With the Wisconsin Legislature

Madison—The Grobbschmidt bill, repealing the Severe prohibition enforcement act was concurred in by the senate. Twenty-one senators voted for the repealer and nine against.

This bill provides for abolishing the office of state prohibition commissioner and his department of prohibition agents and for repealing of the state prohibition enforcement law.

It was introduced in the legislature to carry out the will of Wisconsin citizens who in a referendum on April 2 voted in favor of state dry law repeal by a majority of almost 150,000.

Five amendments, among them proposal for county option, were fought off in the senate before the bill received a final vote and was started on its way to the governor's desk.

Approval of the Goodland bill creating a state budget bureau in the executive department was announced by Gov. Walter J. Kohler. Abolition of the present board of public affairs and the substitution thereof of a budget director and a comprehensive budget system is provided in the bill signed by the governor. Announcement of his choice of a director, subject to confirmation of the senate, is yet to be made.

Dollar fishing licenses for residents of Wisconsin were defeated by a margin of one vote in the assembly. There were 37 votes against concurrence with the senate on Blanchard's bill, to 36 votes for concurrence. Argument of Teis, progressive floor leader, that "the bill is not a conservation measure, but purely a taxation scheme, apparently changed the sentiment of the assembly.

Under the Billings bill passed by the lower house any member of the legislature having a pecuniary interest in any newspaper or printing plant doing state printing shall be guilty of a felony and subject to fine of $500 to $1,000 or one to two years imprisonment.

After a brief debate, the upper house voted, 18-19, to postpone indefinitely the Michigan bill to pension supreme court justices at half pay after they have served 10 years and reach the age of 65.

The assembly killed a bill which would allow the mayor of a fourth class city to serve also as fire chief and to draw compensation for both jobs.

After prolonged debate the senate killed, by a vote of 11 to 8, the Schuman bill for the consolidation of Jefferson and Dodge counties. Senator John Schuman, Watertown, author of the bill, proposed to submit the matter of uniting the two counties to a referendum to determine sentiment of the people affected, but even thus provision failed to swing the senate.

Bills affecting labor received scant attention in the legislature last week. Two bills were indefinitely postponed and none was passed by either house. Senator John Schuman's bill to deprive the industrial commission of authority to issue general and special orders in cases involving the working hours of women was lost in the senate, 19 to 8. The second bill, which would have extended the occupations at which children under 14 might work during vacations by caddying on golf courses, was killed in the assembly.

Unfavorable committee recommendations prompted the assembly to kill numerous legislative proposals. Among the proposals rejected were bills requiring maintenance of fully-manned section crews the entire year; three shifts of firemen every 24 hours wherever a boiler maintaining 15 pounds of steam pressure is operated, providing penalties for wearing badges or other insignia of societies when not a member, and allowing a county board to employ a special deputy sheriff responsible to the board and not to the sheriff.

A speed limit of 45 miles an hour for motorists in the open country was given preliminary approval by the senate, which engrossed the uniform traffic code prepared by the state highway commission. In addition to a definite speed limit, the bill provides for uniform traffic regulations throughout the state.

The senate engrossed the committee bill exempting from taxation buildings and personal property of fraternal societies operating under the lodge system. The bill provides that assessment shall be made upon the value of the site alone.

The senate refused to concur in the Sullivan bill increasing the butter fat content in ice cream.

U. S. WILL MODIFY RHINE DEBT TERMS

Is Willing to Extend Time of Total Payment.

Washington.—The United States, it has been admitted by high officials, is ready to modify the Paris agreement of 1923 under which the United States receives certain annual payments from Germany in satisfaction of army of occupation costs and awards handed down by the mixed claims commission.

According to information the United States is now prepared to extend the time within which the final army of occupation costs will be paid without reducing the total amounts due this country.

The United States is now supposed to receive about $11,000,000 annually on account of army of occupation costs. The total bill for financing the American army on the Rhine, which is still unpaid, amounts to $206,000,000.

The reparations question was discussed at length at a recent conference called at the White House by President Hoover. In attendance were Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon, and leaders of both houses of congress. Immediately following the meeting, which lasted one and one-half hours, Secretaries Stimson and Mellon conferred at length at the Treasury department.

It is reported that a note indicating this country's willingness to extend the time for payment of army costs has been sent to the United States embassy at Paris for transmission to the American experts on the international committee now attempting to settle the amount Germany will have to pay in reparations annuities. A note asking the United States to modify its claims in order to aid in reaching a settlement at Paris was read, it was said, at the White House conference.

"The meeting at the White House was called by the President," Secretary Stimson said, "for the purpose of acquainting the leaders of the two houses of congress and the appropriate committees with the progress of the experts' committee on reparations, which has been meeting at Paris. That committee is now apparently approaching the end of its labors and it is probable that a report may now be made which may require action by the Executive. This meeting was for the purpose of ascertaining the views of congress on matters which may be the subject of such report in order that whatever action the President is required to take he may have the benefit of their views."

Following the Stimson announcement a number of the officials at the conference confirmed the earlier reports that the United States is prepared to reduce the army costs payments and spread the total sum over a longer period.

Gil Originates Scheme to Make Mexico Arid

Mexico City.—A broad temperance campaign, looking to eventual drastic prohibition laws, has been initiated by President Emilio Portes Gil. It is to be developed as quickly as national conditions permit, taking perhaps five to ten years for realization. Expenses are to be borne by the government.

The first step in the campaign is the formation of a national committee on temperance to be headed by the secretary of public health and containing representatives of all classes interested in public welfare.

This national committee will have charge of the government's temperance activities, having as its eventual object prohibition of all alcoholic beverages except beer and wine, with public sale of these even to be denied to women and children. A probable first step of the committee will be promulgation of regulations permitting sale of hard liquors only in sealed bottles to be consumed other than where purchased.

Listed as "hard" liquors are whisky, gin and absinthe, Pulque, the drink most popular among Mexico's poor, was not mentioned in the president's announcement.

Declares Chicago Smoke Kills 6,000 in a Year

Chicago.—"The largest uncontrolled menace to Chicago health is smoke," Health Commissioner A. H. Kegeel told the Legislative committee holding public hearings on bills to compel electrification of the city's railway terminals.

Dr. Kegeel said it is believed that the death rate could be reduced from about 12 per 1,000 population to 10 if smoke were eliminated. That is a reduction of one-sixth. That one-sixth reduction means, the city health officials believe, that between 5,000 and 6,000 persons are killed each year by Chicago smoke. The city's total deaths are about 35,000 annually.

The court members, he said, fully realized how much the appointment of Mr. Hughes enhanced the prestige and authority of the court in the United States.

VAN DUSEN WINNER OF KENTUCKY DERBY

Son of Man o' War Sets Mark at 2:10 4-5 in Mud.

Louisville, Ky.—Clyde Van Dusen, son of the mighty Man o' War, won the Fifty-fifth Kentucky derby before 60,000 persons under the worst weather conditions within memory.

