hogs—Fair to best butchers, $13.75; 14.50; fair to good lights, $14.00; 14.30; pigs, $12.50; 14.25. Cattle—Steers, fair to choice, $12.25; 10.00; heifers, $12.50; 8.00; cows, $7.00; 7.00; calves, $12.00; 13.00. Sheep—Good to choice ewes, $14.25; 13.00; fair to good lambs, $13.25; 14.00.

Appleton—About 3.14 per cent of all cattle in Outagamie county reacted to tuberculin tests, according to Dr. B. H. Borman, who completed the tests last week. A total of 3,655 herds containing 64,508 head of cattle were tested. But 2,028 reactors were discovered.

Lady Smith—Mrs. V. V. Miller, wife of Rusk county's sheriff, will be a candidate for sheriff at the September election. During her husband's administration Mrs. Miller is serving as undersheriff.

Rhineland—Enrollments for the Y. M. C. A. boys' camp at Boulder lake have already reached 222, more than any previous year. Chicago, Milwaukee, Green Bay, Wausau, Rhine leader and La Crosse will be represented at the camp this season.

Witonsburg—Officers in charge of the Home Home for the Aged and the Home for the Homeless are protesting the proposed consolidation of these institutions with the Stoughton Old People's home and orphanage.

Badger State Happenings

Park Falls—Charged with having a fire without the necessary permit, Frank Walesek, a farmer, was released in court here when he pleaded ignorance of the law.

Fond du Lac—Fleeing from a policeman who attempted to arrest him after a disturbance in North Fond du Lac, Frank Hauser ran in front of a train in the Soo line yards at the village and was seriously injured.

Green Bay—Using a small baseball bat, a man entered the home of John A. Guffney of this city while the husband was at work, and attacked the woman as she was feeding a baby. The woman is in a hospital here, but the wounds are not serious.

Birchwood—Blind and one leg shattered, Elmer Haynie is in a local hospital in a serious condition, the result of an explosion of dynamite caps at his farm near here. A spark from Haynie's pipe ignited the caps, which were being used in clearing land.

Janesville—Walter A. West, 63, one of the most widely known dairy leaders in southern Wisconsin, died in his home here. He was a vice president for many years of the Wisconsin Butter & Cheese Co. and served as state dairy and food commissioner under Gov. G. W. Peck, 1880 to 1884.

Madison—With a peace oration, "I Am Innocent of This Blood," Fred Earth, Watonsburg, won first place in the contest of the Wisconsin Forensic association in the assembly chamber here. The theme of his oration was that maintenance of permanent peace depends on education, as inculcated by the schools.

Stevens Point—John F. Sims, national authority on education and president of the Stevens Point State Normal school, died at a Milwaukee hospital. He was 64 years old. He for nearly a month. Mr. Sims was operated on for gall bladder trouble. Apparently impending complications set in, causing his death.

Spartan—More than 5,000 persons attended the annual Monroe county rural school commencement and club rally here. Diplomas were presented to 200 rural school pupils. Most schools of the county had floats in the parade. C. J. Brewer, president of the Eau Claire Training school, made the principal address.

Appleton—Believing that he had shot and killed his wife, Paterson John Kottusser, 35, a member of the force here for 12 years and creek rifle and pistol shot of the Fox river valley turned the gun on himself and committed suicide. The woman was uninjured. Kottusser and his wife were said to have been involved in domestic difficulties for some time.

La Crosse—Central high school of La Crosse will celebrate its fiftieth anniversary with a grand alumni reunion picnic on June 11. The two living members of the first class of three that was graduated in 1870 are expected to attend. The officials in charge predict that several hundred former students will be back for the ceremonies.

Superior—Leon McCabe, assistant driver for Engine Co. No. 1 of the Superior fire department, is in a critical condition at St. Mary's hospital here from injuries suffered when a fire truck collided with a street car. The truck sideswiped the street car and McCabe, who was riding on the running board, was caught between the two vehicles, suffering severe scalp wounds and other serious injuries.

Tumah—Twenty cans of fingerlings and smaller trout fry were received here from the federal hatcheries by sportsmen interested in keeping up the fishing in Monroe county. Several cans of a new variety were in the lot, the Loch Leven trout, which were planted in selected places and may furnish a new thrill in a few years. Most of the fry were placed in nearby streams which have proved good for trout culture.

Friendship—Joseph Badrick, 45, is dead and his son, John, 19, is not expected to live as the result of a farming venture at Big Flats, near here, that failed. The Badricks traded their home at Chicago for the Big Flats farm and they took possession two weeks ago. A series of arguments between father and son over the management of the farm came to a climax when the father shot John through the stomach and then turned the gun on himself.

Black River Falls—Mrs. Abel Cheney, Black River Falls, opened a can of plums recently which had been prepared Sept. 4, 1886, and had received first prize at the fair here that year. They were firm and in good condition.

Madison—The University of Wisconsin student court, which has been in existence sixteen years, ceased to function when the nine justices resigned declaring that students do not want self government.

Madison—At a meeting of the University club here, it was voted to refer back to the directors a plan by which the club property on State street would be given to the university regents in return for a long term lease, thereby avoiding local taxation.

Waupun—A special election here to bond the city for a municipal building carried by a majority of 524. The building is to cost $100,000 and the bonds are to be retired by earnings from the water and light system.

FORGET WAR; DISARM, IS COOLIDGE'S PLEA

President in Address at Arlington Defends World Court; Asks Help.

