The funeral was held Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. with services in St. Michaels Catholic church. Rev. J. F. Beyer officiated. Burial was made in the congregation's cemetery.

STORE NEARING COMPLETION

The work of remodeling the interior of the feed store, the front part of which was formerly used as the post office, and until recently owned by Mrs. Martha Marx, located just west of the railroad tracks on Main street, and which was purchased by John Marx, who is having the same changed into an up-to-date grocery store, is now nearing completion. Mr. Marx has already started to move some of his stock from the present quarters into the new place, and will be ready for the opening day of the new store by Friday, Oct. 7th. In the manner in which the place has been remodeled, it gives every promise that the new Kewaskum Grocery Store, will be a very neat and modern store.

RABBIT SEASON OPENS NOVEMBER 1

Hunters and others of Washington county gathered at Klassen's hall at West Bend last Monday evening, in the form of a protest meeting, called by the Washington County Fish and Game Protective association. The meeting was very largely attended and practically all present were strongly in favor of having the season for rabbit hunting closed until November 1st, instead of October 1st, which is being allowed by a new state law passed by the legislature. According to opinions expressed by those present that the early opening of the season was unjust, because of the infirmities of the animals for eating, the fact that hunters therefore kill the young for sport only and because the early season and this alleged "wholesale" slaughter will deplete the supply for future hunting, it could be plainly seen that the new law is very unpopular, especially by those hunters who believe in hunting rabbits and other game within strict obedience of the law. Just why the legislature should pass such a law, is rather hard to understand, other than to say and believe it must have been a political scheme, for in order to make hunting worth while, and to get out of it the true sport there is in it, wild game must be protected and given a chance to multiply and mature, which under the new law would be impossible. In recent years, to go hunting and come home with the bag limit, was a prize, for often and many a time the sportsman was obliged to return without any game. Rabbits from other states were sent to Washington county by order of the Protective association and others and planted in an effort to re-stock the present low supply of the cotton tail tribe, but due to the fact that a number insisted upon hunting in violation of the law, did not help matters any. Due credit must therefore be given the Washington County Fish and Game Protective association and others who worked in harmony with the association, to give proper protection to wild game and again bring the sport of hunting back to that stage when it will be worth while to take out license and spend the time to try and shoot a just share of the cotton tail tribe. Unless such action is taken no good can be expected, for "grain sown and not allowed to grow into the age of maturity cannot be harvested."

AREA TEST TO START OCT. 1

Word has been received from W. A. Duffy, Commissioner of Agriculture, that the area test for tuberculosis in cattle will commence in Washington county on October 1. Every herd in the county will be tested. About sixty per cent of the cattle in the county have already been tested either under the group plan or privately or under state supervision. Every herd in the county will be tested at this time whether they have been tested before or not.
The number of cattle reacting on tests so far in the county has been small and owing to the fact that many reactors have been taken out would indicate that the percentage of reactors in the area test will be comparatively light.
The test will mean increased outlets for cattle and dairy products to Washington county dairymen.

CAR HITS POST TO AVOID CRASH

To avoid being struck by a train at a crossing near West Bend, Arthur Goeden of West Bend swerved his sedan to the right and it struck an iron signal post a short distance from the track. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Goeden, escaped serious injury, although the former sustained a wrenching shoulder. The car was badly damaged. The automobile signal was working, it is said, and the train whistled but occupants of the closed car apparently did not hear the signals.

MEMORIAL

In loving memory of our dear father, who passed away one year ago October 1st:
Dear is the spot where our father is laid,
Fond is his memory which shall never fade.
The rose that is sweetest and fairest,
Is the bud which was killed by the frost,
The love that was sweetest and rarest,
Is our dear father we have lost,
Sleep dear father, and enjoy your rest,
For God took you, he knows best.
Sadly missed by Mrs. L. Vorpahl and family.

"STEEL PREFERRED" AT THE KEWASKUM MOVIES
Realism in motion pictures—this has been the demand of the motion picture public ever since the screen became an entertainment factor in everyday life.
When the rights to "Steel Preferred" were purchased, by Metropolitan Pictures Corporation, the first move was to send a company of players to the heart of the steel industry—Pittsburgh and its environs—where the big scenes were photographed.
During the filming of the picture one of the big scenes in the production was the destruction of a complete ladle train carrying many tons of molten metal. A portion of the railroad track was weakened, so that, when the train with its burden of red hot steel reached this point, the track collapsed causing the ladles to tip and spill their contents of liquid steel down the hillside, where Vera Reynolds and Nigel Barrie were standing.
All the members of the company followed the flowing metal from one stage to another, and many of the gigantic furnaces, Bessemer, mixers and converters, as well as the ladle train, play a big part in the production. "Steel Preferred" will be the feature at the Opera House tomorrow, Sunday.
The featured players in this big production are Vera Reynolds, William Boyd, Hobart Bosworth and Charlie Murray. The supporting cast includes Nigel Barrie, Walter Long, Ben Turpin and Helene Sullivan. The picture is thrilling and there are many laughs. The story has to do with the struggle of an ambitious mill worker who loves the daughter of a steel magnate, to train in the world. How he wins against almost insuperable handicap is graphically pictured.

FOUR GENERATIONS

The Menger-Lehner family of Slinger is another of the family groups of our locality which can boast of containing four generations. The eldest of the four is Anton Menger of Slinger who is 83 years of age, and who spent the greater share of his life as pumpman on the Soo Line there. For the past number of years, however, he has been pensioned by his company and is retired. He now makes his home with his daughter, Mrs. William Lehner, the second link in the chain of four. Her son, Joseph Lehner, is the third. He lives in Milwaukee, where he is employed in the Public Service building. The last, but far from the least important in the four, is little Miss Dorothy Lehner, aged three, who is the adored center of a large circle of relatives.—Hartford Times.

