"THE GREATER GLORY" AT THE MOVIES

Despite the fact that "The Greater Glory," June Mathis' great super-feature, which will be shown at the Opera House Sunday, deals entirely with Vienna during and after the war, there is not a single production. One of the episodes shows the army of the former glorious Austrian empire going off to the war. But of actual scenes showing fighting at the front there are none. "The Greater Glory" is an adaptation of "Viennese Melody," celebrated novel by Edith O'Shaughnessy, wife of the American ambassador at Vienna. The screen production was carried out along colossal lines. More than a year was spent by Miss Mathis and a large company in filming the various scenes. The poignant story traces the fortunes of a typical well-to-do Viennese family. It follows them from prosperity to poverty to the beginning of a rehabilitation. The central figure in the epic drama is a kindly maiden aunt, aristocratic, unworshiped and intensely sympathetic to all the ills about her. The finding of an actress to take this role was attended with the utmost difficulty, and Lucy Beaumont, well known on the stage, was selected only after more than 300 character women had failed to fill all the demands of the part.

TO SHOW CLASSIC EIGHT REEL MOTION PICTURE

A classic eight reel motion picture, "Martin Luther, His Life and Time," will be shown at the Kewaskum Opera House on Monday evening, June 6th, under the auspices of the Luth. Aid Society of the Ev. Luth. St. Lucas church. The film opens with the scenes of Europe in the late fifteenth century. Then begins with the birth of Luther, his childhood days and early education, his further studies, and ends with scenes of Luther's married life and his favor with the masses. It gives a true picture of the past historical rather than religious. That this screen play has a strong appeal is evidenced in the fact that many cities are re-booking it. It is a splendid picture and should be seen by everyone.

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day in Kewaskum, for the first time in the history of the village, was fittingly observed with appropriate exercises, held at the High School Auditorium, in due respect to the dead war heroes. The exercises were held under the auspices of the Kewaskum Post No. 384 of the American Legion. Early in the day people from far and near commenced to assemble on the streets, and by the time the parade was held, large crowds had gathered on both sides of the streets to view the same, and to attend the exercises. The parade started from the intersection of Fond du Lac Ave., and Main street. The line of march then proceeded east on Main street then north on West Water street, thence west on Wilhelmna street to the High School, where the following program was held Selection by High School band. Invocation by Rev. Ernest Irion. "Gettysburg Address" by Andrew O'Connell. This was followed by a selection. "Our Flag," High School Glee Club. Harold Marx then gave a reading: "In Flanders Fields" which was followed by the dedication and presentation of the U. S. Flag to the school by Post Commander Dr. Leo Brauchle, who gave a short and interesting talk on the history of the flag. This talk was followed by a short talk of acceptance by Prin. C. E. Nodoff. Village President L. P. Rosenheimer then introduced the speaker of the day, Mr. T. Buckley of West Bend. Mr. Buckley gave a very interesting and impressive talk in commemoration of the day. He is indeed a forceful speaker and during his entire talk received rounds of applause. Mr. Buckley's speech was followed by a short but highly appreciative talk by District Attorney Henry P. Schmidt of West Bend, who spoke on the work and good results obtained from the soldiers who fought in the Spanish-American war. The exercises were then closed by a song, "Star Spangled Banner," sung by the entire assembly. Marshal Geo. F. Brandt acted as chairman of the program.

MEMORIAL DAY DULY OBSERVED

The observance of Memorial Day in Kewaskum was very successful, going beyond all expectations. The Kewaskum Post wishes to sincerely thank the Civil War veterans who ventured out in threatening weather to take part in the exercises. They were given a seat of honor on the speakers stand. There are only three Civil War veterans left in Kewaskum, namely: Christ Haug Sr., Philip Schiefel and Peter Dricken, formerly of Kewaskum now residing at West Bend. Though the three have passed the 84th milestone of their lives, respectively, they are still very active, hale and hearty. Deeply interested in current events and well alert to what is going on in the outside world. Here is wishing them good luck in the hope that they will stay healthy, so they may again be with us next year. Next to them came the Spanish-American war veterans, three of them being in attendance namely: John Weddig, Otto Schaefer and Carl Goertz. They were given a seat of honor on the speaker's stand. These veterans were given due respect and honor. Having been called upon to fight in a war, where it was necessary to travel into an uncivilized country. In a land where a large proportion of the soldiers died of disease brought about by the unhealthy climatic conditions to which they found great difficulty to acclimate themselves, to these veterans the Kewaskum Post desires to express their sincere thanks for their attendance, wishing them good luck in the hope that may live to be with us again next year. To all who took part in the program and to all who attended the exercises, the post wishes to express their sincere thanks, in the hope that all may be with us again next year and many more besides. In the afternoon members of the local post went to West Bend to take part in the Memorial Day parade there but due to certain unqualifications they were not allowed to enter the same. MISSIONARY TRAVELS IN AUTO-CHURCH

Father Riboud, a French Catholic missionary, believes in bringing the Gospel of God right to the door of the unbeliever instead of waiting for him to come and seek it. So he secured an automobile and equipped it with everything a chapel needs. Now he can minister to the soul-needs of the natives of the Dark Continent. The photograph shows the exterior of the auto-church, with Father Riboud holding an illustrated Bible lesson to the semi-naked Malaisian children at Bukit Marajan, province of Wellesley via Penang (Malaysia).

NEW SPARK PLUG IS MONEY SAVER

Small Investment at Proper Time Helps Make Larger Outlay Unnecessary.

Exhaustive tests by automotive engineers have proved that motor car owners many times are compelled to spend considerable money to have their engines overhauled, and new parts put in, to overcome operating difficulties that could have been obviated had a new set of spark plugs been installed at the proper time.

More than 2,000 tests reveal that a complete new set of spark plugs at the end of each 10,000 miles of driving, or at least once a year, is a real dollar and cents economy. These tests have definitely shown that the saving in oil and gasoline alone, with new spark plugs, more than pays their cost within a few months, in addition to insuring greater general operating efficiency.