Washington.—President Coolidge challenged the notions of the Old world to join the United States in realizing "humanity's hope for disarmament and peace."

Delivering a Memorial day tribute to those who gave their lives for their country, he avowed America's expectation that the Geneva disarmament commission would achieve "some practical results."

"We believe that other nations ought to join with us in laying aside their suspicious and hatreds sufficient to agree among themselves upon methods of mutual relief from the necessity of the maintenance of great land and sea forces," he said.

"This cannot be done if we constantly have in mind the resort to war for the redress of wrongs and the enforcement of rights."

The President's words, ringing through the great white amphitheater in the Arlington National cemetery, were applauded by soldiers of three generations—from the white-haired aged in Civil War blue to the youthful World War veterans in olive drab.

Thousands of friends and relatives gathered to do homage to the dead. Mr. Coolidge made it plain that as "Europe has the League of Nations, that ought to be able to provide these countries with certain political guarantees which our country does not require."

Having emphasized the point that the league is solely an old world instrument, so far as the United States is concerned, the President continued: "We should not underestimate the difficulties of European nations, nor fail to extend to them the highest degree of patience and the most sympathetic consideration."

"But we cannot fail to assert our conviction that they are in great need of further limitation of armaments and our determination to lend them every assistance in the solution of their problems."

"We have entered the conference with the utmost good faith on our part and in the sincere belief that it represents the utmost good faith on their part."

"We stand ready to give our support to every effort that is made in that direction," he said.

Covering a wide field from taxation and governmental economy to the World Court, the President's address was generally accepted as the Chief Executive's opening gun in the 1925 congressional campaign.

Mr. Coolidge met the challenge of the voters who had rejected three World Court senators and accepted two anti-court senators, all seeking re-nomination.

He came out bluntly for the court as furnishing "a method for the adjustment of international differences in accordance with our treaty rights and under the generally accepted rules of international law."

Other prize winners were: Second, Harry Hertz, driving a Miller, two laps behind winner; third, Cliff Woodbury, Boyle, two laps behind winner; fourth, Fred Comer, Miller, five laps behind winner; fifth, Peter de Paolo, Dusenberg, seven laps behind winner; sixth, Jules Ellingboe, Miller, nine laps behind winner; seventh, Norman Batten, Miller, nine laps behind winner; eighth, Ralph Heppner, Miller, nine laps behind winner; ninth, Phil Shafer, Miller, fourteen laps behind winner; tenth, John Duff, Elcar, fourteen laps behind winner.

Lockhart's reward consists of $20,000 as first prize and an additional $9,600 purse earned for leading the twenty-eight starters through ninety-six laps.

The crowd of 140,000 was the largest which ever attended the gasoline derby since its inception here in 1911.

Americans Freed by Bandits—Mexico City—Two of the three Americans captured May 18 by bandits at Braden's Mine, near Discubidora have been freed. The third man, John W. Shanklin of Canyon, Texas, is being held for $6,000 ransom.

Cannot Control Oil—Washington.—Congress cannot constitutionally control oil production, other than on Indian lands, within a state, Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state, asserted in an address before the federal oil conservation board.

Suedish Royalty Arrives—New York.—The crown prince and princess of Sweden have arrived for their three months' visit to the United States.

Coal Association Reorganizes—Kansas City, Mo.—Confronted by a "cease and desist order" issued by the federal trade commission, the Midwest Retail Coal association disbanded here and a reorganization was effected immediately as the Missouri Valley Retail Coal Merchants' association.

OREGON ARCHBISHOP

Edward F. Howard, bishop of the diocese of Davenport, Iowa, has been appointed archbishop of Oregon to succeed the late Alexander Christie. His selection by the pope, just announced at Rome, makes him the ranking prelate of the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana, and the territory of Alaska. His territory covers 22,000 square miles. Bishop Howard was former president of Columbia college at Dubuque, Iowa.

FARM PRICES SHOW DOWNTREND IN MAY

Summary by Department of Agriculture Reveals Drop.

Washington.—During May the general trend of agricultural prices was downward, the index for the month being 139, compared with 140 in April and March and 146 for the month of May, 1925. This information is contained in a Department of Agriculture summary.

The price index for the meat animal and pork, however, advanced two points, the summary shows. Grains remained unchanged, while other classifications of farm products decreased in amounts varying from one to fifteen points. Vegetables showed the greatest loss in value.

From April 15 to May 15 farm prices of hogs appreciated from $11.49 to $11.97 a 100 pounds. The advance is surprising, as it is usual for hogs to decline in value at this time of year.

Farm prices for beef and veal animals were lower May 15 than on the same date the previous month, the summary states, but sheep and lamb prices were higher. The tendency of wool and better prices was downward. Corn, chickens and egg prices were slightly higher than at any period in the last nine months.

Big Florida Project Fails for 8 Millions—Jacksonville, Fla.—The American British Improvement association, developers of the Floridan club, one of the largest real estate projects in the state, filed a voluntary petition for bankruptcy in Federal court here.

The petition lists the company's assets at $2,551,518, and liabilities at $8,581,571. It is stated by Federal court officials that the failure involves the largest amount of any bankruptcy proceeding in the state within the last ten years.

The total claims secured by real estate mortgages are given as $8,487,548, including one in the name of Gulf Tract, for $7,250,000. Notes aggregating $949,929 are also included in the liabilities. Of this amount, $295,737 is listed as the Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia to cover loans made from February 8 to May 6, 1926.