WASHINGTON COUNTY NURSE RESIGNS

News was received here this week that Miss Cecilia M. Giesing of West Bend, who so ably and efficiently, served as county nurse of Washington county for the past five years, resigned her position, and will take a post graduate course in nursing at Cleveland. Her resignation will take effect November 1. Miss Giesing was a lady who took a deep interest in her work. Through her untiring efforts, she accomplished a great deal, perhaps more than any previous county nurse has accomplished in the making of better, more sanitary and healthier schools and children. She received the hearty co-operation of not only the teachers of the various schools but the parents as well, to aid and assist her in exterminating, diseases among school children, especially tuberculosis. Her resignation will be received with much regret by every person she came in contact with in the county. All join in wishing her continued success in her new undertaking.

RECOVERS HIS TRUCK

Frank Rose, the well known well digger of the town of Kewaskum, is wearing a broad smile these days, and well he has reasons to do so, for he has recovered his truck which was stolen from its place several weeks ago. This was accomplished through hard detective work of Mr. Rose, Chief-of-Police Geo. F. Brandt of this village and other officials, the truck was finally located. Five weeks ago, when Mr. Rose missed the truck he also missed his hired man, Joseph Polock, which aroused his suspicion. Mr. Rose immediately reported the same to Mr. Brandt and together the two started their detective work, calling on Polock's relatives at Milwaukee from whom they received enough information to learn that the truck was at the home of one of his relatives residing in the vicinity of Wild Rose and Princeton. On Monday Mr. Rose went to Wild Rose and in company with Sheriff J. E. Mc Gee went to the home of a brother-in-law where the truck was found. Polock, however, had left for parts unknown several weeks ago. Mr. Rose brought the truck home with him the same day.

Coveleskie Man of Honor

The curiously pathetic figure of a worn-out pitcher has walked through the New York Yankee camp, Stanley Coveleskie, who joined the club for a trial, convinced himself that he cannot do the Yankees any good and has gone to his home in Shamokin, Pa., because he is honorable. He did not seek to conceal the fact that his pitching arm is bothering him again. He might have done so and stalled, somehow, for weeks on end, but that isn't his way. He simply told Miller Huggins he was through and went home.

It was only a very few years ago that Coveleskie was one of the best, and certainly one of the smartest, of all the big league pitchers. He was with the Indians then. This Spunker thought he was through and traded him to Washington, where he pitched Lucey Harris' team to their second pennant in 1925, winning 20 games and losing only 5. Last year he was not quite so good, yet he managed to turn in 14 victories against 11 defeats. His service with the Washingtons ended recently when, unable to throw a ball more than 15 feet, he drew his unconditional release. His trial with the Yankees was a challenge to that fate he had thwarted three years ago.

Coveleskie, even in appearance, is unmistakably of the older school of professional ball players. It was not in a mood of utter hopelessness that he came to the Yankees. He thinks that a long rest and careful treatment will rid his system of the infection caused by his teeth—which is the basis of the trouble he has had with his arm—and that next spring he will be able to demonstrate all over again his usefulness to a major league club. The chances, unhappily, are against him for numerous reasons. One is that he is thirty-six years old now. Another is that he has pitched nearly 450 games in the majors.

Man Gets Cup Won Thirty Years Ago

Thirty years ago Jacob Mazer was the winner of a bicycle race between Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The cup which Mazer and the other members of the leading team won was awarded and put away for future races. None was held, bicycle racing going out of style. The cup was forgotten until the other evening when friends of Mazer, who had obtained it recently from its donors, presented it to the veteran athlete at a banquet given in his honor.

Sport Notes

Basketball is taken more seriously than football in the state of Indiana.

Billy Sixty, a qualifier in the national amateur meet, is a Milwaukee sports writer.

Fidel La Barba has deserted the prize ring to go to college. From result to reason, eh?

Horseshoe pitching is said to be in need of a Judge Landis. "Ringers" are being used.

North Carolina's stadium is completed, a full three months ahead of scheduled time.

Harvard university may increase its stadium seating capacity 1,000 to 1,500 for football games.

Tiny Roberts, former Olethorpe grid star, is fighting under the management of Walk Miller.

Yale plans to build a field gymnasium for use of its athletic teams during the winter months.

Midshipman Michael Bazdanovitch, class of 1928, has been elected captain of Navy's varsity crew.

On the roof of a New York building will be built a 36-hole golf course soon, the first of its kind in America.

Denver is said to have the longest public golf course in the United States, measuring 6,707 yards in length.

The record for the English channel swim is 11 hours 5 minutes, made last year by Georges Michel, the Paris biker.

Miss Susanne Lenzlen, the French tennis professional, has been barred from competition during next year's Olympic games.

While there is no standard weight for golf clubs, modern clubs are distinctly lighter than those in use 10 or 15 years ago.

So popular has archery become in the Pacific northwest that an archery association has been formed to arrange for regular tournaments.

Theodore (Tiny) Koebuck, full-blooded Choctaw Indian, who starred at tackle last season for the Haskell team, has decided to enter the professional ring as a heavyweight boxer.

Harry Legg, who eliminated George von Elm in the national amateur race, won the transmississippi championship four times in succession, beginning in 1906.

Son Edwin, regarded as one of the best two-year-old colts of the year, has been sold to W. Averill Harriman of the Arden Farms stable by Willis Sharpe Kilmer. The price was reported to be $75,000.

Mr. Brisbane wants to know why intelligent people will pay a million dollars to see a prize fight. The answer probably is that they do so because there aren't enough complimentary seats to go around.