Change Plugs Regularly. Motor car manufacturers, a few years ago, boasted of the long life of spark plugs. Today they are recommending in their instruction books that owners change their plugs regularly, even though spark plugs have been vastly improved in recent years.

It was formerly believed that a spark plug was giving efficient service so long as it continued to fire regularly. The engineering tests supplied overwhelming evidence that this was incorrect. The greater stress on spark plugs, caused by a combination of poorer gasoline and higher compression engines, saps their efficiency rapidly.

To secure full power from gasoline it is vital that the gas mixture in the cylinders be burned with tremendous rapidity. New spark plugs provide a sufficiently hot spark to accomplish this, despite the poorer quality of present-day fuels.

Causes Leakage. Under this tremendous stress the electrodes become pitted. Carbon is burned on to the insulator and the shell. This causes a leakage of part of the current supplied from the battery, reducing the spark's intensity. Full power is not extracted from the gas mixture. Much good gasoline is wasted by passing out the exhaust.

The longer the old spark plugs are permitted to remain in the cylinders the more vicious becomes the circle of poorer combustion, crankcase dilution and pitting of pistons and cylinder walls.

That is why manufacturers recommend that car owners install new spark plugs at regular intervals. To do so restores power and speed. In less than a year's average running there is a distinct loss which impairs engine performance. Then the owner may be faced with a bill for considerable repair work which could probably have been obviated had he renewed his spark plugs at the proper time.

Proper Steering Often Eliminates Bad Skids. Just why it is that so many motorists think of their brakes alone in connection with skidding remains a problem. Experienced drivers have said time and time again that they can take a car with bad brakes and prevent it from skidding through sheer good steering. But the average driver still clings to the idea that the skid is all a matter of traction and braking. When the streets are slippery and in dangerous condition, careful consideration always should be given to steering, with avoidance of quick movements in steering as the outstanding point. Make changes in the car's direction as carefully as you would apply the brakes, and if the car starts to skid, always steer in the direction of the skid, meanwhile releasing the brakes.

Cause of Faulty Brakes Is Laid to Poor Grease. More brakes are ruined through overloading differentials and front-wheel bearings with grease than are worn out through use. When poor grades of grease are used in lubricating cars as soon as the weather becomes hot it melts and gets on the brakes. This is a cause for faulty brakes, for as soon as the oil or grease accumulates on the brakes they will not function properly and dirt and grit causes trouble.

RADIO

"B" Eliminator Is Very Useful Part

Device Serves to Harness Usual Electric Lighting Current.

By CHARLES GOLEMPAUL. There is nothing really complicated about the usual "B" eliminator. It serves to harness the usual electric lighting current, obtained from the nearest socket or convenience outlet, to the radio receiver, in place of "117" batteries. Just how this is accomplished is worth knowing by those who are contemplating the early purchase of such a device.

To begin with, the usual alternating current that comes from the socket or convenience outlet cannot be employed for radio purposes. It is current that flows first in one direction and then in the other, changing its direction of flow at the rate of many times per second. Such undecided current, if we may term it such, could not be introduced in a radio circuit without causing havoc. So it is obvious that the alternating current must be straightened out or made to flow in one direction only.

Through Transformer. The first step is to pass the alternating current through a transformer which steps up the original voltage to twice or more its potential in order to operate the mechanism that follows. The current is still alternating in character, despite passing through the transformer.

The current from the transformer is now led to a most ingenious device which we may call an electric turnstile. It is similar in action to the turnstiles used in subways and electric railways for the purpose of letting persons pass through in one direction but barring them if they try to pass through in the reverse direction. Such an electric turnstile is called a rectifier. In the usual "B" eliminator either the Raytheon or Rectron rectifier is employed. The former is a gaseous conductor tube, without a filament to burn. The initial current causes a certain breakdown or ionization of the gas, which establishes a path for the one-way conduction of the alternating current. In the case of the Rectron, a filament is employed, and the particles or electrons given off by the heated filament establish the one-way bridge for the alternating current. Some "B" eliminators employ chemical cells which have the one-way conduction property.

Filter Stops Ripples. Most "B" eliminators are full-wave rectifiers, which means that the entire alternating current is passed through by means of a double turnstile arrangement, with one gate thrown open while the other is closed, and vice versa, for greatest efficiency. Half-wave rectifiers present only one turnstile, which is thrown open only at every other interval when the alternating current is flowing momentarily in the right direction.

Now the current that has passed through the electric turnstile or rectifier is flowing in one direction only. Because of the turnstile action, it comes in pulses, so that it is called pulsating direct current. If applied to delicate radio circuits these little pulsators or electric ripples would make their presence known by excessive hum. So the current must be passed through a filter to iron out the ripples.

The filter consists of two elements, namely, choke coils and filter condensers. The choke coils serve to check the pulsating current, while the filter condensers serve to store the current. A beautiful electrical balance is struck between chokes and condensers. It is as though we were employing a dam to control the spring freshets, which would otherwise pour down a valley as uncontrollable floods. The chokes are the dam, while the condensers are the impounding area or reservoir behind the dam. As a result of the damming action the freshets are converted into a steady flow of water throughout the year for irrigation and other useful purposes, just as the pulsating current from the "B" eliminator filter is converted into a steady flow of current, quite free from hum.

The Register Bank. Now the current issuing from the filter circuit would be ready for use if just the full output voltage were desired. However, it is seldom that a radio receiver can employ the full output at all times. Generally, there are various kinds of tubes requiring different voltages. Furthermore, a certain minimum load must be maintained across most filter circuits and rectifier tubes to insure proper and safe operation.

An Easy Matter to Clean Panels of Your Receiver. It is an easy matter to properly clean the bakelite panel of a radio set, but many are unfamiliar with the easy and best way.