In a drizzling rain on a sloppy track, this small, not particularly impressive looking bay gelding, equally at home in fast or muddy going, took the lead 100 yards after the barrier rose and held that position for the entire route of one and one-quarter miles. The time was 2:10 4-5. The track record is 2:03 1-5.

Two lengths behind was Nalshapur, the widely touted performer from the Pacific coast, which came from far back just as he was expected to do, and was running over all the field except Clyde Van Dusen at the finish. Three lengths farther back was Panchito, from the Three D stock farm, which fancied the going, and gave holders of field tickets a thrill for a large part of the journey.

Next in order, heads apart, came Blue Larkspur, favorite of Windy City, Voltaire, and The Nut. After them the field of 21 starters straggled out, many hopelessly staggering, sprawling, and sprawling in the sloppy going.

Clyde Van Dusen paid $8.00, $3.70, and $3.06 respectively to holders of $2 straight place, and show tickets. Nalshapur was $4.72 and $3.26 for place and show, and Panchito paid $3.50 to holders of field tickets.

The race was worth $33,950 net and a $5,000 gold cup to the winner.

Despite the large field the race was singularly free from interference and mishaps. It was truly run under track conditions prevailing. The four horses figuring on form as the best were within the first six places.

Clyde Van Dusen will not rest on his laurels but will be kept at his training grind. It is the plan to send him after the Fairmount derby at St. Louis, the American derby and the American classic in Chicago before he is given a vacation. This campaign will carry him through most of June and July.

Party Sails to Seek Six Noble Lost Aids

Bergen, Norway.—The expedition headed by Glannint Albertini, which is to search for the six members of the crew of the dirigible Italia who were not found after the disaster to the Noble party last year, has sailed from here for the north. Its first stop will be at Tromsø, Norway. It is aboard the steamer Heimen, which has been named Sual.

The men for whom they are to search were carried away with the balloon part of the Italia after it crashed with General Nobile's expedition on the ice off the northeastern coast of the Spitsbergen archipelago.

CONFERENCE TO DEAL WITH FARM AID BILL

Attitude of House May Be to Kill Debentures.

Washington.—By a vote which was indirect, but suggestive of its attitude, the house of representatives sent the farm relief bill to conference, where it is practically certain that eventually the senate debenture or export bounty plan, will be stricken out.

Such action by the conferees will put the agricultural problem into shape for the approval of President Hoover who has expressed vigorous opposition to the bounty.

It is expected that the conferees will at first report a disagreement so that the senate will be given another opportunity to accept defeat on the debenture proposal. Should it be approved again, however, the bill will go back to conference where an agreement that the bounty be removed is believed to be the only possible outcome.

This procedure may require several days, but will forestall any long delay.

The rules committee voted the special rule to send the farm relief bill to conference.

The house, according to Speaker Nicholas Longworth and Majority Floor Leader John Q. Tilson, waived its constitutional rights so that the farm relief might be expedited.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, Republican of New York, chairman of the committee on rules, apparently has receded on his reported opposition to such a plan.

He and others were said to favor absolute and final rejection of the bill so long as it contained the debenture feature.

While the house leaders will direct most of their attention to the farm relief problem, it became apparent that the compromise on tariff reported several days ago, was becoming effective.

It is understood that sugar rates in the new bill, which have been found objectionable from many quarters, may be retained. To accomplish this, it is reported negotiations are under way for changes in other of the agitated schedules, principally a tariff on boots, shoes, hides and leather which has been demanded by eastern representatives.

The sugar schedule came in for further attention in the senate when a motion by Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, calling on the United States tariff commission to furnish the senate with copies of all reports not heretofore made public and submitted to the President before March, was adopted without debate. This would provide records, the resolution stated, on the cost of production of "sugar and other commodities in the United States and foreign countries."

This portends a strenuous fight on the sugar tariff in the senate. If the senate recedes on the debenture clause in the farm relief bill, it is not to be doubted that some fight will be made to attach it to the tariff bill.

Besides retaining the sugar schedule as it is, it is said that the plan is to keep the brick and cement schedules intact, while shoes and leather, among other things, will be opened up to placate interests which desired protection on this item.

At present the world rate is 2 3/4 cents, having been raised from 2.20 cents a pound. Should concessions be made on hides, the duty is expected to be about 5 cents a pound with a compensatory duty on shoes.

Garlic Flavor Is Quickly Detected

Best Way to Control Bad Tastes in Milk From Cows Is to Prevent Them.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Milk containing objectionable flavors probably causes as serious losses to the American dairy industry as the production of milk that sours, according to C. J. Babcock, of the United States Department of Agriculture. Dairymen, he says, are giving considerable attention to keeping their products sweet, but are not paying as much attention to the flavor and odor. Yet a pleasing flavor will have a tendency to extend their market through increased consumption.

Work Very Quickly.

Two weeds—garlic, or wild onion, and bitterweed—are of considerable economic importance in affecting milk flavor in many dairy regions. Garlic, or wild onion, has almost instantaneous effect. Experiments carried on by the bureau of dairy industry show that garlic flavor can be detected in milk drawn from a cow one minute after she has consumed one-half pound of garlic tops, and in milk drawn 15 minutes after she has inhaled the odor for ten minutes. It is necessary to remove cows from garlic-infested pastures from four to seven days before milking to prevent the garlic flavor in the milk. Bitterweed, particularly in the South, makes the milk bitter, and, unlike most weeds, the effect of eating bitterweed does not pass away between milkings.

"The only method of preventing garlic milk in sections where this weed is abundant," says Mr. Babcock, "is to keep cows off infested pastures until the weeds can be exterminated."

Best Way to Control.

"The best way to control garlic in milk is to prevent them," says Babcock. "In the production of clean milk preventive measures are ways best. Therefore dairymen are (1) feed milk-tainting weeds out of milking, (2) keep cows and barn clean, (3) properly cultivate and (4) aerate milk in order to decrease the intensity of garlic and barn taint. Finally, prompt removal and storing of milk at low temperature will retard the development of flavors and odors from bacteria action."

Jersey Sets Butterfat Record

Oregon Jersey Produces One Thousand Pounds Butterfat.

For the first time in history an imported Jersey cow has completed an official test record of more than 1,000 pounds of butterfat. The new record maker, imported Xenia's Oxford Lilac, 574105, is owned and was tested by Harry D. Hiff, of Sunny Lea farm, Independence, Ore. She has just finished a 365-day official test with a production record of 1,022.37 pounds of butterfat and 17,666 pounds of milk. This cow was bred on the island of Jersey, the island near the coast of France where the Jersey breed originated. She was purchased and placed on test in 1923 by Mr. Hiff immediately after she made the 7,000-mile journey across the Atlantic and the United States. In that test she produced 821 pounds of butterfat, 13,122 pounds of milk in 365 days, with calf.

Xenia's Oxford Lilac is not only the highest record imported cow, but she is also the twenty-second Jersey in the United States to produce over 1,000 pounds of butterfat, or 1,176 pounds of butter in one year.