Mrs. Anna T. Dodge of Grosse Pointe, Mich., is listed for $250,000 notes for loans from March 4, 1926, to May 17, 1926.

Klan Leader Admits He Sent Bomb; Killed Three—Muskegon, Mich.—With the murder that had smoldered in his heart since April 6 written into the record of Blue Lake township, Asa Bartlett, war veteran, Klan leader and self-appointed prohibition enforcer, admitted in his cell at Muskegon county jail that he had signed a confession admitting sending the bomb that killed August Trubach, township supervisor, Janet, his eight-year-old daughter, and her fiancée, William Franks of Chicago.

"I just couldn't stand to see him running the township," was all Bartlett would say.

Cashier Short, Bank Closes—St. Paul, Minn.—Because of an alleged shortage in the accounts of Cashier B. G. Gergen, the Farmers and Merchants State bank of Hampton was ordered closed by A. J. Veigel, commissioner of banks.

England Rations Coal—London.—England has begun the rationing of coal to householders. The department of mines announced that householders can obtain no coal except by official permit.

40 Wives Net Him a Million—Philadelphia.—Accused of having married two scores or more women and swindled them out of jewelry valued at more than $1,000,000, Robert Whitman, alias "Lord Beaverbrook," is being held here.

LEADERS READY FOR FARM BILL BATTLE

Senate Chiefs Pledged to Continue Session Until Relief Is Provided.

Washington.—Although they have never reached a complete agreement on what farm relief legislation should take, senate agricultural leaders are determined that congress shall not adjourn until some sort of farm law has been enacted. Two-thirds of the senate has been pledged to continue the session until relief has been provided, it is asserted. President Coolidge in the meantime stands apart from the discussion.

The talk in the upper house has been led so far by supporters of the McNary bill, which would appropriate $375,000,000 for the disposal of the crop surpluses. The measure is virtually the same as the Haugen bill defeated in the house.

It is possible that the farm question may be taken up in the senate this week. Senator McNary, Republican, of Oregon, as leader of the farm group, is said to be preparing to move that preference be given to farm legislation as soon as action has been taken on the pending migratory bird bill.

Farmers have not been asking a subsidy and the "corn belt" relief program does not provide for one. William Hirth, chairman of the Des Moines agricultural committee, declared here. The defeat of the Haugen bill in the house will mean an accounting before the farm vote of the West, he asserted. In retaining the East that agricultural interests do not intend to tolerate a protective system which gives protection to every industry but farming.

"All that the farm organizations have ever asked was that they be supplied with a legislative device that would enable them to collect the tariff in the home markets, and both the Republican and Democratic parties were solemnly pledged to such legislation at the last Presidential election."

Mr. Hirth said, "Should a 'soft soap' measure be proposed, we will promptly ask our friends to defeat it. There is to be a real showdown."

"How the farmers of this country can be expected to compete against the peasants of the world on the one hand and then absorb their full share of the existing tariff and the generous wage scale of labor on the other is a hard thing for a thinking farmer to understand."

"Only recently, when Secretary Jardine was asked whether he did not think the farmer had a right to expect that the tariff be made effective for agriculture, he said, 'I would forget about that—and unless this congress passes a real farm relief measure it is not at all impossible that the secretary's remarkable phrase will become historic.'"

"Far if the tariff is to be effective for industry and to mean nothing more than a glacially slow agriculture, then the farmers of this country will have no choice except to declare war on the whole protective system. Therefore, if the East doesn't want to pull down the temple on its own head it had better change its attitude."

As to the charge that a farm subsidy is being sought, Mr. Hirth declared that the farm groups have always been willing that the loss on the exportable surplus should come from the pockets of the producers. Farmers would pay back every penny of the fund provided under the Haugen measure, he said, adding: "The implication that we have been asking a subsidy is entirely gratuitous and grows out of a committee amendment to the Haugen bill which was in no sense a demand of the farmer representatives."

Rep. Victor Berger, Socialist of Wisconsin, has introduced a bill in the house to provide an elaborate program of reforestation.

Secretary of War Davis has asked that mandatory one-year enlistments in the army be eliminated as involving too great cost to the government.

Birth rates for 1925 were lower than for 1924 in 26 out of 30 states for which records are available, according to the Department of Commerce.

American industries are estimated by officials of the bureau of standards to be expending $900,000 a year in co-operative researches with the bureau to promote higher standards of products.

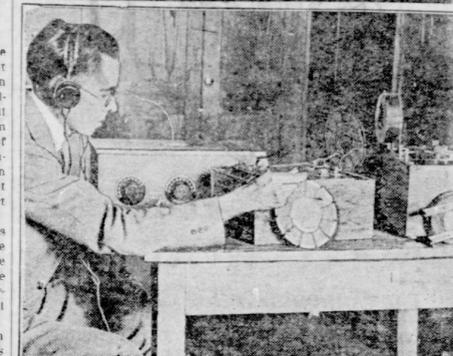

President Coolidge has signed the public buildings bill providing $165,000,000 for the construction of post offices and other public buildings throughout the United States during the next five years.

Mexican Rebel Leader Slain—Nogales, Ariz.—It is reported here that Ernesto Silva, Mexican rebel leader in the 1916 insurrection, was shot and killed at Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, when he attempted to escape from military authorities.