Bakelite panels will accumulate finger prints, dust and dirt, etc., and should be kept looking their best. It is easy to keep them looking as if they had just come from the hands of an expert finisher. Here is the way it is done: Take a bit of cheesecloth and wet it thoroughly in water. Wring out all of the water and shake on a few drops of alcohol (any kind of alcohol will do). Now wipe the panel with this cloth and the dirt and every finger print and every foreign substance will come off as if by magic. Wipe dry

Market Service for Farmers. More than 1,000,000 American farmers, with the best radio sets available, are now receiving government market news service through 96 broadcasting stations in 35 states.

Sees Shields and One R. F. Stage in Future

How copper shielding prevents loss in selectivity as the sensitivity of a radio set is increased, is described by Robert F. Gowen of the Institute of Radio Engineers in a survey of magnetic shielding prepared for the Copper and Brass Research Association.

Pointing out that the selectivity of a set gets worse as the sensitivity becomes higher, Mr. Gowen explains that "adding stages of radio-frequency amplification to provide increased selectivity broadens out the tuning so that, when the signals are delivered to detector tube, there are usually mixed with them signals from other stations operating on nearly the same frequency."

"This loss in selectivity results from the fact that radio-frequency stages added are usually damped or neutralized in order to prevent oscillation due to inner-stage feed back of energy from the coupling between the inductances used."

Many schemes are used to prevent this feed back without excessive damping and, according to the survey, when more than two stages of radio-frequency are employed the problem becomes more difficult. It becomes necessary to use magnetic shielding to prevent coupling between the inductances of the set and to prevent the loss in selectivity as the sensitivity is increased.

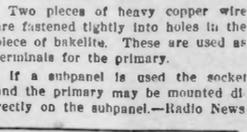

Experiments show that inter-stage shielding is not enough, and Mr. Gowen declares that "the day is not far distant when all receivers will be enclosed in completely shielded copper cases. Otherwise it will not be possible, with broadcast stations working on superpower, for a set in a congested transmitting area to be affected by the desired station alone."

Stromberg-Carlson is cited as one manufacturer who has shielded enough to make it worth while and has used sheet copper for shielding. Indications are that battery leads must be shielded eventually also.

"Engineers and manufacturers are now beginning to see that the trend toward the ideal set of the future is to reverse the present practice of building supersensitive receivers of a great number of tubes as these receivers require an excessive amount of power supply and maintenance with elaborate shielding to prevent inter-stage oscillation in the radio-frequency stages. The new line of development is to build a simple receiver embodying not more than one radio-frequency stage of highest efficiency and selectivity in a thoroughly shielded copper cabinet. The highly efficient Browning-Drake and Hammerlund-Roberts sets are good present day examples of this design. It is safe to assume that eventually the shielded cabinet will include the power unit (or batteries) and power units are fully developed so that there can be no chance of "pick-up" from cables employed for connection."

Plug-In Mounting for the Short-Wave Coils. A very convenient and inexpensive set of mountings for short-wave coils can be made from a few UX tube bases, a UX socket, and a few strips of bakelite.

The tube bases are cut off as illustrated and soldering lugs are soldered to the tops of the prongs. Then a hole is drilled in the center of the tube base and it is bolted to the bakelite strip. Care must be taken that the head of the screw does not

How to Mount Plug-In Coils in a Vacuum-Tube Socket. project above the surface of the strip, so that it will not come in contact with the coil.

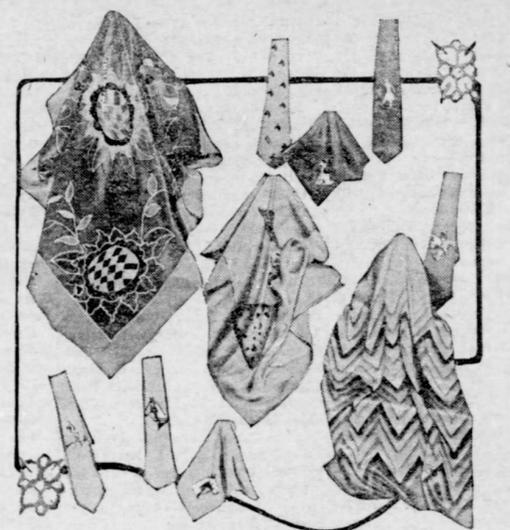

This strip is drilled at the ends and the coil is bolted to it by another strip of the same length. The socket is mounted on one end of a wider strip and the primary on the other. The mounting for the primary is made out of a piece of 1/4-inch bakelite, supported by a bracket which is made from a piece of sheet brass and a piece of brass tubing. The coil is bolted to it by another strip of the piece of bakelite.

Two pieces of heavy copper wire are fastened tightly into holes in the piece of bakelite. These are used as terminals for the primary. If a subpanel is used the socket and the primary may be mounted directly on the subpanel.—Radio News

Pretty Things that are Made at Home

NO MORE time to spend in working cross-word puzzles, now that the mode is calling so insistently for hand-painted scarfs, ties, kerchiefs and like accessories. Of course one can buy most beautiful specimens of neckwear, and silk squares, painted by only professional artists can paint them. Indeed, they are working overtime in studios everywhere in order to supply fashion's demand for accessories such as are here pictured.

However, if really ambitious there types and demands may be. For the woman who desires to express her individuality to the utmost and still be in the mode there has never been such millinery opportunity. In sports hats the clever little cloche gives promise of holding its own. It can be had in infinite varieties from dainty wisps in esthetic colors to the new wool crochets. A hat of wool crocheted with a stenciled design in contrasting colors and edged with bengaline ribbon would be a crowning is no reason why the amateur should not try out the experiment of transforming lengths of silk, chiffon or velvet into charming accessories, by embellishing them with paint and dye.

It is such fun to work out one's own ideas and that is the keynote of the picture in this issue for hand painting—to illustrate one's finery, so to speak. One paints scenic views on the ends of one's scarf, perhaps waves and a sailboat, and a figure or two across the sleeve of a sailor blouse, or a bizarre dragon on the back of one's satin bouffant or beach coat.