Her daughter, the Lion's Lilac, 671,092, also owned by Mr. Hiff, is now on official test and is making such a high production record that it is probable that she, too, will produce more than a 1,000 pounds of butterfat in 365 days. In this event, the Oxford Lilac and her daughter will be the only dam and daughter in Jersey bred to both exceed 1,000 pounds of butterfat on official test. The Lion's Lilac in a previous year, 365 days started when she was one year and nine months of age, established a new world's record for all breeds for that age class of her yield of 742 pounds of milk and 10,752 pounds of milkfat.

Mr. Hiff owns two Jersey cows that have produced more than 1,000 pounds of butterfat in an official test. Two cows and the new 1929 record maker, Imp. Xenia's Oxford Lilac, by their records, give Mr. Hiff the honor of being the only breeder of three Jersey cows in the 1920's class in his herd. Mr. Hiff's herd rarely numbers more than a dozen cows, but these cows are successful producers that they hold both state and state championships in various age classes as well as many other notable honors.

FROST-PROOF CORN GROWN IN ILLINOIS IN RECENT EXPERIMENT

Tests Indicate New Variety Will Yield Largely.

Frost-proof corn which will withstand a temperature of 27 degrees, has been successfully produced in McLean county, Illinois, by Dr. James R. Holbert, expert in charge of the Funk experimental farms.

In addition to being highly resistant to cold weather, the new strain has shown itself to be less susceptible to the corn borer and flourishes during drought when other strains die. Preliminary tests indicate that the new kind of corn will yield an average of 18 bushels to the acre more than ordinarily good corn. While the new seed has not yet been produced in sufficient quantities to be marketable, Dr. Holbert told an interviewer from the Farm and Fireside that he is making every effort to perfect it.

He recommends that when sufficient seed is available that whole township be planted so that there can be no cross pollination from inferior fields.

Keeping Flies Away by Screens on Milk House

While experience has shown that it is not practicable to screen the cow stable, this cannot be used as an excuse for not screening milk house during summer.

The best type of screen for the milk house windows is that which swings out, for, says the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, New Brunswick, this readily enables one to clear the room of flies during the day. The door should be double-screened if possible. Farmers who have electricity available claim that a fan blowing directly on the strainer and cooler is a most effective way of keeping flies away.

The treatment of manure heaps with commercial disinfectants will rid the barn and milk house environs of fly-breeding places. The common practice in keeping flies off the cows at milking time is to spray them with the common commercial fly preparations as soon as the cows are brought into the stables.

Heavy Production

A rich feed accomplishes more things. It either makes the best transmittable fat or it improves production. Assuming this to be correct, it becomes obvious in order to maintain heavy production it is necessary, first, to have a laying type, and, next, to feed copiously of a rich balanced ration two work together.

An Adventure of the Scarlet Pimpernel

Pimpernel By the BARONESS ORCZY

"The story is exactly as I had it from Madam la Comtesse de Tournon-d'Agney, whose only sorrow, now that she and those she loves are safe at last in England, is that she never once caught a glimpse of her rescuer. He proved as elusive to her as to all of us, and we find ourselves repeating the delightful doggerel invented on that evasive personage by our prince of dandies, Sir Percy Blakeney. "Marvelous!" "Enchanting!" "Patting!" "I nearly fainted with excitement, my dear!" These were some of the ejaculations uttered by dainty, well-rounded lips, while the men, more or less, were silent, pondering, vaguely longing to shake the enigmatical hero once, at least, by the hand. His highness was questioning Sir Andrew Froulkes more closely about certain details connected with the story. It was softly whispered, and not for the first time, either, that his highness could, if he would, solve the riddle of the identity of that mysterious Scarlet Pimpernel. And the whisperers were correct, since his highness was one of the few who knew that Sir Percy Blakeney was the Scarlet Pimpernel, who, with his little band of romantic adventurers—of whom Sir Andrew Froulkes was one—was devoting himself to saving from undeserved death victims of the Reign of Terror in France. Dainty, sweet, and generous, as usual, Lady Froulkes had edged up to Lady Blakeney, and the two young wives of such gallant men held one another for one instant closely by the hand, a token of mutual understanding, of pride and of happiness. Then Lady Froulkes looked in dainty puzzlement about her. "Sir Percy?" she exclaimed. "Where is Sir Percy?" And the call was like the chirruping of birds on a sunny spring morning. It stirred all further chattering for the moment. "Where is Sir Percy?" And silence alone echoed, "Where?" Until a real material sound came in response. A long-drawn-out sound that caused the ladies to snigger and the men to laugh. It was the sound of a loud and prolonged snore. The groups of gay society butterflies, men and women, parted, disclosing the alcove at the further end of the room, where, on the sofa, with handsome head resting against rose-colored cushions, Sir Percy Blakeney was fast asleep.

CHAPTER II

Citizen Lauzet

But in Paris the news of the evasion of the de-clavent Comte et Comtesse de Tournon-d'Agney with their son and two daughters was received in a different spirit. Members of the committees of public safety and of general security, both official and unofficial, professional and amateur, were more irate than they cared to admit. Citizen Lauzet, chief of section in the rural division of the department Seine et Oise, was most particularly worried by the incident, which, it must be remembered, occurred in his district. The hand of the well-known English spy, known throughout France as the League of the Scarlet Pimpernel, could obviously be traced to the daring and impudent attack on an armed escort, and the subsequent driving of the chaise through three hundred kilometers of country where only shameless bribery and unparalleled audacity could have saved them from being traced, followed, and brought to justice.

Citizen Lauzet, a faithful servant of the state, felt that the situation was altogether beyond his capacity for dealing with; those English spies were so different to the ordinary traitors and aristos whom one suspected arrested, and sent to the guillotine all in the turn of a hand. But now was one to deal with men whom one had never seen and was never likely to see, if rumor spoke correctly? Citizen Lauzet scratched his head and perspired freely in his endeavor to find a solution to his difficulty, but he found none. It was in the midst of his perturbations that he bethought him of his friend, Armand Chauvelin. Now, Lauzet was quite aware of the fact that that same friend of his was under a cloud just now; that he had lost that high position he once held on the committee of public safety, for reasons which had never been made public. Nevertheless, Lauzet had reasons for knowing that in the matter of tracking down spies Armand Chauvelin had few, if any, equals; and he also knew that for some unexplained cause Chauvelin would give several years of his life, and everything he possessed in the world, to get his long, thin fingers round the throat of that enigmatical personage known as the Scarlet Pimpernel.

Novelty Straw and Fabric Hats; Gowns Need Not Tell Your Age

JUST as was predicted, novelty straw and fabric hats are of the greatest interest, so far as woman's millinery is concerned. The season has brought out a greater diversity of novelty than has been seen in the past several years. Numerous of these straw innovations include the characteristic of woven novelty fabrics and are handied exactly like fabrics; they are modeled to the head, their cut

At the upper left is a two-colored braid, with almost a flat top crown, narrow brim to front and brimless in the back. Its only decoration is a patent leather band with a regulation buckle at the side. The band is in two colors, to match the colors in the straw. It is particularly youthful.

The hat shown at the upper right is a combination of straw and silk, the crown made of four tones of silk in a swirling effect, the lap-over of the straw brim of the har giving unusual snap. The under part of the brim, which is decidedly drooping, is lined with the silk of the darker tone used in the crown.