The lowest score for 36 holes in a regularly supervised and recognized golf tourney is credited to George Livingston, a professional, who turned in a card of 133 at Nashville, Tenn., last year.

Care Free, an old plater, hung up his eighty-eighth victory at Dorval Park, Canada, and the Alexander family, who own this thoroughbred, plan to race him as long as he continues to stand training.

Alex Gray, veteran member of Port Arthur's amateur hockey team, will turn professional to join the New York Rangers.

It is the inalienable right of this great nation or golf champion of Great Britain.

Americans who are thrilled over the signed remarks of almost illiterate pugilists seem to get a great deal of amusement out of the long words in a five-year-old king's proclamation.

Pipe Organ Strains for Boxing Bout Not Liked

Archie Bell, the New York bantamweight, and his American seconds were startled by the swelling, melancholy strains of a pipe organ when the little party was ushered into Royal Albert hall for the 15-round bout with Teddy Baldoek, British fighter, which Bell lost on points. The New Yorkers, especially Bell, looked around amazed, wondering what it was all about.

The organ, often heard by the king and queen, is one of the largest in the world, and is always played at big festive contests. Its base was hidden from the Americans by enormous black and white figures for use in indicating the rounds, but some of its 9,000 odd pipes reach nearly to the ceiling.

"All-American" Team

Photo shows Albert Hawkey, a full-blooded Indian of the Assiniboine tribe, who will captain the Haskell institute football team this year. The Haskell institute is the largest Indian school in the United States, and its football team went through all last season without a single defeat.

Changes Help Football

Louis Little, Georgetown university director of athletics, believes the changes made in the football rules will help the game. He points out that the sport will be aided as to the offensive department and that the changes are timely, as there has been an inclination for the past several seasons to pay most attention to building the sport from a defensive standpoint. Incidentally, Little has a real job in replacing former stars on his team.

Horse Sense Counts

When you file into the mountains, forget the pedicore of the horse you straddle. Measure him instead by his horse sense alone. Looks don't count much. Good horse sense does a lot. It is this quality that every mountain trail horse must have in great gobs, or he will get into situations where any but a level-headed nag will break his neck and, perhaps, that of his rider, too. A plain horse will sometimes, if occasion arises, go into a blue funk.

Gene Tunney Tells Boys Right Road to Success

Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion of the world, broke his characteristic silence at Dayton, Ohio, recently and told some 5,000 news carriers the way to success.

Climbing from a marine who fought for $30 a month to the gentleman of the ring with a million-dollar valuation on his services, Gene Tunney's admonition appeared to register.

The first bit of advice he gave was not to smoke, because, he said, smoking kills the appetite and three square meals a day are absolutely necessary to proper development.

"Early to bed" was Tunney's second tip.

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include two-cent stamp for reply.

"Never take a drink of alcoholic liquor," was the next in line.

Fourth in his catechism was this: "Don't use profane language. It's a vulgarity for cowards only."

And lastly: "Have the will to win and you'll win."

Plenty of Sunlight Assured for This Specially Designed Hog Barn

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include two-cent stamp for reply.

Sunlight is nature's greatest aid to sanitation. This fact is recognized by all who have made a study of designing houses for sows and their young pigs. Not only does the warmth of the sunlight admitted to the house insure the small pigs against chills, but the sun also keeps the interior of the house dry and sanitary.

These facts were the basis for the design of the hog house shown in the illustration. The round, gothic-shaped roof permits of numerous roof windows, so placed that they will admit sunlight, no matter how high or low the sun. As the house is placed so that its length is north and south, the first rays of the morning sun strike the lower windows on one side, and the last rays of the afternoon sun likewise are let into the building.

This house is 24 feet wide and 49 feet long. It is of frame construction, the rafters for the gothic roof being of built-up pieces of lumber, to get the semicircular shape, as shown in the cross-section of the building shown with the floor plan below.

The floor plans show eight individual pens on one side of the house and six on the other, all facing a center feed alley. At one corner is the feeding room and bins for feed. Over the feed alley is a carrier track which leads from the feed room to all of the pens. This is a labor-saving convenience and enables one man to care for

Rust-Proof Copper Nails

Oblivate Water Seepage

A common cause of early leakage of a wood shingle roof is rapid corrosion of the nails with which the shingles are fastened. If you use wooden shingles it is much more economical to use copper or brass roofing nails as a protection against this source of rapid deterioration.

But there is no better roof covering than copper, and while you might have said it costs too much, you have seen that it is cheaper because you pay for it only once. It lasts as long as the very foundations of your house. It needs no upkeep, repairs, painting. It is fireproof, 100 per cent. Connected with the ground by a downspout it furnishes a most dependable protection against lightning.

A copper roof is economical in construction because it is much the lightest weight roofing material. In addition a copper roof with the beautiful old green protective coating the weather, or the roofing contractor (for it is possible to color copper in 24 hours) quickly gives it, enhances the appearance of any structure.

There are, of course, other good roofing materials. But time has proved copper the best, and while others may perform satisfactorily, you know that copper positively will.

Examine Grades in Oak Flooring Before Choice

There are several grades of oak flooring. In quarter-sawn oak the best grain is known as "clear," having one face practically clear from defects. The next grade is known as "sap clear," which has one face prac-

Importance of Proper Spacing Between Lath

In order to save plaster and speed up the work, lathers sometimes place the lath too close together, making it impossible for plasterers to put on the required amount of plaster to make a good job. The result of this skimping is certain to be a lot of future trouble for the home owner.

When lath is spaced properly three-eighths of an inch apart, plaster may be forced through the openings so that it will hang over on the rear of the lath. This filled space between the lath and the lathwork is called the "key." Literally this key holds or locks the plaster to the lath and is the only support of the plaster.