Fashion's latest whim is to paint necktie and handkerchief to match. Clever for the equestrienne is a tie and handkerchief with a horse's head or figure painted on each as shown in this group of accessories. Other of

For the more formal occasions, when good taste insists upon a more elaborate costume, the small hat need not necessarily be eliminated from the picture. Every wardrobe of hats for this summer should therefore include a little afternoon type. What could be more charming than this chic model of brown lace portrayed first in the group? It boasts a tracery of gold and its brim is faced with gold cloth.

In the larger brimmed models, hat, milan and ballinental will unquestionably dominate with a range of trimmings which begins with the simplest of ornaments and ends with the most elaborate arrangements of flowers and ostrich motifs. An exquisite exponent the tie and handkerchief sets in the picture are also decorated with quaint objects. For the tennis player an appropriate motif would be a tennis racket. Butterflies, birds and flowers are charming subjects for the artist.

Hand-blocked silk squares, preferred by many to scarfs, are done in gorgeous colors and in bold modernistic patternings after the style of those here pictured.

Millinery artistry and millinery diversity would seem to have at last reached its goal—that of providing suitable hats for all occasions and for all wearers, no matter what their

of the wide-brim type centers the illustration. Black velvet forms the crown and the deep flange is white hair braid.

Below to the left is a small hat in a jade speckled effect, stitched in square design. This model would be a very delightful finishing touch to a shopping and informal luncheon ensemble.

The last hat in the group is made of the new combination of yarn and viscra, using coral pink and white for its color scheme.

New York Planning to Put Streets on Roofs

New York city talks of a 10-mile roadway to be built on the roofs of 12-story buildings from the lower part of the city to Yonkers. Gotham's traffic problem is costing the city a million and a half dollars a day. This elevated highway on the roofs would be a motor-express thoroughfare. The man living out of town would motor down to his work without interference of cross-traffic and park his car on the roof of the building in which he makes his living. The improvement would soon pay for itself. Part of the plan calls for a series of moving platforms for pedestrians, along the second floor, the platforms running from a speed slow enough to step on easily, up to 20 miles an hour, to provide free transit on two new north and south avenues. It all reads like an H. G. Wells novel, but it may be realized.—Casper's Weekly.

The KITCHEN CABINET

It is not so much from any superior genius that one man possesses over another, but more from attention to study, and perseverance in the objects before them, some men rise to greater eminence than others.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

When serving spinach some time when the meat dish is rather low in protein, add a cupful of grated or finely cut cheese to the hot cooked spinach; stir and cook until the cheese is well melted, then serve.

Hashed Brown Potatoes.—Cut fat

salt pork into cubes, fry out and remove the scraps and measure the fat, of which there should be two and one-half tablespoonfuls for each cupful of potatoes, cut into fine cubes. Add the cupful of cold boiled potatoes to the fat and cook three minutes over a hot fire stirring constantly; then let stand to brown underneath. Fold the same as an omelet and serve garnished with parsley.

When cooking the first choice new peas, shell them and cook the pods in water to cover, drain and use the liquor to cook the peas. The flavor will be greatly enhanced and the mineral matter and vitamins which are valuable food substances, also. Add a teaspoonful of sugar to a dish of peas when cooking if they seem to lack sweetness; this is a good method for almost any vegetable such as corn, carrots or squash.

Green Peas Cooked With Lettuce.—

Have ready a quart of fresh peas and a head of lettuce. Shred the leaves of the lettuce coarsely and place over the peas in boiling water, add one small onion and a bunch of parsley, cover and cook twenty-five minutes, or until the peas are tender. Remove the onion and parsley. Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one-fourth cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of salt and pepper to season; add the hot liquor from the peas and when smooth, add to dish of peas and simmer for six minutes. Just before serving add three tablespoonfuls of butter and serve at once.

Peach Sherbet.—Boil fifteen minutes, one cupful of water and two cupfuls of sugar; let cool and add one and one-half cupfuls of peach pulp and juice and the juice of a lemon. Freeze as usual.

Everyday Good Things.

A nice way to serve a cupful or two of leftover fish is to flake it, put a layer of the fish in a buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs, then add sufficient cream to moisten, cover with crumbs and brown in the oven.

Sautéed Tenderloins.—

Cut the tenderloins into inch slices, pound until well flattened, then fry in a little butter until well browned, season well with salt and pepper. Quarter bananas and fry them in the same fat, lay a piece on each tenderloin fillet and pour over the gravy from the pan.

Baked Fish, French Way.—Stuff the fish as usual, using any good bread-stuffing with seasoning. Pour over the fish a can of tomatoes and sprinkle over the top a clove of garlic finely minced; season with salt and pepper and butter, with a dash of cayenne. Bake as usual.

Kentucky Fried Chicken.—Cut up and rub well with seasonings of salt and pepper, sage, a dash of cayenne and flour. Put into a frying pan with enough lard in the bottom to just cover it, lay in the chicken and put into the oven to bake. It will need no watching and will be evenly cooked.

Molded Ham.—Take a large cupful of chopped ham, add the yolk of an egg, a teaspoonful of marjoram, mix well and press into a greased pan, then unroll in a baking pan. Sift over the top buttered crumbs and bake until well browned. Serve on a hot platter with tomato sauce.

Chicken Victoria.—Cream two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the yolks of three hard cooked eggs rubbed to a paste. Soak one-fourth cupful of cracker crumbs in one-fourth cupful of milk fifteen minutes, then add the egg mixture. Pour on gradually one cupful of chicken stock and when boiling add one cupful of cooked chicken cut into small pieces. Gelatin, tapioca and custard are all good and easily digested desserts.

