Miss Bauer sang "Glorious 'Ave Maria'" and Dr. Hoffman played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bridal party approached the altar. At the conclusion of the services Dr. Hoffman played Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The bride wore a white georgette, with gold rosettes and lace, over white satin. Her veil was gathered in cap effect, and fastened with orange blossoms. She carried a gold rosary and her bouquet was of tea roses, bridal wreath and swansonia. Her bridesmaid Miss Clorinda Strobel was dressed in a yellow beaded georgette over green satin dress with hat to match. She carried an arm bouquet of pink and white carnations. ## STEAL OIL—PAY $5.00

Four young men, giving their names as Ray Stoltzmann, John Meeth, John Depray and Joe Wehlen, claiming their place of residence as Milwaukee were taken into custody here by Chief of Police George F. Brandt on Monday evening. The men, driving a Ford car were on their way home from Hurley, Wis., and when they came to the farm home of Fiebers, located a short distance south of Eden, they stopped and stole a can of lubricating oil. Mrs. Fiebers who was working in the garden at the time, noticed what had happened and immediately notified Marshal Brandt, who when they arrived in this village, took them into custody, and after paying the sum of $5.00, which covered the price of the oil and other expenses, allowed them to continue on their way to Milwaukee.

UNIFORM LAWS TO SAFEGUARD AUTO

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
The legislature of every state in the union will have before it this year and next a series of uniform model laws that will make motoring easier and safer.
These laws are the outgrowth of the national conference on street and highway safety at Washington, at which Secretary of Commerce Hoover urged their enactment in all the states.
They are based on a survey of accidents and faulty driving methods, made by the National Safety Council, and are practically the recommendations of this organization put into legal form.
The laws would cover provisions for uniformity in—
1. Speed regulation.
2. Protection of school children.
3. Fines and other forms of punishment.
4. Grade crossing rules.
5. Brake inspection and regulation.
6. Proper driving methods.
7. Rights of way at crossings and on highways.
8. Signalling systems.
9. Street car and pedestrian traffic.
10. Traffic control.
11. Testing owners and operators.
12. Parking.
Several surveys made by the National Safety Council and other organizations, on the traffic situation in this country, point to the necessity of uniform laws for all the states. They stress the large number of accidents due to ignorance of local laws and conditions, and the growing congestion from increased traffic.

FINED IN COURT BUT GOES AWAY WITH MORE MOENY

When men come to court to plead guilty to offenses punishable by fines they usually leave poorer.
This was the case with Adam Uelmen, former Random Lake farmer, who appeared before Judge H. M. Felten Thursday morning to plead to a charge of assault preferred by John Schneider, Town of Auburn. But Uelmen's financial shortage was wholly a matter of bookkeeping, as when he left he had actual cash assets of $3 more than when he came to court. For the sheriff had taken him away from his work in the motor company at Waukesha Wednesday without opportunity to replenish his supply of pocket money and he had only 50 cents when he came to court, far less than enough to take him back to his work.
Fortunately he was well acquainted with the judge, who hesitated not a moment when he was asked to extend time in the matter of paying the fine and cost, and reached for his wallet immediately Uelmen declared he had no money to buy a ticket back to Waukesha. Uelmen denied that he had assaulted Schneider when he went to the Auburn farm one day last month to take away his child, but rather than have any further trouble he declared his willingness to "settle".
The fine was fixed at $5, but the costs brought the total to $21.87.—Fond du Lac Reporter.

FALLS 22 FEET INTO WELL

Frank Rose, the peaceful dynamiter and well known well driller of the town of Kewaskum, met with two accidents last week, both while at work tiling a well on the premises of Peter Yearling, in the village of Barton. While he was down deep into the well on Friday a lot of ground with rock among it caved in and upon him, inflicting painful bruises about his head and shoulders. He was not rendered unconscious and even though in pain managed to get out of the well. Undaunted by his experience he got busy the next day, and again met with a mishap. He had set 22 feet of 30-inch tiling, and while on the inside of the tiling the rung of the ladder on which he was working and which had held the ladder in position broke, allowing Mr. Rose and ladder to fall to the bottom of the well. Again he was able to get out, but this only with herculean efforts. His left foot was injured quite badly.—West Bend Pilot.

"THE BEAUTIFUL CHEAT"

One of the largest indoor sets ever constructed for Universal-Jewel was built for filming scenes for "The Beautiful Cheat," starring Laura LaPlante, which is going to be shown at the Opera House tomorrow, Sunday.
As the story of the picture is that of a motion picture star it was necessary to have the sets large enough so that the camera could show another camera shooting scenes of the star at work in her studio.
The set occupied an entire stage and for the taking of a movie within a movie 95 twin-arc lights, five overheads and 15 spotlights were congregated on the one set sending their blinding hot rays down on the players.
It took technical experts three hours to arrange the lights evenly so that the effect would be real and eliminate high lights, hot spots and shadows.
The expense of burning all these lights during the filming of the scenes and while they were being lined up, was tremendous. It was figured that they consumed $18 a minute in electricity.

HARTFORD BOY KILLED IN CRASH

Herbert Colbach, aged 24 years, reporter and secretary on the Hartford Times staff, met with a tragic death and his four companions were injured, one of them seriously, last Friday night, when the Studebaker automobile owned and driven by Kirk Radde-man, of Hartford, struck a culvert abutment on a curve four miles south of Juneau, the car crashed into the ditch and rolled over. The men were returning from a dance at Juneau city park, and it is reported that they were traveling too fast to make the turn at the corner, resulting in the fatal accident. The injured were taken to the Hartford General hospital for treatment. Frank Nanscanen sustained a fractured leg and broken nose and minor cuts and bruises. John Hayes, Emery Swanton and Kirk Radde-man suffered cuts and bruises which were not serious. Colbach was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregor Colbach. He was born at Slinger 24 years ago, and was a resident of Hartford 22 years. While attending high school, he was employed in the Hartford Times during spare hours, and when he graduated from school, he was promoted in the office. Besides his parents, he leaves to mourn, one brother, Roman and two sisters, Hattie and Lillian. The funeral was held Monday forenoon, and burial was made in St. Kilian cemetery, Hartford.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR RANDOM LAKE

A canvas conducted by F. X. Sommers among local farmers and business men gave assurance of a sound support in every way for the establishing of a mill condensing plant in Random Lake. Accordingly the building will be erected and the work conducted under the firm name of Velve Cream Products Co., a $125,000 corporation. Corporation papers are now in the hands of the secretary of state at Madison and as soon as the company's charter is received here work of erecting the buildings will be started.—Random Lake Times.

WARNING AGAINST KNIGHTS OF ROAD

Practice of "Picking Up" Strangers Proved by Records to Be Harmful.

With the opening of the pleasant weather the "sons of Egan," who have been "loped up" are again afoot on the highways of the nation, according to a motorist who doesn't follow the practice of "picking up" strangers on the road.

These restless souls made impudent by an enforced sojourn in one place for the months of the rules and cold, are now in a hurry to be "going somewhere else."

They are going north or south and some east or west. Few know whether they are going or how far. All that seems to interest them is a change of scenery, a new environment, new faces.

No matter on which highway one travels nowadays there one will see numbers of these "birds of passage" trodding along the road going somewhere, anywhere.

Some of them are honest workers who are seeking new jobs, and lacking the necessary railroad or stage fare, are making the journey on foot. But most are merely "tramps," "weary Willies," "bos."

There was a time when these latter "birds of passage" made a practice of giving their "patronage" to the railroads exclusively when they made their "long jumps." They rode the rods or blind baggage and the "side-door pullman" was travel "de luxe" to these entities.

In recent years they have made a radical change in their methods of travel. The increasing number of passenger automobiles and trucks has been making the highways easy for them. Now they travel by auto—when they can.

And that is just the trouble. They so very frequently can and do. Motorists, most of whom are far more kindhearted and generous than they should be for their own good, do not hesitate to stop on signal from these "knights of the road" and carry them as far as they desire to go.

Regret Generosity. There are many instances where motorists have regretted their generosity. It has resulted in their being found on the roadside, sans auto, sans purse and almost sans life itself.

