$50,000 TO BE SPENT ON HIGHWAY 83

That section of Highway 83, lying in Washington county, the great Chicago to Northern Wisconsin cut-off, is scheduled for improvement next year in the nature of being regraded and resurfaced where needed. The sum of $50,000 has been set aside for this purpose, this money coming out of the county's share of the state automobile license and gasoline tax. The resurfacing and rebuilding is being done at the recommendation of the state highway department. Starting in at the north Waukesha county line where Washington and Waukesha counties touch, the road crew will work northwards to Hartford. This stretch of highway was rebuilt some six years ago. Since then it has been receiving increasingly heavy traffic and is in bad condition in places. It is principally these bad spots that will be improved and the road graded to provide a better drained surface.—Hartford Times.

FINE PROGRAMS AT THE CHURCHES

Excellent Christmas programs were rendered at the various churches in this village and vicinity, last week Friday evening. The programs were all well attended and highly appreciated by those in attendance.

At the Evangelical Peace church the program was different from that of any ever rendered in that church. Instead of dialogues and recitations, the program was centered upon a Christmas story read by Edwin Morgenroth, which brought out many Christmas thoughts, and which was at intervals accompanied by songs sung by the different classes of the Sunday School and members of the choir.

On Christmas day the services were also well attended at all the churches.

LOCAL THEATRE TO SHOW BIG FEATURE FILMS

The celebration of birthdays is not restricted to human beings. Even motion picture companies get their chance.

First National Pictures, one of the largest of the producing firms, is to celebrate its birthday during the entire month of January. The observance is to take place under the auspices of the Opera House Theatre here, with Managers Buss & Buss acting as the host of honor.

Usually in the case of birthdays the party celebrating the birthday is the recipient of gifts. But according to Managers Buss & Buss the case is reversed here, for instead of receiving gifts, First National pictures is going to give them. In other words, First National pictures will be on view at the Opera House Theatre during January. This is First National's birthday present to the movie-lovers of Kewaskum.

On the list of the First National production that will be shown at the Opera House during First National Month are the following feature pictures: Jan. 9—Colleen Moore in "Irene." Jan. 16—Milton Sills in "Men of Steel." Jan. 23—Lloyd Hughes in "Forever After."

YOUNG PEOPLE SING CHRISTMAS CAROLS

The members of the Young Peoples' society of the Evangelical Peace church and several others, led by Rev. Ernest Iron, rendered Christmas carols for a number of people who were obliged to stay at home, either by illness or age on Christmas morning, thereby bringing the glad tidings of the Christmas joys to those who were shut away from the annual yuletide excitement. The singing by the members of the society, came as a great treat to the shut-ins, bringing home to their minds that even they who were unable to attend services were not forgotten. The singers stopped at six different homes in the village and ended up at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Rosenheimer where they were treated to a hot cup of coffee. The society is to be congratulated upon having undertaken this compassionate and beautiful piece of Christmas service. Though the singing of Christmas carols in this village has never been carried out, in fact is only infrequently carried out in this country, it is, however, an old-time custom, having been brought to America by people in Europe. The reason why it is not so frequently carried out is probably because we are not a nation of singers. The English boys and girls who always celebrated their holidays with merrymaking, sang carols at Christmas time. In other countries, such as Norway, it was likewise the Christmas custom to go about singing for friends and neighbors. Some of the best and most joyous Christmas music has been developed in this way, and other more sacred music has been used for this purpose of showing joy over this delightful season.

YOUNG MOTHER PAINFULLY BURNED

A very serious and painful accident befell Mrs. Theodore Dworschak, a prominent and well known resident residing one-half mile west of New Fane, last week Friday afternoon at about 2:30 o'clock, when she was badly burned about the face, arms and hands, caused by an explosion of the coal stove in the dining room in her home. Mrs. Dworschak was busily engaged in the kitchen doing her Christmas baking, when suddenly she observed that the fire in the coal stove in the dining room had gone out—at least it appeared that way to her, as the room had become chilled and there were no more live coal to be seen in the stove. With that thought in mind, she immediately proceeded to build a new fire, and in so doing poured kerosene upon the ashes left in the stove. She then walked into the kitchen, returning, however, a few minutes later, to look after the fire in the coal stove, and when within a few feet of the heater, and in a direct line with the door of the stove, the stove exploded, knocking down the stove pipe and throwing the door of the heater open allowing the flames to burst out into the room with the result that her clothing caught fire. The flames spread so rapidly, that within a moment's time Mrs. Dworschak resembled a human torch. She tried to smother the flames with her apron but unsuccessful, realizing her plight, she called for help. Her oldest daughter, Constance who was in a bed room near by ran to her assistance, and tried to smother the flames with a carpet, but was also unsuccessful in her attempt. Grandpa Andrew Dworschak, father of Theodore Dworschak, who was in the kitchen at the time, also rushed to her assistance and after pouring a pail of water onto the flames, and then throwing a carpet over the unfortunate lady succeeded in quenching the fire. Mrs. Dworschak, who by this time had become limp and faint through the experience, was immediately given first medical aid by her children and Mr. Dworschak, who was working in the barn, and who had been called into the house by one of the members of the family. Mrs. Dworschak's face was badly burned, the flesh on her left arm and hand was burned off to the bone, her right arm was also badly burned. She is now under the care of Dr. Hausman of this village. Though she is suffering intense pain, she is getting along as well as can be expected and will recover. It will, however, take many weeks before she will again have use of her arms and hands, and besides will be disfigured for life. Little damage was done to the room and furniture therein.

