ENGAGE SOCIAL SERVICE WORKER

The Oak Sanatorium, the Washington-Waukesha county tuberculosis institution, has employed a social service worker, Mrs. Emma T. Higgins, who began work October 1st, according to an announcement by Miss Dora Bresnahan, superintendent of the Oak Sanatorium. "There are only two other tuberculosis sanatoria in Wisconsin having a worker who will do the type of work that Mrs. Higgins will do for 'The Oak,'" said Miss Bresnahan. "Her duties will combine those of a social worker and a follow-up nurse. By this is meant that she will assist the patients in their personal problems. For instance where a mother needs to enter the sanatorium but she is unwilling to do so because there is no one to care for her three small children, Mrs. Higgins will try to solve this problem by finding care for these children. There are also many outside conditions which often arise after a person enters the sanatorium. He is worried because he thinks he is needed at home, for instance, to help support the family. Because the state of mind has a great deal to do with the patient making progress in the cure of tuberculosis, these and many other typical problems must be solved."

MEETS DEATH IN AUTO ACCIDENT

August Staega, a well known farmer of the town of Scott, was instantly killed on Wednesday evening at about 6:30 o'clock, when the Ford coupe in which he was riding crashed head on into a tree. The accident happened near the Herman Wilke farm home about six miles northeast of Kewaskum. Mr. Staega and Harvey Backhaus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Backhaus of the town of Scott, who is employed by Mr. Staega, left the Staega home at about six o'clock, en route to the Charles Schiltz home and when they approached a point near the Wilke place, the car left the road and crashed into a tree. Mr. Staega sustained a fractured skull, fractured ribs, and collar bone, and other severe cuts and bruises on his face and body. Mr. Backhaus, driver of the car received cuts on his arm and body. The coroner of Sheboygan county was called upon the scene, and an inquest will be held to determine the cause of the accident. The body of the unfortunate man was brought to the Clem. Reinders undertaking parlors here from where it was later taken to the family home.

The Ford coupe is a complete wreck. Mr. Staega was born July 14, 1878 in the town of Scott, coming to his present home nine years ago. On June 30, 1906 he was married to Miss Martha Bunkelman of Kewaskum, who with the following children survive: Evelyn (Mrs. Walter Backhaus) of St. Michaels; Alvin, Edna, Florence, Lucinda and Leroy at home. He is also survived by two brothers, Herman and Julius Staega of Random Lake, and four sisters, Mrs. Otto Liepert of Boltonville, Mrs. Fred Wagner of West Bend; Mrs. Frank Ehmer of New Fane, and Mrs. John Heberer of Plymouth. The tragic death of Mr. Staega is a severe shock to his family and relatives, who have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in their hour of deep affliction. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from the home, with services in the Batavia church.

WARN HUNTERS AGAINST NEW DISEASE

Rabbit hunters be careful!

This is the warning that comes from the Wis. conservation commission just before the opening of the rabbit season because of the discovery that some rabbits in Wisconsin have become infected with the disease called tularemia. Just how general the infection of rabbits is cannot be stated, but it will be well to be careful while dressing rabbits.

Tularaemia is an American disease, discovered here, and almost entirely confined to the United States, although some cases have been reported in Asia. The disease affects the spleen and liver of rabbits, producing decay of the tissue cells of these organs. Its presence can be detected by the many small white spots or blotches on the liver and spleen of an infected rabbit. Man contracts the disease readily while dressing rabbits. The infection passes from the rabbit's liver through sores or cuts in the person's hand and thence through the entire system. An ulcer at the spot of infection is usually the first result, followed by an enlargement of the glands at the elbow and armpit and a fever that confines the stricken person to bed for two or three weeks.

The wearing of rubber gloves while cleaning rabbits is said to be an absolute protection. Eating the meat from an infected rabbit is not harmful if the meat is well cooked as a temperature of 133 degrees kills the infection.

It is thought that a word of caution is needed for the hunter. Beware of the wild rabbit which is too easily captured—it is probably a sick rabbit. Many stories are told of rabbits that have been killed with sticks, or that the house cat or dog has easily run down—these are probably infected rabbits.

Beware of the easy shots. Let a rabbit have a run and shoot him while he is running. In this way you can tell whether a rabbit acts normal. Don't shoot the rabbit that sulks around close to you as if afraid to run—he is a sick rabbit.

NEWS OF THE BADGER STATE

Algona—A community fair will be held here Oct. 27. The high school agricultural classes are expected to enter numerous exhibits and demonstrations of farm operations.

Fond du Lac—An investigation may follow the recent filing of a petition on changing to the city manager plan here. Many signatures were originally written in pencil and then retraced in ink, an inspection of the petition by C. J. Fay, city clerk, showed.

Green Lake—Control of ever increasing pests and diseases of poultry through adoption of sanitary measures in poultry production will be the purpose of a series of meetings in different parts of Green Lake county this month. With J. R. Hayes of the Wisconsin college of agriculture as the speaker, unusually successful meetings are in prospect.