At the lower left is another openwork straw, with a fabric lining of delicate shade, which also forms a brim in bonnet fashion over the face and extending low on the side of the neck. It is another model favored by the younger misses.

Polka dot taffeta, wide irregular brim, a made quilt of attached silk comprises the features of the fetching sports hat at the lower right.

OUT-DOOR FOODS

Now all over the land baskets are being packed and thermos bottles filled for all sorts of outings. A meal in the open will be enjoyed and eaten with much better appetite.

The sandwich, the salad, with fruit or a sweet of some kind, will be an easy meal to get ready. If there are husky boys and men in the party who wish a hot meat, stews may be broiled or frankfurts cooked, adding to the food value of the meal.

Here is a good salad to prepare: Mock Lobster Salad.—Take one cupful each of diced celery and cooked haddock flaked, or other dry fish, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one-half cupful of mayonnaise and one tablespoonful of minced pimiento. Serve on lettuce.

Bacon and Egg Sandwich.—Place strips of bacon in a frying pan, drop eggs over them. When cooked add more strips of bacon and turn the eggs and bacon to fry on the other side. Serve on hot toast or bread.

Whole Meal Salad.—Arrange sections of grapefruit, oranges and apple cut into sections unpeeled, celery and canteloupe on crisp lettuce with a liberal helping of salad dressing or a lemon sirup in which pulverized sugar has been dissolved. The celery, if added, will be better with the dressing of mayonnaise, the sweet dressing with the fruit.

Green corn roasted in the husks is delicious eating, as well as potatoes roasted in the ashes and coals. Onions roasted with the skins and peeled when serving are another delight. Serve with plenty of butter.

Orange, Tomato and Cucumber Salad.—For each portion, allow one thick slice of ripe tomato, a ring of green pepper and one-half an orange. Sprinkle with minced onion and serve with a good dressing.

Those who must economize to a penny on the food for the family should learn the food value of meats. The coarser cuts of meat which take more pains in preparation and longer cooking are much cheaper than the quickly cooked meats which seem to be those oftenest bought.

A Collection of Pies.

Of all the pies enjoyed by man, the lemon pie has about as many votes as the apple. A nicely made and baked lemon pie is a work of art and is not so simple to make as many seem to think.

Lemon Meringue Pie.—Take one and one-half cups of sugar, five tablespoonfuls of cornstarch, one-third teaspoonful of salt, mix well and add to one and one-half cups of boiling water, stirring constantly. Cook for ten minutes over water, add two tablespoonfuls of butter, two well beaten egg yolks, the grated rind and juice of a lemon. Pour into a baked pastry shell and cover with a meringue, using the two egg whites beaten stiff, adding lemon flavoring and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Brown in a moderate oven.

Boyington Coconut Pie.—Scald one pint of milk, add one tablespoonful of butter and mix with one tablespoonful of flour and one-half cupful of sugar with a few grains of salt. Cook until slightly thickened, cool, add one-half cupful of freshly grated coconut and the whites of two eggs well beaten. Pour into a pastry-lined plate and bake in a very hot oven at first, then reduce the heat and cook until the custard is firm. Whip one cupful of heavy cream, flavor with vanilla and sweeten to taste. Cover the pie when it is cold and serve.

Boston Prune Pie.—Soak one pound of prunes in cold water to cover, overnight. Stew them in the same water until tender. Remove the stones and put the fruit through a sieve, flavor with orange juice and grated rind, add sugar to sweeten. For each cupful of prune pulp allow two eggs, beat the yolks and add one-half cupful of rich cream, combine with the prune mixture, add a pinch of salt and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Pour into a pastry-lined pie plate and bake thirty-five minutes in a moderate oven.

Green Apple Pie.—Prepare a pie as usual, piling the sliced apples high in the center and adding no sugar or seasoning. Bake, cut around the crust and remove the top crust. Season with butter, salt, cinnamon and sugar, replace the crust and serve.

Variety is called the spice of life, and in foods this is especially true. The same food served in a different way, or with other foods, will be much more appetizing than the same thing day after day in the same old manner of serving.

Soaked Mittens Warmest

A strange custom of New England coast winter fishermen is to soak their thick, woolen mittens in the sea and wring them out as dry as possible before putting them on. They say their hands keep much warmer than if they don the mittens when dry.

Colonial Home Made Attractive by Wide Porch With Glazed Entry

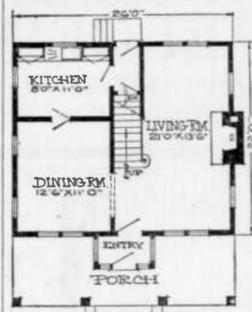

A comfortable looking colonial home. Excellent floor plans, economical construction and an inviting open front porch, distinguish this home.

By W. A. RADFORD Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

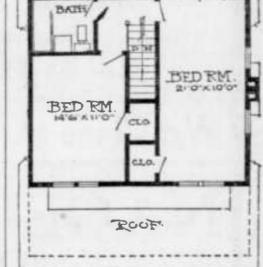

Here is the type of home which will appeal to a great many prospective home builders, especially those who want a modern dwelling, require only a limited number of rooms and have not a large amount of money to build with. It is a simple colonial home made attractive by a wide porch with a glazed-in entry.

This house is of frame construction and is only 22 feet by 26 feet.

First Floor Plan.

The interior arrangement is such, however, that there is an unusually large living room, 13 feet 6 inches by 21 feet, extending the depth of the house at one end. In the center of the outside wall of this room is an open fireplace while two windows at room by a cased double opening. This room is 11 feet by 12 feet 6 inches. The kitchen, 8 feet by 11 feet, is directly back of the dining room.

Open stairs run out of one side of the living room directly opposite the entrance door and lead to a central hall on the second floor. Here are found the bedrooms, one directly above the living room and practically the same size, and the other 11 feet by 14 feet 6 inches. At the head of the stairs is the bathroom. Should the family be willing to have smaller bedrooms or should the occasion arise the large, bedroom can be partitioned into two, each one being 10 feet by 10 1/2 feet.

The wide porch with the brick steps and the overhang of the porch roof take from this home the plainness which is sometimes a drawback in the true colonial design.

Water, Sewer and Gas Cost $25 a Front Foot

The cost of utilities, such as sewer, water and gas mains, the necessary service pipes inside of curb line, cement walks, curbing and paving is about $25 per front foot.

As to the increase in values that these improvements have upon land, this depends greatly upon local conditions.

The usual size subdivision lot, whether urban or suburban, is of little, if not practically of no value, without utilities.

A subdivision lot is increased in value one to two times the cost of utilities—in other words, the cost of all utilities being $25 per foot, a subdivision lot is increased in value up to double that amount, or $50 per front foot, and in some cases it may even be more because with these utilities you have a piece of useful property—and without them a piece of useless property.

Iron Bases for Porch Columns Prevent Rotting

An iron base for porch columns and newels that raises the column from slightly less than two inches to six inches off the floor, allowing air to circulate between the column and the floor, so preventing rot, is available for round and square columns. Prices are reasonable.