Lacking the key the plaster may fall or crumble from a slight disturbance; with a proper key it will hang where it belongs in spite of all kinds of heavy shocks.

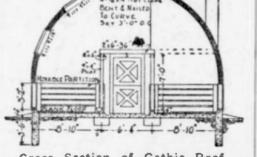

Although the standard building code requirement is three-eighths of an inch for the thickness and three coats to the finished job, architects usually specify a minimum thickness of one-half inch and demand that sufficient drying time be allowed between coats. Lath marks will not show through a well built, carefully dried three-coat job, a better finish is obtained and added security given.

Building inspectors throughout the United States say that poor plaster jobs are common in cheap house construction and that the public in general needs education on the value of good lathing and plastering.

Practical Builder Knows What Materials Are Best

The up-to-date builder knows from experience what construction materials wear the longest, look the best and satisfy the home owner most. Accordingly, he makes helpful and valuable suggestions. For the roof—a type of roofing which has proved well pleased. And for the walls, wallpaper, because it adds life, color, beauty and is recommended as correct style by the country's leading decorators.

place for the deep litter that makes the beds for the small pigs when the weather is cold, and the concrete or metal troughs that are installed in each pen are easily cleaned. A shallow gutter that runs the length of the building at the front of each row of pens permits the attendant to hose out the pens and keep the house clean and sanitary.

This is an unusual type of farrowing house, but it has many features that will be recommended to the farmer who raises a considerable number of pigs, especially so when the sows are bred to farrow in late winter or early spring.

Improve Dairy Herd With Sires

High-Class Bull Is Essential if Improvement Is to Be Made.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Every dairy herd needs a high-class bull at its head if the herd is to be improved, says the United States Department of Agriculture. For the dairyman who has a small herd and is short on finances, the cheapest and best way to obtain the use of first-class pure-bred bulls is through the work of a co-operative dairy-bull association.

Purpose of Organization.
A bull association is a farmers' organization whose chief purpose is the breeding of better dairy cows through joint ownership, use, and systematic exchange of prepotent dairy bulls of high-producing ancestry. Improvement of the herd that may be expected through membership in such an organization is discussed in Farmers' Bulletin 1532-F, "Dairy-Herd Improvement Through Co-operative Bull Associations," just issued by the bureau of dairy industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

Through the system of transferring bulls from block to block, the bull association makes it impossible to keep the desirable bulls as long as they live or are fit for service. This enables a bull's daughters to come in milk and be tested while he is still owned by the association, and furnishes a means of determining which bulls are siring the high-producing daughters. The bulls that do not get satisfactory daughters are disposed of.

Study of Records.

A study of the records of the daughters of bull-association bulls showed an average yearly mature production of 8,071 pounds of milk and 342 pounds of butterfat. In milk production the daughters exceeded the dams by 33.5 per cent and in butterfat production by 14.4 per cent. Some of the sires are very outstanding. One sire, for instance, was mated with cows having an average yearly butterfat production of 347 pounds, yet his seven daughters from these cows exceeded their dams by 57 per cent in milk production and 44 per cent in production of butterfat.

Much progress has been made by selecting bulls on the records of their dams and granddams. The most rapid progress cannot come until dairy sires are selected on the production records of their daughters.

A copy of the bulletin may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

American Mule Ousting Horse for Farm Work

Recent statistics show that the long-earred, loud-voiced mule still continues to do a full share of the work of the farm despite the progress of motor-propelled machinery, writes Uthal V. Wilcox in the Dearborn Independent. The mule population of the United States has grown nearly a million head in the eleven years following 1914. It is now estimated at more than 5,411,000.

Government officials note that the growers of cotton, tobacco, rice and sugar cane have swung over almost entirely to the use of mules in preparing their crops. Experience seems to indicate that the mule can do the most work on the cheapest feed and with the lowest grade of driver.

Reports from the leading mule markets of the country, such as St. Louis, Kansas City, Atlanta and other places, show that the demand for mules is today very keen. In fact, one handler of farm animals said that "not since the war, when mules were used for cannon fodder, has the demand been so brisk."

The mule is becoming a favorite over the horse for the farm. The Kansas City market, as an example, showed 65 per cent horses to 35 per cent mules in other years and now it is 85 per cent mules and 15 per cent horses.

Crude Pine Tar Smeared on Husking Mitts Helps

According to the Nebraska Agricultural college authorities, crude pine tar smeared on the husking mittens several times during the day will make them last longer as well as help the husker jerk the shucks. Excepting in wet weather, well tarred mitts should last about twice as long as those without tar. Enough thick tar to cover the thumbs and palms and then a layer of dirt to absorb the stickiness will make a surface on the mitts that will wear well and also be rough enough to pull the shucks quickly. A set of thumb stalls of heavy cotton bannel or light canvas are mighty handy if a mitt should rip or wear out more quickly than usual.

The handiest addition to a husker's wagon is a little box hooked on the rod of the front gate in which he can keep his tar can, an extra pair of mitts and thumb stalls, and an extra husking hook or peg.

Lime for Alfalfa Year in Advance Is Favored

The best time to lime in preparation for alfalfa seeding is a year in advance, according to a bulletin in "Lining for Alfalfa," by F. J. Alway and C. O. West of the soils division, Minnesota agricultural experiment station. In fact, lime may be applied two or three years in advance of seeding without any loss in beneficial effects. If, however, one wishes to seed a piece of alfalfa in less than a year, he can get good effects by applying his lime several weeks in advance. The effectiveness, says the bulletin, which is for free distribution on application to the division of publications, University Farm, St. Paul—is much increased by thorough mixing with the soil. Usually lime or ground limestone is best applied after plowing. Then the disking and harrowing in preparation of the seed-bed provides the necessary mixing.