Green Bay—Plans for the thirty-seventh annual convention of the Wisconsin Cheesemakers' association, Nov. 21-22, are attracting attention among the 2,500 cheesemakers in all parts of Wisconsin. The convention has never before been held so far north and an unusually large attendance is expected from northern counties and neighboring states.

Edgerton—Harvesting of the Wisconsin 1928 crop of tobacco has now been completed. Weather was reasonably satisfactory to the tobacco producer during the harvesting season. There were but a few days of delay. The 1928 crop is of excellent quality and in size shows a leaf that averages a longer length than any other tobacco crop in recent years.

Madison—A pleasant surprise awaits one of Wisconsin's 14,000 Four-H club members. Announcement has been made here that the boy or girl who is chosen Wisconsin's champion dairy calf club member this year will be given an educational prize trip with all expenses paid to the national dairy exposition in Memphis Oct. 13 to 20. The donor of the prize trip is the Blue Valley Creamery Institute, Chicago.

Lancaster—John R. Keenan, Grant county agent, has started a county-wide campaign to test soils. Farmers are asked to send in samples according to instruction and the agent agrees to send a concise report to each desiring a soil test. Mr. Keenan points out that alfalfa at $25 a ton, with the prospect of three tons to the acre, is the "queen of crops" and it is his intention to encourage more extensive cultivation of this crop.

Ripon—A. G. Oelke, Princeton township, and R. H. Folska, Marquette, have ordered small amounts of a new variety of winter rye, a strain known as Wisconsin Pedigree No. 37, and will seed it on their farms this fall. Only a small amount of seed is available through the Wisconsin Experiment association. Pedigree No. 37 combines all the desirable characteristics, resistance to winter killing, disease resistance and high yield.

Tomah—After crushing rock for highway improvement near Gays Mills and Cashton, the stone crusher of the Groves Construction Co. is now crushing limestone in the Treshler quarry for farmers near Cashton. Large savings are promised, as the freight bills in the past have been considerable, much lime having been shipped in in late years. Lime is a prime necessity for clover growing. Farmers are taking lots of the pulverized limestone for fertilizing purposes.

West Bend—One hundred eighty-one Washington county dairy farmers, members of the seven dairy herd improvement associations operating in the county, have completed another year of herd building, with an average herd production of 8,548 pounds of milk and 309.4 pounds of butter fat. A report indicates that the tested cows of the county surpassed the average production of all the cows tested in Wisconsin associations by 17.6 pounds of fat and 978 pounds of milk.

Rice Lake—Barron county will have its fourth general test of cattle next year. Dairymen are looking forward with interest, as from now on tested cattle are given distinguished marks and a large amount of surplus dairy stock is sold annually, amounting to about $450,000 this year. Barron county had the first year test in America, or in the world, in 1920, and since then area testing has spread with great rapidity and less than half a dozen untested counties in Wisconsin remain.

Beaver Dam—Dr. L. M. Wright, Madison, state veterinarian, has been working in Dodge county making preparations for a bovine tuberculosis test. The test is expected to be completed within a period of six weeks or two months.

Fond du Lac—Petitions requesting the abandonment of the commission form of government and adoption of the city manager system for Fond du Lac have been filed with the city clerk.

Madison—Appointment of Daniel H. Grady, Portage attorney, to conduct John Doe hearings in the statewide investigation of campaign expenditures in the Wisconsin primary election was announced by Judge S. B. Schell of Dane county superior court.

Wisconsin Rapids—Craig P. Connor, 41, county judge of Wood county, died of a stroke. He had been deprived of the use of his legs since a childhood attack of infantile paralysis and performed all his duties in a wheel chair.

De Pere—The high school football team here will play without one of its stars. Ralph Scott, white hunting ducks, had his left hand badly wounded when his gun accidentally discharged.

Shawano—Mrs. Harvey Miller, of this city, is the owner of a freak cat which at first glance resembles any ordinary feline. The animal's peculiarity lies in the fact that it has seven toes on each foot.

Antigo—Thirty-five calves, the largest number ever displayed in the Four-H club work in Langlade county, were exhibited by club members at the Langlade county fair. Four booths were devoted to Four-H club work in the exposition building.

Crandon—In a recent test in Forest county of all cattle only about one-fifth of one per cent were found to be reactors, and the most encouraging report was the one that showed Forest county now has 600 more cattle than three years ago, an increase of 15.4 per cent.

Kewaunee—Apple growers of this county, through the county agent, J. R. Lathrop, have appealed to the Wisconsin college of agriculture for the full time services of an entomologist to make a study of the Buffalo tree hopper that has begun the devastation of young apple trees in the orchard region about Casco.

Gays Mills—A barbecue, dance, shows and band concerts, all free, feature the shipment of an entire trainload of stock from here Sept. 23, the largest shipment ever assembled in the county. More than 40 carloads of hogs and cattle were booked for shipment a week previous and approximately 20 more have been assured.