Rescue Fifty Trapped in Mine—Scranton, Pa.—When the Mount Lookout mine caught fire 350 men in the workings were trapped on the second level, but were rescued after a two-hour fight.

Artists to Paint Arctic Circle—Chicago.—Thirty-eight artists headed by Dudley Crafts Watson of the Chicago Art Institute will penetrate 365 miles into the Arctic circle on a painting tour of the northern Europe polar regions, it was announced here.

RADIO

Morris S. Strock of the Government Radio Laboratory Has Designed and Built an Apparatus to Measure Frequencies of Stations.

With short wave radio transmission now emanating from practically every corner of the earth, a tremendous interest in this form of communication is being predicted for this summer.

According to the most recent list of the world's short-wave stations there are approximately 130 transmitters operating on regular schedules on wave lengths between 13 and 115 meters. The total is expected to be almost doubled by the end of the year.

United States Leads.—The United States maintains the lead in the short-wave stations, principally through its naval transmitters and the experimental stations of the low-wave pioneers among the radio manufacturers. General Electric company, A. H. Grebe & Co., the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, the Radio Corporation of America together operate practically one-fourth of the high-frequency plants.

Included in the list of stations on low waves are transmitters located in Germany, England, Java, Sweden, Holland, Russia, France, Hawaii, Samoa, Canal Zone, the Philippines, Japan and about the ships of the United States fleet scattered throughout the world.

Parallel Tubes Reduce Impedance; Aid Output

In various set building experiments going on there appears to be an inclination toward the use of parallel tubes, that is, two tubes with their grids connected together to the input and their plates connected together to the output circuit.

In studying this type of tube connection it must be borne in mind that the push-pull combination is not a parallel tube arrangement. It is more of a relay system. One tube takes up the signal when the other lets go.

In connecting two grids together both grids are at the same voltage at the same time. Both plates, being connected together, are at the same voltage at the same instant. But an essential in smooth action is that both tubes must be alike, which seldom happens. It is the same situation with a team of horses. Unless they are matched there will be a difference in the work they do.

Aside from these considerations, putting the input circuits in parallel cuts the input impedance to one-half of its value. Likewise, plate circuits in parallel cuts the output impedance to half value. In the output circuit, therefore, to match the tube impedance, the transformer or choke or resistance would naturally have one-half the impedance it had when matching a single tube. In other words, smaller chokes and smaller primary inductances will give better results than the high values, assuming the latter to be correct for a single tube. But another way, the cheaper types which do not give such desirable effects on a single tube would be better on the parallel tube.

Never touch the inside of a set when it is in operation.

Coils Set Far Apart—Selectivity Improved—Listeners desiring to "tune in" on stations emitting a sharp wave will need to use more care in their tuning than would otherwise be necessary. Especially is this true of a modern type of tuned radio-frequency, neutralized, or superheterodyne type of receiving set. In order to secure the best results possible from any receiving set, no matter which type is used, the operator must become thoroughly familiar with its operation. This will require considerable time and practice.

Listeners using some form of regeneration receivers will find that the selectivity of their sets can be improved by increasing the regeneration control to the highest point possible without causing the set to oscillate.

A receiving set should never be allowed to oscillate, for, in so doing, it becomes a miniature transmitter and can cause much interference to other receivers in the immediate vicinity.

If a receiving set is being used having some form of variable coupling between the primary and secondary windings of the tuning coil, this coupling should be set as loose as possible; that is, the coils should be set far apart. This will reduce the loudness of the signals somewhat, but the selectivity of the set will be much improved. This selectivity is of more importance than the volume of the signal, especially so where a station is wanted which is being interfered with by some other station operating near the same wave length.

When to Use "C" Batteries—The use of a "C" battery improves the quality of reproduction and reduces the plate current drain on regenerators using more than ninety volts of "B" battery. It is connected in the grid circuit of the amplifier with the positive terminal connected to the "A" battery.

Use of Tubes Counts—Many people believe the more tubes a radio has the better it is. This is not so. It is the way the tubes are used that counts.

ETHER WAVES

The most common source of trouble within a radio set is in the tubes or in the sockets.

The direction in which the antenna points affects the loudness of the signals received.

An aerial is not essential with a sensitive set employing two stages of radio frequency amplification.

When using the variocoupler as a single circuit set reverse the tickler connections if it will not oscillate.

Goals for high frequency currents should always be viewed with non-magnetic material, preferably copper.

The ground is one of the most important portions of the radio circuit.

Crystal detectors operate as long as the detector is in good condition.

Excessive resin from solder can be removed with alcohol and a soft cloth.

If a listener is bothered by having the station programs fade the cause may be with the aerial of the receiving set. If the antenna becomes loose and swings in the wind it will often cause weak signals.

Radiation Different From Regeneration—Many people have the mistaken idea that regeneration means radiation, or vice versa. This is not true. Regeneration and radiation are not synonymous, and should not be confused.

A radio set may contain regeneration in its circuit without offending by radiating. On the other hand, a so-called nonregenerating receiver may be, and frequently is, a most violent offender from radiation. A radio set radiates—sometimes improperly called "re-radiates"—when the tube directly or magnetically connected to the antenna, oscillates and causes the antenna likewise to oscillate and give off energy.