Permitting water to run off the floor without wetting the bottom of the column, these supports, it is claimed, will add years to the life of the columns, saving many dollars in replacement costs and improve the appearance of the porch. Water that clings about the base of columns and causes rot and decay is, through the use of these bases, passed off without causing injury. Water also is prevented

Home Can Be Bought for Rental Money

Of the millions of persons in the United States, 62 per cent are paying out rent to some landlord. Only 33 per cent own their own homes. Rent money, if financed correctly, will enable most persons of the average means to soon acquire a home of their own. When a man purchases a house on the part payment plan, with a sensible financial arrangement, he has something to show for his efforts. When he pays rent over the same period he had nothing to show but a large bundle of rent receipts.

The following table will show what can be done along these lines:

Table with 4 columns: Rent per mo., In 10 yrs., In 15 yrs., In 20 yrs. Rows show amounts for $50, $75, and $100 monthly rent.

The figures include interest at 6 per cent, compounded annually.

Use Right Paper

Rooms may be made to seem higher, more spacious and brighter than they actually are if the right paper is used on their walls.

Tudor Beauty Found in New Style Roofing

For many years comparatively few persons recognized the interesting qualities to be found in Tudor architecture, but recently there has grown in this country a widespread appreciation of the graciousness and charm of this old English style. When the art and design of one country are transplanted to another certain modifications and changes are likely to take place. The English roof was made of natural stone, and the first thought of the American architect was to use only that material. But American inventiveness is not satisfied to follow along the old lines, when some new product can be developed that will add superior qualities to a new and fascinating roofing, tapered asbestos shingles, made in random widths and graduated thicknesses, in a wide range of rich but subdued colors. The shingles are composed solely of portland cement, pure asbestos fiber and mineral oxides for coloring. They combine the beauty of a natural product with features achieved only by composition material. Instead of possible deterioration, age improves them. They possess a remarkable insulating value and may be had in various types to suit the type of building on which they are to be used.

Own Your Home, Let Luxuries Go for While

That home ownership often is sacrificed for unnecessary luxuries and through carelessness, was pointed out by Robert J. Nash, president of the Philadelphia Real Estate board, following receipt by him of the report of a national survey of expenditures as compared with incomes. "According to the study," said Mr. Nash, "14 per cent is put down as wasted. The amount used for investment was 11 per cent and the amount spent on luxuries 22 per cent. It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the average individual is neglecting investment in the sake of luxuries."

Accurate Spacing Means More Potatoes to the Acre

From Bulletin No. 1188, United States Department of Agriculture—It is significant that the yield of potatoes is less, and the cost of production greater on farms where planting is done by hand than on those planting by machine.

The increased yield comes from planting sufficient seed and spacing it uniformly. That is why increased yields follow the use of McCormick-Deering potato planters—they space accurately. The open seed chamber enables the operator to see the seed and know that the seed is reaching the soil on time. McCormick-Deering potato planters can be supplied either with or without fertilizer attachment. We want to show you one of these up-to-date planters.

CAMEL CIGARETTES

WHY CAMELS ARE THE BETTER CIGARETTE

Camels contain the choicest tobaccos grown . . . expertly blended for matchless taste and fragrance.

They have a welcome mellowness and mildness that you will find in no other cigarette. Smoke them as often as you like, Camels never tire your taste.

The quality of Camels is never permitted to vary.

Only a superior cigarette could have won and held world leadership for all these years as Camel has done.

Accurate Spacing Means More Potatoes to the Acre

From Bulletin No. 1188, United States Department of Agriculture—"It is significant that the yield of potatoes is less, and the cost of production greater on farms where planting is done by hand than on those planting by machine."
The increased yield comes from planting sufficient seed and spacing it uniformly. That is why increased yields follow the use of McCormick-Deering potato planters—they space accurately. The open seed chamber enables the operator to see the seed and know that the seed is reaching the soil on time. McCormick-Deering potato planters can be supplied either with or without fertilizer attachment. We want to show you some of these up-to-date planters.

Yankee Center Field Is Tough

CENTER FIELD in the Yankee stadium is the toughest middle pasture in the American league to play; that in Cleveland is the easiest. At least that is the opinion of Johnny Mostil, the Chicago White Sox great ball hawk.

Mostil will go down in history as one of the greatest center fielders in the American league. For several years Tris Speaker enjoyed the reputation of being the best middle gardener. Then along came Happy Felsch. When the latter faded from the picture, Speaker resumed his premiership, only to surrender it to Mostil, who now shares the honor with Earl Combs of the Yankees. Mostil has a better arm than Combs, but the latter has the greater speed.

"The shadows caused by the great three-decked stand at the Yankee stadium are tough, but that is not all," says Mostil. "An outfielder must depend upon his ears to a certain extent in playing his position efficiently. He must be alert and listen for the crack of the bat against the ball so as to judge the drive properly. Experience tells him when he hears the crash of bat meeting ball whether he should turn his back to the plate and dash for the wall or tear in for a possible pop fly."

"But it often has happened with me, and I presume other outfielders, that just as the batsman swings, a subway train goes rumbling by drowning out all sound of the collision between ball and bat. And to make matters worse, during the earlier part of the 1923 season the riveters were at work upon an addition to the stands. I'll bet every outfielder was glad when 4:30 arrived and the riveters called it a day."

"My sympathies go out to the young outfielders coming up to the big show from the sticks. They have played upon fields equipped with small, single-deck grandstands which threw scarcely any shadows. They are thrown almost overnight into big parks like those in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Philadelphia and other cities, where the shadows confound even the veterans. It's a surprise to me that they accept half of their chances their first week. I recall the experience of George Blackerby who came up from Waco to join the White Sox in August. He was sent to left field without delay. It's a wonder he was not hit on the head by some of the drives an outfielder accustomed to the shadows would have caught with ease."

Johnny Mostil.

RATE CARROLL AS WISEST PITCHER

Says Year or So in Minors Needed by Youngster.

Owen Carroll, star hurler of the Detroit Tigers, already is rated as one of the wisest pitchers in the circuit, despite his lack of years—he was only twenty-five when the 1923 season started—and some of his axioms might be worth heeding by the sandlot pitchers who have ambitions to become big leaguers.

"A young pitcher needs one or two years in the minors if for no other reason than to acquire confidence," says Carroll. "Minor league clubs do not carry pitching staffs of nine or ten men and when you get yourself in a jam, you may have to pitch yourself out. In the majors, the moment you wobble, there is another pitcher down in the bullpen getting ready to take your place. Naturally, you become nervous and instead of pitching yourself out of the tough spot, you become more deeply involved."

"But, in the minors, you get the chance to solve your own problems and extricate yourself, an experience that is valuable when you strike the big show. Take my case. I joined the Tigers in 1925 shortly after finishing at Holy Cross, my only experience having been at college and in a twilight league in Massachusetts. I had the stuff, but I never learned how to use it until I had been sent to Toronto for development. There, under the guidance of Dan Howley and Steve O'Neill and, knowing I would not be yanked the second the trouble clouds appeared, I was successful."

