Remove Six Tons of Rough Fish From Moon Lake Refuge

Rid Lake of Carp

Milwaukee chapter, Izaak Walton league, is making progress in the development of its wild life refuge at Moon lake near Kewaskum, 55 miles north of Milwaukee.

Ornaments Improve Car's Appearance

Radiator ornaments are more than frills. By clever use of the proper article any car owner actually can improve the appearance of his car.

Seining of carp from Moon lake, the wild life refuge of the Milwaukee chapter, Izaak Walton league, was completed last week. It is reported that about six tons of carp were taken out, the seining was done by E. M. Stoddard, Oshkosh, a commercial fisherman, under the supervision of Paul J. Edwards, state game warden and Frank Hopkins, caretaker of the refuge.

According to the number of game fish that were netted, it shows that the lake is fairly well stocked with the same, as a large number of pickerel, northern pike, black bass and many croppies were found among the carp.

Ridding Moon lake of rough fish is the first step in preparing it for development as a part of the 1,000-acre wild life refuge which the Milwaukee Waltonians have bought. Taking the carp out of the lake will permit the game fish to multiply, as the carp disturb and destroy the spawn of other fish.

The lake is to be planted with wild rice and other food for ducks, geese and swan. These plants will not flourish where carp are plentiful.

Another year or two probably will be necessary before Moon lake becomes a stopping place for any great number of ducks and geese, although a substantial beginning has been made this season.

A number of wild mallard and Canada geese are kept at the lake as decoys, one wing being clipped so they cannot fly away. It is nothing unusual, Mr. Hopkins says, to find in the morning from one or two to a dozen wild mallard or other ducks among the tame ones.

Among the different varieties of ducks, beside the wood duck, which have been observed on the lake this fall are canvas backs, pintails, bluebills, teal and black mallard. Several loons spent some time on the lake.

The refuge also contains five coveys of wild partridge which were on the property when it was bought. About 50 pheasants have been raised and released, and an attempt is being made to stock the refuge with wild turkeys.

It is believed there are woodcock on the refuge, but this has not been definitely established.

No shooting or fishing will be allowed on the refuge but game will be allowed to overflow into the surrounding district where it can be shot in season. The Milwaukee river runs through Moon lake, so fish can escape from it and reach other lakes with which it is connected.

Portions of the refuge will be reforested and it will be kept in a wild, natural state. Trails will be made and the refuge will be opened to nature lovers and to school children for nature study, under necessary restrictions.

It is the intentions of the Waltonians to make Moon lake and the 1,000 acres surrounding it one of the famous wild life refuges of the country.

WILL HOLD A CHAIN OF PARTIES

The Kewaskum Woman's Club will start a chain of parties for the benefit of the Kewaskum Public Library.

The first party will be given during Library Week, Nov. 8 to Nov. 13, by a club member. All guests accepting an invitation to a party are expected to give a similar party. A fee of 25 cents will be charged each guest. Any number of invitations may be accepted but only one party need be given.

The purpose of these parties is to raise money for the library fund. The library is greatly in need of more books, especially for children, and the fund now being raised by the village board is not enough to cover the expense, because the price of books has advanced considerably. It is therefore hoped that all will offer a helping hand in boosting these parties.

SHIPPING DEER IS NOT ILLEGAL

Although no permission for such action was provided in the revised statutes of 1925, hunters may ship deer during the regular deer hunting season, according to a letter received by Isaac H. Boomer, Oshkosh, district conservation warden, from the state attorney general's office.

In reply to the game warden's query concerning a conflict in the statutes the following answer were forthcoming:

"After careful consideration and a review of the judicial authorities, the question is answered in the affirmative, the conclusion being that by the repeal of section 29.18, statutes of 1923 and the creation of a new section 29.18 changing the open season for deer as stated, section 29.45 was by implication correspondingly modified and that one deer may be transported by licensed hunters under the limitations and restrictions of the latter section and 11 o'clock p. m. of the thirtieth day of December in the year in which there is an open season."