The farmer who decides a year in advance to seed an area to alfalfa, where lime is needed, may very well spread his limestone and then put the field into corn. The limestone will not damage the most sensitive young plants.

HORSESHOEING INFORMATION PRESENTED IN NEW BULLETIN

Using Unshod Animals Will Result in Tender Feet.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With the passing of the blacksmith shop from every crossroad, hamlet and village, the farmer is experiencing considerable difficulty in getting his horses shod. The solution of the problem in a large measure devolves upon the farmer himself in learning to do the work on his own farm. To assist the farmer in learning to care for the feet of his work stock properly and to shoe his horses, if necessary, the United States Department of Agriculture has prepared an illustrated bulletin on farm horseshoeing, known as Farmers' Bulletin 1535-F.

Using unshod horses and mules for pulling heavy farm machinery wears off the horny wall of the foot at the ground surface more rapidly than growth is supplied from above and will result in tender feet. A well-shod horse not only is kept in service but he is a more efficient worker in that he can better apply his strength because he has a better footing. It is important, however, that

Muddy Potatoes Should Be Dried Before Storing

Muddy potatoes should be dried so that they may be sorted before placing in winter storage. Rotting potatoes are hard to detect while covered with mud, and herein lies the chief danger of storing muddy potatoes.

This year many of the potatoes are being dug out of the mud. The opinion that muddy potatoes will not keep in storage is unfounded. In the Andean Highlands of South America, its native habitat, the potato tubers are stored naturally in the soil all winter.

In tests at the Ohio experiment station, John Rushnell, potato specialist, has found that sound potatoes keep equally well whether stored muddy or dried first.

It is better, therefore, to dry and sort muddy potatoes before placing them in winter storage. If spread out in a thin layer on a floor the mud dries and usually shells off readily, making it easy to sort the tubers when moving them from the drying shed to the storage cellar or pit.

Barley Before Wheat

Barley has been cultivated longer than wheat, as far as evidence now in hand indicates. In the Journal of Heredity, Dr. O. F. Cook, of the United States Department of Agriculture, discusses the researches of an English scientist, Prof. G. Elliott Smith, who has been examining the remains of grain found associated with the mummies of the most ancient times in Egypt—frequently inside them. In these oldest mummies, the grain is always barley, never wheat, whence the conclusion is drawn the Egyptians knew barley long before they cultivated wheat.

Currency He Understood

When Fred Gun-a-Noot, a Northern Indian, was in Stewart, British Columbia, last fall he was deeply impressed with a large auto. On being told the price in dollars, his face fell, but when told that 50 beaver skins would buy the car he grinned and departed. Winter and spring passed and the dealer was surprised to see Fred back with a grin that spread over his countenance. His surprise was greater when the Indian led him to a pile of 50 prime skins averaging $40 each. That closed the deal.

Connecticut Got Bargain

Connecticut takes pride in owning a $100,000 Stuart portrait of George Washington today because it was willing to accept a painting rejected by another state. Connecticut bought the picture for $1,000.

Sister Strangely Found

Issack Baskowitz's eyes were attracted to the likeness of a pretty girl on a calendar in a Dallas (Texas) office. He was amazed at the resemblance to a younger sister from whom he was separated in Russia ten years ago. He left for New York for a reunion with the girl.

McCormick-Deering Potato Diggers

A Few Reasons Why These Diggers Make Friends Wherever They Go

It takes real stamina to enable a machine to stand up to the hard work of digging potatoes. The McCormick-Deering digger has a frame built of heavy angle-steel bars. The sides are made of heavy steel plates. The whole frame is solidly braced to resist excessive strain.

The beams are made of extra heavy I-beam steel. There is ample clearance under the beams for vines and trash. There is also good clearance between the tongue-truck axle and the ground.

The elevator links are made of seven-sixteenths-inch high-carbon steel, which is very hard. The links are tempered to give the best wearing qualities. They are arranged to form pockets to keep the potatoes from rolling back down the elevator.

Everything else being equal, potatoes dug with a McCormick-Deering digger should bring a higher price on the market than those dug any other way. Furthermore, there are no potatoes left in the ground. You get them all.

By WYNDHAM MARTYN

Copyright in the United States
W. N. U. Service

He could not shoot, he could not make articulate words, he could not see. He made them all his mouth and the corners of his mouth. He knew yet where he was. He had a secret place and kept it hidden. Perhaps through it came men, ere this, who had to be kept out. Cramps seized him, and he was left white and feeble. He would starve to death if he were not fed. It was well known that his condition was uncertain, secretive, and that he was in a state of question. It would be found that his bed was empty. They would not look at him. He would starve to death if he were not fed. No shame or reproach came to him. Instead he was treated for carelessness. In his room he had preserved a letter, a letter which he had never seen so large a household as his. There were other rooms in the house, but these rooms were empty. To come here was a personal plan.

CHAPTER XII

The evening that saw the Raxon guests taken to dinner at Huntington found the Japanese garden in Lower Fifth avenue occupied by the Milman conspirators. During the dinner, which was perceptibly better served because Sneed had dropped back into his old place and Achille was less hurried, there was no word said about Great Rock. It was as though the great coffee away that Milman began. Sitting in the center of them, he showed no sign of triumph. Watching him, Nita thought that she had never seen a man more perfectly courteous than he. Milman complimented them all on what they had done, but it was his father who came in for the greatest praise. The daughter watched him growing younger as he listened to Peter's encomiums. Barnes felt that at last he had been able to do his share. "We are now," Milman went on, "in the position of holding what Raxon was going to use to lever himself into a senatorial seat. I have little doubt in my mind but that he will pay the price asked, which is a million dollars. Without this evidence he has no actual hold on McKimber. With it he can command his absolute obedience. I feel certain that with McKimber's help Raxon can win. Without it he has little chance. The question is this: Is the senatorship worth a million dollars to Paul Raxon? If not, we are worse off than when we began. If it is, we have won."