Madison—The 1930 convention of the National Association of Secretaries of State has been promised to Madison. Secretary of State Theodore Dammann said upon his return from the organization's annual meeting, Mr. Dammann is vice president of the association, which met this year at the South Dakota state game lodge, the summer white house of 1927.

Madison—While the attorney general has held that the violation of game laws by one who has no license does not disqualify one permanently from obtaining a license, the conservation department would impress upon hunters and fishermen that game law violators may not have a license for a year after the date of their being found guilty of the violation.

Chippewa Falls—A letter has been received here by Robert F. Lohr, secretary of the local Isaac Walton league, from W. E. Grange, superintendent of game under the Wisconsin conservation commission stating that a hearing will be held in Chippewa Falls some time this month on the petition of 240 Chippewa county citizens to close the deer season here this year.

Madison—Directions to obtain an option on a 5,000-acre tract on the border of Sawyer and Price counties for a northern lakes park were given E. M. Dahlberg, secretary of the state conservation commission, at a recent session of the commission here. The option is to be made to terminate Sept. 1, 1929, to give the next session of the legislature a chance to consider the purchase.

Antigo—Langlade county potato growers have some trouble this year but the situation is not as serious as described in reports circulated from this region. Rot caused by light blight is extensive but is not true that some of the growers will not bother to dig their potatoes. On the contrary, digging is so extensive that there is a shortage of potato pickers and only about one lead in 10 delivered to the buyers is now showing signs of rot. As to the reports that the volume of shipments will be greatly reduced, the fact is that already about 500 cars have been shipped from this city alone.

Milwaukee—Market quotations: Butter—Creamery, fresh extras, tubs, 47c; extra firsts, 45@46c. U. S. PACT PROTEST WEIGHED BY BRITISH

Reply to America's Objections Is Expected to Arrive in Next Few Days.

London.—The British cabinet is understood to have discussed at a recent meeting the situation arising from the American rejection of the proposals in the Anglo-French naval compromise. After the meeting Premier Baldwin left for Baltimore, where he will be minister in attendance to the king.

Washington.—Reply in some form from the British and French to the American protest against their secret naval alliance is expected within a few days it was indicated in authoritative quarters here.

It is generally believed that it will convey the offer of a compromise with the suggestion that the three governments begin secret conversations looking toward a three-power agreement. This, it is learned, will be flatly rejected and the powers will again be reminded that if they have any proposal to curtail naval armaments further, they should submit it before a public session of the Geneva preparatory armament conference.

The state department, it is understood, feels that for the time being at least, the United States has placed Great Britain and France in the position of having halted, if not definitely made impossible, any further disarmament until the powers, as bound by treaty, meet here in 1931.

At the same time it is felt that both governments are being severely censured at home on the ground they have deliberately entered into a secret alliance which is bound to result in increased taxation to pay for the necessary naval construction. This criticism, it is believed, will result in early statements from both the British and the French in an effort to place the United States on the defensive.

This, it is learned, the United States does not intend to permit. This government is quite ready, it will be stated, should the expected reply arrive, to enter into an immediate conference, but it must be one following closely the outlines of the original American plan submitted at Geneva last year.

Anything else, it is to be stated, would still be a limitation on the types of warships which the United States requires, and favoring the peculiar needs of the British and French.

Tokyo.—The Reuter correspondent learned that as the Japanese government had already given notice of formality of its agreement in principle with the Anglo-French naval accord, Tokyo did not intend to make a further pronouncement on the subject.

It was understood, however, that in view of the public interest which has been aroused, the Japanese government had approached the French and British governments with a proposal that the text of the understanding be published.

Broadcasters Object to One Hour Nightly Limit

Washington.—A vigorous movement to modify restrictions placed on chain broadcasting under the new allocation to go into effect November 11, was started when officials of the National Broadcasting company laid their case before the federal radio commission in an executive session.

The regulation to which the broadcasters object limits chain broadcasting to one hour nightly except where the associated stations are located more than 30 miles apart. It is understood that this restriction works hardship on chain broadcasters which is not being exercised over other stations. It was pointed out that the value of chain broadcasting has been tried and proven, this political campaign being cited as an outstanding example where the listeners of the country are being served.

The commission was told that more than 50 stations associated with the National Broadcasting company were sorely tried by the restrictions, and urged that immediate action be taken.

ROOSEVELT TROPHIES TO LINDY, 2 OTHERS

Charles Evans Hughes and F. M. Chapman Also Honored.

New York.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, former Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, and Frank M. Chapman, ornithologist, will receive the Roosevelt medals for distinguished service this year, James A. Garfield, president of the Roosevelt Memorial association, announced.

Lindbergh is to be honored for the example he has given American youth; Mr. Hughes for his work in administering public office and in developing public and international law; and Doctor Chapman for studies of American bird life.

The presentations are to be made October 27, the seventieth anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth, at a banquet at Roosevelt's house, the former President's birthplace. The medal, designed by James Earle Fraser, is three inches in diameter and of solid gold. It shows on one side the head of Roosevelt and on the other a flaming sword with the motto: "If I must choose between righteousness and peace, I choose righteousness."