Many hunters had been perplexed because of the inconsistency of the 1925 state legislature which revised the time of the open season for deer hunting, but failed to correspondingly revise the open season for deer shipments. This has now been cleared up by the ruling of the attorney general's office.

75 PAY ON INCOME OVER ONE MILLION

More Wealth During 1924 Than Any Year Since the World War Period.

Washington.—More persons had large incomes during 1924 than in any year since great fortunes were made in the war period.

Tax returns of 1925 for incomes of 1924, an analysis of the internal revenue made public by the treasury department, disclose that 75 persons had net incomes of more than $1,000,000. This was a greater number than any year since 1917, when 141 persons reported earnings in excess of $1,000,000. The record number was in 1916, when the total was 295; in 1918, 67 persons reported incomes above $1,000,000; in 1919, 65; in 1920, 33; in 1921, 21; in 1922, 67; and in 1923, 74. There were 5,715 persons with incomes in excess of $100,000 in 1924, as against 4,182 the previous year.

Of the 75 persons who earned more than $1,000,000 in 1924, 37 were in the class between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, 13 between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, 15 between $2,000,000 and $4,000,000, four between $4,000,000 and $6,000,000, three between $6,000,000 and $8,000,000 and three in excess of $8,000,000.

The three persons with net incomes above $5,000,000 reported an aggregate of $27,655,310. Their aggregate tax was $11,000,205, nearly 40 per cent of their net income being paid to the government.

While the treasury seeks to conceal the identity of individuals, tabulations of incomes by states disclose that of the three persons reporting net incomes above $5,000,000, two resided in Michigan and one in New York. Ford, Edsel, and John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Thirty-nine of the 75 persons with incomes above $1,000,000 resided in New York, 21 of them having incomes between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000, nine between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, two between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, one between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, and one above $5,000,000. The four New Yorkers had an aggregate net income of $27,592,968, and paid a total tax of $9,875,882. Michigan had four taxpayers with incomes above $1,000,000, their aggregate net income being $36,465,581, and their total tax $10,986,432.

Pennsylvania, where Secretary of the Treasury Mellon is reported to be the largest tax payer, had one person with an income between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, and six others with incomes in excess of $1,000,000.

Stevens Point—A divorce, the second this year to the same woman from the same man, has just been granted by Judge Byron R. Park in circuit court here. Mrs. Elsie Price, who lives near Iola, was granted a decree of separation from Arnold Price. They were divorced earlier this year, but afterward were reconciled, and on their application the decree was set aside. Mrs. Price charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

Ripon—Ripon college will award certificates of superior scholarship to Wisconsin high schools whose graduates do superior work as students at Ripon, according to an announcement by President Elias Evans. The plan, to be inaugurated in December, includes the stipulation that the certificates will remain the property of the honored high school only as long as its representatives at Ripon college maintain their high scholastic averages.

Rhineland—The National Playground association, which several months ago acquired the vast Dick tract in the vicinity of Boulder Junction, has secured an option on the entire holdings of the Brooks and Ross Lumber company in Vilas county. The project includes a large portion of Arthur Vane and Presque Isle townships. It is the intention of the association to convert the tract, which is one of the most beautiful in northern Wisconsin, into a recreational center and wild life refuge.

Ashland—What is believed to have been an attempt to wreck a train on the Omaha road near here failed when Charles Erickson, a farmer living near Ashland Junction, picked up a stick of dynamite, one end of which had been crushed by the wheels of a train about two miles south of the Junction. It was learned here. The explosive, according to Erickson, apparently had been placed on the rail and a passing train had run over part of it, narrowly missing the car. Railroad men said if the cap had been fired, the engine might have been blown from the track and the train sent hurtling down a 75-foot embankment.