Police annals throughout the nation are full of such cases and yet human nature is such that motorists will keep on doing the same thing time after time, heedless of the warnings contained in newspaper accounts of theft and almost fatal assaults by members of this army of "ride-grafters."

The wise motorist is he who will not give a "lift" to these gentry; who will go on his way unmindful of the stop signal so urgently waved in his path.

Study Oil Viscosity and Torque Needed to Start

Some attention has been given by the bureau of standards, Department of Commerce, to the relation between oil viscosity and the torque required to start an automobile engine in rotation or to bring it up to a given speed. From the results thus far obtained it appears that while the viscosity of the oil does have a pronounced effect upon the power required to crank the engine at speeds of 100 r. p. m. and higher, it does not have any appreciable influence upon the torque required to start the engine rotating.

Keep Glass Clear

Among the new laws affecting motorists in New York state are: The windshield and rear windows must be kept clean from posters. A license plate must be clearly visible on the front of the car. Manufacturers and dealers are required to register the sale of new cars.

Six Ways of Being Good Driver Told by Expert

Seven nationally known traffic and safety experts were asked to state what they believe were the characteristics of a safe and good driver. An analysis of the opinions submitted show that the men all agreed on the following major essentials of good driving:

1. The good driver has a high degree of self-control at all times, this control manifesting itself in various ways.
2. The good driver always maintains his car in such shape that it responds easily and quickly, thus assuring control of the car as far as the purely mechanical equation is concerned.
3. The good driver regulates his speed in accord with the conditions of the road over which he is traveling and never travels at such a rate that he cannot stop it within the "clear course" ahead.
4. The good driver invariably exercises due regard for the rights of others and always applies the simple axioms of courteous behavior.
5. The good driver accepts the safety of the pedestrians as a primary consideration.
6. The good driver keeps his mind on the road ahead as day-dreaming or chattering at the wheel causes many more accidents than are caused by bee stings.

secured to the fenders of the vehicle, brackets supported by the fenders at each end of the first rod, adjustable bolts carried by the brackets, pointed ends on said bolts for engagement in the recesses of said first rod, a foot pedal and adjustable connection between the foot pedal and the first rod for imparting movement thereto.

Always Release Clutch When Rounding Corners

Always throw out the clutch when rounding a sharp corner. It has a beneficial effect upon the tires. Whenever the car tends to skid, due to its deflection from the straight course, a cross strain is brought to bear on the tire treads, which is directly proportional to the weight of the vehicle and the radius of the curve and proportional to the square of its velocity. If the power is applied in rounding a curve, the tendency to rip of the tires is further aggravated by the backward drag due to traction. If the clutch is released, however, the factor is eliminated and the strain is thereby reduced.

Auto Operators Advised to Start on Low Speed

When starting down a very steep grade it is advisable to place the gears in low speed. The rear wheels will then turn the engine, a movement requiring considerable effort. This produces a very good braking effect. A light car on a moderately steep hill will stop, and a heavy car will move slowly, but always under control. This is called "using the engine as a brake." It should be practiced from time to time, so that the driver may become familiar with the method. If all the other brakes fail, this is the best and only thing to do. Practice the trick frequently, so that it becomes as easy as any other operation, and you will have cause to be thankful if ever the need arises to use it.

American Golfers Retain Cup

For the fifth consecutive year, ever since 1921, America's golfers have beaten Britain's in the Walker cup matches, played this year at St. Andrews. In the single matches America scored 34 points to Britain's 44, and thus won the cup, 8 1/2 to 5 1/2. The upper photograph shows the American golfers, (left to right), back row: R. MacKenzie, Jess Sweetser, R. T. Jones, Watts Gunn, and G. von Elm. Front row: J. Guldford, R. Gardner and F. Oulmet. The lower photograph shows members of the British Walker cup team.

Winning Star of Reds

Herewith an unusual and striking picture of Pete Donohue, star pitcher of the leading Cincinnati Reds. Donohue uses his brains to pitch. He is smart and keen and always studying his baseball lessons. He came direct to big league success from a Texas college. He has a most pleasing personality and is just as likable as that smile in the picture indicates.

BASEBALL SQUIBS

Old Jack Quinn continues to fool the best of them.

Indianapolis has sent Pitcher Alfred Reynolds to the Decatur club of the Three-I league.

The Detroit club sent Pitcher Clyde Barfoot to the Mission club of the Pacific Coast league.

Cincinnati fans are inclined to hand Manager Jack Hendricks the full limit of credit for boosting the Reds.

Victor A. Hanson, 27, of Syracuse has been elected captain of the 1927 baseball team of Syracuse university.

The Yankee stadium, in New York city, is the largest of the major league ball parks, with a seating capacity of 65,000.

George W. Bradley, aged fifty, who pitched the first no-hit, no-run game in the National league, is now a policeman in Philadelphia, Pa.

Bucky Harris, youngest and most successful of all major league managers, was discarded by six clubs in nine years before he made good.

Fred Merberry is considered the "champion relief pitcher" of the country. Last year he worked in fifty-five games for the Washington team.

Air-tight ball was played back in the eighties. October 1, 1884, the ten clubs comprising the American association circuit scored only 28 runs in that day's play.

Two pitchers of the St. Paul American association club have been sold. Ad Holtzhauser was sent to Dallas of the Texas league and Charles Convent was released to Binghamton, N. Y.

Cadet Arthur L. Cobb, of Greenwood, S. C., and Cadet Joseph N. Gilbreth, of Bethesda, Md., were elected captains of the army baseball and track teams, respectively.

Cincinnati evidently has a hitter as well as a pitcher in Lucas, former Boston National player, whom Manager Bancroft of the Braves once tried to convert into a second baseman because of his hitting.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, Chicago Cubs pitcher, recently suffered his first sore arm since he began hurling in 1909.

The Cincinnati Reds announce the sale of Clyde Sukeforth, young catcher, to the Minneapolis club of the American association.

The Boston Red Sox have obtained from the Columbus club of the American association, Regan, an infielder, for Emmett McCall, formerly of Portland, Ore., and Jimmy Geygan.

Tacoma has a municipal fishing pond, ten miles long and one mile wide, which will be stocked with trout.

George L. Mittersdorf, Jr., 27, of West Orange, N. J., has been elected captain of the Colby college track team.

Dean Cromwell, track coach at the University of Southern California, believes that some one will soon run 100 yards in 9.4 seconds.

Jack Bernstein, lightweight boxer, used to fight under the ring names of Battling Kiddy and Kid Murphy. His real name is Jack Dedick.

Fred Low, a professional at the Unicorn Country club, near Boston, Mass., recently made his first hole in one after playing the game for 21 years.

Ralph Mulford, auto racer, is known as "The Parson" because he never has used tobacco, liquor, or profane language and observes the Sabbath strictly.

Charles Hoff, Norwegian pole vaulter, will be the official guide of 100 Northwestern university students and friends when they visit the University of Oslo this summer.

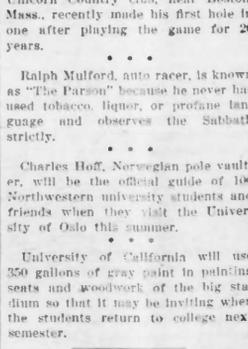

University of California will use 350 gallons of gray paint in painting seats and woodwork of the big stadium so that it may be inviting when the students return to college next semester.

Cooney Doing Nicely

Shortstop Jimmy Cooney of the Chicago Cubs, who has been out of the game on account of injuries, has returned to his old job, and is putting up a rattling good game at bat and in fielding.

Balls Collide in Air

Amongst the curious golf happenings the following at St. Andrews will surely take some beating. Two players in foursomes—Army Golfing society against St. Andrews—hidden from each other by a bunker, hit full iron shots toward the sixteenth green. When about twenty yards from the hole and five feet above the ground the balls collided with force and dropped either side of the hole about five yards apart. The truth of this yarn is vouched for.

Hitting Helps Pitchers

Hitting alone cannot win a pennant, but hitting goes a long way toward instilling confidence in the pitchers. With a staff of veterans, the New York Yankees' heavy hitting is evidently giving the pitchers much encouragement. To know that his team will give him five or six runs is a source of great confidence to a pitcher, and with the pitching staff going along in a fair sort of way, the Yankees have regained the pennant winning stride.