Tube Insurance That Is Worth Remembering—Probably many tubes are burned out every year by accidentally connecting a high-voltage "B" battery across their filament terminals. There are many ways to prevent such an accident from happening, and one of the easiest is to connect a high resistance in the negative lead to the "B" battery. An ordinary 10-watt electric-light bulb is one high resistance which may be used for this purpose. If the use of the lamp causes a howling noise to be heard, shunt it with a 1-mfd. condenser.

Between the primary and secondary windings of the tuning coil, this coupling should be set as loose as possible; that is, the coils should be set far apart. This will reduce the loudness of the signals somewhat, but the selectivity of the set will be much improved. This selectivity is of more importance than the volume of the signal, especially so where a station is wanted which is being interfered with by some other station operating near the same wave length.

When to Use "C" Batteries—The use of a "C" battery improves the quality of reproduction and reduces the plate current drain on regenerators using more than ninety volts of "B" battery. It is connected in the grid circuit of the amplifier with the positive terminal connected to the "A" battery.

Use of Tubes Counts—Many people believe the more tubes a radio has the better it is. This is not so. It is the way the tubes are used that counts.

BAREE SON OF KAZAN

by JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

With her wet clothes clinging to her tightly, she was like a slim shadow as she crossed the soggy open and buried herself among the forest trees. Baree still followed. She went straight to a birch-tree that she had located that day and began tearing off the loose bark. An armful of this bark she carried close to the wigwam, and on it she heaped load after load of wet wood until she had a great pile. From a bottle in the wigwam she secured a dry nut, and at the first touch of its tiny flame the birch-bark flared up like paper soaked in oil. Not until it was blazing a dozen feet into the air did she cease putting wood on it. Then she drove sticks into the soft ground and over these sticks stretched the blanket out to dry. After that she began to undress.

The rain had cooled the air, and the taste of it—laden with the breath of the balsam and spruce—set the Willow's blood dancing in her veins. She forgot the discomfort of the deluge. She forgot the Factor from Lac Rain, and what Pierrot had told her. She danced about Baree, tossing her sea of hair about her, her naked body shimmering in and out of it, her eyes aglow, her lips laughing in her unremembered happiness—the happiness of being alive, of drinking into her lungs the perfumed air of the forest, of seeing the stars and the wonderful sky above her. She stopped before Baree and looked at him, holding out her arms:

"Aha, Baree—if you could only throw off your skin as easily as I have thrown off my clothes!"

She drew a deep breath, and her eyes shone with a sudden inspiration. Slowly her mouth formed into a round O, and leaning still nearer to Baree, she whispered:

"It will be deep—and sweet tonight. Nines—yes—we will go!"

She called to him softly as she slipped on her wet moccasins and followed the creek into the forest. A hundred yards from the open she came to the edge of a pool. It was deep and full tonight, three times as big as it had been before the storm. She could hear the gurgle and splash of water. On its ruffled surface the stars shone. For a moment or two she stood poised on a rock with the cool depths half a dozen feet below her. Then she flung back her hair and shot like a slim white arrow through the starlight.

Baree saw her go. He heard the splash of her body. For half an hour he lay flat and still, close to the edge of the pool, and watched her. Once she was gone a long time. He wished she knew she was not like the heaver and the star, and he was filled with an immense relief when she came up.

So their first night passed—storm, the cool, deep pool, the big fire; and later, when the Willow's clothes and the blanket had dried, a few hours' sleep. At dawn they returned to the cabin. There was no smoke coming from the chimney. The door was closed. Pierrot and Bush McTaggart were gone.

Chapter VIII

It was the beginning of August—the flying moon when Pierrot returned from Lac Rain, and in three days more it would be the Willow's seventeenth birthday. He brought back with him many things for Nepeese—rubbish for her hair, real shoes, which she wore at times like the two English women at Nelson House, and chief glory of all, some wonderful red cloth for a dress. In the three winters she had spent at the Mission these women had made much of Nepeese. They had taught her to sew as well as to spell and read and pray, and at times there came to the Willow a compelling desire to do as they did.

For three days Nepeese worked hard on her new dress and on her birthday she stood before Pierrot in a fashion that took his breath away. She had piled her hair in great glowing masses and coils on the crown of her head, as Yonnie, the younger of the English women, had taught her, and in the rich jet of it had half buried a vivid sprig of the crimson fire-flower. Under this, and the glow in her eyes, and the red flush of her lips and cheeks came the wonderful dress, fitted to the slim and sinuous beauty of her form—as the style had been two winters ago at Nelson House. And under the dress, which reached just below the knees—Nepeese had quite forgotten the proper length, or else her material had run out—came the coup de maître of her tailor, real stockings and the wonderful shoes with high heels! She was a vision before which the gods of the forest might have felt their hearts stop beating. Pierrot turned her round and round without a word, but smiling; but when she left him, followed by Baree, and flapping a little in the tightness of her shoes, the smile faded from his face, leaving "it cold and staring."

"Mon Dieu," he whispered to himself in French, with a thought that was like a sharp stab at his heart, "she is not of her mother's blood—no. It is French. She is—yes—like an angel!"