Mrs. Dworschak is a young lady about forty-two years of age. She is the mother of three daughters, Constance, Beatrice and Bernice, one of the latter was also slightly burned, in her attempt to smother the flames. The unfortunate lady is well and favorably known in this community where she has a host of friends, who were indeed shocked to learn of her misfortune. The Statesman joins the relatives and friends of Mrs. Dworschak in wishing her a safe and complete recovery.

MRS. JOHN KLASSEN HURT

Mrs. John P. Klassen of this city suffered cuts on her head and body bruises when she was struck by the automobile driven by Oswald "Toddy" Reuter and thrown against Krueger's bakery early last Friday morning. The injuries confined her to bed for several days, but she recovered rapidly. Reuter's car swerved when he attempted to leave the rut on Main-st. and the machine ran onto the sidewalk where it struck Mrs. Klassen. He was absolved of blame in Justice Hayden's court Monday morning where he was summoned by Chief of Police Berend.—West Bend News.

Decrease Seen in Bovine TB.

Million "Reactors" Have Been Eliminated in Various Sections.

The Department of Agriculture, through the bureau of animal industry, has just announced that federal inspections show tuberculosis among cattle and swine has decreased generally. According to the report, since 1917 more than a million "reactors" to the bovine tuberculosis tests have been removed from the cattle of the United States. Because tuberculosis poultry have been infecting swine, the report says, fowl tuberculosis is now receiving special study.

Text of Announcement.

The full text of the announcement follows: According to charts prepared in the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, bovine tuberculosis has shown a general decline since 1916, and tuberculosis of swine has decreased since 1924. The charts, which are based on records of federal meat inspection, cover a sufficiently large number of animals to be considered representative of conditions in the cattle and swine industries.

Though the improvement of the tuberculosis situation is shown in infection among cattle and swine received at federally inspected packing establishments is still rather extensive. Records for the fiscal year 1926 show that nearly 14 per cent of swine showed tuberculosis to some extent, though lesions were of a minor nature in a large proportion of the cases. The corresponding figure for cattle was 1.3 per cent for the same period. In 1916 about 2.3 per cent of cattle showed infection, 1 per cent more than last year. In 1924 about 15.2 per cent of the swine inspected were diseased. Reports from field workers indicate that the large extent of infection among swine is caused partly by tuberculous poultry. Accordingly, fowl tuberculosis has been receiving special study by tuberculosis-eradication officials.

Coincident with the decline of this disease among cattle and hogs, a decreasing human death rate from tuberculosis is shown by a recent report of the Department of Commerce. The low death rate of children under four years may be attributed in part to the aggressive campaign for testing tuberculous cattle and disposing of reactors. Since 1917, when the present tuberculosis campaign was undertaken, more than a million reactors have been removed from the cattle of the United States.

Better Soil Fertility by Using Rotation Plan

The Ohio experiment station has doubled the average acre yields on its farm during the last 25 years. For a number of years that institution has been getting an average of 70 bushels of corn, 30 bushels of wheat and 2.5 tons of clover hay per acre. These crops have been obtained on fields that have been in a three-year rotation for a quarter of a century, consisting of corn, wheat and clover. Prof. F. E. Borner of the soils department of that station says that not only must a rotation of that sort be faithfully carried out in order to obtain such yields, but that a lot of other things must be done as well. This is expressed in the following words: "The rotation must include clover and alfalfa or some other legume at least once every third year. The crops must all be fed or enough concentrates must be fed to compensate for the hay or grain sold. The barnyard must not leak. All liquids must be saved. Hot fermentation of manure must be stopped. Acid phosphates must be used regularly. Lime must be applied as required. Then high yields are guaranteed."