Ray Baker Quits to Become Missionary

Ray Baker, National A. A. U. half-mile running champion, has deserted the track to become a missionary. The Northern Baptist convention, in session at Washington sent him, along with his brother, Rev. Richard S. Baker, to Burma. Baker is one of the best-known runners in the United States, having been a member of the relay team of the Illinois Athletic club, which set a world's record for four miles several years ago. He also was amateur of the 1924 American Olympic team.

FEW BATTERS ABLE TO STICK AT .320

Only 24 Since 1871 Have Hit at That Figure.

Just two dozen batsmen out of the more than 5,000 regulars who played professional baseball in the big leagues since the sport was inaugurated in 1871 have maintained a batting average of .320 or better over a ten-year period. Of these 24 select players, eight, or one-third of the number, are playing ball today. They are: Ty Cobb, Rogers Hornsby, George Sisler, Tris Speaker, Babe Ruth, Harry Heilmann, Eddie Roush and Eddie Collins. The first four named placed their name near the top of the list. Only one of the ancientes, Pete Browning, of the eighties, broke into the staid circle of immortals.

Cobb with a lifetime average of .299 comes first; then Hornsby with .297; with Browning hitting .253 for his dozen years of play.

The others with their averages are: Sisler, .292; Speaker, .290; James O'Neill, .248; Dan Brouthers, .248; Ed Delahanty, .245; Babe Ruth, .246; Willie Keeler, .245; W. R. Hamilton, .244; Jess Burkett, .242; Cup Anson, .241; Nap Lajoie, .238; Sam Thompson, .237; Harry Heilmann, .236; Ronsch, .234; John McGraw, .234; Mike Dunlin, .234; Eddie Collins, .233; Hugh Duffy, .230; Hans Wagner, .229; Barry, .223; G. Van Halton, .222.

Cobb leads those with the greatest total of hits, with 3,823, and the others with more than 3,000 are Speaker, Anson, Lajoie, Eddie Collins and Wagner.

Anson played the longest term of years—27, while Cobb and Lajoie tallied 21 each. Sisler and O'Neill have the shortest term of years in the register, with the minimum ten each.

Prospector Gone From Klondike Gold Region

The richest gold area in Alaska was not far from the site of Carmanek's discovery, along Bonanza and Eldorado creeks. The finest vein was the Eldorado paystreak, four miles long, which yielded gold to the value of $1,200 a running foot. The whole Klondike region's highest yield was in 1900 when $22,000,000 was taken out. To 1915 the total production was about $102,000,000. Before 1903 the annual production had been greatly exceeded, and by 1916 the richest gravels had all been worked out. Dawson, the next year, had dropped in population to 3,100, while the prospector and his pan had long since given way, as in other placer regions, to the well-organized and economical equipment of the syndicates and the corporation.

Lamps Hurry Crops

Four crops of wheat can be raised on a single piece of ground in one year with the aid of electric light. This remarkable fact has been established after exhaustive experiments in the application of light to plant growth in England. Easter lilies and carnations over which 1,000-watt lamps were suspended grew from bud to bloom in four days. Ordinarily this growth takes four weeks. Six hours, from midnight on, are the most effective of the twenty-four for plant stimulation by electric light.

Handy Folks to Know

Nehf Adds Strength to Reds' Twirling Staff

Burgomaster Garry Herdmann's Cincinnati Reds are bringing joy to the big cardiac organ of their owner these days. Jack Hendricks has his team moving along smoothly, almost relentlessly, and the goods are being delivered. Many critics believe that Hendricks made a good move when he picked up Art Nehf from the Giants. Nehf can't work often, but he is one of the smartest twirlers in the game and there will doubtless be many occasions when he can be injected judiciously into the Portkown lineup. Hendricks now owns one of the best-rounded pitching staffs in the business, and if the other departments function as well as his slab corps is turned to the Reds will stay in the race for a long time and may furnish numerous surprises.

Hitting Helps Pitchers

With a staff of veterans, the New York Yankees' heavy hitting is evidently giving the pitchers much encouragement. To know that his team will give him five or six runs is a source of great confidence to a pitcher, and with the pitching staff going along in a fair sort of way, the Yankees have regained the pennant winning stride.

TRAVELS ON SNOW, ICE, WATER OR GROUND

George McLaughlin, a Bangor (Maine) garage man, has invented a machine which is capable of traveling on snow and ice, water and ground. It is equipped with a 70-horse-power monoplane motor and will make 60 miles an hour on the road. It has straight pontoons on both sides under the running boards, the top is constructed of wood boards in two layers crossed, with waterproofed canvas between both, to make it watertight. It is steered by the front wheels on both land and water, having no rudder. It will carry five passengers comfortably and is large and roomy; in looks, finish and equipment it equals the best limousines. Photograph shows a side view of the novel machine.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

A traffic post that will fly back when an automobile hits it has been invented. Now if only somebody would invent a pedestrian like that.

Locks, hinges, door latches and wood fasteners require lubrication frequently during wet weather. Many car windows are broken by slamming doors when a drop of oil on the hinges and latches would make slamming unnecessary.

Soft Pork Caused by Improper Feed

Fats of Peanuts, Soy Beans, Rice and Corn Strikingly Softening.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
From the results obtained to date in the experimental work relating to the "soft-pork problem" it may be concluded, says the United States Department of Agriculture, that the wider the ratio of softening fats in the ration to the carbohydrates and protein from which synthetic fat is formed the firmer the carcass. It is evident that the fat formed from carbohydrates and protein is always materially harder than that derived from the fats of peanuts, soy beans, rice and corn, all of which are strikingly softening.

Mixture Favored.

A mixture of corn meal 5 parts and peanut meal 1 part fed with or without supplementary minerals to pigs starting at 60 pounds and making gains of about 100 pounds in 9 or 10 weeks produces, in the usual case, hard or medium-hard hogs. When the corn meal is reduced to 2 parts to 1 of peanut meal either soft or hard hogs may result. The feeder is cautioned not to use this combination unless he is willing to accept any consequences that may come from offering soft hogs to the market.

The progress made in the solution of the soft-pork problem is discussed in Department Bulletin 1407, just published by the United States Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the agricultural experiment stations of Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Texas. Some conclusions regarding the feeding of various feeds in different combinations are listed in the bulletin. They do not, however, represent all of the results actually obtained during the progress of this work. Many other questions involved in the problem are being studied and a great mass of valuable data pertaining to them has already been obtained.

Progress Made in Solution.

The progress made in the solution of the problem in its more practical aspects has come through the definition and establishment of certain basic facts associated with the normal process of growth and fat formation in the hog. These facts pertain to the relative softening or hardening properties of the feeds concerned in the desired combinations and the reasons for such properties; the influence of the stage of development or size at which a given ration is fed, and the influence of gains on the rations. A copy of this bulletin may be secured as long as the supply lasts by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Good Whitewash Recipe for General Farm Work

Numerous inquiries are received by the extension division of the North Carolina State college about the best whitewash to use for the henhouse or other outbuildings. The requests are particularly numerous during the summer. The following directions may give an effective whitewash.
"Slack a half bushel of quicklime or lump lime with boiling water, keeping it covered during the process. Strain this and add a peck of salt dissolved in warm water, three pounds of ground rice boiled in water until it is a thin paste, a half pound of Spanish whiting and a pound of clear blue dissolved in warm water. Mix these together well and let the mixture stand for several days. Heat it and apply as quickly as possible with a white-wash brush.

"Alum added to whitewash will make it stick better. Use an ounce to a gallon. Molasses makes the lime more soluble and makes it penetrate the wood or plaster more deeply. Use a pint of molasses to a gallon of whitewash. A pound of cheap bar soap dissolved in a gallon of boiling water and added to five gallons of thick whitewash will impart a gloss like that of oil paint."

Don't Neglect to Paint

Various Farm Buildings

There is probably no one other thing that the average farmer neglects more than the judicious use of paint. The idea seems to be prevalent that paint is used primarily to beautify. Its use is regarded as a luxury rather than as a necessity. Paint does, of course, improve the looks of farm buildings, but it is far more useful as a means of protection, says the Indiana Farmer's Guide. Paint and varnish, while beautifying the home will at the same time lengthen the life of a valuable piece of property.