"At Toronto, I also acquired control, wildness having been my greatest fault and, speaking of control, every successful pitcher learns to know which is his "control ball" and depends upon it in the pinches. And the other stuff when you are ahead of the batter."

Football Stars at Iowa

Improving as Students

T. N. Metcalf, director of athletics at Iowa State college, has come to the conclusion that football players at the Ames institution are becoming better students. Metcalf has just completed a survey of the football squads of the last three years. Last year 70 per cent of the freshman players and 92 per cent of the varsity men received passing grades in more than fifteen hours of college work. Records show that for last fall more than ever before. In 1923 40 per cent of the freshmen were dropped because of poor scholarship. The following year only 19 per cent were dismissed and last fall the figure fell to 5 per cent.

Bill Hallahan Cardinal

Star When Has Control

There probably will be a lot of shuffling around in the batter's box when Bill Hallahan takes the mound for the St. Louis Cardinals this season.

For Bill, with all of his curves and speed, is, or rather has been one wild right-handed pitcher. Working for Houston, pennant winners on the Texas league last year, Bill fanned 244 men in 276 innings, but he walked 149. He won 23 and lost 12 games.

Bill was up with the Cardinals once before. His wildness was too great a handicap then.

Pat Malone Wins

Pat Malone, secured by the Chicago Cubs from the Milwaukee American association team, has developed into a consistent winning pitcher.

High Rating Given to Washington Team

Eddie Collins, once king of second basemen, is among those who believe the Washington club is on the way to more than moderate success.

At a baseball luncheon of the Penn. A. C. in Philadelphia, Collins cited the Nationals as one of the most improved clubs in the American league, and expressed the belief that they and the St. Louis Browns would give the Yankees and Athletics an argument over the pennant.

Collins paid glowing tribute to Walter Johnson as a leader. He ascribed the hustling spirit and generally high morale of the club to the players' faith in the Big Train and their admiration for him.

McGraw Likes Giants

John McGraw is convinced his New York Giants are a greatly improved ball club and will be in the thick of the National league pennant struggle from start to finish. As a matter of fact, McGraw believes the Giants have their best chance in some years to make away with the league go-falon. He thinks the Cubs are the most improved of the Giants' rivals and that St. Louis and Pittsburgh will make trouble during the course of the championship race.

BASEBALL NOTES

Charlotte has released Pitcher Paul Pechuk, a youngster from Scranton, Pa.

Al Lopez, Cuban catcher, has been farmed to Atlanta by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Jonah Goldman, an infielder, was released by the Cleveland Indians to Albany in the Eastern league.

Ivy Griffin, first baseman of the Milwaukee American association club, has been purchased by Louisville.

Joe Boley's arm has bothered him for several seasons, but this spring is the first time it went dead on him.

George Stallings is reported to be well on the road to a recovery from the illness that struck him last summer.

Nearly half of the players in the Southeastern league of last year are with the Southern league clubs this spring.

The Middle Atlantic league has abandoned the split-season schedule. Last year there were 15 leagues with the split.

The Newark Bears may change their name to the Newark Gray Eagles in honor of their new manager, Tris Speaker.

When John McGraw wore knee pants, Connie Mack was a dashing young blade. Now John is fifty-six, Connie ten more, and both still work.

Although Carl Lind's galloping stride doesn't indicate he is speedy, the Cleveland youngster is rated one of the fastest runners in the big league.

Herbie Thomas, second baseman for the Toledo Mudhens in the American association, has been traded for Curley Ogden, pitcher for Buffalo in the International league.

St. Louis university has abandoned baseball for this year because of the absence of a playing field. Intercollegiate competition in track will not be attempted, either.

Three players in the American league were born on Christmas day. They are Gene Robertson with the Yankees, and Emile Barnes and Lloyd Brown with the Washingtons.

Captain Charlie Grimm of the Cubs has realized the ambition of every hitter. Grimm hit a "straight flush" against Houston—a home run, triple, double and a single, a feat rare in baseball.

Topeka has purchased Outfielder Bud Honea from Denver. Honea played with Independence in the Western association last season and Manager Fayton regards him as a promising youngster.

The first southpaw in the big leagues to pitch a no-hit no-run game with no batter reaching first base was John Lee Richmond of the Worcester National league team, who turned the trick on June 12, 1890.

Fred Haney, who looks like a big improvement at third base for the Cardinals, got into his hitting stride in the second game against the Reds, collecting a double and triple. He has been leading in great shape.

Lon Gulsto, injured in the war and unable to keep his job in the big leagues, is this year manager and first baseman of the Bakersfield club of the new minor league in California.

President Hoover is said to have displayed one of the best arms of any Chief Executive in recent years in his first pitch at the Washington opening, delayed one day because of bad weather. Mr. Hoover pulled back and sent the ball on a line all the way to Umpire Moriarty who felt the sting of it on his hands.

Fast Ohio Runner

George Simpson, Ohio State star sprinter, who broke the 100-yard dash record in a dual meet with Pittsburgh, staged at Columbus, when he ran the distance in 9.5 seconds. Simpson also tied the world's 230-yard record when he sprinted the distance in 20.6 seconds.

Sporting Squibs

Cleora, Ill., has been awarded the 1930 Elks' national bowling tournament.

Horton Smith is said to have the shortest backswing of any top-notch golfer in this country.

Eastern collegiate boxing will be limited to six classes with no fighters weighing more than 175 pounds.

The tenth Olympic games at Los Angeles in 1932 are expected to draw entries from 42 leading nations of the world.

Bud Foster, last year center, has been moved to forward by the University of Wisconsin coach, Dr. Walter Meanwell.

Five hundred schools have been invited to send teams to Carnegie Tech's thirteenth annual interscholastic track and field meet at Pittsburgh May 4.

Allie Wolf closed his boxing career at Penn State without losing a single decision in 23 fights. He is a two-handed middleweight, who outclassed his field.

Referees officiating at games played by the Canadian Professional Hockey league will in the future wear numbers so that the fans may know their identity.

Gus Sonnenberg, champion heavyweight wrestler, will reappear in Los Angeles in June in a championship bout. The bout may be staged in Wrigley field and is expected to arouse great enthusiasm.

Jimmy London, idol of all Greek wrestling fans, is very proud of his chest expansion, which measures 11 inches.

Edward J. Walsh, city magistrate in New York, is the famous Walsh who starred in football at Fordham in 1900.

Tommy Armour, famous golfer, sometimes takes 30 or more "waggles" before hitting the ball. George Duncan doesn't even step up to the pellet; he hits it in his stride.

NATION'S TRIBUTE, AT HOME AND ABROAD, TO THE BRAVE MEN WHO LAID DOWN THEIR LIVES WHEN DUTY CALLED

The cold rain falls on Dun-sur-Meuse tonight, My brothers of the Marne, do you fare well, Where, by the ford, or on some wind-swept height, You lie among the bamlets where you fell?