Madison—The charges of fraudulent advertising against the University Cooperative Co., Inc., probably will be dropped, it was learned here. Dist. Atty. Philip La Follette, who conducted a John Doe hearing in the case, will recommend to Judge O. A. Stoen of superior court that no action be taken. The charges were preferred by a group of Madison business men who claim that the Co-op in its advertisements in the Daily Cardinal, university student newspaper, has claimed to be the "official university bookstore," and has implied that it is a part of the university. The other merchants claim this is unfair competition.

Madison—Building of too many gas-olene service stations was given as one of the causes of "high prices and profits" in the sale of gasoline during the last summer, in a statement by the Wisconsin department of markets here. The inequality of competitors was mentioned as a second cause.

Eau Claire—J. V. Young, district wire chief of the Wisconsin Telephone Co., has completed thirty years of service in the company's employ.

Birmingham, Ala.—Christian students have a right to "pet and attend" the Baptist students' conference here.

Greensburg, Pa.—Ten thousand mine workers in the Greensburg, Irwin and Upper Connelville fields have been granted an increase in wages, effective November 1.

LACK TRAINING IN LAW

OPPOSE LIMITATION OF ARMY RESERVES

United States' Hopes Wrecked by Latest League Powers' Joint Action.

Geneva.—Commercial fleets, trained reserves of armies, navies and air services, and war materials in reserve belong to "war potentials" and therefore are incapable of limitation or disarmament, according to an official declaration by nine delegations of the seventeen nations represented on the disarmament preparatory commission of the League of Nations, concluding their deliberations on naval questions.

The pronouncements place Italy, France, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Belgium, Japan, Yugo-Slavia and Argentina on record as opposing limitation of these obvious war factors.

The American delegation spokesmen do not conceal their pessimism over the final developments of the subcommittee's labors, and in the opinion of the Americans and other delegations, this last decision makes the incentive for calling a plenary disarmament conference virtually nil, since it represents the official view of a majority of the governments.

By unanimous approval the preparatory commission, after long discussions last summer, decided that war potentials were not limitable, because they included economic resources, man power and other factors impossible to limit. But the decision of the nine delegations that trained reserves, airmen and equipment being regularly used as disarmament and limitable.

While the French bloc, reinforced by Argentina and Japan, submitted the above declaration, the other delegations—Great Britain, the United States, Spain, Chile, Germany, Finland, Sweden and Holland—put forward the opposite viewpoint.

Both views will be included in the recommendations to the plenary preparatory committee, which is expected to meet in February or March.

The Americans regard the declaration of the French bloc as equivalent to limiting the scope of the future international conference so as to establish only the status quo of existing war forces.

The recommendations of the mixed committee, just concluding its Paris session, also seem unfavorable to the United States. The mixed committee's findings urge limitation on the basis of the war and navy budgets, which the American delegates say would work proportional injustice, since the American soldiers and sailors are highly paid. The French get five centimes a day, or less than one cent.

France Must Pay U. S. $435,000,000 by 1930. Paris—Before the end of 1929, France must pay the United States $435,000,000 on obligations other than war debts. This was revealed in a report issued by the Poincare financial commission, in which all payments to be made by the republic within the period indicated, are itemized.

Other creditors in addition to the United States include Great Britain, Switzerland and Uruguay. This year the latter country will receive 1,000,000 gold pesos and 300,000 in 1927 and 1928 each.

The French ambassador to Washington, M. Berenger, announced after the termination of a conference with Foreign Minister Briand and members of the cabinet that he would return to the United States shortly.

PASTOR FEARS PLOT IN TRIAL FOR LIFE

Rev. Frank Norris Demands Change of Venue.

Fort Worth, Texas.—Called to trial on a murder charge for slaying D. E. Chipps, wealthy lumberman, Dr. J. Frank Norris, Baptist pastor, demanded a change of venue.

The venue change is asked on the ground that "a combination" has been formed to obtain Norris' conviction.

The state denies there is any widespread prejudice against Norris and asserted there are thousands of high-minded citizens here who will render a fair verdict.