Paint is an economic necessity. It has been said that the life of a frame building will be lengthened from two to four times by constant painting. An inherited property, whose worth is beyond valuation, or a house that cost much to build may be preserved indefinitely, if it is properly painted. It may easily get beyond the painter's ability to save. Plasterers, carpenters and laborers, will cost nine times the price of the first "stitch," and in the end the painter will have to follow them.

Eradicate Burdock With Waste Crank Case Oil

The proper use of the waste crank case oil will soon rid a farm of burdock. The oil is cheap and may be secured in abundance from neighborhood garages. It is a real pleasure to watch this persistent pest give way to treatment with the waste oil. Any time before the hard stalk forms, the dock leaves should be shaved off even with the ground with a sharp hoe. On the stub, pour a little of the waste oil from a teapot or other suitable container. One application seems to kill and rot the roots of the plant. Those who have had a lot of trouble keeping the burdock down ought to enjoy using the waste oil.

Buttermilk for Calves

After a calf is a month old, it seems to be practical to raise it on buttermilk instead of skim milk, provided fresh buttermilk of good quality is available. Buttermilk is not quite as good as skim milk, but at the Kansas experiment station they found that the calves were just a little less likely to scour on buttermilk than on skim milk. A good result also to be obtained, however, it is important that it be fresh and handled from clean tanks.

CONTROL APPLE BLOTCH DISEASE BY MEANS OF SYSTEMATIC SPRAY

Bordeaux Mixture or Lime Sulphur Favored.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Apple blotch, a destructive fungous disease attacking many of the leading varieties of apples, may be controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture or lime-sulphur solution, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Trees of susceptible varieties, unless systematically sprayed, are frequently killed by repeated attacks by the blotch on twigs and leaves, and nursery stock is often seriously damaged, says the department.
The disease, which is most severe in southern and middle-western orchards, was given the name "blotch" because it describes the characteristic spots appearing upon the fruit. As the disease progresses there is a running together of several spots and a change in color to a deep brown or black. A cracking of the fruit, usually in three directions from a central point, is very common. Small, nearly white spots and dark, sunken, oval areas appear on the leaves, but only under extremely favorable conditions does blotch become a serious foliage disease.

Thorough sprinkling of thick, bushy trees is difficult or impossible, and these should be pruned before treatment. The spray is most beneficial when applied as a fine mist rather than a coarse stream. The latter is likely to injure both fruit and foliage, especially in the spring. Where blotch is only a minor disease the department recommends the use of lime-sulphur solution diluted at the rate of 1 1/2 gallons to 50 gallons of water. However, if a fruit loss of more than 10 per cent has been caused by blotch during the previous year, the application of bordeaux mixture is advisable.

Farmers' Bulletin 1470-F, "Apple Blotch," just issued, contains much valuable information relative to the nature, economic importance and treatment of this disease. A copy of the publication may be had free, while the supply lasts, upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Young pigs will start to eat at an early age if they are allowed access to a self-feeder with corn, shorts and tankage.

MONTHLY REPORT K. T. A.

Pastures for the month of June have been very good and weather conditions fair for the producing cows, as we have had but few excessively hot days. Some farmers have fed grain the past month and others intend to feed in July. Many farmers have found out by actual experience that it pays to feed grain on pasture. Feeding grain on pasture brings up the cost of producing 100 pounds of milk in the summer, but reduces the cost in the winter and for the entire year.

High herds for the month of June are as follows: First—And. Rodenkirch, 19 cows, Gr. and Reg. Holsteins, average 1242 pounds milk, 3.73% fat, 56.5 pounds fat. Second—Carl Atrig, 17 cows, Gr. and Reg. Holsteins, average 1066 pounds milk, 4% fat, 42.7 pounds fat. Third—Wilmer Probst, 14 cows, Gr. Holsteins, average 1102 lbs. milk, 3.6% fat, 39.8 pounds fat. 4th—Herman Weiland, 11 cows, Gr. Holsteins, average 1212 pounds milk, 3.25% fat, 39.5 pounds fat. Fifth—H. F. Pieper, 12 cows, Reg. Holsteins, average 1097 pounds milk, 3.62% fat, 39.5 pounds fat. Felix Bros., Joe Schoofs, Christ Schoofs, Conrad Bier and Wm. Grubbe respectively high cows.

Joe Schoofs had high cow, a grade Holstein, producing 1929 pounds of milk with 4.8% test and 92.6 pounds of butter fat for the month. Second—a cow from the herd of Wilmer Probst, a grade Holstein, produced 189 pounds of milk, 4.7% fat and 79.4 lbs. butter fat. Third—a cow of And. Rodenkirch, grade Holstein, produced 1605 pounds of milk, 4.4% fat and 70.6 pounds butter fat. Fourth—another cow of And. Rodenkirch, grade Holstein produced 1794 pounds of milk, 3.9% fat and 70.0 pounds butter fat, this cow was high last month with 87.9 pounds butter fat. Fifth—a pure bred 2-year-old Holstein of Otto Dickman, produced 1329 pounds of milk with a 5.1% fat test, and 66.5 pounds of butter fat. There were 443 cows for the month of June 139 of these producing 40 pounds of fat or more. These cows produced 459,664 pounds of milk and 16,197 pounds of butter fat with an average test of 3.28% fat.

Note—The two high cows were registered.

Our Gain

Our profit on a bale of binder twine doesn't amount to much—in fact, it is probably considerably smaller than any other merchant would accept on any sale of equal volume. Of course, there are some brands of twine on which we'd make more money than we do on Deering—but our ultimate gain wouldn't be as much.

No, we don't make much profit on a bale of Deering twine although it sells for just a trifle more than some other twines. But we do gain considerably by supplying our customers with this reliable high-quality product because of the greater satisfaction it gives the user.

It means a good deal to us to have your good will. That's why we prefer to sell you good binders and good twine to go with them, because no binder will work satisfactorily with inferior, poorly spun twine. You are safeguarded against length shortages, poor tying and breakage, when you use

U. S. BILLS FOR '27 REACH $4,409,377,454

Appropriations Are Increased $273,603,305 Over Fiscal Year Just Closed.

Washington—Appropriations of the recent session of congress, excluding those for the postal service, showed an increase of $273,603,305.34 over those of last year, according to official compilations made public by members of the house and senate appropriations committees.

If postal appropriations, which have been considerably increased by reason of the advance in salaries of employees, are included, the aggregate increase of the total is $470,896,091.15.

That the increase was unavoidable and was in accord with the economy policies of the administration was asserted in statements issued by Representative Madden (Rep., Ill.), chairman of the house appropriations committee, and by Senator Warren (Rep., Wyo.), chairman of the senate appropriations committee.

The amount appropriated in the recent sessions, in all bills, for the fiscal year 1927 and for prior years and including the permanent and indefinite appropriations was $4,409,377,454.15. The corresponding total of a year ago was $3,838,490,773. Eliminating postal expenditures, which are financed out of postal receipts, the total this year was $3,567,054,548.23 compared with $3,293,451,237.80 last year. The amount appropriated for the postal service totaled $197,283,375.51 over last year's total of $345,039,535.11.

Despite the fact that revenues from increased postal rates have not quite been up to expectations it is asserted by Representatives Madden that the deficit in postal revenues for the fiscal year 1927 should not exceed $10,000,000, as compared with $25,000,000 for the fiscal year 1926 and $50,000,000 for the fiscal year 1925.

Of the $273,603,305.34 increase in general appropriations, the sum of $178,515,000 is attributed to expenditures for war veterans. This includes $130,000,000 for the soldiers' bonus insurance certificate fund and other amounts for the construction of new hospitals and enlargement of existing facilities of the veterans' bureau, as well as additional sums necessary for military and naval compensation.

The total appropriations were $6,802,000 less than total budget estimates, indicating, according to Representative Madden and Senator Warren, that congress was actually disposed to be more economical than the budget bureau.

To Investigate Motor Bus and Truck Business

Washington—More than 80,000 owners of motor-truck fleets will be represented directly or indirectly at the hearings of the interstate commerce commission which will hold throughout the country in July, August and September in its investigation of the operation of motor busses and trucks with relation to the operation of railroads.

