To Study Prohibition Results

GRAIN CORPORATION IS GIVEN APPROVAL

16 Leaders Named in New Government Plan.

Chicago.—Farmer co-operative groups representing 650,000 grain grower members, unanimously picked a committee of sixteen to organize the farmer-owned grain marketing corporation proposed by the new federal farm board.

The corporation is to have an initial capital of $10,000,000 and ultimately of $20,000,000. It was officially christened "The Farmer's National Grain Corporation."

The new marketing project brought into camp leaders of the farm revolt at the Republican national convention at Kansas City last year.

William H. Settle, the battling president of the Indiana farm bureau federation, was made chairman of the organizing committee.

"This is a big day for the farmers," said Mr. Settle. "It is the greatest day in the history of agriculture that I can remember."

"The prospects look good for the formation of a corporation through which the farmers will get control of the marketing of their own products.

"This is what we have been dreaming of for years—united action—and it's the first time it has been realized."

Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, who was active in the "farm revolt" movement, said:

"It is a wonderful achievement from the standpoint of organization. Co-operative and farmer-owned organizations, which had never been able to get together before, in two days have come out on a united program to solve the marketing problem."

Killed in Munitions Explosion

TIRED OF BEING JUST "AND WIFE"

Seaman Bitterly as she threw the morning paper from her.

"There it is—just what I needed. Just when I have a headache, she reads the paper."

"Of course, you can't read it. It's just what I needed. Just when I have a headache, she reads the paper."

"I want to do something. I want to make a mark in the world—why can't Gene see it? Barbara and May can take over the house—I want to do something—do something besides see there is plenty of food in the ice box and that the corners are pressed when he is toastmaster at a banquet where he can stand up and let people know he is accomplishing something—not standing still. Oh, I hate it—I hate it."

There was a sound of a door opening and some one whistled in the hall. Lois pucker her mouth to reply, but the whistle did not come.

"Hello, Gene. Aren't you home early?"

"Knocked off for some golf, Loey. Want to run out to the club with Glover and me?" He stopped short.

"What's the matter? You've been crying."

"Nothing. I don't care to go out today."

"Why have you been crying, Loey?"

"I wish you wouldn't ask me. I—I am—so unhappy, Gene, doing—accomplishing nothing! I—I want to be more than just—'and wife.' And she reached over and picked up the morning paper from the floor. She pointed her finger at the article and he read aloud.

"I am sorry, sorry, that I have failed, Loey."

"You—you haven't failed, Gene. You are wonderful—but—but I should not—you should have married Bernice Mallory, Gene."

"But I didn't love Bernice, Loey. I loved you." He sat down beside her and took her hands in his.

"It does not feel that I have the right to stand in the way of your happiness, dear. I remove all my objections to your taking your old position back, on condition you will—stay married to me."

"Her arms went about his neck. "Silly! As though you could get rid of me. I love you with all my heart."

The next night she met him at the door, her face radiant. She wore her prettiest dress and beyond in the softly lighted dining room he saw a centerpiece of tea roses.

"Bought them all myself—with the money I start to earn—next week," she announced gaily. "I went to see Mr. Slader and he said that my fourth successor—fourth, Gene!—was not satisfactory and I could have my position back, but he wanted to know what you thought about it. I told him frankly and I don't know yet whether he agrees with our viewpoint or mine. He mentioned our lovely home."

ANCIENT MOROCCAN CITY PICTURESQUE

Rabat, Morocco, built almost 800 years ago by the labor of 40,000 Christian slaves, figured in the late news in connection with a recent attack of tribesmen from the Atlas mountains on a company of Senegalese infantry and Moroccan camel troops.

Rabat is located on the northwest coast of French Morocco, adjacent to the old city of Sale, a former lair of corsairs. It is also near the ruins of Shella, a half-forgotten city that was once a thriving Roman colony.

There are two present-day Rabats, French Rabat and the native town, says the National Geographical society. French Rabat is like a bit of transplanted Europe. In its streets are women wearing Parisian clothes, business men in sack suits and smartly uniformed French officers. Everything is modern and efficient and over 13,000 Europeans live within its borders.

Native Rabat is another story. Squat houses line the narrow streets.

From the mosque towers the faithful to the Arabs of the Beni Hassan, who came through the Sahara from the west, travel straight through the crooked streets, and the deformed, and the ragged, lie in the streets begging alms from the passers-by.

There is slight difference in the chairs or benches used by the legged Christian tourists, and forks are not common, the staple food is couscous, the staple drink is mint tea.