He Was in a Deplorable Condition.

Peter Milman looked about him as the chairman of a meeting does when he desires suggestions. None would have supposed that there was a very real risk of disgrace and imprisonment if Raxon refused to buy and determined to prosecute. "If you had looked into his face," Bradney remarked, "and had seen the passions of hate and disappointment, fear and despair graven on it, you would have no doubt at all on the subject. I'm certain he will buy them back."

Old Ideas Revived by Experiments in Diet

Some remarkable cases of fasting have attracted attention lately, but one striking experiment in diet has met with less attention than it deserves. This experiment was carried out by three scientists who lived for several months entirely on potatoes and vegetable margarine, with a slight addition of onion. One of the results of this experiment is the old idea that potato water is a remedy for gout. The potato does appear to have considerable virtues where this disease is concerned. Another result is that it is now claimed that the diet of the peasantry in some parts of Europe, in which meat figures very rarely, is healthier

Ballooning Spiders

Ballooning, says the Dearborn Independent, is the method of migration used by many species of spiders. Standing in an open space, with the body elevated, the spider projects from the spinnerets a line of silk, which continues until the spider feels the pull of the wind. It releases its hold as it is borne away.

Extrajugant

The casting agent blew himself to a radio and explained to his wife about the dials and proudly pointed to the eight tubes. In the distance, "You just take out seven of those tubes," cried his wife, "and use them one at a time, they're too expensive to use up all at once."

stand that he cannot prosecute us."

Floyd Malet had said little. He was watching the girl's sensitive face. He did not understand how the others did not realize she was suffering. He had assumed that she was wholly with them and as eager as they to win. It was because Malet loved her that he knew what was passing in her mind. He had seen her with Robin. He knew certainly that she loved the lad and suffered torture at the thought that she was going to aid in giving Paul Raxon the whip hand over him.

It was plain to Floyd Malet that this love of his for a girl, whose beauty had first attracted him, because it was of a rare and finer sort, must be kept a secret. What was the world to offer but scorn for the middle-aged and unsuccessful lover? But love, he reflected, if it is genuine, finds its reward in service. How could he help her? Was it possible to bring her happiness and Robin? The other men were talking about Robin's father.

"He will suffer," said Mr. Milman impartially. "And his family will suffer. I am sorry for them; but in this case our interests weigh down the balance. McKimber, at all events, has money and an assured position." "Why not offer to sell the letters to him, then?" Malet cried. "You will get your money just the same and you will be defeating Raxon?" He noticed that Nita listened eagerly to the reply.

"There are two reasons against it. One, that we know Raxon to be a crook used to chicanery, fraud, and blackmail. He will not protest, no matter how we obtain these letters. He will probably pay. With McKimber it is different. How shall we convince him that if he buys these letters he is safe from subsequent blackmail? He will know that his secret is shared by many others and he will never feel safe. As he probably won't run for office now, he may make a fight of it. He has money. He can retain the best counsel, while we are handicapped from the start. It is not a matter of choosing to benefit one at the cost of the other. Personally, I am inclined to be sorry for McKimber. With us all it is merely the easiest and safest way to get the money we have been defrauded of from the man who did it."

"Who's to bell the cat?" Barnes asked. "How are you going to talk it over with Raxon?" "I think if I telephone to him he will come."

"But he might bring a gang of thugs with him," Barnes objected. "He can get a bunch of gunmen any time he needs them. What's to prevent his going through this place and getting the letters?" "It is not a house easy to break into, as you know. He will not be admitted if he does not come alone. If he is as desperately anxious for those letters as I believe, he will come at once and alone. I shall not mention them when I speak to him, but he will be thinking of nothing else."

Malet had the opportunity to get a few words with Nita later in the evening. "A few mornings back," he said softly, "you met young McKimber in the grounds at Great Rock. You had a few minutes with him and then left him. You said you thought you had been breaking your heart. Nita, what did you mean?"

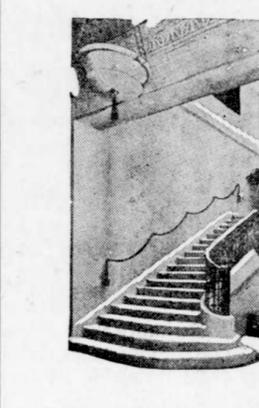

She smiled at him. "Did I say that? How silly. Doesn't one exaggerate before breakfast?" "You can't deceive me like that," he answered. "You are fond of Robin and you are torn between two emotions, your love for him and your loyalty to your father. What you would like to be able to do is to take those accursed letters and give them to Mr. McKimber without letting his wife or son know they ever existed."

"I would rather do that than anything else," she admitted. She saw that it was useless to conceal it from the sculptor. And she knew, too, that this middle-aged genius with the worn face and quiet ways, loved her. "It is hard, Uncle Floyd," she said, and smiled whimsically, "to feel one is betraying where one loves."