CULTIVATION AND ROTATION NEEDED TO INCREASE CROPS

Of Importance to Recognize Three Factors.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. It is frequently pointed out by the bureau of soils of the United States Department of Agriculture that the nation will have to depend upon the cultivation of the soil for about one-third of its combined wheat, corn and oats produced; upon crop rotation for another third, and upon the use of manures and commercial fertilizers for the other third. It is logical that cultivation aids both rotation and fertilization, that rotation aids in rendering fertilizers more effective, and that fertilizers increase the value of rotation. Recent experiments in Illinois, however, bring out the fact that rotation and the use of fertilizers, when practiced together, may interact to the extent that their combined effects, as measured in terms of crop increases, may be not only equal to but greater than the sum of their separate effects. The average yield of corn obtained without fertilizers and rotation in this particular experiment was 23.4 bushels per acre. The gain due to using fertilizers and time was 9.2 bushels per acre, and the gain due to rotation alone was 27.8 bushels, or practically three times that obtained from the fertilizers and time. The total increase effected by combining rotation and the use of fertilizers was 44.2 bushels per acre, or 7.2 bushels greater than the sum of their separate increases.

Other experiments have corroborated these results, which emphasize the importance of recognizing all three factors in striving for permanent soil productivity.

Overhauling Tractor Is Proper Job for Winter

What are some of the main things to check up when overhauling a tractor? The lantern system, the oil pump if the tractor has one, valves, pistons and rings, bearings, gears and carburetor should be examined and fixed if necessary.

Those things should be considered by every tractor owner during the winter months when the tractor is ordinarily idle. Time spent in overhauling the tractor this winter may mean time and money saved next spring and summer when most farmers can ill afford to neglect farm work long enough to make tractor repairs.

If your tractor has a high-tension magnet that has been working all right leave it alone. However, if something is wrong with the magnet it is not advisable for anyone but a good mechanic to try to do much with it.

The timing system should be gone over. There is nothing more necessary than plenty of good oil to prevent wear and to keep the tractor in running order.

Forest Trees Will Grow Readily From Good Seed

Tree raising is not a long-time proposition as many people believe, according to Chester A. Lee, Extension Forester, Colorado Agricultural college.

"One can grow his own trees from seed. Seed of the ash, hackberry, box elder, honey locust, Russian olive, and the evergreens are now ripe. Before gathering a quantity of seeds, cut a few of them in two and see that they are full of meat." Where a good percentage of the seed is sound, pick as many as desired and plant in accordance to the suggestions outlined for each species in "The Farm Nursery for Forest Trees."

FARM NOTES

If we plan ahead, we should never get far behind.

Sudan grass is the best nonlegume to use for hay pasture.

The formalin treatment for oat smut is well known to farmers and scarcely needs to be restated.

Crop rotation can be practiced usually with no outlay of money, whereas the use of commercial fertilizers requires an expenditure of money.

Cyanide gas reduces rat population in corn cribs, barns, etc., as quickly and effectively as anything yet discovered, recent trials in many Iowa counties indicate.

Corn is hogged down on a large number of farms in practically all of the Middle Western states, and the work of the experiment stations shows that it is a profitable practice.

Feeding Calf With Scours

A sucking calf that has scours should have the usual amount of milk it gets reduced to about one-half for a day or two. It will be better to give the calf an ounce or two of castor oil instead of epsom salts. This will remove all poison from the system. When the calf has recovered the amount of milk allowed should be gradually increased until the usual amount that the calf had been getting before it was sick is reached.

Feed for Pullets

Feed, rather, for size and plenty of reserve vitality. Get the flesh out of this season when your pullets are just coming into lay, increasing productivity as they become well fleshed, with rounded breasts. Particularly, if you expect to breed from these birds, feed plenty of scratch feed until the points of their breast bones are well covered and then keep them in that condition and they will lay eggs of good hatchability.

Put End to Slavery Under British Flag

Serfdom in England was finally abolished in 1383. For a century afterward colonists and others on a visit to England were allowed to bring their slaves with them; but by judgment of the queen's bench, in 1772, when an attempt was made to regain possession of a fugitive slave, it was decided that no man in Great Britain could be held as a slave. An act for the abolition of slavery throughout the British colonies was passed by the British parliament, chiefly through the exertions of William Wilberforce, in 1833, and became effective on August 1, 1834. Their owners were compensated by the British government to the extent of £20,000,000 (about $97,000,000). Slavery was abolished in the East Indies, then under control of the East India company, in 1838. Great Britain had nothing to do with slavery in South America or the United States.—Montreal Herald.

To Sell Old Tapestries

The duchess of Rutland is to sell the famous Gobelin tapestries which have hung for a century and a quarter in Belvoir castle, to help provide funds for refurbishing Haddon hall, the home of Dorothy Vernon, which has not been occupied for 200 years. The tapestries were bought shortly after the French revolution by the fifth duke of Rutland. They are in eight pieces and depict the adventures of Don Quixote. They were made by command of Louis XV.