Couscous is made of meat and vegetables, unlike the American things cooked with corn in a big pot and brought to the table on a platter, in three fingers, or two fingers in a morsel.

There was a sound of a door opening and some one whistled in the hall. Lois pucker her mouth to reply, but the whistle did not come.

"Hello, Gene. Aren't you home early?"

"Knocked off for some golf, Loey. Want to run out to the club with Glover and me?" He stopped short.

of the cart as unceremoniously as we had been thrust into it. We were then thrown into the ditch by the roadside, in the mud, just where you ultimately found us, and our cravats were loosened from round our mouths. Immediately we started screaming for help, but there was such a din going on up the road that we felt the sound of our voices could not possibly reach you. Fortunately in the end, you did hear us, or maybe we should have perished of cold and inanition.

"Malediction!" Raffer swore viciously. "And you might have been at the back of those cursed English spies while you lay helpless here. We thought we heard them, and their battle cry, and hurried to your assistance."

Chauvelin showed no emotion. As soon as the rope that held him had been severed he had sat up on a broken tree stump, staring straight out before him into the mist, and meditatively stroking his sore wrists and arms.

When first those abominable louts had thrust him and Lauzet in the bottom of the cart and he lay there bound and gagged, nursing his stupendous wrath and hopes of revenge, he had become aware that the driver, who still sat aloft just above him, had suddenly turned and, leaning over, had peered into his face. It had only been a brief glance; the next moment the man was sitting up quite straight again, and all that Chauvelin saw of him was his back, with the great breadth of shoulders and a general look of power and tenacity. But it was the brief vision of that glance that Chauvelin now was striving to recapture. The blue-gray eyes with their heavy lids that could not be disguised, and the mocking glance which had seemed to him like rasping metal against his exacerbated nerves. And suddenly he called to Raffer, "The driver and the cart, where are they?"

The captain's sharp eyes searched the mist that was rising in the valley. "The driver seems to be on the box," he said. "I shall want him to drive these rascals back to Mantes."

"Send him to me at once," Chauvelin broke in curtly.

Raffer gave the necessary orders, although inwardly he chafed at this new delay. The prisoners slowly continued their way, and Chauvelin waited, expectant. For what? He could not have told you. He certainly did not expect to be brought face to face with his old enemy. And yet . . . But whatever vague hopes he might have entertained were dispelled soon enough by an exclamation from Raffer.

"Charles-Marie! What in a dog's name are you doing here?"

And a weak, querulous voice rose in reply. "He told me I was to run along and drive the cart back to Mantes for him. He—"

"He?" queried Raffer sharply. "Who?"

"I don't know, Citizen Captain," replied Charles-Marie.

"Who ordered you to leave the diligence and your horses?"

"I don't know, Citizen Captain," protested the unfortunate Charles-Marie. "It's God's truth. I don't know."

"You must know why you are not sitting on the box of the diligence."

"Yes. I know that, for I scrambled down as soon as I saw Gaspard fall on you, Citizen Captain."

"Why did you scramble down?"

"Because the horses were restive. At the first pistol shot they started rearing and I had a mighty task to hold them. Fortunately, some one came and gave me a hand with them."

"What do you mean by 'some one came'? Who was it?"

"He was a drover from Aincourt, Citizen Captain, and so he knew all about horses; and how could I keep four terrified horses quiet all by myself?"

"You miserable fool!"

"All very well, Citizen Captain, but I never was a fighting man, and I didn't like those pistol shots all about me. One of them might have caught me, I say, and it was only right I should find cover somewhere, lest indeed I be hit by mistake."

"You abominable coward!" Raffer rejoined savagely. "But all that does not explain how you got here."

"Well, citizen, it was like this: The drover from Aincourt saw that I was not altogether happy, and he said to me, 'There'll be a lot more fighting presently, when the English spies come to attack.' I said nothing at first. All I could do was to groan, for, as I say, I'm not a fighting man. I went out of the army because I was too ill to fight, and my mother—"

Many Miracles

The world is so full of miracles and all life is so essentially mysterious that we should be slow to assert that wild creatures have no consciousness of God.—The American Magazine.

HITCH-HIKER IS IN PLACE TO SUE

Generous Driver Is in Bad Position in Case of Accident.

Few car owners are aware that when they "pick up" a hitch-hiker the legal relationship between themselves and the erstwhile pedestrian becomes that of host and guest, and that they are liable to the "guest" in the event of injuries sustained through the driver's negligence, points out the legal department of the Chicago Motor club.