There was a change in Pierrot. During the three days of her dress-making Nepeese had been quite too excited to notice this change, and Pierrot had tried to keep it from her. He had been away ten days on the trip to Lac Rain, and he brought back to Nepeese the joyful news that M'sieu McTaggart was very sick with pechipoop—the blood poison—which made the Willow clap her hands and laugh happily. But he knew that the Factor would get well, and that he would come again to their cabin on the Gray Loon. And when next time he came—

It was when he was thinking of this that his face grew cold and hard, and his eyes burned. And he was thinking of it on this her birthday, even as her laughter floated to him like a song. Then, in spite of her seventeen years, she was nothing but a child—a baby! She could not guess his horrible visions. And the dread of awakening her for all time from that beautiful childhood kept him from telling her the whole truth so that she might have understood fully and completely. No, it should not be that. His soul beat with a great and gentle love. He, Pierrot De Quiesne, would do the watching. And she should laugh and sing and play—and have no share in the black forebodings that had come to spoil his life.

On this day there came up from the south Macdonald, the government map-maker. He was gray and grizzled, with a great, free laugh and a clean heart. Two days he remained with Pierrot. He told Nepeese of his daughters at home, of their mother, whom he worshipped more than anything else on earth—and before he went on in his quest of the last timber line of Banksian pine, he took pictures of the Willow as he had first seen her on her birthday; her hair piled in glossy coils and masses, her red dress, the high-heeled shoes. He carried the negatives on with him, promising Pierrot that he would get a picture back in some way. Thus fate works in its strange and apparently innocent ways as it spins its webs of tragedy.

For many weeks after this there followed tranquil days on the Gray Loon. They were wonderful days for Baree. At first he was suspicious of Pierrot. After a little he tolerated him, and at last accepted him as a part of the cabin—and Nepeese. It was the Willow whose shadow he became. Pierrot noted the attachment with the deepest satisfaction.

"Ah, in a few months more, if he should leap at the throat of M'sieu the Factor," he said to himself one day.

In September, when he was six months old, Baree was almost as large as Gray Wolf—big-boned, long-fanged, with a deep chest, and jaws that could already crack a bone as if it were a stick. He was with Nepeese whenever and wherever she moved.

It was late in August when Baree saw the first of his kind outside of Kazan and Gray Wolf. During the summer Pierrot allowed his dogs to run at large on a small island in the center of a lake two or three miles away, and twice a week he netted fish for them. On one of these trips Nepeese accompanied him and took Baree with her. Pierrot carried his long carbon-gut whip. He expected a fight. But there was none. Baree joined the pack in their rush for fish, and ate with them. This pleased Pierrot more than ever.

"He will make a great sledge-dog," he chuckled. "It is best to leave him for a week with the pack, ma Nepeese."

Reluctantly Nepeese gave her consent. While the dogs were still at their fish, they started toward their canoe had stolen well out before Baree discovered the trick they had played on him. Instantly he leaped into the water and swam after them—and the Willow helped him into the canoe.

Early in September a passing Indian brought Pierrot word of Bush McTaggart. The Factor had been very sick. He had almost died from the blood poison, but he was well now. With the first exhilarating tang of autumn in the air a new dread oppressed Pierrot. But at present he said nothing of what was in his mind to Nepeese. The Willow had almost forgotten the Factor from Lac Rain, for the glory and thrill of wilderness autumn was in her blood.

Most of Nepeese's hours she spent in training Baree for the sledge. He began with a halberd string and a stick. It was a whole day before she could induce Baree to drag this stick without turning at every other step to snap and crouch at it. Then she fastened another length of halberd to him, and made him drag two sticks. Thus little by little she trained him to the sledge-harness, until at the end of a fortnight he was tugging heroically at anything she had a mind to fasten to him. Pierrot brought home two of the dogs from the island, and Baree was put into training with these, and helped to drag the empty sledge. Nepeese was delighted. On the day the first light snow fell she clapped her hands and cried to Pierrot:

"By midwinter I will have him the finest dog in the pack, mon pere!"

This was the time for Pierrot to say what was in his mind. He smiled. Diantre—would not that beast the Factor fall into the very devil of a rage when he found how he had been cheated! And yet—

He tried to make his voice quiet and commonplace.

"I am going to send you down to the school at Nelson House again this winter, ma cherie," he said. "Baree will help draw you down on the first good snow."

The Willow was tying a knot in Baree's halberd, and she rose slowly to her feet and looked at Pierrot.

"I am not going, mon pere!" It was the first time Nepeese had ever said that to Pierrot—in just that way. It thrilled him. And he could scarcely face the look in her eyes. He was not good at bluffing. Nepeese did not wait for him to gather speech.

"I am not going," she repeated with even greater finality, and bent again over Baree.

With a shrug of his shoulders Pierrot watched her. After all, was he not glad? Would his heart not have turned sick if she had been happy at the thought of leaving him? He moved to her side and with great gentleness laid a hand on her glossy head. Up from under it the Willow smiled at him. Between them they heard the click of Baree's jaws as he rested his muzzle on the Willow's arm. For the first time in weeks the world seemed suddenly filled with sunshine for Pierrot. When he went back to the cabin he held his head higher. Nepeese would not leave him! He laughed softly. He rubbed his hands together. His fear of the Factor from Lac Rain was gone. From the cabin door he looked back at Nepeese and Baree.

"The saints be blessed!" he murmured. "Now—now—it is Pierrot Du Quiesne who knows what to do!" (TO BE CONTINUED.)