The investigation of the commission, which will be made the basis for legislative recommendations to congress for regulation of motor busses and motor trucks operating as common carriers in interstate commerce, is welcomed by the motor-truck owners, according to A. J. Brosseau, chairman of the motor-vehicle committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

17 BODIES REMOVED; EIGHTEEN MISSING

Unable to Identify Victims of Arsenal Explosion.

Dover, N. J.—The bodies of seventeen men, recovered from the blackened and still exploding area of the navy ammunition depot in Lake Denmark, N. J., were taken to the morgue of the Brooklyn navy hospital. There they were placed beside the bodies of the unidentified dead of the submarines S-51.

Eighteen men are still listed as missing, four of them civilian employees at the naval depot. Only one of the seventeen bodies was identified officially, that of Henry C. Brown, pharmacist's mate. Unofficially it was said that another body was that of a marine, named Hardecke. The body of Capt. George W. Bott, Jr., U. S. A., was sent to his home in Richmond, Va. The body of Mrs. Frances Feeney of Brooklyn, another known victim, has been turned over to her family.

When the patrols of officers, surgeons and enlisted men, crawling among the smoking ruins of the navy depot had recovered the last fragment of the seventeenth body, they were recalled, as a shift in the wind had driven the flames, feeding on heaps of black powder, debris from the explosions and charred underbrush, to one of the fourteen magazines remaining intact at the northerly end of the naval reservation.

The search for bodies is still in progress. Finger-print experts of the Navy department and the marine corps from Washington are in Dover to assist in identifying the dead. Government explosive experts are on the scene of the catastrophe to endeavor to ascertain the cause of the explosions and to obtain data which may enable the government to take additional precautions at other storehouses of explosives and powders.

T. K. Buchanan, in charge of Red Cross activities at Dover, reported to Washington that the number of civilians affected was estimated at from 1,000 to 3,000. He gave the number of persons known to be under treatment for injuries as eighty-six.

18 BODIES REMOVED FROM HULK OF S-51

Remains Have Been Identified at Naval Hospital; Several Still Missing.

New York.—The sealed death chambers of the sunken S-51 were burned open with acetylene torches.

Tight-tipped naval officers with oxygen masks went in and came out pale after viewing what had happened on the night of September 25, 1925. They found eighteen bodies and all have been identified.

The hopeless fight of the men as the air gave out and the water rushed in through a fifteen-foot gash in the port bow was revealed after nine months when the first rescue party penetrated her hull at the Brooklyn Navy yard.

Four bodies were found in the battery room. These men were apparently asleep in their bunks when the crew of the City of Rome cut through the side of the S-51.

Six more were found in the forward torpedo compartment.

Seven others were in the motor-control room.

The body of Lieut. Frederick D. Foster, in charge of the watch, was found wedged above the port Diesel engine, one hand reaching for the control valve.

The body of Ensign Edward Webster Egbert was found in the forward part of the motor room hanging by the knees.

Identification at the Brooklyn Navy hospital was speedy.

Teeth, tattoo marks and bits of clothing facilitated the work. Among those identified were:

Lieut. Frederick D. Foster of Nutley, N. J.; Ensign Edward Webster Egbert of Annapolis; First Class Seaman John Joseph McCarthy, New York City; First Class Fireman Charles Carrel; Thomas of El Paso, Texas; First Class Steward, Man Robert Holland; Dick Elder of Columbus, Ohio; Third Class Fireman Frank Lester Mims of Augusta, Ga.; Wardroom Cook George Henry Martin of Philadelphia; Chief Torpedoman Valentine Nilsson of Newport, R. I.; First Class Engine Room Allen Clifford Earle of Gloucester, Mass.; Machinist's Mate James Franklin Pierce; First Class Torpedoman Stephen Hartley Triffitt.

The final roll call accounted for all of the crew of thirty-six except seven.

Navy officials believe no trace of these may ever be found.

Three of the seven missing men were officers, among them Lieut. R. H. Dobson, commander of the S-51, who was last seen on the bridge as the vessel sank.

Others unaccounted for are Lieut. Harlow M. Pine, Lieut. T. A. Glass, Walter E. Layton, electrician's mate; Oscar J. Miller, fireman; Ralph E. Caskey, gunner's mate, and Brady D. Lindsay, engine room.

RADIO

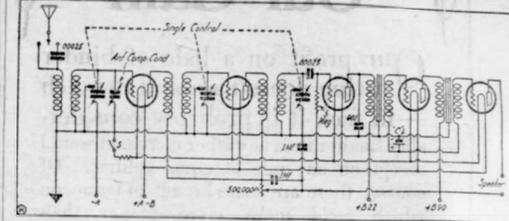

Diagram of Five-Tube, One-Control Radio-Frequency Set, Which Employs Two Stages of R. F. With Positive Control of Oscillations.

By JAMES E. CARTER
In the New York Herald-Tribune. The radio-buying public has reached certain definite conclusions about what makes up a good radio receiver. These conclusions, in practical form, are embodied in most really successful manufactured sets of today. Some receivers have greater perfection than others. Some are of better design and construction. A few are outstanding in achievement.

A good set, first of all, whether it be home-made or factory-built, must be of correct design. The home constructor who is contemplating the building of a receiving set is naturally desirous of obtaining the utmost in the way of performance and is keenly alert to improvements in the successful manufactured set.

The first point of importance to the home set builder will be the type of circuit to use. It is needless to say that the day of the regenerative tickler feedback type of receiver before the detector is over.

There remains the straight radio-frequency circuit, with positive controlled oscillation, which is probably the easiest all-around highly efficient circuit to construct.

Volume and Distance.
For the set builder who is situated fifty or more miles from a broadcast station two stages of tuned radio-frequency amplification, followed by a detector and two or three stages of audio amplification, will give ample satisfaction in the way of volume and distance.

Where the user is located within 50 miles of a strong broadcasting station three stages of tuned radio-frequency amplification is necessary to work distant stations as near as 20 kilocycles either above or below the near-by station.

In the accompanying diagram the five-tube radio receiver to be described in this article is shown. This set employs two stages of transformer coupled tuned radio-frequency amplification, a non-regenerative detector and two stages of transformer coupled audio-frequency amplification.

An examination of this diagram will show that there is nothing unusual in the wiring of the circuit, the chief point of interest being the way in which one-control tuning is accomplished. A triple condenser is used to tune the secondary coils of the three radio-frequency transformers, all of which are identical in construction, and a small adjustable fixed compensating capacity is connected in shunt with each of the three units of the condenser to compensate for the variation in the capacity of the wiring of each of the circuits. Also a variable antenna compensating condenser is connected in shunt with the unit of the condenser tuning the secondary of the antenna coupler.

This has been found necessary to make possible efficient operation with any type of antenna. Another feature which makes the set more flexible is the small fixed condenser, which may be placed in series with the antenna. When this condenser is in use the receiver is more selective and may be operated from a large antenna without experiencing interference.

The Parts Needed.
The following is a list of apparatus actually employed in the construction of this receiver:

- One three-gang Perlez condenser (each section .0003 mfd.).
- Three radio-frequency transformers matched for use with the condenser (Perlez or home-made).
- Two Thorndarson audio-frequency transformers.
- One Hammarlund compensating condenser (.50 mfd.).
- One 500,000-ohm Centralab variable resistance.
- One Centralab modulator (optional).
- Five Benjamin sockets.
- Two Dubilier .0025 mfd. fixed condensers.
- One Dubilier .001 mfd. fixed condenser.
- Two Dubilier 1 mfd. fixed condensers.
- One 5 meg. Durham grid leak.
- One 6-ohm rheostat.
- One Carter battery switch.
- Eleven Eby binding posts.
- One panel 19 1/2 x 23 1/2 inches.
- Two panels 3 1/2 x 23 1/2 inches.
- One baseboard 23 1/2 x 15 inches.

The method employed to control the volume of this receiver eliminates the necessity of connecting jacks in the output of each stage of amplification through the use of a good condenser for tuning the loop.

Incidentally, it is very seldom possible to obtain a perfect fit between the jack contacts and the plug, resulting in a poor contact at a point where a firm contact is highly desirable. Furthermore, after a certain period of use the contacts of the jacks become oxidized, thus greatly increasing the resistance and the losses in the circuits. In audio circuits these losses may be imperceptible, but in radio-frequency circuits they may be quite noticeable. Hence if you have a jack and plug arrangement for your loop, remove these from the circuit and employ them somewhere in an audio-frequency circuit.