Mackerel Fillets With Drawn Butter.—Pour two cupfuls of boiling water over the fish, adding two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice or vinegar. Remove to a hot platter and pour over the following sauce: Take one and one-half cupfuls of boiling water, two tablespoonfuls of flour and three of butter, cook until smooth, then add one tablespoonful of lemon juice, salt, pepper and finely minced parsley.

Sliced Baked Salmon.—Take nice slices of fresh salmon, cut an inch thick and place in the bottom of a buttered baking pan. Cover the top with thin strips of bacon. Add a little water or bouillon and bake for twenty to twenty-five minutes well covered in a hot oven. Serve with tomato sauce.

WORKED PLAY TO GET TWO RUNNERS

Trick Had Much to Do With Phillies Winning Flag.

A play originated by Pat Moran and practiced by the Phillies during the season of 1914, when it doubtless had a lot to do with the winning of the National league pennant by the Phillies that year, was the retiring of two runners, instead of one, when a player is trapped between the bases on a grounder to the infield. In this play, with a runner on second, when the batter hit a grounder down to the infield that permitted of the runner being trapped between second and third, it always has been the practice of the runner to jiggle up and down the base line as long as he can in order to give the batter a chance to advance to second while the runner is being retired.

The way the Phillies played it was to let him "jiggle" and prance up and down the base lines without any effort on their part to retire him until the batter, rushing around to reach second, was hearing that base. Bancroft always fast at tagging runners, would plant himself on the second base bag and the other infielders, apparently trying to retire the runner caught between second and third, would run him back toward second. Seeing the batter nearing second, they would then give the runner they had trapped a clear field back to second and toss the ball to Bancroft, who would tag the runner sliding back into second; then turn quickly and also tag out the batter racing down to second from first.

That play was always successful for the Phillies so long as the batter had advanced too far toward second for him to get back safely to first without himself being trapped or tagged out.

University of Kansas Has Two Cage Captains

V. G. Burton '23, star guard, and J. J. Hill '23, forward, will hold the captaincy of the University of Kansas basketball team jointly in 1923. Both players were elected at a banquet held here recently in honor of the championship Kansas team. Burton was second high scorer of the Crimson and Blue team this season. Hill while not a regular the past two seasons, plays a fine brand of basket ball. This is the first time in the history of the school that a basketball team has had two captains. Chancellor E. H. Lindley announced the members of the championship squad who won letters the past season are: Capt. G. H. Schmidt '23, Albert Peterson '23, G. E. Gordon '23, Hill, Burton, B. S. Jeffrey '23, C. F. Newland '23 and R. W. Maney '23.

William Muldoon (shown in photograph) the iron man of the New York Athletic commission, says that $25 will continue to be the maximum charge permitted for ringside seats to fights in the empire state.

That means the next fight in which Gene Tunney takes part in the East will be held at the Sesqui stadium Philadelphia, says a writer in an exchange. Rickard cannot afford to handle such a show at Yankee stadium for that low limit. He can't afford the high cost of fighters.

Queer country where, with 90,000 seats under $25 top price, one can't afford to pay off the principals in the show and still make a profit.

O'Farrell's Tough Job

The consensus of the National league managers is that Bob O'Farrell has the hardest job bequeathed any major manager. "For O'Farrell to be a success, and keep pleasing the fans, he cannot afford to drop lower than third at any stage of the race," says one pilot. "His club isn't as strong as he believed, and no team can lose so great a player as Hornsby and not have trouble filling the gap, with even so clever a man as Frankie Frisch as substitute."

You Can Use This McCormick-Deering Cultivator on All Your Row Crops—
Corn, Cotton, Beans, Etc.

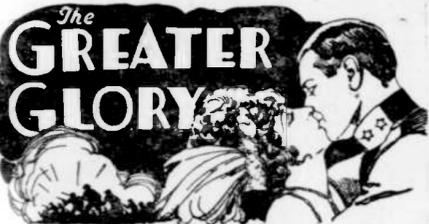

ONE of the biggest reasons for the popularity of this cultivator is its adaptability to all row crops. Growers find it ideally suited for cotton cultivation. And when the beans, corn, and other row crops need cultivating they ring the New 4 in on that work as well.

Another reason for the New 4's popularity is the fact that a 12-year-old boy can operate this cultivator all day, dodging stalks or hills out of line, with perfect ease. Such easy operation makes long days seem shorter by taking most of the fatigue out of the work.

Whatever your row crops or soil, count on the McCormick-Deering New 4 when you need a new cultivator.

MUST DEFEND RIGHTS, COOLIDGE DECLARES

President in Memorial Day Address Says Peace Without Arms Is Folly.

Washington.—President Coolidge in his Memorial Day address in Arlington cemetery here, called upon the nations of the world to discard force and to substitute justice in place of brutal war for settling international differences.

And while urging an era of international comity, he pleaded with the people of the United States to obey their own laws and to treat the rights of all others with charitable consideration in order that their own example may demonstrate America's desire for peace throughout the world.

The United States is ready to negotiate with Great Britain and Japan for limitation of armaments in order that the military incentive for war may be reduced, President Coolidge declared.

In China, Mexico and Nicaragua, the sole purpose of this government will be to promote an early adjustment of their grave troubles on the basis of good will and justice, he asserted.

He declared in a few brief sentences the aims of the United States in its peace promoting policy, as follows:

"We wish to discard the element of force and compulsion in international agreements and conduct and rely on reason and law.

"While we wish for peace everywhere, it is our desire that it should be not a peace imposed by America, but a peace established by each nation for itself.

"We want our relationship with other nations based not on a meeting of bayonets, but on a meeting of minds.

"We want our intercourse with them to rest on justice and fair dealing and the mutual observance of all rightful obligations in accordance with international custom and law.

"We have sufficient reserve resources so that we need not be hasty in asserting our rights. We can let our patience be commensurate with our power.

"It is in accordance with this policy that we have sought to discontinue the old practice of competition in armaments and cut our influence on the side of reasonable limitations.