While on its technical side the case seems simply merely a decision as to whether Rev. Mr. Norris was justified by self-defense in shooting the unarmed man that came to him in his pastor's study, in its large aspect the trial is a struggle between this community and the Norris church, the First Baptist, said to have a membership of 12,000.

The trouble which resulted in the killing began several months ago when the city council and mayor proposed to purchase a Catholic school property to widen a street. Norris attacked this plan, alleging the price was too high, and at the same time raising the administration for trying to collect taxes on some of his own church property. A feud developed between Norris and Mayor H. C. Meacham, and the minister criticized the mayor's personal life.

Things grew hotter, and on July 17 Chipps, a friend of the mayor, started out to hunt up the minister. Chipps had been to the mayor's office before he called the minister on the phone and announced he was coming over. What happened between Chipps and the mayor will come out at the trial. The lumberman was known as a fighter, and according to Norris, threatened him over the phone and said he was coming to kill him unless he would take back what had been said about the mayor.

Chipps went up to the pastor's study. L. H. Nutt, one of the church deacons, was with the minister. The story is that Chipps said he would kill Norris and reached toward his hip pocket as if to draw a gun, when Norris shot him twice, above the belt.

Another version is that Chipps was killed on sight, in the afternoon. Carl Ginz, fourteen years old, was delivering a note to the pastor at the time, and made a statement that the shooting occurred outside the study.

"I'm sorry, but I had to do it in self-defense," the minister told the police when he was arrested. The police found no gun in the possession of Chipps.

The day after the killing Norris occupied his pulpit as usual, quoting the Bible in support of self-defense.

The sweetest lives are those to duty, sweet, Whose deeds, both great and small, Are close-knit strands of an unbroken thread, Where love entwines all.

DAINTY EATING

Jam spread an inch thick in a pretty glass dish and covered with a rice cream cheese makes a most delicious combination to serve with crackers and coffee for dessert.

Baltimore Pudding.—Take half a cupful each of molasses, milk, chopped suet, one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one cupful of chopped raisins, juice and rind of a lemon, half a teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of salt, a quarter-teaspoonful each of cloves and mace and a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Mix well and steam five hours.

Dainty Green Salad.—Skin and seed white or green grapes and arrange on lettuce leaves with French dressing. Cover them with cream cheese put through a ricer. Serve very cold.

Braised Calf's Liver.—Lard the rounded side of the liver with strips of pork. Fry a sliced onion in a little salt pork; put the liver into a casserole, thicken the fat in the pan with a little flour and pour over the liver in the casserole; season well, add stock or water, if needed, and cook covered for two hours.

Chocolate Pudding.—Cream one-half cupful of butter with one cupful of sugar, two squares of melted chocolate, one egg, a cupful of milk, one and three-quarters cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, mix and beat well, then steam for two hours.

Sauce for Chocolate Pudding.—To one and one-half cupfuls of water add two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch which has been well mixed with one cupful of sugar. Add a tablespoonful of butter, a square of grated chocolate and when cooked and smooth add a teaspoonful of vanilla.

For a cherry pie which we like rich and juicy, bake a deep crust and when cold fill with canned cherries which have been slightly thickened with flour and butter cooked together. Cover with a meringue and brown lightly in the oven. This pie may be covered with whipped cream if desired, rather than the meringue.

When one has a little cheese past the stage of serving on the table, grate it and to every two cupfuls of grated cheese add one cupful of hot fat and paprika or cayenne, and mix well. Put into glasses and keep in the ice box.

All Good Things. For a very nice muffin for special occasions the following will be cherished:

Dedicate Muffins.—Sift one and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour, two and one-half tablespoonfuls of granulated corn meal, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, half a teaspoonful of salt and one-third of a cupful of sugar; add three-quarters of a cupful of milk and three tablespoonfuls of melted butter. Mix well and bake in a hot oven in well-buttered muffin tins for twenty-five minutes.