"You are not," he protested. "You are not," he protested. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

CASCADE DRAPES NOW IN STYLE; FEATHER TRIMS MODE IN PARIS

To cascade or not to cascade, that is the question which hosts of autumn frocks are definitely answering in the affirmative, even unto the point of extreme style distinction. The model in the picture admirably demonstrates the popular new cascade treatment. From the illustration one is apt to get the impression of a black and white combination. In reality the color scheme for this stunning afternoon frock is black with corn color, for black and yellow have found a very fashionable alliance for the coming fall costumes. So pronounced is the vogue for cascade treatment, even the separate skirt is falling into the habit of taking into itself a side or a front cascade or two, the reason for this being that cascades are often the "means to an end" of attaining the much-coveted irregular hemline. Then, too, cascades so intriguingly suggest desired fullness, without destroying the much-to-be-desired slender silhouette. As to the material of which this dress is made, it is crepe satin. Such an enthusiasm as is now on for crepe satin! The gown of crepe satin used on the lustrous side and distinguished by its absence of any trimming save a beguiling manipulation of the fabric itself, is the "talk of the town" in Paris.

Not only black satin, but satin in glorious autumn tones is made up in the simple perfection of its own draping, shirring, cascading and the like. A navy-blue crepe satin thus fashioned is of incomparable mode for daytime wear. Other new colorings stress various wine shades, honey beige, cinnamon brown and various tones of green.

If you are casting about for the smartest and most utilitarian dress with which to initiate the autumn season, choose satin by all means. Making it up sans trimming is such a practical as well as a fashionable thing to do. Especially does this simple classic styling receive encouragement, now that such adorable lace accessories are being worn on the new frocks. Then, too, gold costume

Some Hats From Paris.

Jewelry is the outstanding new note of the season, and with the classically simple satin frock, what more effective than a gold choker collar matched with the inevitable bracelet?

"A feather in your cap," is the latest millinery message. Almost every Paris collection bears testimony to this featherward movement. Most of the new feather trims feature the unusual, which of course adds zest to the mode. For instance there is the little feather ornament on the hat shown first in this group. Merely "a touch," but it imparts convincing smartness to the hat it trims. These little feather "swirls" are an outstanding novelty for this season.

Pasted feather motifs, such as adorn so many of the new felt and velvet hats, achieve the unique in form and cut into all sorts of eccentricities which are charming. The cloche is often banded with pastel feathers, while all sorts of sprightly feather novelties adorn the newest skullcap versions. The latest novelty used by Parisian milliners is the twin bird hat trimming. These brilliant little bird heads are used in pairs very effectively. JULIA BOTTOMLEY (© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Shedding Wool Scarfs

Shedding scarf styles with shadow brush work, hand-painted upon both ends of Shetland wool scarfs, knitwear fashions are ever offering something distinctly new. These lightweight Shetland scarfs are most effective with their deep hand-colored borders.

Popular Angora

Angora sweater jumpers in pastel shades with crepe collars, cuffs and belts top some of the season's smartest outdoor costumes.

style editor. Not only ears, but every vestige of hair is concealed underneath many of the new cling-tight types. In the case of the feather toque as worn by la Parisienne, a little hackle pad at each side of the hat "does the little trick," fitting almost like earmuffs. Speaking of hackle pads, they "carry the day" in point of importance. Sometimes an entire turban is made of them. Again they are stacked about the crown of the hat with a brim, or perhaps they tumble down, a whole cluster of them, over the side, forming a becoming side-drop trim. By the way, side-trims of either feathers or immense choux de velvet are "in" again. Note in this picture the draped satin toque to the left at the top, also the modish soie velours beret shown at the bottom of the group; they each flaunt an ostrich brush, which presents a popular silhouette for this fall. The black velvet toque illustrated to the right adopts a smart shaving-brush side trim.

The russet-colored little cloche of velvet centered in this collection emphasizes the use of clusters of blot feathers, which French modists regard so favorably this season. There is every evidence of a spirited competition in the realm of tiny hats, between the skullcap and the cloche.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

For late season outings a most satisfying meat which will keep for several days if cold is:

Jellied Chicken.—Wipe a knuckle of veal and put into a large kettle with enough cold water to cover. Bring slowly to the simmering point and simmer with a six-penny fowl until the meat is tender, adding when half done, a teaspoonful of salt. Remove the fowl and set aside to cool, when it should be cut into slices. Put the lean meat from the veal knuckle through a meat grinder—there should be one and one-half cupsful. Let the stock reduce to a pint, add pepper, salt and onion juice. To the chopped veal add one cupful of stock and season to taste with salt, paprika, onion juice and lemon. Add one cupful of chopped celery. Place a bread pan in ice water and pour in the stock to one-half inch or less. When firm decorate with hard-cooked eggs cut into slices and pimientos cut into strips. Add the remaining stock very carefully. When firm add alternate layers of chicken and veal until all is used pouring over the stock. Cover with waxed paper and place over it a weight. Let stand overnight on ice. When ready to serve garnish the slices with water-cress.

Cucumber and Pineapple Salad.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water to soften, add one-half cupful of vinegar, a tablespoonful of lemon juice, three tablespoonfuls of sugar and set aside to cool. Just as the mixture begins to congeal, stir in one cupful of crushed pineapple and a cupful of grated cucumber. Pour into small molds which have been dipped in cold water. Chill and serve on crisp lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise dressing, using three-fourths of a cupful with one-half cupful of cream.

Currant Nectar.—To a quart of water add two cupfuls of tart currant jelly or juice; if jelly, heat until dissolved, then add the juice of three lemons and three oranges. Serve very cold with a slice of orange floating on the top of each portion, and chilled ice to chill.

After cutting a small ripe cantaloupe into halves fill with a vanilla ice cream. Remove the seeds from the melon, decorate with small pieces of preserved ginger cut in the form of seeds and serve with a bit of the sirup poured over the ice cream. The combination of flavors is especially pleasing if one enjoys the flavor of ginger.