HEADWEAR NOTABLE FOR STYLE; TAILORED SUITS NOW POPULAR

EVERY once in a while a tidal wave in fashion seems to roll, with the dawns, across the country and all the women, from Maine to California, wake up wanting the same thing on the same day. Once it was fashionable shoes, again it was the straight-line dress, last season the call was for the little felt hat, as like other felt hats as peas in a pod, and now it is for headwear of exactly the opposite type. Yes, we have been asleep at the switch in millinery matters, overlooking the importance of the most flattering of all our belongings. But with spring came an awakening and now women are frantically and unanimously calling for variety and beauty in their hats and more than all, for an essential but not important part in the season's style drama.

Stellar roles were given to softly feminine types of apparel and no one foresaw that manly tailored suits would come anywhere near rivaling them, but they have. New versions of tailored types are coming in for the midseason; they are very sumptuous and of a captivating prettiness with all their tailored lines. The tailored mode begins with tweed or homespun utility suits in boyish or sports types. These have short, hip-length jackets, single or double breasted, patch or slit pockets. Then come the most popular of all suits made of twill or charmeuse in plain colors or black with navy blue most popular. These are demanded in manly and in dressier styles. Hair line stripes and checks are usually plain and severely tailored and there are many smart combinations of checks with plain materials. Cape suits and ensembles answer the call for dressier tailors. Innovations in the tailored mode appear in the introduction of livelier colors and new patterns in weaving. Tweeds are varied by fancy and tapestry patterns and by the introduction of new colors, as rose tan, lavender or green, and homespun may be had in high colors. Twill and charmeuse are displayed in light green, white, pale beige, warm tan, and for midsummer we will have soft tones of

for the element of style—that is, artistic value.

This revival of interest in diversified styles is a joy to the creators of millinery, and after a famine we have a feast of varied shapes of which several familiar types are shown in the illustration. There are numbers of mushroom brims and creased crowns in the displays and the Spanish galler is a new arrival that promises to become very popular. The fine Italian crocheted hats, that came out in small, close-fitting shapes, are developed now in larger sizes.

This diversity in shapes is matched by variety of mediums used for making them. Besides straw and hair brims, belting ribbon, taffeta, silk, satin and velvet serve to fashion many hats and lace and georgette are used as well. Combinations of straws with fabrics, and of two different fabrics, as belting ribbon and satin or taffeta and velvet, inspire designers to turn out something new every day. Some lovely new shades have been added to the list of beautiful colors featured this season. The latest are coral sand, geranium pink, June rose and a pale gold called "sunny." In ornaments crystal and rhinestone pins are scheduled for midsummer wear and small silver buckles or slides have reappeared on tailored hats.

Once more, Lady Fashion has treated us to one of those surprises which have earned her reputation for fickleness. This surprise is the growing vogue of tailored suits, which, early in the spring, were cast by a pillow muf of satin, with flaring beaver bands at the ends. Feather collars are accompanied by plumed muffs.

Handkerchief Squares Handkerchief squares, large enough to wrap about the neck, are worn to add a contrast to the paste-hued frock which is at its height of popularity.

A New Ensemble Paris has developed a new ensemble consisting of necktie and muffs. These usually are not developed except in fur. One consists of a black satin cravat, from which depends a jabot of beaver. It is accompanied

The Kitchen Cabinet

God, make me worthy of Thy land, Which mine I call a little while; This meadow where the sunlight's smile Falls like a blessing from Thy hand, And where the river singing runs 'Neath wintry skies and summer suns.—Richard Watson Gilder.

Sometimes serve these little biscuits with a lettuce salad; they are good with any other.

Prepare the usual baking powder mixture, add one-half cupful of butter, then grated cheese. Cut with a small cutter and bake in a hot oven twelve to fifteen minutes.

Scrambled Eggs With Smoked Halibut.—Lay a small piece of smoked halibut in a shallow dish and cover with milk to remove any excess salt and soften the fish. Shred, and to one-half cupful of the fish prepare the following: Four beaten eggs with one-half cupful of milk, salt and pepper if needed. Melt one and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter in a frying pan, add the egg mixture and cook. When half done add the halibut and when cooked turn out on a hot platter. Garnish with toast points.

Red Raspberry Lacto.—Take one quart of buttermilk or sour milk, add one egg, the white stiffly beaten, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of raspberry syrup and when half frozen add the juice of a lemon and finish freezing.

Sardine Biscuit.—Make and bake small-baking powder biscuits. Split while hot, spread with butter, add a skinned and boned sardine which has been dipped in lemon juice, then drained, replace the top of the biscuit, heap on plates and serve with tea.

Cottage Cheese With Peanuts.—Mix a cupful of cottage cheese with one-half cupful of coarsely chopped peanuts. Mold in a tablespoon and place in tender lettuce. Serve garnished with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Seasoned Cabbage.—Cut a medium-sized head of cabbage into quarters, put to cook in boiling salted water with two slices of bacon and an onion which have been cooked together. Cook until the cabbage is nearly tender, then add a few well washed frankfurters and serve with the cabbage garnished with the frankfurters.

Banbury Tarts.—Sift together two and one-half cupfuls of flour, two and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one and one-fourth teaspoonfuls of salt. Cut into the mixture four tablespoonfuls of shortening, add one-half cupful of cold water, knead lightly and roll out. Spread with three tablespoonfuls of butter, roll up like a jellyroll, pat out and roll again. Spread again with three tablespoonfuls of butter, pat and roll again, repeat until three-fourths of a cupful of butter has been used, roll to one-fourth inch and cut into five-inch circles. Fill with chopped raisins and jelly, twice as much of raisins as jelly, and one-half cupful of bread crumbs. Fold after wetting the edges, press well, prick and bake on a baking sheet.