Mississippi Chicken.—Pass through a meat chopper one-quarter of a pound each of veal and fresh pork, two slices of bacon, a chicken liver and half of a green pepper, with two sprigs of parsley; add a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce, one-half a teaspoonful of salt, and one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika. Mix well and use to stuff the chicken. Put to cook in a moderate oven so that the stuffing will cook before the chicken is browned enough for serving. Baste with hot salt pork fat every ten minutes during the cooking. Serve with sweet potatoes or rice.

Mock Cherry Turnovers.—Cut rounds about six inches in diameter of rich pastry. Chop one cupful of cranberries and half a cupful of seeded raisins; mix one cupful of sugar with two tablespoonfuls of flour and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt; pour half a cupful of boiling water over the fruit and when boiling stir in the dry ingredients; add a teaspoonful of butter and let cook until thick. Cool, then place a large spoonful on each round of paste, brush the edges with cold water, cut two or three slits to allow the steam to escape and pinch the edges close together. Brush with cold water, dredge with sugar and bake fifteen minutes.

Sardine and Pinola Sandwiches.—Mix twelve bones and a skinned sardine with a tablespoonful of chopped dices with a tablespoonful of stuffed olives, and use as filling on buttered slices of white bread.

Eggplant With Peanut Stuffing.—Boil the eggplant until partly cooked. Roll the eggplant in a well salted flour, dip in beaten egg and roll in the one-half inch thick. Chop fine the parts of bread and peanuts. Fill the shells and bake half an hour.

Just What Occurs Inside Voltmeter

Happenings Differ in Detail in Various Types of Meters.

By JOSEPH L. MCGRATH

When testing "A," "B" or "C" batteries with a voltmeter the terminals of the meter are connected to the positive and negative of the battery and the pointer of the meter flies over to a certain point on a calibrated scale. What happens inside the meter differs in detail in different meters, but...

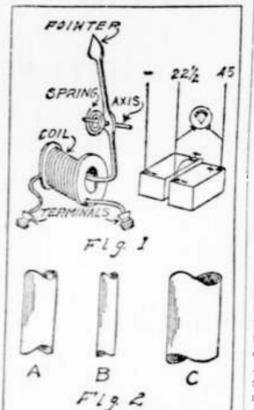

Fig. 1 Shows Principal Parts Inside of One Type of Voltmeter.

In all common types, current flows in at one terminal, by force of the voltage, performs its duty in the meter, and flows out at the other terminal. In a perfect voltmeter there would be no current flowing through the meter, but we do not need such a degree of perfection. By allowing a very small current to flow, magnetism is set up which causes the needle to register. The force acting on the needle is shared by multiplying the number of turns of wire in a coil in...

"Truphonic" Audio System Uses a Grid Impedance

The year's one new idea in quality audio amplification is the "truphonic" system, which makes use of a grid impedance coil. When a transformer is used, the grid potential has to be kept negative. As soon as the grid goes positive, there is a partly shunted circuit in the secondary of the transformer and a temporary reduction of the magnetic coupling. The result is distortion. In the "truphonic" system has been developed and magnetic coupling has been eliminated. In the diagram is illustrated the "figure 8" lamination by means of which the two choke coils, plate and grid, are mounted on the same lamination. Through the fixed condenser linking the two coils...

RADIO WAVES

Radio tubes are made of thin glass and glass breaks easily under shock. The guy who used to listen in on the party line now visits his neighbor so as to listen in on the radio set. A loop antenna is supposed to intercept maximum signal strength when it is pointed toward the transmitter, but this directional property is affected by the surroundings. When computing the length of the radio aerial the lead-in should be counted as part of the length. This part of the antenna is just as important as the part supported in the horizontal plane. Because connections have a bad habit of working loose every effort should be made to keep them tight, and, in many cases, they should be soldered to insure staying tight. A bad connection either means a noisy set or weak signals. Binding post strips should be so arranged that all high-potential terminals are as far apart as possible. It is also wise to place the aerial post at one end of the strip and the ground post at the other. In this way, leakage between terminals will be kept at a minimum.