Do you sleep well these wet spring nights, Where there is never any brushwood blaze, To cast within the dugout wavering lights, And warm the chill of these numbing days?

Romagne-sous-Montfaucon! The little towns That scatter from the Somme to the Meuse, Some silent sentry on their high-backed downs, Marks still to every far white church's bell—

The humble little church of misty hills, Set where the white roads cross, with ruined fane

Suresnes

While stars of Alsace light the Voges at night, As long as Lorraine's cross shines in the sun, While moons on Bar-le-Duc send bombers' light,

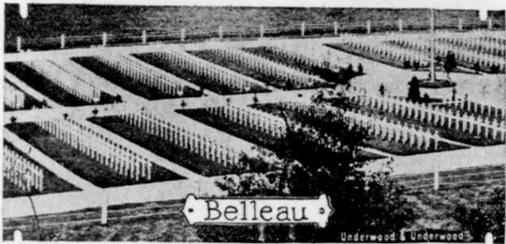

And in the din, that left us dead and blind, We sensed the uttered message clear—"Keep faith."

To every man a different meaning, yet— Faith to the thing that set him, at his best, Something above the blood and dirt and wet, Something apart. May God forget the rest!

Let us forget! The months swing into years, Our souls are caught in trivial things again, We laugh at what we once beheld with tears, In petty strife we ease our souls their pain.

The cold rain falls in France! Ah, send us— The spirit that once flamed so high and bright, When, by your graves, we bade you brave adieu, When Taps blew so much more than just "Good night."

CURTIS WHEELER, First Division. —From the New York Times.

Belleau

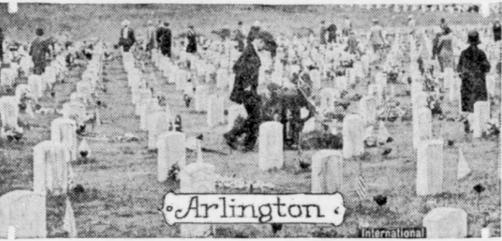

Where, through the window-gaps with war-scared sills, A battered Christ looks out into the rain, Silent, all silent to the passer-by, Those lonely mounds, or rows of crosses white, Beyond the need of bitter words they lie, But are they silent to their friends to-night?

Can we stand whole before a crackling fire— We, who have gone in peace a year and a year, Singing and jesting, working again for hire— Dead to the message they would have us hear?

Not while the red of poppies in the wheat, Not while a silver bugle on the breeze, Not while the smell of leather in the boot, Bring us anew in spirit overseas.

Or rain drives down the gray road to Verdun, So long shall we hear those we left behind, Where eddying smoke fell like a mountain wreath,

Arlington

WHERE ARMIES OF MEADE AND LEE GRAPPLED

Visitor to Field of Gettysburg Finds It Hard to Conjure Up Satisfactory Picture of Long-Past Heroic Deeds That Stirred the World at the Time.

AT 1 P. M., July 3, 1903, the Confederate batteries opened up on Cemetery Ridge. For two hours the air was alive with shells. Then the cannonade lulled, and out of the woods crept the Confederate double battle line, over a mile long and preceded by a cloud of skirmishers. Steadily, with disciplined valor, as if on parade, Pickett's men advanced to the charge.

"The Federal batteries opened and a cannonade such as never before had been heard upon the continent fell upon them. A hundred guns tore great gaps in their ranks but still they pressed on. They rushed upon the Federal front and bayoneted the gunners at their guns. But the assault failed and whole companies rushed as prisoners into the Union lines."

How the savage in the boy's breast thrilled at the stirring recital! All the insult visited upon the unfortunate McClellan in the Seven Days' battle, all the ignominy of Bull Run and Ball's Bluff was wiped out in that fierce baptism of blood which spelled doom and downfall for the Confederacy. At least 200,000 men engaged on that stricken field! Twelve thousand stretched in death in the three-day battle! Nearly 28,000 muskets picked up on the field after the fighting!

Revering in the consciousness of a well-earned victory, the boy, born three years after the event, successfully missed the horror of it, O. A. Savage writes, in the Chicago Daily News. He had no more compunction about slaughter in itself than a Roman soldier or an Ironsides brave. His main regret was that he had not been present and leading a charge. He made a mental note to visit the scene of carnage as soon as he could scrape up the train fare.

"The farthest north I ever got," said the ex-Confederate adjutant, a physician of San Antonio, "was the Devil's den at Gettysburg. I lay among the rocks for a day and a night, and then, just before we were ordered to fall back, a bullet came along and shattered my foot. The next thing I knew I was put into a wagon with one of my wounded, and I rode five days and nights during the retreat without a bite to eat or a drink of water. Then we stopped at a church, which was quickly converted into a hospital. It overflowed with wounded. "There was only one surgeon to operate, and he was a drunken brute. I lay on a hard stretched over two pews, and he callously announced that he was going to amputate my leg, although my foot had been hurt. I raved and protested, but strong hands held me down and some one pressed a sponge to my nostrils. As I still struggled, the surgeon bent over me with a knife. I felt myself going and in a last despairing effort I raised my head and sank my teeth in his cheek and hung on till everything went black. When I came to I still lay on the board, but I had my leg. I saw the surgeon feeling around, seeking other victims. Just then the door opened and a general officer entered. He recognized me and I told him my story. He said nothing, but drawing his sword he whaled the surgeon with the flat of it, drove him out and later had him cashiered.

There were details of that retreat which make even more unpleasant reading. They took some of the glories out of that glorious victory, but little Peterkin was not yet cured. The trip to Gettysburg, which had been unavoidably postponed for a few decades, still somehow seemed enticing. He had the money, but there were other ways in which he could spend it to advantage.

"So you want to see Gettysburg," said a World-war officer in Washington, indulgently. "Curious ambition! A little antiquated, of course, still it's interesting—historically. Might take a run up there by auto. Not much of a battle, judged by modern standards. They didn't know a great deal about warfare. Any lesson you could draw from it would be valueless in these days of improved artillery. But don't let me dissuade you, if you think you can get any fun out of it."

STATELY SHAFT

A view of the beautiful war memorial in Edgemont park, Upper Montclair, N. J. The shaft is of granite, while the statues on top and at the base are of bronze. At night this memorial is strikingly illuminated.

The boy that still remained in the man after half a century made up his mind to go. Four women went with him, for what purpose he was unable to discover. There was no indication that any of them had previously heard of Gettysburg. But why do women do anything?

A journey across Maryland, through historic Frederick and Emmetsburg, with the Blue ridge on the west, and thence into southern Pennsylvania! Presently monuments began to appear, springing up unexpectedly in the most incongruous places—beside wayside pumps, in plowed fields, at kitchen doors, beside woodpiles. Like lone-some people wearing their Sunday best in a week-day crowd! Then prosaic Gettysburg, busily tapping cash registers, reaping tangible reward for past misfortunes!