Liable for Accidents.

"Numerous questions have arisen in the various states as to the degree of care which a driver must exercise to avoid liability," a bulletin issued by the motor club stated. "In a few states he is liable only for gross negligence, but in the majority of states he is liable if the accident results from his failure to use the degree of care which a man of ordinary prudence would exercise under similar circumstances."

"There are other reasons, however, which should be sufficient in themselves to persuade motorists to refrain from giving rides to strangers. All too often does the apparent wanderer produce a pistol and relieve his benefactor of his car and money. Recently a youth killed an Arizona driver who had given him a lift."

Grave Possibilities.

"Generosity is certainly an admirable attribute, but motorists who admit roadside wayfarers into their cars, because of the grave possibilities of the situation, carrying that quality entirely too far."

THE MOTOR QUIZ

(How Many Can You Answer?)

- Q.—What is said to be the largest open air parking space in the world, and how many cars can it accommodate?
- Ans.—Grant park, Chicago, Ill. More than 4,000 cars.
- Q.—Why should dented fenders be repaired promptly?
- Ans.—To prevent rust and remove traces of what might characterize the owner as a careless driver.
- Q.—What is considered a good test of the operating efficiency of the emergency brake?
- Ans.—The driver should be able to bring the car to a complete stop in 75 feet from a speed of 20 miles an hour.
- Q.—When a car or truck loses power on hard runs at high speed, on hills or hard pulls, what should be done?
- Ans.—First examine the spark plugs. Often a checkup of the plugs will save major repair bills.
- Q.—How many families in the United States are now operating two or more cars?
- Ans.—There are said to be more than 3,000,000.

Uniform Signaling Code Campaign Now Forgotten

Not so very long ago there was a concerted effort throughout the country to create a uniform signaling code by which a motorist could know what the fellow ahead intended to do before he changed his course.

This campaign seems to have died a quiet death. Motorists do and do not signal their intentions. And when they do the signal most likely is so uncertain that the man behind is more confused than he is helped.

A hand sticking out of the left front window of an auto may have more meanings than a chorus girl's blush.

The driver with the extended arm may merely be flicking ashes off his cigar, or he may be pointing to some pretty piece of scenery or he may be testing for rainfall.

And even if he does intend to signal a move out of the regular course of traffic he may mean anything from intending to turn left to backing up. The extended arm, held loosely behind the side, seems to be taken for everything.

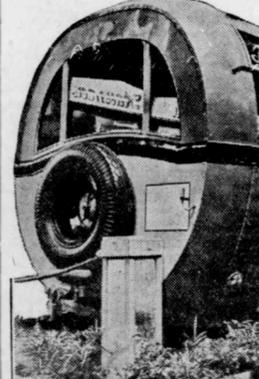

Perhaps some day an ingenious inventor will concoct a device that will respond automatically to the thoughts of the driver.

On the other hand, there are so many fickle-minded drivers.

AUTOMOBILE HINTS

Watch Low Parts

What is the lowest part of your car? Check up on this and then make a note of it for future reference. The next time you strike a rutted road or bad detour the lowest part of your car is apt to take some pounding from the road, and you should have this part checked up on at the first garage detour or bad road.

A quick check-up may save you repair bills or a breakdown or accident later on, which undoubtedly would amount to a considerable sum.

Invention Perfected Prevents Accidents

D. Nettestrom, of Chicago, has perfected an invention for automobiles which he believes will prevent a large percentage of the accidents now caused by shearing off the pin bolt that holds the springs of a car. In his invention positive locking is achieved by means of wedges, which also keep the entire spring tightly in place.

Air Intake Important on Tractors and Motor Cars

Tests conducted by the department of agricultural engineering of the University of California have shown the vital necessity of having efficient air cleaners on tractors, trucks and autos which are to be used under dusty conditions. So well has this fact been impressed upon designers and manufacturers that now such cleaners are standard equipment upon most tractors and motor vehicles.

Recent continuations of these tests as to the effect of the location of the air intake of tractors show that when the carburetor air inlet opening faced forward, three and one-half times as much dust was taken in as when it faced toward the rear. This is a very striking fact and one that tractor, truck and auto purchasers should take into consideration in selecting an outfit. No doubt even better would be the plan of lifting the carburetor air intake above the worst of the dust by means of a vertical pipe extending several feet above the tractor. The opening of this should be turned back instead of forward, or possibly might be fitted with a revolving cap which would always face away from the wind.