What is "Static"? Static is caused by lightning flashes, often many hundreds of miles away. The lightning flash sets up a train of radio waves which, when they strike a receiving antenna, interfere with the reception of stations. No device has been discovered as yet which will eliminate static interference as experienced with the ordinary radio receiver. McGinnity, whose pitching career extended over a period of 32 years, maintains that "curve pitching, properly done, is no greater strain on the arm than fast ball pitching." "After pitching a game, the young fellows of today lay off for a week," he continued. "I don't think I ever went a season in the majors without pitching at least fifty games."

New Radio Record Is Set by Battleship

The U. S. S. Denver while cruising in the vicinity of Faena Arica, on the coast of Chile recently, was not only enabled to maintain long-distance radio communication with ship and shore stations, but the necessity for shore facilities was largely obviated. Capt. H. L. Wyman, the commanding officer of the Denver, in an official report to the bureau of engineering, Navy department, reflects gratification upon the measure of success in the use of high-frequency or short-wave radio equipment for long-distance communication. During a period of 12 days 1,888 words of traffic were handled by the radio operator on the Denver, and this volume of messages, if sent by means of cable, would have cost the government $200. Direct communication was maintained each night with the short-wave station of the naval research laboratory at Bellevue, District of Columbia, and occasionally the radio operator on the Denver "worked" with the operator on U. S. S. Henderson, then located in San Francisco, and the flagship of the commander of submarine divisions at Pearl Harbor. Reports have been confirmed that signals from the high-frequency transmitter on the Denver were heard in such widely separated geographical points as receiving stations in Finland, in England, and in Kentucky. The navy is justifiably gratified with the satisfaction which is resulting from the use of short-wave transmitting and receiving sets on naval vessels. Officials indicate that measured progress is being made in displacing arc and spark transmitting equipment with electron tube transmitters. The latter are not only more efficient, but they create perceptibly less interference with radio-cast reception.

Stations Set by Radio

Radio broadcasting stations the country over can be "set" by radio signals of definitely announced frequencies sent out twice a month, by the United States bureau of standards somewhat as clocks can be set by correct time signals.

Harvard Alters Former Policy

Coach Horween Showing How to Receive Ball.

Harvard certainly has changed its ideas about coaching. Football staffs of past years have been recruited from the ranks of former Crimson players. It has remained for Arnold Horween, the new head mentor, to break down precedent. Horween, of course, is an old Harvard star, but for his assistants he is reaching into the Middle West. First, he engaged Chuck Carney, former Ill. reaching into the Cambridge wings, a position similar to that of his old coach at Wisconsin last fall. Then Horween added Jim Brader, all western tackle in 1921, who served as line coach at Wisconsin a year ago.

Jim Cooney Is Playing Father's Old Position

The Cubs' shortstop, Jim Cooney, is playing the same position in which his father made a big reputation as a his father made a big reputation as a member of the late Captain Anson's Chicago White Stockings in 1890. Nearly all of Anson's stars descended from Jim Cooney's father, who was a star at shortstop. Cooney was short and thick set. In a week or two he was fielding magnificently and batting heavily. Anson prized the little fellow highly and placed him at the top of the Chicago's batting order. Anson played first that year, with Glenavlin his final choice for second base. Cooney was a fixture at short and the late Tommy Burns, who had remained loyal to the National league in the big baseball war, was a star at first base. Two of the outfielders were Walter Wilmet and Dummy Hoy, both obtained from the Washingtons, while nearly all of the catching was done by Malachi Kittredge. Anson's best pitchers were the late Bill Hutdelson, a former Yale man, who was well-known in baseball as "the iron horse," and Luby, who not only was a smart boxman, but also a powerful hitter. Cooney of the Cubs, is a brother of Johnny Cooney of the Boston Braves. Their dad filled the shoes of Big Ed Williamson, on Anson's reconstructed team.