Lamb and Mutton Dishes.

For the large numbers who are not allowed to eat red meat or beef, well-seasoned lamb and mutton finds place in the diet. There are those who object to the woolly flavor, which may be removed by taking off the skin, if the meat has been carefully handled. There is an oily substance in the wool which if touched and then the meat is handled will carry the flavor. The butcher who is careful in handling the animal will have no woolly flavor in the meat.

Mutton With Vegetables.—Cut into serving-sized pieces mutton from the neck. Brown in a little fat and add carrots, onions and potatoes if desired. Cook with water on the back of the stove or in a casserole until all is well done. Add seasoning after the meat is well browned.

Mutton en Casserole.—Cut a pound of mutton from the shoulder into serving-sized pieces. Brown in a little fat, add salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Cover with boiling water and one cupful each of diced carrots, green peas with one small onion. Cover and place in a hot oven to cook for three hours.

Mutton Stew.—Take a neck piece and cover with boiling water with a small onion. Simmer until tender, then add a can of peas, thicken the gravy and pour round the meat on the platter. Garnish with the vegetables. Season well while the meat is cooking.

Roast Leg of Lamb.—Rub the leg of lamb well with salt, pepper and sweet fat. Place in a roasting pan and sear on all sides in a hot oven. Now add one-half cupful of water, one cupful of tomato, one onion, six peeled potatoes and roast with the lamb. Baste often while cooking.

Casserole Calves' Hearts.—Fry an onion with two or three slices of bacon, roll four calves' hearts in flour and brown them all over. Put into a hot casserole, add one cupful of stock, a shredded pimento and half a teaspoonful of mixed whole spice. Cover the casserole tightly and bake two hours. Before serving garnish the meat with crisped bacon.

Arctic Tern
Although the golden plover makes a longer continuous flight than any other bird, the Arctic tern travels farther, breeding far north. It winters on the edge of the Antarctic continent, 11,000 miles away. Incidentally, it enjoys more hours of sunlight in a year than any other living creature.

HELP FOR SICK WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Restored the Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. Haggmann of 223 Schaeffer St., was in a run-down condition. She could not do her housework. She could not sleep at night. Her story is not an unusual one. Thousands of women find themselves in a similar condition at some time in their lives. "I found your advertisement in my letter box," writes Mrs. Haggmann, "and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got relief." Mrs. Haggmann also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine and Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Constipation, with good results. She says, "I am recommending your medicines to all I know who have symptoms the same as mine, and to others whom I think it will help. You may use my statement as a testimonial, and I will answer any letters sent to me by women who would like information regarding your medicines."

There are women in your state—perhaps in your town—who have written letters similar to this one telling how much Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped them. The Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass., will gladly furnish other women with these names upon request.

Eye Injuries Expensive

In one Eastern state alone during the past year, 720 eye injuries to industrial workers were reported. Seven of these accidents resulted in total blindness and 340 employees suffered the total loss of one eye and 383 partial loss. In compensation, this cost the employers $1,300,000. It is computed that the indirect loss under such circumstances is four times that of the direct loss, so that this brings the total up to $5,000,000. Many of these accidents could have been prevented by proper precautions by the employees or employers.

Be good to one another and your religion will almost take care of itself.

Paid for Misconduct

A golfer whose conscience troubled him has sent 75 cents to Boston's concourse fund for some divots. He explained that while trying to make a long drive on the municipal links he succeeded only in digging up the turf, and finally quit in rage. Later he remembered he had not replaced the divots, one of the greatest crimes in golf.

Little Statesman Corner

"Betty Howe" Editor

Dear Kiddies:—
Most of you children are interested in music and probably you will be glad to know that within these weeks, I will write "The History of Music," every week you will hear of music in another land. This time it shall be the history of "music" in Italy.

Italy is known for its great singers and composers of operas. The history of singing floats back to olden days in Italy. Verdi, Rossini and Puccini were composers of operas and there are many more. Verdi is the most popular. Verdi's operas are beautiful and some of his best works were Rigoletto, Il Trovatore and Aida. The pipes originated in Italy. The peasant boys were the first to play them. They also played the mandolin. Italians are noted for their wonderful voices and talent in music.

A good illustration of this is "music and macaroni" from "Lulu's Library" written by Louisa Alcott. Many of you probably have read this, but for the sake of those who haven't, I will give a short synopsis of "music and macaroni."

A long time ago in a small town in Italy, lived a lad called Lino. This boy worked in the factory where perfumes were made of the beautiful flowers of Italy. His food was of wine, hard bread, macaroni and salad. Now this boy had a beautiful voice and was taught by Father Angelo. One day as he was singing his lesson as he worked, when he finished, someone clapped and cried, "Bravo my lad, Bravo." This pleased Lino. Finally this young gentleman called Marzio persuaded Lino to run away and come with him and sing. The story goes on and tells how Lino was treated cruelly later and sent out in the world when he was sick and cared for by a fisherman and finally he returned home—never to leave again.

Such is music in Italy.
Dear Friend if you keep this every week, you will have the entire history of music. Hoping you like this column, I am your,

Loving Editor,
Betty Howe.

The Desire to Serve

The desire to serve is a fine ambition, but unless a concern has the facilities to serve it means little. This milk plant has not only the desire to serve its patrons, but the facilities as well to take care of them in the very best manner. We want good milk. Milk is everybody's food. It is food for the delicate, or for the robust child—for the laboring man, or brain worker, for the sick and well, and for the rich and poor. It is concentrated energy. The body needs it. It contains all the life-giving substances. It is more than just food. It is life-promoting and health-producing. Take the very best care in producing milk. Make it of the very best quality. We will take care of the rest.