Average Daily Cost of Maintaining Automobile

According to figures compiled by the American Motorists' association, the average automobile cost the average American motorist $1 a day in 1927. The operation and maintenance cost each motorist $229, while the depreciation is figured at $136. The depreciation is based on the seven-year life expectancy of a passenger automobile and the average retail price of $353 for the year. Fuel and lubricants represented 44 per cent of the operation bill, or $101. The mechanics charged $47 for their time, while replacement parts totaled $41 and the tire bill was $40.

PREPARE FOR WINTER

There are so many delicious fruits that make most alluring preserves, preserves and relishes, that it is necessary, if we have a supply for the fruit closet, to be ready for each fruit as it comes. Look up the old reliable and well-liked recipes and nothing will be missed.

Each year we like to try some recommended concoction, so a card index helps to keep them where we can find them quickly.

Andover Conserve.—Put in a large preserve kettle eight pounds of hard pears, two lemons, one orange and one-fourth pound of preserved ginger, all put through the meat grinder. Add eight pounds of sugar, set over moderate heat until the sugar is melted and the juices flow, then cook, stirring occasionally until thick and clear. Now, with the addition of pectin from the bottle, the long cooking is eliminated and the amount of fruit to can greatly increased.

Fruit Conserve.—Take three pounds each of pears, plums, and apples. Stone the plums and boil the stones in two cups of water forty minutes. Peel core and chop the fruit; add one lemon and one orange (both chopped), six pounds of sugar and the strained juice from the stones. Cook, stirring until thick. Here, too, the pectin may be added and save long cooking.

Harlequin Pickle.—Take ten large green and ten red peppers and twelve onions. Chop the peppers coarsely, pour boiling water over them and let stand ten minutes; drain, cover again with boiling water and drain after standing five minutes. Drain and add the onions chopped, two cups of brown sugar, two tablespoons of salt and one quart of vinegar. Bring to a boil and cook fifteen minutes, then can in jars.

Meriton Pickle.—Slice five dozen unpeeled green cucumbers about four inches long. Sprinkle with salt in layers and let stand overnight. Drain off the brine, add one and one-half dozen small onions sliced thinly. To five cups of vinegar add one large cupful of the best olive oil, three teaspoons of celery salt, one-half teaspoonful of white mustard seed and beat vigorously; pour over the cucumbers and onions and put into jars and seal. Keep in a cool place.

Thirst Quenchers.

How to make lemonade is something on which most people think they need no instruction. However, if one will use a sugar sirup to sweeten the drink it will seem richer and most tasty. If one has the sirup ready, dissolve the sugar in water before adding to the lemonade. Try this and see if it doesn't make an improvement over the ordinary way. Take the juice of half a dozen lemons, a cupful of sugar and six cups of water. Put the sugar and water together and when the sugar is well dissolved add the lemon juice. Serve at once well chilled.

Give the young children fruit drinks during vacation time when they are hot and tired from their play. The fruit used in the drink furnishes much that is beneficial in lime, and other minerals and salts. The drink takes the place of the water lost by perspiration. The sugar used as sweetening gives zest to the fruits and it, of itself, is a highly concentrated form of human energy. It helps provide vim, vigor and vitality to make rosy, bright-eyed children the happy little beings they are.

The bottled drinks of pop and such kinds are not wholesome for children, and should be given them very sparingly or not at all. Iced drinks of any kind should not be served, but the drink may be cool and just as refreshing. A straw or two added to the glass will make even a cold drink of milk taste better.

Orangeade.—Boil together one-half cupful of sugar and two and one-half cups of water with the rind of an orange, for five minutes. Chill, add two cups of orange juice, three table-spoonfuls of lemon juice and serve.

Ginger Ale Punch.—Pour one cupful of hot tea infusion over one cupful of sugar, add three-fourths of a cupful of orange juice, one-third cupful of lemon juice. One pint each of ginger ale and mineral or ice water. Serve with a few slices of orange and tea cookies.

Fried Cheese Toast.—Arrange sandwiches with a thin slice of cheese as filling between buttered slices of bread. Beat two eggs, add three-fourths of a cupful of milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt; dip the sandwiches into this mixture and brown in butter on both sides, in a hot frying pan. Serve with jelly.

NEW ENSEMBLES FOR FALL; LONGER SKIRTS THE EDICT

MAY as well begin to talk of things knitted now, for their importance on the fall and winter program is assured.

was when a knitted dress meant a crudely shaped garment, ungainly in "lines" and weighty to the point of discomfort—utterly utilitarian. Today a frock of knitted construction is indeed "a thing of beauty and a joy" well, if not "forever," at least until fickle fashion grants it "leave of absence."