Will Teach Armenians

The photograph shows Everett D. Gunn of Wichita, Kan., who has been sent out to the Near East Relief orphanage center at Alexandropol, Armenia, to teach American games and ideals of sportsmanship to the orphan wards of American charity as part of their training for life. Baseball will be one of his subjects.

McGinnity Explains Why "Ironmen" Have Passed

Joe McGinnity, who claims to have thrown more curve balls than any other two pitchers in organized baseball, says that "ironmen" have passed out of the major leagues because most modern hurlers grasp the pellet improperly and fail to take the correct enough. McGinnity, whose pitching career extended over a period of 32 years, maintains that "curve pitching, properly done, is no greater strain on the arm than fast ball pitching." "After pitching a game, the young fellows of today lay off for a week," he continued. "I don't think I ever went a season in the majors without pitching at least fifty games."

Best Pitching Record

One of the best pitching performances hung up in the major leagues of recent years was that made by Adolfo Luque, Cincinnati's right-handed Cuban, in 1923. Luque turned in 27 victories against 8 defeats that year, or a percentage of .771. He allowed but 1.93 earned runs per fray, a remarkably low average nowadays. Since then Luque has found the going rather rough and rocky, however. In two following seasons he lost more games than he won.

Jennings Sees Games

Hughy Jennings, assistant manager of the New York Giants, who has been recuperating in the Pocono mountains from a nervous breakdown he suffered last winter, witnessed the first two games of the world's series between the Yankees and Cardinals. He said he had almost fully recovered from his illness. The picture shows that he has not lost any of his interest in the game.

Lester Bell Big Factor

One of the stars on this year's Cardinal team is Lester Bell, third baseman. Bell's consistent work at the plate was a potent factor in the club's drive for the pennant. This is the youngster's second season as a regular. Last year he hit .283, but this season winds up at the .340 mark, a nice gain considering the less lively ball now in use. Bell started out as a shortstop, but was switched to the hot corner last year, and he sure has made good with the fans.

Cards Win Apples

According to Westbrook Pegler, writing in the Chicago Tribune, Grover Cleveland Alexander, who made such a remarkable showing in the recent world series, is guilty of eating apples in bed. What could be more conducive to sleep than to lie in bed and listen to your bedfellow champing an apple? A bunch of old hot-cuts on the back fence, intermingling along about midnight would be more pleasant. A Missouri nursery firm, hearing of Old Pete's fondness for apples, struck on the happy idea of spreading the vice and offered a box of Golden Delicious apples to every Cardinal player making a clean hit during the series. Nearly every player on the team won one or more boxes. Alexander, Bob O'Farrell and Babe Ruth, the latter making three home runs in one game, each received five boxes. What an awful noise there must be in Old Pete's room these cool nights.

Babe Ruth Sets Series Record

A record for participation in world's series by an individual player was established when Babe Ruth went to bat in the opening game of the annual classic this year. He was taking part in his seventh world's series and is the only player to enjoy that distinction. At the present time five other players share the record of having played in six of the annual series. These are Home-Run Baker, Eddie Collins, Walke Schang and Everett Scott. Ruth has played in three world's series with the Red Sox and four with the Yankees. His first world series was in 1915 as a member of the Red Sox. He took part in only one game against the Phillies that year and he was used as a pinch hitter, failing to connect in his only time at bat. In the series of 1916 against the Red Sox he was used in one game as a pitcher and he scored a 13-inning shutout over the Brooklyn club. In the series of 1918 against the Cubs the Red Sox again used him as a pitcher and he batted 16 more scoreless innings. He holds the world's series record of having pitched a total of 29 scoreless innings. Ruth took part in the first world's series as a Yankee in 1921 against the Giants. He played the outfield in six games that year and he made five hits in 16 times at bat. In the following year he played the outfield for the Yankees in all five games against the Giants. He made only two hits in 17 times at bat that year. In 1923 Ruth participated in his third world's series with the Yankees. He played in all six games against the Giants that year and he helped defeat the National league champions by making seven hits in 19 times at bat for an average of .368. J. Franklin Baker, one of the players who shares the record of participating in six world's series, took part in four of the annual classics with the Athletics and in two while a member of the Yankees. Collins also played in four of the championship series with the Athletics and in his other two he wore the uniform of the White Sox. Schang has taken part in world's series as a member of three different clubs. He first played in two with the Athletics, then one with the Red Sox and then three as a member of the Yankees. Everett Scott has been eligible to play in six world's series, but he took an active part in only five. He played in three with the Red Sox and then two with the Yankees. He was among the eligible players on the Washington roster last year, but he did not actually get into a game. He has since dropped out of the game.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then set fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts can not injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Early Golf Reminiscence