Of Lindbergh, Mr. Garfield said: "To a generation hearing on all sides that money is the standard of success and that the way to achievement and fame lies through aggressive self-seeking, publicity and the cultivation of the polite vices, Charles Lindbergh, living cleanly, scoring publicity, putting aside offers of untold wealth, came and achieved such a triumph as no young man in the world's history ever achieved before."

Move to Pass 16-Ship Bill at Early Session

Washington.—The move to obtain senate approval of the 16 cruisers and aircraft carrier construction bill prior to the opening of the battle over ratification of the Kellogg anti-war treaty has been given new impetus by publication of the American notes rejecting the Anglo-French naval compromise agreement.

Reports that President Coolidge will not submit the anti-war pact to the senate until action has been taken on the cruiser bill have been given wide currency in the national capital, but remain unconfirmed.

It is now regarded as certain that President Coolidge will urge early action on the naval bill, so that appropriations for beginning five of the fifteen 10,000-ton 8-inch gun ships carried in the measure can be secured before congress adjourns. Senator Hale (Rep., Maine), chairman of the senate naval committee, asserted that he will make every effort to secure a vote on the bill within the first few weeks after congress convenes. The measure has passed the house.

Stains to Bar Repeating in Nicaragua Election

Managua, Nicaragua.—In order to prevent repeating at the Presidential election on November 4, every voter will be marked on the hand with a chemical stain as he casts his ballot.

Details of the method to be used were withheld by the national election board, as it was thought that both political parties might try to mark opponents in advance of election day to prevent them from voting.

The board issued a statement saying the chemical would be harmless and the stain would disappear a couple of days after the election.

11 RACE HORSES DIE IN HERTZ FARM FIRE

Reigh Count and Others Rescued; Blaze Is Blamed on Incendiary.

Chicago.—Eleven thoroughbred race horses valued at more than $200,000 were burned to death when the racing stable on Leona farms, near Cary, was destroyed by fire. The Leona farms are owned by John Hertz, motor transportation magnate. Mr. Hertz, among his other activities, is chairman of the board of directors of the Yellow Cab company.

In the stable was Reigh Count, champion three year old of 1928 and winner of the Kentucky derby. The champion was led to safety by a stable boy. Seven other valuable animals also were saved.

Among those destroyed was the two-year-old filly, Sandalina, which was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Hertz. It was valued at $50,000 and was expected to prove one of the sensations of the next racing season.

The stable was a new brick structure that had been in use only a month. It was constructed at a cost of $25,000.

The fire succeeded the bombing of two garages of the Yellow Cab company in Chicago. These bombings followed a meeting of the attorneys and other representatives of the Yellow and Checker cab companies in an attempt to arbitrate certain difficulties which are said to have arisen between the two companies.

The sheriff's office in McHenry county was investigating the theory that the fire which all but destroyed the $200,000 Reigh Count and did cause the deaths of other horses was of incendiary origin.

It was found that the gate leading into the Hertz estate, a quarter of a mile from the thoroughbred farm, had been broken down.

Handcuff Guards, Blast 2 Vaults, Get $43,000

Cincinnati, Ohio.—The Wadsworth Watch Case company's plant at Dayton, Ky., was robbed of 150 pounds of gold bullion, valued at $43,000, after two night watchmen were overpowered by four burglars. Police believe the robbers were members of a Chicago gang.

The two watchmen were handcuffed to a cage in the company's office and the keys to the handcuffs were placed on a shelf above their heads with the explanation: "We don't want to keep you this way any longer than we have to."

Forcing of the two huge vaults on the second floor, in which the bullion lay, was accomplished with leisurely aplomb. Two satchels full of tools were carefully laid out. Holes were drilled electrically into the thick steel doors. Nitroglycerin was poured into these through putty funnels and touched off.

Boulder Chimney and Wide Sliding Add Beauty to Seven-Room Home

By W. A. RADFORD

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1527 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only include two-cent stamp for reply.

The use of boulders, or field stone, in home construction has become quite popular of recent years and when properly used it adds greatly to the charm of the home. Such boulders are most commonly seen in connection with brick construction, as ornament, but are equally appropriate for the frame house, especially with wide sliding or shingled walls. With frame construction they may be used effectively either in foundation or chimney, as in the home illustrated here. This little home is simple, but especially pleasing in appearance, largely because of the broken roof lines and boulder chimney. The whole design is well balanced even to the

Choose Proper Location for Your Refrigerator

There is no other article of kitchen equipment more important than the refrigerator. Upon its efficiency depends the success or failure of the meal.

And it is the most important factor in the preservation of nutritive value, the vitamin content of the various foods which comprise the meal. For this reason the refrigerator merits serious consideration in every matter that may affect its proper functioning.

One of these conditions, of course, is the location. If the refrigerator is placed too near the stove, for instance, it is very difficult to maintain the proper temperature, and inevitably calls for a large ice consumption.