The three-piece beige sports suit in the picture is endowed with just such "finishing touches" as bespeak aristocracy. The braided trimming which you see up and down each side of the front opening of the jacket is a very new note. Three knitted cords are braided together for this decoration.

Seen in the original the costume pictured is a fascinating color study. While the basic color is beige, a medley of attractive contrasting tones are interknit to a delicate border treatment about the hemline of the jacket and for the belt effect.

An interesting development in knitted attire is the four-piece ensemble. A skirt, a blouse (usually sleeveless), a jacket or cardigan, a full-length or at least three-quarter coat, are included in the combination. An entire sports wardrobe, if you please, tuned also interprets a smart and important style theme.

This costume, so charming for bridesmaid or for garden-party wear, eloquently bespeaks the trend toward greater formality and elegance in the current mode. The line between sports and dress-up modes is being drawn more definitely each day. Smart afternoon clothes have become, therefore, a favorite theme with creators of styles, and the future promises an increasing elaboration of modes for afternoon and evening wear.

The price of one of these collars is small to pay for quickly refreshing a frock of which one has become weary.

Works like a charm, too! If skeptical, may this lovely frock of taffeta and tulle in the picture below prove to you the subtle charm of a see-through hemline. The skirt is long, just as Dame Fashion insists it must be, but really one is not unapprehensively conscious of the fact, because of its alluring transparency.

The net or maline, tulle or chiffon used for these hemlines to "look right" must be, if not an accurate match to the heavier material it borders, then at least a closely related tone or tint. The gown illustrated is styled of coral-colored taffeta, its tulle hem being a slightly darker shade as is also the alluring thin hair hat which is so smartly turned off the face. Among the elite a large transparent hat is a necessary luxury this summer. It may be black, natural white, or an exact match to the summery frock it tops, and its brim eloquently bespeaks the master touch of the milliner's hand, who turns and folds and plaits it in most ingenious ways, with a view to becomingly framing the face.

If fancy suits to lacy effects, then the new sweaters will make dreams come true, for some of them are that lacylike, they are like silken cobwebs. In addition to the colorful spun silk types, are heavier sorts in which wool or rayon has been interworked, often achieving arresting patterns. There's quite a flair at the present moment for these lacy effects done in detectable pastel colorings.

The captain's sharp eyes searched the mist that was rising in the valley. "The driver seems to be on the box," he said. "I shall want him to drive these rascals back to Mantes."

"Send him to me at once," Chauvelin broke in curtly.

Raffer gave the necessary orders, although inwardly he chafed at this new delay. The prisoners slowly continued their way, and Chauvelin waited, expectant. For what? He could not have told you. He certainly did not expect to be brought face to face with his old enemy. And yet . . . But whatever vague hopes he might have entertained were dispelled soon enough by an exclamation from Raffer.

"Charles-Marie! What in a dog's name are you doing here?"

And a weak, querulous voice rose in reply. "He told me I was to run along and drive the cart back to Mantes for him. He—"

"He?" queried Raffer sharply. "Who?"

"I don't know, Citizen Captain," replied Charles-Marie.

"Who ordered you to leave the diligence and your horses?"

"I don't know, Citizen Captain," protested the unfortunate Charles-Marie. "It's God's truth. I don't know."

"You must know why you are not sitting on the box of the diligence."

"Yes. I know that, for I scrambled down as soon as I saw Gaspard fall on you, Citizen Captain."

"Why did you scramble down?"

"Because the horses were restive. At the first pistol shot they started rearing and I had a mighty task to hold them. Fortunately, some one came and gave me a hand with them."

"What do you mean by 'some one came'? Who was it?"

"He was a drover from Aincourt, Citizen Captain, and so he knew all about horses; and how could I keep four terrified horses quiet all by myself?"

"You miserable fool!"

"All very well, Citizen Captain, but I never was a fighting man, and I didn't like those pistol shots all about me. One of them might have caught me, I say, and it was only right I should find cover somewhere, lest indeed I be hit by mistake."

"You abominable coward!" Raffer rejoined savagely. "But all that does not explain how you got here."

"Well, citizen, it was like this: The drover from Aincourt saw that I was not altogether happy, and he said to me, 'There'll be a lot more fighting presently, when the English spies come to attack.' I said nothing at first. All I could do was to groan, for, as I say, I'm not a fighting man. I went out of the army because I was too ill to fight, and my mother—"

Multiply Your Man-Power By Seven

McCormick-Deering Corn Binders are built in two types, horizontal and vertical. Both are light-draft, long-lived machines that do hard work quickly and easily.