Binding posts are better for making contacts and they should be used, although they are not so convenient as a plug and jack for making loop substitutions.

Chapter XII—Continued

He mumbled that fact over and over in his stupidly, thickly, as though his mind could grasp anything beyond it. He was dead, and Pierrot was dead. In a few minutes, had accomplished it all.

He turned back toward the cabin—by the trail over which he had passed Nepeese, but straight through thick bushes. Great flakes of snow began to fall. He looked at the where-banks of dark clouds were falling up from the south and east. The sun went out. Soon there would be a storm, a heavy snowstorm.

The big flakes falling on his naked hands and feet, he tried to work. It was lucky for him, this storm. It would cover everything—the fresh trails, even the grave he would dig for Pierrot.

It does not take such a man as a factor long to recover from a moral depression. By the time he came in sight of the cabin his mind was again working on physical things—on the necessities of the situation. The appalling thing, after all, was not that both Pierrot and Nepeese were dead, but that his dream was shattered. It was not that Nepeese was dead, but that he had lost her. This was his central disappointment. The other thing—his crime—was easy to cover.

It was not sentiment that made him dig Pierrot's grave close to the prisoner's mother's under the tall spruce. It was not sentiment that made him dig the grave at all, but caution. He had turned Pierrot's stock of kerosene where it would be most effective and touched a match to it. He stood in the edge of the forest until the cabin was a mass of flames. The snow was falling thickly. The freshly made grave was a white mound, and the trails were filling. For the physical things he had done there was no fear in Bush McTaggart's heart as he turned back toward Lac Bain. No one would ever look into the grave of Pierrot in the forest. And there was no one to betray him if such a misdeed happened. But of one thing his black soul would never be able to free itself. Always he would see the pale, triumphant face of the Willow as she stood facing him in that moment of her glory when, even as she was choosing death rather than him, he had cried to himself: "Ah! Is she not wonderful!"

As Bush McTaggart had forgotten Baree, so Baree had forgotten the Factor from Lac Bain. When McTaggart had run along the edge of the chasm, Baree had squatted himself in the foot-heated plot of snow where Nepeese had last stood, his body stiffened and his forehead braced as he looked down. He had seen her take the leap. Many times that summer he had followed her in her daring dives into the deep, quiet water of the pool. But this was a tremendous distance. She had never dived into a place like that.

He could see the black heads of the rocks, appearing and disappearing in the whirling foam like the heads of monsters at play; the roar of the water filled him with dread; his eyes caught the soft rags of crumpled ice between the rock walls. And she had gone down there!

He had a great desire to follow her, to jump in, as he had always jumped in after her. She was surely down there, even though he could not see her. Probably she was playing among the rocks and hiding herself in the white foam and wondering why he didn't come. But he hesitated—hesitated with his head and neck over the abyss, and his forehead giving way a little in the snow. With an effort he dragged himself back and whined. He barked—the short, sharp signal with which he always called her. There was no answer. Again and again he barked, and always there was nothing but the roar of the water that came back to him.

The snow was falling now, and McTaggart had returned to the cabin after a little Baree followed in the trail he had made along the edge of the chasm, and wherever McTaggart had stopped to peer over, Baree paused also. For a space his bare feet of the man was turned up in his desire to help the Willow, and he continued along the gorge until, a quarter of a mile beyond where the Factor had last looked into it, he came to the narrow trail down which he and Nepeese had many times adventured in quest of rock-violets. The twisting path that led down the face of the cliff was filled with snow now, but Baree cleared his way through it until at last he stood at the edge of the unfrozen torrent. Nepeese was not here. He whined, and barked again, but this time there was in his signal to her an uneasy repression, a whimpering note which told that he did not expect a reply. For five minutes after that he sat in his haunches in the snow, waiting for a rock. What it was that came down out of the dark mystery and tumult of the chasm to him, what spirit-whisper of nature that told him the truth, it is beyond the power of reason to explain. But he listened, and he looked; and his muscles twitched as the truth grew in him; and at last he raised his head slowly until his black muzzle pointed to the white storm in the sky, and out of his throat there went forth the answering, long-drawn howl of the lonely who mourns outside the tepee of a master who is newly dead.

On the trail, heading for Lac Bain, Bush McTaggart heard that cry and whined.

It was the smell of smoke, thickening in the air until it stung his nostrils, that drew Baree at last away from the chasm and back to the cabin. There was not much left when he came to the clearing. Where the cabin had been was a red-hot, smoldering mass. For a long time he sat watching it, still waiting and still listening. He no longer felt the effect of the bullet that had stunned him, but his senses were undergoing another change now, as strange and unreal as their struggle against that darkness of near-death in the cabin. In a space that had not covered more than an hour the world had twisted itself grotesquely for Baree. That long ago, the Willow was sitting before her little altar in the cabin, talking to him and laughing in her happiness, while he lay in vast contentment on the floor. And now there was no cabin, no Nepeese, no Pierrot. He did not go nearer to the smoldering mass of the cabin, but slinking low, made his way about the circle of the open to the log-coral. This took him under the tall spruce. For a full minute he paused here, sniffing at the freshly made mound under its white mantle of snow. When he went on, he slunk still lower, and his ears were flat against his head.

The dog-coral was open and empty. McTaggart had seen to that. Again Baree squatted back on his haunches and sent forth the death-howl. This time it was for Pierrot. In it there was a different note from that of the howl he had sent forth from the chasm; it was positive, certain. In the chasm his cry had been tempered with doubt—a questioning hope, something that was so almost human that McTaggart had shivered on the trail. But Baree knew what lay in that freshly dug snow-covered grave. A scent three feet of earth could not hide its secret from him. There was death—definite and unequivocal. But for Nepeese he was still hoping and seeking.

Until noon he did not go far from the cabin, but only once did he actually approach and sniff about the black pile of steaming timbers. Again and again he circled the edge of the clearing, keeping just within the bush and timber, sniffing the air and listening. Twice he went back to the chasm. Late in the afternoon there came to him a sudden impulse that carried him swiftly through the forest. He did not run openly now; caution, suspicion and fear had roused in him fresh the instincts of the wolf. With his ears drooping and the side of his head, he dragged the snow and his back sagging in the curtains, evasive gait of the wolf, he scarcely made himself distinguishable from the shadows of the spruce and balsams.

There was no faltering in the trail Baree made; it was straight as a rope might have been drawn through the forest, and it brought him, early in the dusk, to the open spot where Nepeese had fled with him that day she had pushed McTaggart over the edge of the precipice into the pool. In the place of the balsam shelter of that day, there was now a water-tight birch bark tepee which Pierrot had helped the Willow to make during the summer. Baree went straight to it and thrust in his head with a low and expectant whine.

There was no answer. It was dark and cold in the tepee. He could make out indistinctly the two blankets that were always in it, the row of big tin boxes in which Nepeese kept their stores, and the stove which Pierrot had improvised out of scraps of iron and heavy tin. But Nepeese was not there. And there was no sign of her outside. The snow was unbroken except by his own trail. It was dark when he returned to the burned cabin. All that night he hung about the deserted dog-coral, and all through the night the snow fell steadily, so that by dawn he sank into it to his shoulders when he moved out into the clearing.

With day the sky had cleared. The sun came up, and the world was almost too dazzling for the eyes. It warmed Baree's blood with new hope and expectation. His brain struggled even more eagerly than yesterday to comprehend. Surely the Willow would be returning soon! He would hear her voice. She would appear suddenly out of the forest. He would receive some signal from her. One of those things, or all of them, must happen. He stopped sharply in his tracks at every sound, and sniffed the air from every point of the wind. He was traveling ceaselessly.

His body made deep trails in the snow around and over the huge white mound where the cabin had stood; his tracks led from the coral to the tall spruce, and they were as numerous as the footprints of a wolf-pack for half a mile up and down the chasm.