Out to the battlefield! Oak Hill and Seminary Ridge! The names of heroes preserved in historic landmarks. Reynolds, McPherson, Hancock, Barlow! The Peach Orchard and the Wheatfield! Round Top and Little Round Top! Willoughby Run and Sheard's Grove! The Devil's Den and the Valley of the Shadow of Death! Monuments as thick as brigadiers or blackberries! Sergeant Crippen forever shaking his fist! Warren on his rock! Father Corby on his! Culp's Hill and Cemetery Ridge!

Disillusionment! Peach Orchard with the peach trees gone. Like any corner lot! Meade's headquarters looking like a small gas station! The scene of Pickett's charge a stretch of flat field indistinguishable from the monotonous landscape past which your automobile rolls through any average countryside! Not this did the enthusiast envisage that mighty theater of conflict over which the contending armies struggled in blood and sweat. Only by shutting one's eyes resolutely on the prosaic every-day scene could one call up an adequate vision of that titanic encounter, the long lines of gray moving to mutilation and death, the helming batteries, the riderless horses, the flashing bayonets, the smoke enshrouded field, the horror and frenzy of close combat with cracking pistols and clubbed muskets, the hell that is battle and the Gettysmane that is defeat.

One could just as well have conjured up the picture amid all the comforts of home.

Obligation and Privilege

For twenty-five years to come, so the statisticians tell us, there will be survivors of the Grand Army. That we should cherish them tenderly is an evident obligation as it is a high privilege.

No one could ever meet death for his country without the hope of immortality.—Cicero.

der comrades in the memory of his country. He is a part of a great past coming down through Bunker Hill and Brandywine, Lundy's Lane and Chippewa, Gettysburg and Shiloh, San Juan Hill and Manila Bay to the wheat fields of Soissons, to St. Mihiel and the woods of the Argonne.

Memorial day began in the North in memory of those who perished on southern battlefields. Now it belongs to the dead of all our wars. The graves it strews with flowers have written into our soil its record.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

BAD GUESSER

The young man was very fond of Dolly, but he was rather shy. They were sitting together when there came a ring at the front door bell. "That will be Mr. Robson," said Dolly. "Oh! Well—er—there's such a thing as—er—being out, you know," suggested the shy young man. "Yes," said Dolly. "And there's such a thing as—er—being engaged."

ODOROUS STREAM

"How did the Oder river in Prussia get its name?" "Probably from the Ilmburger cheese made on its banks."

The Nose Knows Mary had a little lamb, The lamb had halitosis. Everywhere that Mary went The people held their noses.

Reasonably Safe He—You haven't said a word for 20 minutes. She—Well, I didn't have anything to say.

He—Don't you ever say anything when you have nothing to say? She—No. He—Well, then, will you be my wife?—Capper's.

Too Bulky Mrs. Fryer—Mrs. Bulge and her husband are wondering if they can get into a modern apartment. Mrs. Guyer—Wondering if they can get into a modern apartment? Mrs. Fryer—Yes, wondering if they can reduce enough, my dear.

A Sure Sign "How much longer are we going to wait for nunny, daddy?" "Not for long now, dear. They're just taking the last hat out of the window."

HIS BIG PARTY

"He says he's going to hold a big party tonight." "He's probably telling the truth—she weighs two hundred pounds."

Thus Ends the Game The young man led with a heart. The maid for a diamond played. The old man wielded a club. And the nexton used a spade.

His Prospects Boot—I'm thinking about staying out after this cruise. Rubber Sock—What doin', starvin'? Boot—Naw, I've got a fine job offered me in Switzerland in a big clock factory teaching the cuckoos the numbers before they put 'em in clocks.

Of No Consequence "How could they have the wedding if the groom wasn't there?" "Well, no one noticed his absence until the ceremony was over."

Not Concerned Merle—I can't understand why you say no when your mother has no objection to my marrying me. Beryl—No? And I have not the slightest objections to my mother marrying you, so there you are.

Forgot His Clothes Wife of Professor—What is the matter—you are drenched? Professor—I had a bath and forgot to take off my clothes.—Lustige Blaetter, Berlin.

Cause and Effect The Boss—If you know so many rich stock traders why don't you go to them and do business with them? The Seedy Applicant—I did six months ago and that's why I'm trying to land this $20 a week job.

Slender Thread of Hope Customer (with old worn-out shoes)—Do you really think they're worth repairing? Shoemaker—Certainly, the strings are pretty good yet.

Missed Death's Touch by Proverbial Eyelash

Who had the closest call in the World war? Perhaps it was Capt. Curtis Barnes, Seventy-eighth division, A. E. F., in the Argonne offensive. A machine bullet crashed through his tu hat and he was not hit, although it was close enough to take out the left lens of his eyeglasses. Then there is the case of Cadet Fiske. He was in the observer's cockpit of a Breguet, 30,000 feet over Clermont Ferrand, France, in 1917, during aerial gunnery training, when he was thrown out of the cockpit with the machine gun in his grasp. He was tossed clear six feet. He landed flat on his stomach exactly astride of the narrow rear part of the fuselage and managed to work his way back to the cockpit. Then the commanding officer ordered a lot of safety belts.

Ugly Knees (in England) This question, "Why is it that almost every woman has ugly knees?" was put to me, says a writer in the London Chronicle, by a well-known actor, and it set me taking stock of my neighbor's knees in bus and tube. Certainly I was forced to acknowledge that there was ground for his remark.

The knee, like every other feature (is it a feature?), can be improved with care, and even after a very short time will show results, if treated systematically. Massage and exercise will work wonders with a too-plump knee, and massage with a little cream will turn the thin, bony knee into a plump and dimpled one.

Expert Testimony From Montreal we are reminded of this one: Attorney—Can you tell me if the lady was expensively garbed? Lucius—Dead she was. And ah know expensive garbage when ah sees it.—Boston Transcript.

East Indian Movement Swaraj is the teaching, in India, of self-government by extension, culture, and political government under native influence rather than English rule. The Hindu teacher Gandhi is an advocate of this system.

A FARM Servant for 3¢ an Hour

Did you ever hear of hiring a farm hand for three cents an hour? That's about what it costs to run the Maytag, whether it is equipped with an electric motor or with the Maytag Gasoline Multi-Motor.

The roomy, seamless, life-lasting, cast-aluminum tub and Gyroaction washes grimy work-clothes clean without hand-rubbing. The Maytag Roller Water Remover automatically adjusts the tension for a bulky blanket or a thin handkerchief—wrings everything evenly dry and spares the buttons.

The Gasoline Multi-Motor

This marvelous little Maytag Engine is so compact that by removing only four bolts it is interchangeable with the electric motor. The bearings are all high grade bronze. The carburetor is flood-proof, and has but one simple adjustment. Bosch high-tension magneto and speed governor give it smooth, steady, reliable power. A thrust of the pedal starts it.

Quality Creates Value

Nature made milk almost an all sufficient food. Very delicious and of finest quality, but at the same time so delicate that the least contamination causes changes which destroy its value. Whatever the quality of milk milk products happens to be when it reaches the consumer, is always in direct relation to the quality of the raw material as it was produced and taken care of on the farm. When the consumer is satisfied with quality, and values the product he is buying more and more, he will be willing to pay more also. Quality creates values through which the dairyman will receive higher prices.