"We recognize that in the present state of the world this is not a vision which will be immediately realized, yet little by little, step by step, in every practical way, we should show our determination to press on toward this mark of our high calling."

In the solemn presence of the heroic dead, President Coolidge justified the causes for which they suffered their lives and made their record the basis for his claim that no nation can justly look upon America's aim with suspicion.

"It would be idle to place a wreath on the grave of the dead and leave ungarlanded the brow of the living," he asserted in calling for loyal backing of the present military forces.

"We cannot be loyal to the flag if we fail in our admiration for the uniform."

President Coolidge here declared that the United States, while aiming for peace, must maintain a military establishment sufficient to guard the country against aggression. He said:

"However much we pursue the paths of peace, however much we are determined to live on terms of good will both at home and abroad, we cannot escape the fact that there are still evil forces in the world which all past experience warns us will break out from time to time and do serious damage to lawful rights and the progress of civilization unless we are prepared to meet such situations with armed intervention."

"We could no more dispense with our military forces than we could dispense with our police forces. While we are firmly convinced that it is altogether practical and possible by international covenants to limit them in size, to consent to their abolition would be to expose ourselves first to aggression and finally to destruction.

"If we are sincere in our expressed determination to maintain tranquility at home and peace abroad, we must not neglect to lay our course in accordance with the unshaken facts of life. We know that we have come into possession of great wealth and high place in the world. There is scarcely a civilized nation which is not our debtor. We are sufficiently acquainted with human nature to realize that we are oftentimes the object of envy.

President Coolidge then commended the rightful pride of Americans in their America.

"Unless we maintain sufficient forces to be placed at points of peril when they arise, thereby avoiding for the most part serious attacks, there would be grave danger that we should suffer from violent outbreaks, so destroying our rights and compromising our honor that war would become inevitable.

"It is to protect ourselves from such danger that we maintain our national defense. Under this policy it is perfectly apparent that our forces are dedicated solely to the preservation of peace."

Unity comes best for obeying the law, the President said.

"If our country should be given over to violence and crime, it would be necessary to diminish bonds of our freedom to secure order and self-preservation. In whatever direction we may go we are always confronted with the inescapable conclusion that unless we observe the law we cannot be free.

"Unless we are an industrious, orderly nation we can neither minister to our requirements or be an effective influence for good in the world."

PERSHING TO SPEAK

Lindbergh to Leave for United States Flyer to Board George Washington; Hobnobbed With Kings, Princes.

Gen. John J. Pershing.

Indianapolis.—At the laying of the cornerstone of the shrine of the Indiana war memorial plaza here July 4, Gen. John J. Pershing will deliver the principal address. It was announced here.

MELLON MAPS PLAN TO RECALL L. BONDS

Government Will Issue New 3 3/8 Per Ct. Certificates.

Washington.—Secretary Mellon has announced his plan to refund nearly $1,700,000,000 of second Liberty loan bonds, in one of the largest financial operations in recent years.

These liberties will be exchanged July 15 for new 3 3/8 per cent treasury bonds. The exchange, with the refunding of $1,300,000,000 of the second Liberty loan at a lower interest rate last March, will save the government $23,000,000 a year in interest charges.

Simultaneously Mellon will make another slash of $178,000,000 in the amount of the public debt by paying off $275,000,000 of treasury certificates due June 15, and borrowing only $200,000,000.

By this slash and other debt operations in June the total debt reduction for the year ended June 30 will be increased to more than $1,100,000,000. Thus the government will wind up the treasury year owing about $18,500,000,000, having wiped out in eight years nearly a third of the immense debt piled up during the war.

The peak was reached in August, 1919, with a debt total of $26,596,000,000.

In its June borrowing the treasury will sell for cash $200,000,000 of bonds of the same new issue used in the exchange plan. Despite the low interest rate the bonds will be offered at a premium of half of 1 per cent.

Second Liberty holders will not be required to pay this premium, exchanging their bonds for the new ones par for par, although the interest rate is one-eighth of 1 per cent lower than on the treasury notes offered in the March exchange.

The old bonds will cease to bear interest after November 15.

Washington.—Administration plans for a well distributed program of tax reduction in December were given a sharp jolt when the United States Chamber of Commerce demanded a $325,000,000 cut in the corporation tax alone. Calling for a cut in the corporation rate from 12 1/2 per cent to 10 per cent, the chamber said:

"Such a reduction should be made, even if it were to involve a deficit at the end of the fiscal year, on the ground that so heavy a burden on productive enterprises is wrong in principle and retards economic development."

The administration talk has been of a cut of 1 per cent.

HOOSIER YOUTH WINS IN INDIANAPOLIS AUTO RACE

Indianapolis, Ind.—Bilistered but blissful, a typical Hoosier won the world's premier high speed event when George Souders bounced his tiny Duesenberg racer over the finish tape at the Indianapolis speedway 5 hours 7 minutes and 33 1/100 seconds after he had wheeled it to the start of the annual 500 mile international race classic. His average speed for the five century drive was 97.54 miles an hour, or three and one-half miles an hour under the recognized record for the distance.

Earl Devore, driving a Miller, was second, twelve minutes behind the winner. Tony Gulotta in a Miller was third. Withal Shaw in the Chicago Jinx Special was fourth. Dave Evans in a Duesenberg was fifth. De Paolo in one of Earl Cooper's front drive specials was sixth, and remaining places in the money went to Eddie Hearne, Ralph Hepburn, Cliff Bergere, and Frank Elliott.

Smaller Paper Money

Washington.—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has authorized the reduction in the size of paper money by about one-third, beginning with dollar bills. The present size of the currency is 7 1/2 by 3 1/2 inches, while the new bills will be 6 1/2 by 2 1/2 inches.

Start Planting in Flood Areas

Washington.—Corn planting is in progress in some of the once flooded crop areas of Louisiana, according to a Department of Agriculture report.