A room in which extremes of temperature prevail is also a poor place, or where the sun shines on it for a long period of time, or where there is excessive moisture in the air.

All of these things should be taken into consideration, as they seriously affect preservation and produce very unsatisfactory results.

On the other hand, some thought should be taken on the convenience of arrangement.

It is well to have it as close as possible to the back door, so that the ice-man can reach it easily and as close to the work table as possible, in order to save steps.

One-Panel Type Doors Combine Color, Beauty

Substantial workmanship and graceful design are combined in a one-panel door widely distributed for home construction in this country in which several unusual patented features are utilized to prevent warping and shrinking.

The "door within a door" construction is utilized in the manufacture of both hardwood and softwood doors of the one-panel type, veneered with species of woods which successfully take any decorative application.

The importance of the expense represented by doors in interior decoration is being more widely recognized by specialists in the art with the general introduction of rather brilliantly colored interiors.

Attractive colors are well set off by the graceful design of the one-panel door, in which the proportions of the panel, molding, stiles and rails are carefully worked out to artistically fill the space, or mass, which the door represents. The close-grained wood of this door is well adapted to any placement of windows which is a problem in view of the plan.

This floor plan shows a seven room, bath and extra surprising amount of space.

The living room provides rest of the building as connected with the dining room, an entrance hall is included and is shaped like a wedge also gives access to the bedroom and the bathroom. It is the extra lavatory coat closet.

The first-floor bedroom is small, is provided with a which greatly increases the space. Upholsters these bedrooms and bath, a large hall and storage space living room all arranged to the hallway, in each the corner as the first floor.

Less Poisoning by Liberal Feed

Overgrazing of Pastures Forced Animals to Eat Inferior Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Conservative grazing, which assures
an abundant supply of nutritious
range forage, is an important factor in reducing losses of live stock from poisonous plants, says the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture.

Cause of Losses.
At a recent meeting of the Intermountain Live Stock Sanitary association Prof. C. E. Fleming of the University of Nevada pointed out that a great many of the death losses from eating poisonous plants were the result of overgrazing and depletion of the better forage plants, which forced the live stock to eat plants of inferior value—including those that are poisonous—in sufficient quantity to prove fatal. Doctor Murray of Salt Lake City also stated that in his opinion many losses on the winter range were due to malnutrition as a result of live stock having to subsist mainly on inferior range plants and having an inadequate forage supply.

Reduce Losses.
In the drought region of southern Arizona it is extremely important,
the forest service has found, to graze
the range conservatively, since short rainfall may result in the production of a feed supply materially smaller than usual. It was found that by utilizing approximately 80 per cent of the growth of the important palatable plants in the average year and by reserving a part of the grama range, in which the vegetation cures well on the stalk and is excellent winter feed, losses could be reduced from 10 per cent to about 2 to 3 per cent of the animals grazed. Not only is there a direct saving to the live-stock producer from fewer death losses, but the better condition of animals results in a greater production of young and better development with a more satisfactory price. Thus, profits have been made from cattle during the recent trying years where conservative grazing has been practiced, although net losses were shown by those outfits in the region which utilized their range forage too closely.

Egg Marketing Methods Described in Bulletin

Egg marketing in this country is the subject of a revised bulletin just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. It covers the conditions under which market eggs are produced and the methods used in marketing them.
The bulletin, prepared by Rob R.
Stocum, marketing specialist of the bureau of agricultural economics, emphasizes the fragile, delicate nature of the egg as a food product and the need for proper handling and speed of delivery to insure the consumer the best possible quality.

Eggs are produced for market on specialized poultry farms of the Atlantic and Pacific coast regions, but in greatest volume on the general farms

of the Middle West. In these sections they are concentrated at shipping points and transported by express or by refrigerated freight where they go into immediate consumption or are placed in cold storage to take care of seasonal fluctuations in the rate of production. The marketing channels through which the eggs pass vary greatly in their relative complexity, says the author, depending upon how direct the contacts are between producer and consumer or through how many different hands the eggs pass
during their journey to market. Constant effort has been made to improve methods of handling and marketing,
including better care on the farms,
more frequent marketing, more favorable temperatures by the use of chill
rooms, better packing materials, better grading and more efficient distribution, all of which is resulting in a gradual raising of the level of quality of eggs reaching consuming markets
and a reduction in breakage.

Copies of the publication, Farmers
Bulletin No. 1378-F, Marketing Eggs,
may be obtained free from the Department of Agriculture, Washington.

Best Time to Cut Sudan Grass for Crop of Seed

The best time to cut Sudan grass for seed is when most of the heads are fully ripe. At that time many of the early heads will shatter, but as the plant fillers abundantly, it is not possible to catch all of the heads at the same stage of maturity.
The seed crop is generally cut with a grain binder and is cured in shocks.
Sometimes a corn binder is used when the crop has been planted in rows on rich land and has grown very large and coarse, but ordinarily a grain binder is better. A grain separator will thresh and clean the seed perfectly if the seed is plump and ripe when harvested, but if the seed is cut too early it will be light and some of it will be blown over in the straw.
For threshing light seed a clover huller
is probably better than a grain separator.