On the afternoon of this day the second big impulse came to him. It was not reason, and neither was it instinct alone. It was the struggle half-way between, the brute mind fighting at its best with the mystery of an intangible thing—something that could not be seen by the eye or heard by the ear. Nepeese was not in the cabin, because there was no cabin. She was not at the tepee. He could find no trace of her in the chasm. She was not with Pierrot under the big spruce.

Therefore, unreasoning but sure, he began to follow the old trap-line into the north and west.

No man has ever looked clearly into the mystery of death as it is impinged upon the senses of the northern dog. It comes to him, sometimes, with the wind; most frequently it must come with the wind, and yet there are ten thousand masters in the northland who will swear that their dogs have given warning of death hours before it actually came; and there are many of these thousands who know from experience that their teams will stop a quarter of a mile from a stranger cabin in which there is unburied dead.

Yesterday Baree had smelled death, and he knew without process of reasoning that the dead was Pierrot. How he knew this, and why he accepted the fact as inevitable, is one of the mysteries which at times seems to give the direct challenge to those who concede nothing more than instinct to the brute mind. He knew that Pierrot was dead without exactly knowing what death was. But of one thing he was sure: he would never see Pierrot again; he would never hear his voice again; he would never hear again the swish-swish-swish of his snowshoes in the trail ahead, and so on the trap-line he did not look for Pierrot. Pierrot was gone forever. But Baree had not yet associated death with Nepeese.

He believed that Nepeese was alive, and he was now just as sure that he would overtake her on the trap-line as he was positive yesterday that he would find her at the birch-bark tepee.

Since yesterday morning's breakfast with the Willow, Baree had gone without eating; to appease his hunger meant to hunt, and his mind was too filled with his quest of Nepeese for that. He would have gone hungry all that day, but in the third mile from the cabin he came to a trap in which there was a big snowshoe rabbit.

The rabbit was still alive, and he killed it and ate his fill. Until dark he did not miss a trap. In one of them there was a lynx; in another a fisher-cat; out on the white surface of a lake he sniffed at a snowy mound under which lay the body of a red fox killed by one of Pierrot's poison baits. Both the lynx and the fisher-cat were alive, and the steel chains of their traps clanked sharply as they prepared to give Baree battle. But Baree was uninterested. He hurried on, his uneasiness growing as the day darkened and he found no sign of the Willow.

Ancient Methods of Heating and Lighting

The time when man's curiosity and courage first enabled him to investigate the phenomena of fire was certainly not less than 35,000 years ago. It probably happened in Europe during the Glacial age.

One of the earliest methods was by twirling a pointed stick in a hole in dry wood, leading to the hearth fire. This was followed by the shell lamp—a shell filled with animal fats or fish oil, with grass or moss as the wick.

The oldest bronze lamp known was found in Cyprus, and is probably 4,000 years old. In Homer's Odyssey the use of three braziers in the palace to give light is mentioned—a method made possible by the fact that roofs were commonly open in those days.

Coming to more recent times, the cresset, a species of cage filled with old rope smeared with pitch, was in use.

Candles were first introduced by the Phoenicians about 1000 years B. C., after which they became the regular indoor illuminant. About 400 B. C. Europe in all the chief countries of Europe were displaced by oil lamps of clay and bronze and did not return to common use for a thousand years.

The first friction match (the lucifer) was not invented until 1827, and a box of fifty cost half a crown (60 cents). The introduction of the Swedish safety match dates to about fifty years ago.—London Times.

Men of Great Strength

It is difficult to compare strong men. Each has his own special tests, at which he is superior to the rest.

A recent newspaper article stated that unquestionably the strongest man of modern times was Louis Cyr of Canada, who was considerably stronger than Sandow. Breitbar, who died in October, 1925, is said to have come nearer emulating Sandow than any of the latter's many imitators. Certain strong men excelled Sandow in specific feats. For instance, Arthur Saxon was the best lifter of weights ever produced. Steinbach, Inch, Ashton, Travis, Roland and Lurch each had some unusual performance to his credit.

SUMMER AFTERNOON GOWNS; NEW LINGERIE IS COLORFUL

EVERY once or twice in a while—and much oftener now than in the good old days of yore—a real artist in clothes appears and shows us what takes an artist to select those style notes; that, when they are put together, will produce a perfect harmony. Among the many details that add interest to styles, he knows which he may use, where to begin and where to leave off, when he assembles a new model, and how to give it a touch or so of his own.

An afternoon gown that sums up the modes of today with consummate skill, is pictured here. It is made of color range runs through peach, green, rose, lavender and yellow and a feature of the season is the combination of two colors in one garment.

In fabrics crepe de chine continues to hold the lead in silks and fine, firmly woven voiles in cottons; but other thin silks are well represented and voile has rivals in fine batiste and mullinook. Undergarments reach the limit of sheerness in georgette and voile, which are used in both plain and printed varieties and afford a chance for the generous use of plaits.

Voile is a sturdy material and even georgette is less fragile than it looks. Besides the sheer beauty of flat crepe, in the color called sun-rose, and has a vest and lower sleeve sections of white georgette with a graceful jabot to break the severity of simple lines. Plaited godets, pointed at the hemline, are inserted in the front, back and sides of the skirt. The straight collar is extended into long ties—and these ends are the end of a story as delightful as any told by the season's modes. This model is adapted to any of the fashionable soft fabrics in plain colors.

Very flattering afternoon gowns are naturally also very popular. These are georgette or chiffon models in flowered patterns, worn over crepe de chine slips. They do not need elaboration, since the fabrics themselves are so decorative, but they are made interesting and varied by little details of finish, as flared apron fronts, in lace-trimmed lingerie, fllet, val, and net and net are used in edgings, jabots, scarf collars, cuff tabs, tiered skirts, vestees and cap attachments. Reversing the order of printed chiffon over plain slips, are gowns of printed silk veiled with long tunic of plain chiffon or georgette. Both plain and printed patterns in sheer fabrics are made up with delicate lace flouncings, and black lace, over black or flesh-colored foundations, is featured among the gossamer gowns for summer afternoons.

Daintiness in design, delicate colors and sheerness of fabrics, are characteristics of lingerie, whatever the type or style it belongs to this season. Color is the factor of outstanding importance. It seems, since all-white has been supplanted in popular favor by pastel shades in silk and in sheer fine cotton materials. Beginning with pale pink the inserts and medallions. The more elaborate gowns have lace yokes extended into semi-sleeves over the shoulders, lace pockets and lace hemlines and are made of crepe de chine. Chemises of this material or of voile or georgette are shown with long molded bodices and short plaited skirts. Lace handling finishes the top and bottom and joins the bodice and skirt. Along with the return of handmade lingerie comes the high-necked and long-sleeved gown once more. These are made of cambric and mullinook for the most part, but crepe de chine and albatross are also used and much attention is given to graceful designing and to the use of net, tulle and Irish lace in their decoration.

Week-End Sets in Color
Week-end sets consisting of suit-case, hat box and zipper bag come in leather in colors to match the costume.

An Attractive Scarf
An evening scarf with a touch of originality is not more than a foot wide at the throat but, with the aid of deeply plaited insets at either end becomes, when they are shown back, wide enough to serve as a shawl. These scarves come in a variety of colors. Put in most of them the insets are of a contrasting color or figured crepe.

Coat Frock of Purple
A striking costume is a kasha coat frock of purple with bodice rather fitted, skirt full, with tiny revers of white broadcloth, and ecclesiastical embroidery of gold and silver on the collar, front and pockets as well as the snug lower section of the full leg-of-mutton sleeves.

The KITCHEN CABINET

The highest duty of the state is to legislate and administer as to make good homes, for it is only a larger home, and for the same reason that the state exists.—Eileen Richards.

SEASONABLE FOODS

There is probably no meal of the day where dainty service and pretty dishes are more appreciated than at the morning meal. We hear much about starting the day right and it is very important.

A hurried breakfast over an untidy table may be the cause of many of the unhappy experiences of life. Start the day right with a neat table, well-cooked food and a cheerful smile. Fruit is the first dish which appeals to most in the morning. Whenever possible fresh green foliage of the fruit itself is the prettiest garnish. After the fruit comes the morning cereal. As there are already hundreds of them to cook or serve uncooked, variety is always present. The whole wheat as it comes from the granary is an ideal breakfast food for all ages. Wash it well and soak overnight, then cook all day or until every grain is burst and covered with the gelatinous center of the grain. Serve with top milk or cream. A quantity cooked at once will keep for several days if kept in a cold place.