Cyclone Hits Ball Park

Governors to Confer on Flood

Augusta, Me.—Flood and farm relief, decentralization of government and purity of the ballot are listed for discussion at the governors' conference, Mackinac, Mich., July 25 to 27.

LINDBERGH TO LEAVE FOR UNITED STATES

Flyer to Board George Washington; Hobnobbed With Kings, Princes.

London.—Captain Lindbergh, the famous U. S. flyer, is to depart this week for America. He will leave after a visit with kings, queens and princes; after a welcome such as has been accorded to few other citizens of the world. He had planned to sail on the George Washington, bringing his visit to an end sooner than had been anticipated, but he hopes to make a return visit to Europe later, when he will make a more extended visit and further investigate features of flying in which he is interested and which he has not on this visit been able to find time to give attention.

Lindbergh's original intention, before leaving New York on his great flight, was to return home on the George Washington. He admits he is terribly homesick.

The flyer, all along, wanted to study aviation conditions in the leading European countries, but now he is disposed to abandon the plan to wing his way to other capitals with the Spirit of St. Louis and has agreed to board the George Washington, provided that it is possible to do so without shirking existing commitments of a social character.

"One thing is certain," he said, "I am not going to leave my plane in Europe. I don't sail until it has been properly dismantled, crated and put aboard the ship that takes me home. The plane's destination is St. Louis, for reasons which everyone will understand."

One of his most important recent visits, following that with King Albert at Brussels, was with King George at Buckingham palace. Later he went to St. James palace to meet the prince of Wales.

On Memorial day Lindbergh went to St. Margaret's, Westminster, and visited the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Westminster abbey, where he placed a wreath.

Lindbergh's wreath of yellow and red roses was inscribed: "In memory of England's unknown warrior, from the American people."

The memorial service at St. Margaret's church was the quietest public gathering Lindbergh has attended since he arrived in Europe. The service lasted 45 minutes.

During that period, for the first time since he arrived on this side of the Atlantic, the young aviator was left entirely alone, not getting a single cheer.

"I am going back to the United States with one purpose in mind, and that is to forget that I am famous," said Captain Lindbergh. "I want to come back to Europe to study aviation. But I have no hope of doing so until I can travel incognito. When I hit St. Louis I am going to disappear. I am coming back to Europe to travel without letting anyone know I'm here."

12 Are Killed in Storms That Swept Three States

Bristol, Va.—Twelve persons are known to have been killed, more than a score are reported missing, a number injured and property damage to the extent of a million dollars in a series of rain, wind, hail, and electrical storms that swept parts of Kentucky, Tennessee, and Virginia.

Houses were washed away and buildings were undermined by streams swollen beyond their banks by heavy rains, earth slides blocked highways and railroads in some sections; more than sixty houses in widely-scattered areas either were blown down or damaged. Crops also suffered serious damage from hail. Southern Kentucky, where rains of cloudburst proportions lasting eleven hours, reported the greatest loss of life with nine known dead.

At Roxana, Ky., six persons were drowned after being trapped in their homes by flood. Three perished when their homes were swept into Tom's creek, in Johnson county, Kentucky. Two were drowned near Elizabethtown, Tenn.; another was electrocuted by a submerged wire in a creek at Johnson City, Tenn.

Root Stock Now Easy to Propagate

Most Fruits Do Not Reproduce Profitably From Seed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Although the ordinary fruit tree is an "assembled article" in which the part under ground is generally grown from seed and the part above ground is the result of grafting a bud on the seedling root stock, horticulturists in the past have confined their improvement efforts to the part of the tree above ground. Recently, however, the United States Department of Agriculture, has undertaken to bring about further improvement by developing a method of producing better root stocks, or underground parts on which to graft or bud the desired varieties.

Vegetative Propagation. It is well known by nurserymen and orchardists that most fruits do not reproduce varieties from seed; that budding or some other form of vegetative propagation must therefore be used to multiply a given variety. It is not so well recognized, however, that seedling root stocks also vary in their hereditary make-up. The practice of selecting most root stocks from seed is probably responsible for much of the irregularity in their performance and the ultimate failure of many orchard trees.

Guy E. Yerkes, horticulturist in the bureau of plant industry of the department, has conducted enough tests to show that some root stocks can be propagated by means of root cuttings and in this way faithfully reproduce the mother root system. The mother trees selected have shown exceptional vigor and indications of resistance to insects and diseases. The vegetative propagations from these mother trees are being tested to determine their ability for the various worked-out root stocks also vary in their hereditary make-up. The practice of selecting most root stocks from seed is probably responsible for much of the irregularity in their performance and the ultimate failure of many orchard trees.

Several apple, cherry, and plum selections already made are showing superiority over seedling stocks in the nursery. By propagating them vegetatively—by means of cuttings or layers rather than by seed—the characteristics of the mother plant are assured in the progeny. Inexpensive

Duck Raising Very Easy

When Weather Gets Warm Duck raising is very easy if you begin when the weather gets warm. They should be hatched past the middle of May; it is usually warm by that time of year.

When they are 24 hours old feed them corn bread crumbs moistened with sweet milk, writes Edna Dalton of Hartsville, Tenn., in the Southern Ruralist. Keep plenty of water at all times, also some sand handy for them to get. Feed close to water as they take a bit of food and then a drink of water and will continue to do that until they get enough. Feed five times a day, mostly soft food, until large and old enough to only need three meals. Later just twice a day will be sufficient.

Let them have free range and a dry rooey box to roost in. They do not graze as geese but like insects and grain seeds and as a rule are healthy and thrifty, but one drop of carbolic acid to a quart of water now and then helps to keep them healthy.