Get Seed Wheat Free of Objectionable Weeds

Many wheat growers in the Corn Belt, because of the extensive winter killing that occurred in this area last season, will be faced with the necessity this year of providing themselves with seed wheat. Seed may often be obtained from neighboring farmers, but it may sometimes be necessary, or it may appear advisable to bring in seed from greater distances. In any case, says the United States Department of Agriculture, the farmer should assure himself that the wheat seed he buys is free from weed seeds. Garlic, cockle, and cheat or chess are especially objectionable and unfortunately are widely prevalent in many wheat-growing areas. When once introduced on a farm they are difficult to eradicate, and grain containing such weed seeds is discounted on the market. A little care in preventing the introduction of noxious weeds in seed wheat
may save a lot of trouble.

HOME GARDENS NEED SUITABLE FERTILIZER FOR BEST RESULTS

Apply Manure at Rate of 10 to 20 Tons Per Acre.

Fertilizer for the typical home garden usually should consist of manure supplemented with a complete vegetable fertilizer or with superphosphate, says F. O. Underwood of the vegetable garden department at the New York State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. Manure should be applied at the rate of 10 to 20 tons to an acre,
or, on the basis of smaller areas, 50
to 100 pounds to 100 square feet of space.

The supplementary fertilizers should be applied at the rate of two to three pounds to 100 square feet of garden.
On rich soils, it is often advisable to not manure too heavily as tomatoes and root crops may produce excessive top growth at the expense of fruit and roots. Under such conditions either superphosphate or a complete commercial garden fertilizer will usually overcome the difficulty. If manure is not available, leaves, lawn clippings and similar plant refuse
may be used as a source of humus.
These should be supplemented with two to four pounds of a high-grade garden fertilizer for each 100 square feet.

Where the soil is sour, many vegetable benefit by an application of lime. Six pounds of ground limestone or half as much hydrated lime,

may be used for each 100 square feet
where there is an indication that lime is needed. Applications may be made every three or four years. Home gardeners should be cautioned, however, that the organism causing scab
of potatoes is more active in limed
soils, Professor Underwood says.
One way to avoid this difficulty
where lime is needed is to put lime on part of the garden at a time and on this part plant vegetables other than potatoes or beets, he points out.

When Pasture Is Short Feed Corn Meal Mash

If the pasture is short, or if it is desirable to force the goslings for an early market, a mash composed of corn meal, wheat middlings and ground oats in equal parts by weight,
mixed with 5 per cent of meat scraps, will make an excellent feed. Grit and oyster shell should be available as well as a good supply of water.

Mature geese can be handled in a similar manner. Unless they are being confined for some special reason, they will secure most of their living from good range. During the breeding season they should receive a mash similar to that enumerated above.

Highest Grade Alfalfa Is Marketed Profitably

A much greater quantity of high-grade alfalfa could be produced and marketed profitably in the United States, the United States Department of Agriculture believes, if producers would study market demands and make their production and loading practices conform to the market requirements. Hay dealers in all the big alfalfa distributing markets receive each year thousands of orders for high-grade alfalfa hay which can not be filled because of an insufficient quantity of hay of this grade. The chief demand for baled alfalfa hay is from dairymen, and large numbers of them who now depend largely upon mill feeds as sources of protein would doubtless become buyers of alfalfa if a high-grade hay were available.

Best to Put Manure on Land Going Into Corn

Ordinarily, the best place to put manure is on land which is going into corn the year following. After that one of the best places is on fall wheat, and especially on fall wheat which is to be seeded down. When manure is spread on fall wheat it becomes almost a certainty that the seeding will catch. This is not only because of the fertility in the manure but because the manure and the straw on the surface of the ground keep in the moisture better and give the young plants a much better chance to get started.

Common Practice to Cut Alfalfa Crop Too Soon

It is the common practice to cut alfalfa too soon and too often. The time of blossoming is not always a sure sign that it is time to cut the crop. A new growth for the next crop should be well started before the crop is cut. Careful investigation by a number of experiment stations indicate that two crops yield more hay than three cuttings. A considerable labor is saved and the field is left in better condition in the fall to go through the winter without danger
from winter killing.

Pop Warner Has Much Material

CRAFTY Glenn Scobey Warner views the approach of another football season with prospects of having on hand for his Stanford eleven more material than he has had in his long career.

"I have more good material," he says, "for this year's team than I have had in my thirty-three years of coaching, but I also want you to know that I had squads which contained eleven better players."

"Our prospects are not much better than they have been in the past two or three years, but an abundance of reserve material will help considerably."

Four regulars are lost from last season's squad. Replacing Hal McCreery, center, will be his hardest task. Freeman, as a tackle, will also be hard to forget.