Helpful Suggestions. When serving chilled dishes like ice cream, salads and cold puddings, if the dishes in which they are to be served are placed for a time in the refrigerator the melting of ices is practically solved.

Salads served on cold plates will keep their fresh crispness and palatability to the last morsel. Frozen dishes molded in melon molds should be cut into pie-shaped pieces and served on chilled plates.

Cream is properly whipped when the beater leaves its print in the cream. Longer beating will often cause bits of butter to form. Sifted flour that has stood for several days should always be resifted before using. If a cupful of flour is called for in a recipe, fill the cup with a tablespoon; do not dip it up in the cup. All recipes in modern books are to use level measurements of all ingredients.

The ordinary recipe serves five to six persons amply. By cutting down to halves or thirds, the needs of smaller families will be suited. If fortunate enough to have a large one it is easy to double the recipe.

In preparing French dressing use half lemon juice and half vinegar or dilute the vinegar with water or fruit juice, using three times as much oil as acid. A nice way to prepare French dressing is to put all the ingredients in a mason jar, seal and give it a few shakes before using. It will keep indefinitely in the ice chest or cool cellar.

To hurry the molding process of gelatin or fruit jellied dishes, have a dripping pan filled with cracked ice, set the molds into it, sprinkling a little salt over the ice to quicken the chilling.

Cubed cooked beets mixed with a mayonnaise which has been tinted pink, served on endive or tender lettuce, makes a tasty and most attractive salad combination.

HIGHER THAN WOOLWORTH BUILDING

The Yearly Sales of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The Woolworth Building in New York City, which towers 792 feet above the street, is our highest building.

If all the bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound sold in one year could be placed end to end, they would make a column as high as the Woolworth Building. And there would be enough left over to extend from Lynn, Massachusetts to Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have lots of work to do and I am not very strong, but I was getting worse all the time until I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I used to lose my appetite completely at certain times, but I feel very well since I began taking this medicine. I think so much of it that I would go before a notary and swear to its merits. You could step into my home any time and you will find a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Fannie M. Casey, 220 South 11th Ave., Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Begin Here

Emil Patrick Kucheneiser, 21 bids his father Amos farewell, makes a solemn promise to the hired girl, Emma Hemstitch and leaves the farm to come to Milwaukee to win fame and fortune.

Following an adventure with a mysterious blonde he sees a street car accident and gets a job with Seekem & Soaken, ambulance chasers.

He is out chasing ambulances when he again meets the blonde under peculiar circumstances.

Chapter VII

For a full three minutes Emil Kucheneiser stood, puzzling over the magic word.

"What could it mean? Was this a message for him? Was that her name? Above all what should he do? He felt an impulse to rush after her on the chance of clearing up the mystery but he curbed this and turned to his street car. "She thinks I'm a green horn," he finally decided, "but I'll fool her."

The day was to come when Emil Kucheneiser would remember this incident and the nonchalance with which he dismissed it.

On Mitchell st. Emil readily found his next address. The house had no bell and after repeated knocking by Emil, a grizzled man on crutches opened the door.

"Is this Mr. Samaboulsky?" demanded the youth.

"You got it right," replied the householder.

"Well, Mr. Samaboulsky," said Emil speaking rapidly. "I am here to make you feel good. Seekem & Soaken have heard of your accident, sir, and if you will deal with them you will feel as good as if you will never know you were hurt. We handle more cases than any other firm."

"Was it moon yet—or gennywine stuff?" demanded the suspicious Samaboulsky. "I'm kinda offa that moon—"

"You can trust us entirely," replied Emil with dignity. "If you could see our offices you would realize that no one connected there could possibly be one to inaccurately or fanciful statements, commonly designated as moonshine. Every case handled by us has the personal inspection of Mr. Seekem."

We guarantee 100 per cent in every case.

"How much you charge?" demanded Samaboulsky.

"Only thirty-three and a third," answered Emil. "No one else—"

"I guess you can bring me a case, if you charge so cheap," interrupted Samaboulsky. "Go ahead and bring it. I feel better already."

He signed on the dotted line and Emil was jubilant as he made his way to the next address. Probably his success with Samaboulsky made him more confident and fluent for here he obtained a signature without trouble.

So it went with others in the list and at three p. m. he had eight of those on his list signed up for his firm.

One of two incidents of the solicitation amused him. One man—a fellow hurt by a Lincoln av. bus had made a strange remark, when signing.

"I can afford this alright," he said. "I have just signed up with Hooker & Holden and they are going to get me a lot of money for my accident."

Emil thought the remark peculiar but before to question the man. Another man on Reed st.—hit by a truck seemed to think that he was entitled to collect more than once.

"Make it two cases, can't you?" he urged. "Lots of times I get the belly ache, too."

Emil replied that this would not be ethical. He thought to himself that the fellow was grasping indeed, to charge against the truck owner his belly-aches as well as his other injuries. After all, he mused, one owes a duty to society and truck owners should not be blamed for everything.

In jubilant spirits Emil returned to the offices, his eight contracts clutched in his hands. But when he opened the door and entered an amazing sight met his eyes. Mr. Seekem stood in the center of the room, surrounded by an angry mob of men, each shouting and waving his arms. When they saw Emil, however, they stopped with one accord.

"Here's the baby!" they cried, viciously. "Let us at him."