TEST DIFFERENT METHODS OF STERILIZING MILK MACHINES

Units Were First Sterilized by Heating in Water.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A number of methods of handling milking-machine units between milkings have been tested by the bureau of dairy industry of the United States Department of Agriculture. In all the methods tested the units were first sterilized by heating in water at a temperature of 100 to 105 degrees Fahrenheit for 20 to 45 minutes and then were disposed of until the next milking as follows: (1) Placing in a weak chlorine solution; (2) allowing them to remain between milkings in the water in which they were sterilized; (3) placing them in a refrigerator; and (4) placing them in a warm room. The bacterial counts of the milk handled in these four ways showed that the methods rank in efficiency in the order named. The weak chlorine solution method gave an average count of 2,500 bacteria per cubic centimeter; the water method, 270 bacteria per cubic centimeter; the refrigerator method, an average of 3,100 bacteria; and the warm room method, an average of 5,300 bacteria per cubic centimeter. Sterilizing at a temperature of 145 to 150 degrees Fahrenheit and holding in a warm room between milkings allowed an average of 11,350 bacteria per cubic centimeter of milk.

Growing Onion Crop

In growing a crop of onions it is well to remember that as a general rule it is the early sown crop which produces the best quality. The soil should be sown early, the ground should be frozen by the time the onion is sown, and the soil should be well prepared. The onion should be sown in a warm room, and the soil should be well prepared. The onion should be sown in a warm room, and the soil should be well prepared.

Calves for Meat

If an abundance of skim milk is available it may be used to raise calves for meat production at an older age. The practice seems to work better with breeds that are not strictly dairy breeds. Dairy cows are usually so bred that they can generally be used for their skim milk in raising calves for meat. The calves should be sown in a warm room, and the soil should be well prepared. The onion should be sown in a warm room, and the soil should be well prepared.

Wormy Raspberries

The American raspberry is a cause of worry to many growers. There are other insects which attack raspberries, but the most common is the raspberry worm. The raspberry worm is a caterpillar which feeds on the fruit. The raspberry worm is a

STORY FROM THE START

From the comfortable financial position which had been attained by the late Mr. Barnes, the recluse of Fifth Avenue, the story begins...

his fancy amazingly. Quaint bridges, little streams with brilliant goldfish, garden-lanterns, strangely set stones, made this back yard of seventy feet long by half as much wide the most entrancing garden he had seen on this Avenue where he, too, had been born.

Veteran Opera Goes Startled by Tamagno

Caruso, in his prime, possessed the most powerful voice most people ever heard, but there lived before him the great tenor Tamagno, whose voice possessed even greater volume.

King-Maker was the name given to Richard Neville, earl of Warwick, one of the most powerful nobles of the Middle Ages.

Petals Turn Back

A rather remarkable trait of the hibiscus, says the Nature Magazine, is that often, after it has been plucked, the petals will turn back, gradually returning again to normal several hours later.

thrilled many years ago by Mr. Barnes' horsemanship. "Very handsome of you to say so," said Neeland Barnes. "I flatter myself I could ride in those days."

"What I am going to say may seem nothing whatever to do with me at first. It may even be that you will consider me guilty of some breach of good form when I mention certain matters in the past life of all three of you. If so, I beg you to believe I shall say nothing idly. I have a definite plan in asking you to meet, and I must tell my story in my own way."

Peter Milman looked on one to the other of them a little anxiously. He was meticulous in matters of personal conduct, and he feared he might be exceeding his rights.

"So far as I am concerned," said Fleming Bradley, "you have nothing to fear. I have done nothing to be ashamed of, although I cannot expect the world to believe that."

"My reputation," said Malet, "is a trifle besmudged, but I have long since ceased applying whitewash. Juvenal says that to be poor is to be ridiculous. Well, Mr. Milman, I can plead guilty to that count."

Peter Milman turned courteously to the third guest. "Don't mind me," said Barnes genially. "I am used to it. If you had had all the d--n silly relations I've had, you'd have no sensitive spots left. I have been worthless since birth."

Floyd thought of his lonely room, his ungenial work, and looked about him and sighed. He liked this unknown Peter Milman, with his charming manner and a dignity that had something forgotten and Victorian about it.

"And he lost it," Milman's quiet, precise voice went on. "He lost it, and with it the chance of making a career of supreme service to mankind. I wonder if Mr. Bradley would mind telling us how."

Women Not "Weaker Sex" While the race always has regarded man as the stronger of the species he's actually woman's superior only where tests of physical power are concerned.

No Parents Nor Alumni

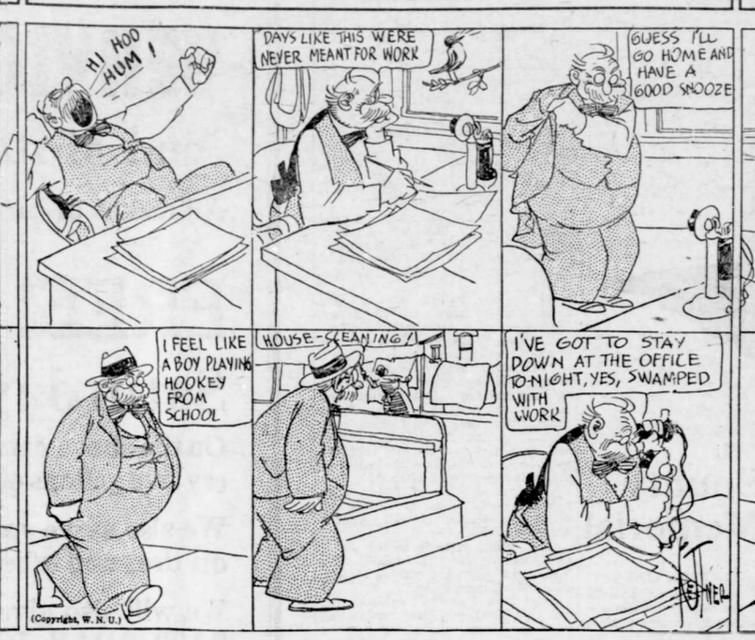

The story goes that several college presidents were discussing what they would do after they retired.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Michigan.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time. I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."—Mrs. E. F.