Clarence "Biff" Hoffman, who came near getting an All-American berth last year, will lead the Cardinals in battle this football season, which is to be his last one on the squad.

Hoffman is from Petaluma and is twenty-four years old, weighs 195 pounds, and is a real triple-threat fullback. He is the key man in those famous reverse and triple-pass plays the teams of Warner are so noted for.

Hoffman's great work the past two seasons, especially in the Tournament of Roses games, make him a probable All-American this year.

The Cardinals go East this year to play Army at West Point. This game will give eastern football fans a chance to see a Warner-coached eleven, something they have not viewed for many a season.

Reason Why Walter Won Prize at County Fair

Walter Johnson had some hunting dogs, some pigeons and a police dog—all gifts of friends and admirers.

He was living over in Maryland while pitching for the Washington club and while on the road a county fair was held at home and Walter told Mrs. Walter and Walter Jr. he thought it would be a good idea to enter the hunting dogs.

When they went over the police dog went along and the man at the fair said he thought he ought to be entered, too. He wasn't much of a police dog, just a good fellow to have around for a pal; certainly no show dog.

Much to Walter's amazement he got a wire on the road that the police dog took third prize. He found out later, however, there were only three dogs in the show.

Michigan Won't Quit

Elton E. "Tad" Wieman, football coach at the University of Michigan, asserted that no Michigan team had ever been licked, in the sense that it was ready to quit.

"Michigan has never been defeated on two successive Saturdays," declared Wieman.

"If you want to see a fighting team, attend any game that Michigan plays after having been defeated the Saturday before."

Says Control of Nerves Bob Jones' Biggest Feat

The greatest feat to be credited to Bobby Jones, in the opinion of Bernard Darwin, foremost British golf authority, is not the winning of two British open titles or a dozen miscellaneous ones in America.

"I believe it to be a true impression that no one has ever striven and agonized, suffered and sweated more over golf than has this wonderful golfer who seems to take championships so easily in his stride," says Darwin in The American Golfer.

"To take a game so hard and yet to play it with such perfect temper and courage is perhaps the most remarkable of his achievements. That he can do so proves that there is no one so formidable as the nervous player who can control his nerves."

Coach Stagg Would Use Grider of 140 Pounds

Weight is an asset but not necessarily a requisite to a college football player in this day and age, Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg of the University of Chicago said in addressing a group of high school students at Youngstown, Ohio, recently.

"At Chicago I will consider a man who weighs 140 pounds or more," Coach Stagg declared. "A lighter man is not of much use to us. They say that Pop Warner and other coaches will not consider a candidate who weighs less than 150 pounds, although when Walter Eckersall came to Chicago he weighed but 137 pounds in his second year. Weight does not make the ideal football player but practice in the technicalities of the game count a great deal."

Baseball in Palestine

Baseball fans who would like to see their game played on the open spaces of the Holy City within the shadow of some of the holiest places in Christendom, Judaism and Islam, will take courage from a recent announcement in the Palestine Bulletin reporting four new players signed up at the last baseball practice game, and there are still three vacancies on the team.

Willington to play the game is as good as proficiency.

INFIELDERS LAST LONGEST IN PLAY

Usefulness Outlives Outfielders and Mound Men.

If you were to ask the average fan, which lasts the longest in baseball—outfielders, infielders, pitchers or catchers—the answers would probably be outfielders. And the answer would be wrong, for it is the infielders who last the longest.

Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker are the exceptions, although it would appear that outfielders generally should have the edge. They do less work than the infielders and have less wear and tear of muscular tissues to contend with.

A comparison of the records of Cobb and Speaker and Eddie Collins for the best five years of the career of each will disclose that Cobb averaged 2.5 fielding chances a game, Speaker had 2.81 and Collins had an average of 5.4. These records show that Eddie did twice as much work as either of the others.

It is legs that slow down ball players before arms or eyes. Men who can still hit well at thirty-five or thirty-six are unable to stand the pace in base running or in covering ground in the field. They become poor defensive players, while their attacking powers are still undimmed.

And yet infielders, despite the tending straining nature of their work, show a better record for stamina and endurance than the outfielders. Only two outfielders in addition to Cobb

Ty Cobb.

Sporting Squibs

Bull fighting is now illegal in Cuba.

Of the 516 piebats at Annapolis this year 200 reported for football.

Tennis critics say the movement of Helen Wills' feet in a match is very similar to that of a boxer in action.

Roy Grimes, veteran first baseman of the Toledo American association club has been purchased by Kansas City.

"Tillie" Schafer, former major league star, is ranked as one of the leading amateur golfers around Los Angeles.

Rabe Ruth has played in more world series than any other major leaguer, three with Boston and five with the Yankees.

The Denver club in the Western league is considering a proposition to play double-headers every Sunday and omit the games on Mondays.

Bill Regan of the Red Sox hit two home runs in one inning off Chicago pitching. He is the eighth in the history of major league baseball.

Six of Great Britain's Walker cup golf team have never competed for this prize before. T. P. Perkins, the youngest, is only twenty-four years old.