Knew Where to Get It

Harry, a lad of eight, was dining at the Wilson home. He was bashful and backward and ate his meal with great difficulty because of his embarrassment.

A few minutes after the meal was over, Harry, rubbing his face with his cup, exclaimed:

"Well, now I guess I'll go home and get a good dinner."—Indianapolis News.

Whale Becoming Extinct

Complete extermination of the whale within five or ten years is predicted, unless the wholesale butchery of this valuable mammal can be stopped by international law. It is said that not more than 12,000 whales are left in the world, and that the whaling industry is literally slaughtering in excess of 2,000 each year.—Thrill Magazine.

Skeleton Long in Earth

The fossilized skeleton of a prehistoric reptile has been unearthed at a depth of 50 feet at Fletton, Peterborough, England. The skeleton is 6 feet long in the body, and has 4 paddlers or flippers, each measuring 3 feet. The reptile is thought to be a plesiosaurus or fierce crocodile. Judging from previous discoveries, the age of the skeleton is estimated at over a million years.

Their Value

"Tools have their uses," said old Fostus Pester. "They are excellent for the purpose of teaching the rest of us the disastrous results of blowing into unloaded shotguns, trying to beat the other feller at his own game, buying old stock, skating on thin ice, indorsing notes for friends of our boyhood, flirting with charming grass widowers, and so on and so forth."—Kansas City Star.

Rare Eclipse Promised

A rare astronomical phenomenon, a total eclipse of the midnight sun, is forecast for northern Sweden in the autumn of 1927, which has been published at the university center at Uppsala, Sweden. The event will take place on June 26, when the sun is visible all night north of the Arctic circle.

Governor Gunderson of South Dakota was condemning the profiteer. "The Italians," he said, "have a proverb that fits the profiteer like a glove. It runs: 'The man capable of growing rich in a year should be hanged twelve months beforehand.'"

Koch's Brilliant Use of Gift "Playing"

The birthday gift of a microscope to Robert Koch and his wife was the first step in the transformation of a struggling country doctor into a brilliant scientist, one of the world's great microbe hunters.

With his new plaything, as Mrs. Koch had called it, he discovered the germ of anthrax and began an exhaustive series of experiments that proved the theory that had been voiced by Louis Pasteur, that there were such things as terrible man-killing microbes, says Paul DeKruif in "Microbe Hunters."

He also identified the white plague bacillus and the microbe of cholera. Then he learned how to grow disease germs and by infecting healthy animals, proved that maladies were caused by the rapid multiplication of the tiny organisms.

Qui S'Excuse

Secretary James S. McGaw of the National Reform association, said in Pittsburgh the other day:

"When municipal heads tell us they can't abolish this municipal abuse or that, their excuses are apt to remind me of a writer I know.

"Blasht it all," he shouted from his study one morning, 'every time I want to settle down to a good long stretch of work I find that somebody has been meddling with my materials.'

"What's missing now, dear? his wife called timidly.

"That new French novel and my tobacco jar," he growled.

The first child health center on the 1927 schedule for Washington county is announced to be held in Hartford on Wednesday, Jan. 5, at the city hall. The center staff, recalling the gratifying attendance at the 1926 meeting is desirous that the interest will increase in the coming year and that the meetings will produce lasting benefits for the children and mothers of Washington county who seek the center's aid. ### MEMORIAL

In loving memory of our son and brother Roland, who passed away two years ago, Dec. 31, 1924. When we were all rejoicing, In the happy yuletide Death did stretch his ghastly hand, And took you, Roland from our side. Two years have passed by Since that fatal hour struck To us the family circle It seems much longer since you left. Those to whom you were so dear Are the ones that miss you so And the time passes year by year We still miss you more and more. Sadly missed by the Hubert Rinzel family.

The Dog and the Egg

A big black retriever, named Peto, belonging to a farmer of East Leake, near Loughborough, England, has shown a partiality for a pullet, while being on bad terms with the rest of the feathered inhabitants of the farm. Every morning the pullet hops walked over the dog's back to the end of its kennel and laid an egg. Peto immediately has eaten it, shell and all!

A Happy and Prosperous New Year to All Our Friends and Patrons

To make this a prosperous year let us all unite on better milk, and make Kewaskum "The better milk center." All fresh, clean milk is good, but can only be kept good by immediate cooling. Every farmer should demand, that all milk must be cooled at once after milking, make it a rule, and see to it that it is carried out by every person producing milk for sale, no matter whether it is for manufacturing purposes or market milk. Renumeration so feverishly sought after by us all will come naturally. A splendid assurance of a happy and prosperous year.