The first golf club used on the first golf course built west of the Mississippi river is to be enshrined in a place of honor at the Wichita Country club. Prof. C. P. Clark, now of Hancock, N. H., who was responsible for the first course to be established at Wichita, has given the country club the stick, Professor Clark, who came from Massachusetts in 1887, says he never will forget the sensation created the first time he appeared on the streets of Wichita attired in knickers, a sweater and a cap.

Today's Big Offer to All Who Have Stomach Agony

Faulty Elimination

Read About This Generous Money Back Guarantee

Should Be Corrected—Good Elimination is Essential to Good Health.

When you have any trouble with your stomach such as gas, heaviness and distention, why fool with things which at best can only give relief. Why not get a medicine that will build up your upset, disordered stomach and make it so strong and vigorous that it will do its work without any help.

If you would be well, see to your elimination. Faulty kidney action permits toxic material to remain in the blood and upset the whole system. Then, one is apt to have a tired, languid feeling and sometimes, a toxic backache or headache, and often some irregularity of secretions, such as scanty or burning passages. More and more people are acclaiming the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, in this condition. For more than forty years, Doan's have been winning favor the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Such a medicine is Doan's Mentha Peppin, a delightful elixir that is sold by your local dealer and druggists everywhere with the distinct understanding that if it doesn't greatly help your money will be gladly returned. It has helped thousands—it will no doubt help you.

The Hot Plate Vaporizer

Standard equipment on all Ford cars now includes the Hot Plate Vaporizer.

Users who have kept records of their gasoline consumption claim that the Hot Plate Vaporizer gives them greatly increased mileage. Some report as high as ten miles more to the gallon.

It also gives very smooth engine operation, better acceleration and added engine power. This is but one of the many features of the newest Fords.

See these handsome cars and take a free demonstration ride with us. You'll be surprised that such fine cars can be sold for so little.

The Hot Plate Vaporizer applies exhaust heat to the fuel feed so that the engine is constantly supplied with super-heated vapor fuel of exceptionally high combustibility. Call and see this in operation and get detailed explanation of this important feature.

Quality vs. Compensation

Bacteria count is being used more and more as a basis for determining how much per pound a farmer is to be paid for his milk. Getting the bacteria count under a given figure means millions of dollars annually to the country's dairymen. Dairymen themselves are alive to this question, and where the milk produced is a material part of the income from the farm, complete sanitary precautions should be taken to insure a low bacterial count. Precautions start at the beginning of milk production and continue clear through until the milk is in the hands of the consumer. To begin with, properly ventilated, easily cleaned stables are provided, plenty of bedding is given the cows, and the animals brushed and cleaned before milking. Utensils such as milk pails, milk cans, etc., are washed and sterilized after each milking. The fresh drawn milk is immediately removed to the cooling tank in the milk house where it is cooled at once to below 60 degrees. On receipt at the city dairy it is handled with extreme sanitary precautions by persons who observe rules of personal cleanliness and hygiene. These methods of handling milk increase demand steadily, which means better prices and increasing prosperity on our dairy farms.