Mrs. Kathleen Capper, playing on a course at Brookline, Mass., recently established a new world golf record by making two holes-in-one in succession.

Two Industrial league players, Chuck Nostetter, center fielder, and Mike Bosco, third baseman, have signed contracts to play with the Boston Braves.

The ambition of young Jake Schaefer, billiard champion, is to be able to shoot a 70 in golf. He has been playing five years and his best score was 75.

Douglas Lowe, Olympic 500-meter champion, confirms reports that he would retire from track competition to devote all his time to his practice as a barrister.

John Kuck, Olympic shot putter, is expected to enroll in the University of Kansas this fall to complete his work for a degree in physical education. He will play football.

No official scoring system was in use at this year's Olympic games, the International association having voted last year to do away with it for the first time since 1912.

Grady Adkins, with the White Sox, says he pitched 54 innings in six days during 1924 while in the Cotton States league, and won five games and tied one in those six days.

Four stolen bases in an inning by one player seems incredible but Josh Devore, of the New York Giants, did it on June 12, 1912. He stole second and third base twice.

Ernie Wingard, left-hander, who formerly pitched for the St. Louis Browns, enjoyed a nice season this year in the American association, and hopes he will get another big league fling.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien, former heavyweight boxer, predicts that if his fellow-townsmen, Tommy Loughran, can defeat Jack Sharkey, "he'll be the heavyweight champion of the world."

When Major Hazlet, the big Britisher, addresses a ball, he needs a megaphone, he stands so far away from it. Most of his wallpops from the tee are line drives which would be good for triples in anybody's ball park.

Pitcher Bill Brown of the Cleveland Indians has been named as the hurler who goes to the Omaha Crickets in the deal for Outfielder Red Harvel, recently purchased from Barney Burch's club.

Dale Gear, president of the Western league and Western association, was a five pitcher in his youth. In 1898 he helped Kansas City win the Western league flag by winning three games in six days at the close of the season.

WHAT HE GAVE FOR BALL

On reaching the links one morning Smith was accosted by his usual caddy. "Excuse me, sir," said the lad, "but I've got the ball we lost yesterday at the second. One of the village kids had it."

"Er—no thanks, sir," said the caddy, hastily. "I gave a black eye for it."

Hot Oil Employed to Wipe Out Mosquitoes

Hot fuel oil, sprayed along the shores of the lakes in the Canal zone, is a most efficacious weapon against malaria-laden mosquitoes. This oil, a big factor in the fight which is culminating in certain abolition of the insect, has destroyed breeding places in the Pedro Miguel and Gatun lakes.

The method used to spray the oil necessitates the use of a rowboat carrying a tank containing 150 gallons of oil, and a crew of three men. One man rows, one works a hand pump and the other handles the spray nozzle. The hot oil is sprayed on the shore line as fast as the boat can be propelled. This surface filming has been found positive and complete.

Wind action and wavelets carry the oil into every nook and cranny, even to a considerable distance from the point of application. A rigid inspection follows every oiling to determine if it has been done thoroughly.

Elsewhere than in the lake areas, mosquito breeding is controlled chiefly by training of streams and by draining and filling.

Foolish Communist

Representative Albert Johnson said to a Washington reporter the other day:

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good, and the Sacco-Vanzetti business is going to clean the United States of Communists forever."

"What is a Communist?" a lady asked me in Hoquiam.

"A Communist," said I, "is a man who looks down on those above him."

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water.

Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here.

Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Dwellers in High Places

The highest inhabited place in the world is a mining district in Chile, 18,480 feet above sea level; next, a mining district in Peru, 16,200 feet; then a monastery in Tibet, 15,200 feet. The highest home of man in the United States is the Pikes Peak observatory in Colorado, over 14,000 feet above sea level.

TWO BURNED TO DEATH

Two men burned to death or died from the fumes when the boxcar in which they made their home on a North Western road siding was destroyed by fire at 3 a. m. Monday at Port Washington. The men are Jos. Marcidoshash, 55, a Lithuanian who has lived at Port Washington for several years, and the other was John Nalezinska, about the same age of Stevens Point. Both were day laborers. Flames from the burning car were seen early Monday and the fire department raced to the scene. The body of one of the men was found near the door of the car, where he evidently had tried to escape, and the other was lying near the bed, where he apparently collapsed after being awakened by the smoke. The men had a heating stove and a lantern in the car and the blaze is believed to have started from one of these. An inquest was held Tuesday morning.—Cedarburg News.

Co-Operation

When we hear of patrons, managers, operators, or board members talk of co-operation, we sometimes wonder if they are really sold on the fine idea of co-operation. In our opinion true co-operation means just what Webster says it does:—"The act of working jointly together." Would a manufacturing concern appreciate movement within its own organization or without that would encourage the production of a poor product. Why not all strive to get our production on a quality basis for the good of every dairy in the country. Quality counts in every branch of the dairy business. Let us all boost quality.