Fried Chicken, Southern Style.—Join a fat young chicken, dredge with flour, salt and pepper and place on a platter. In a deep frying pan fry out a half-pound of bacon, add one cupful of lard and when smoking hot lay in the chicken; turn when brown, giving the thicker pieces longer time to cook. Place on a hot platter and garnish with water cross.

Breakfast Muffins.—Beat one egg, add one-half cupful of milk, flour with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder to make a soft batter, then add two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and pour into well-greased muffin tins to bake in a moderate oven.

Blueberry Cake.—Cream a tablespoonful of butter, add one cupful of sugar and when well blended add two well-beaten eggs. Beat five minutes, add a teaspoonful of vanilla, a few grainings of nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, sifted with two cupfuls of flour; add a pint of well-floured blueberries and bake in a loaf or in muffin pans.

Put thinly sliced cake together with jelly or preserves and serve with a custard sauce or whipped cream for dessert.

Good Food for Company.
We all enjoy giving our friends something unusual and attractive when entertaining them. A dish which may be doubled to serve a large number is:

Chicken Warmerin.
Clean and cook a large chicken in plenty of broth, adding one small onion, removing it when the chicken is done. Take out the chicken and cut all meat from the bones, reserving it in a double boiler where it will keep hot. In the broth cook two bunches or more of celery cut into inch pieces; these when tender are removed and noodles added to cook in the broth. Keep all the food hot over water and serve a nest of noodles on a hot plate, then a spoonful or more of the cooked celery and top the dish with chicken. If any of the broth is left it may be prepared with flour and served as gravy. Seasoning is very important in this dish as it is in all food.

Canterbury Chicken.—Cook together three and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter with one tablespoonful of finely chopped onion, add one tablespoonful of cornstarch when the onion is yellow, pour over one and one-half cupfuls of chicken stock. Bring to the boiling point and simmer for ten minutes, add one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of paprika and one and one-half cupfuls of cooked chopped chicken. Serve very hot on toast.

Ham With Cider.—Have a thick center cut of ham at least two inches thick. Lay it in a frying pan and quickly sear on both sides. Add a cupful of sweet cider, one tablespoonful of minced parsley and let it simmer for an hour on the back part of the stove or in the oven. Serve with a sauce poured around the ham and garnish with parsley.

Frozen Boston Pudding.—Grate one-half pound of day-old Boston brown bread, pour over it a pint of cream, boiling hot, let stand until cool. Prepare a rich custard, using a pint of milk, three eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Cook until the custard clings to the spoon. Chill and freeze as usual. Serve garnished with grated macaroon crumbs or with the molded pudding on a platter garnished with a border of whole macaroons.

Canned fruits, jellies, jams and relishes of various kinds are usually well provided in most homes. With good milk and a can of asparagus one may have cream of asparagus soup in ten minutes or less. Cream potato soup is another delicious cream soup to serve.

ORGANIZATIONS AND MOTHERS BOTH AGREE

Health of School Girls Important

The Girl Scouts and Camp Fire Girls are two national organizations, working side by side in the cause of health, happy, intelligent womanhood; training the minds of eager girls for greater service, training their bodies for the destiny that shall be theirs.

Althorpe to them! Wise mothers like Mrs. Alice Louthan urge their daughters in their early teens to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Louthan says—"I gave my fifteen-year old girl Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it did her a wonderful lot of good. She was out of school for four months. I read the advertisements of the Vegetable Compound, and since she has taken it she has improved and has gone back to school. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to other mothers with girls who are not as strong as they should be."—Mrs. ALICE LOUTHAN, Route 2, Charleston, Illinois.

Some girls in the fourth generation are now relying on Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"SINFUL EMIL"

OR
"WHAT PRICE PASSION"
[By Oswald P. Arrowroot]

Published by Courtesy of THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL

Emil Patrick Kuchenbeiser, 21 bids farewell to his old father, Amos; makes a solemn promise to Emma Hemstitch the hired girl, and leaves the ancestral farm near Kewaskum to come to Milwaukee to win fame and fortune. Following an adventure with a beautiful blonde, he gets a job with Seekem & Soakem, prominent ambulance chasers. While working for them he twice meets the blonde under strange circumstances, and worry over this causes him to lose his job. He is standing on the Wells at bridge, his mind filled with dark thoughts, when a hand is placed on his shoulder and he turns to face Chief Jacob Lauenheimer, who announces that he wants the youth.

Chapter X

Emil stood aghast—dumbfounded! The suddenness with which the chief had touched him and the sinister words, "I want you!" have struck terror to stouter hearts than that of our hero and that he stood with sagging jaw, unable to speak, is not surprising.

"Come along—come up to the hill," repeated the chief. "You and I are going to have a little talk!"

Still speechless with fright, Emil turned mechanically and walked up the street with the chief. The chief himself apparently was preoccupied with thoughts of his own, and as he vouchsafed no immediate explanation of his purpose Emil did not question him. Instead a hundred despairing thoughts flashed through his mind. Should he make a dash for liberty? Perhaps it would be best to jump in the river! The chief kept no hold of the youth, apparently trusting him to follow and it was this fact that brought a return of courage.

He was conscious of no wrongdoing. It was this sustaining thought, coupled with the realization that no Kuchenbeiser was ever a crook and that the family name has never been tarnished, that fortified Emil for whatever was to come.

Much to the surprise of Emil but little attention was paid to him when he walked into the central station with the chief. A few sergeants and detectives, loitering about the entrance and in the hallway gave him a perfunctory glance and passed on about their business. On the stairway leading to the chief's office both paused while the chief answered questions put to him by a reporter, who for some reason was not playing cards today.

"Anything new in the big case?" Emil heard the reporter ask.

"Not a thing," replied the chief, his frown of worry deepening. "Nothing new today!"

"Got any clues?"
"Well," answered the chief slowly, evidently measuring his words, "we have a few clues, but whether they will pan out I cannot tell. We are working day and night and nothing is being left undone to apprehend the perpetrator of this dastardly outrage. You must remember that this crime is an entirely new one in police records. So far we are not in a position to make public a single bit of evidence."

Reporters crowded around the chief and eyed Emil closely, Emil swelled up—he did his best to appear nonchalant, to act as though he was a friend of the chief's, in for a friendly visit. During the entire interview visions of huge headlines in which the grand old name Kuchenbeiser was displayed for all to read, was before his eyes. However, the hounds of the press appeared satisfied and the chief motioned to Emil to precede him into the well appointed office.

Once inside a surprise awaited our hero. The chief, instead of becoming hostile, had no sooner dropped into his swivel chair than he leaned forward on his desk, his head supported by both hands—a picture of worry and dejection.

"This is driving me crazy!" the chief muttered. "I never heard of such a case before!"

"I'm sorry," said the sympathetic Emil.

"I hope so," said the chief, "for you are my last hope!"

"Me?" queried Emil, much puzzled.

"Yes, you!" answered the chief. "If you can't do this job, then we are lost. All of my regular men have failed! And it must be done! You have got to save us!"

"You mean me—Emil Kuchenbeiser," asked Emil, unable to believe his ears.

"I mean you—whatever your name is," retorted the chief. "I tell you that I am desperate. The whole administration is at stake. Unless this mystery is solved no one in Milwaukee will be safe."

"But how can I help?" demanded our hero.

"Listen" said the chief, impressively, "while I tell you a stranger story! (Hear, with Emil, the strange predicament of the chief and his men, as revealed in the next installment of this thrilling tale. What can it be? And will Emil be able to help?)

Good Milk Houses Insure Good Milk

This world must have farm products, especially milk. Milk produced in this section must be sold in competition with milk from everywhere else. To increase the demand for milk, the quality must be improved; to produce better quality, improved methods of handling must be adopted. To make these improvements means work and expense, which is not pleasant, but when returns are bigger and better then it will be pleasant. When the dairyman has his milk house handy with plenty of cold water keeping his milk in first-class condition he is co-operating with his market. The market demands first quality. Raise the standard of quality and the returns are bound to increase. Help build a reputation for quality, and success is certain.