WHEN you go into the corn with a McCormick-Deering Vertical or Horizontal Corn Binder you are equipped to do the work of from 5 to 7 men with corn knives. And you sit in comfort while you are doing it. Instead of turning standing corn into loose, unwieldy stalks that are hard to load or shock, the McCormick-Deering bundles the corn for fast handling without loss of labor or cost. This saves time at harvest and afterward.

If you feed silage you especially need the fast, sure work of the McCormick-Deering Corn Binder. With the binder in the field and a McCormick-Deering Ensilage Cutter at the silo, every stalk can be turned into the highest grade of silage, at minimum cost, because the fast-working equipment handles the corn when it is at its best. We have this new McCormick-Deering for you to see and try. Come to our store and we will point out the many fine features that this binder offers.

The Great Three-Fuel Hart-Parr 12-24

In official tests, conducted by nationally known engineers who used cheap distillate for fuel, the Hart-Parr 12-24 registered a drawbar pull of 2,350 pounds at 2.77 miles an hour and 2,192 pounds at 3 1/2 miles an hour. On the belt it pulled 32 horsepower, which means at least a 24-inch separator. The Hart-Parr is a three-fuel tractor, burning gasoline, kerosene or distillate equally well. It is the one tractor that develops tremendous power from the cheapest, low-grade fuels. Hart-Parrs are made for small, medium and large farms and have three forward speeds to speed up hauling and field work. Ask for a demonstration.

Alexander Tells How to Pitch

ROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER recently told why he has been successful and, incidentally, told ambitious men how to become successful pitchers.

Among the things he advises are:

- Develop control.
- Study batters.
- Pitch the ball where the batter does not care to have it pitched.
- Alexander need say no more. Any pitcher with a fair amount of stuff who can control it and who knows where to put it will succeed.
- There are plenty of pitchers with stuff on the ball, but their stuff is wasted and they get nowhere. They have never mastered control and they have not studied opposing batsmen.
- Alexander never had what the profession calls a "world of stuff."
- He was never endowed with the amount of stuff that Christopher Mathewson carried.
- All he had was a fast ball and a curve.
- Walter Johnson and "Dizzy" Vance had much better fast balls and a dozen pitchers could curve a ball better than Alexander.
- Still, he is one of the great pitchers of the game and will always be remembered as such. No pitcher ever knew better where to send the ball and no one ever knew better when. Furthermore, no pitcher ever could get it to the right spot as often as Alexander. He is probably the greatest control pitcher of all time.

G. Alexander.

Cleaner Fight Game Is Now Sought by England

A cleanup of British boxing with a view to cleaner and better sport, is envisaged by a scheme which is to be considered at a meeting of the British Boxing Board of Control.

The main points suggested in the scheme are that disputes will be settled by independent men with no financial interest in boxing. Every participant must obtain a license.

Each section—promoters, boxers, referees, boxers' managers, and trainers—will nominate their own representative to the board, which will decide all rules governing the sport.

Championships will be regulated and approved contracts used by all promoters.

The objects of the board are, among other things, to encourage boxing in the United Kingdom, to raise the standard and control of professional boxing, and to act as a general board of appeal.

BASEBALL NOTES

Heinie Sand's great work at Rochester has brought rumors he will be taken by the Cards to replace Gelbert.

Why do they say the lively ball has done away with the old-time place hitter? Isn't over the right field wall a place?

We seem to have got to the point where it is considered less trouble in the first place to make a home run than a triple.

Only the Giants, Braves, Phils and White Sox have gone along with the same man playing shortstop regularly this season.

Richard Siebert, southpaw pitcher of Concordia college at St. Paul, was signed by Scout Jack Ryan for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Babe Ruth, Goose Goslin, Harry Heilmann and Frank O'Doul are said to be the best dressed players in the major leagues.

Lawton "Whitey" Witt, former Yankee and Athletic outfielder, is to play with Reading. He has been on the voluntary retired list.

The Memphis club of the Southern association has purchased Frank Wilson, an outfielder, from Milwaukee of the American association.

Illustrating the thought that this is not a shortstop year, Rabbit Maranville of the Braves dropped a fly for the first time in 17 years.

Christy Mathewson's superstition that to throw the ball to the third baseman was unlucky has been taken up by many other pitchers.

Jack Hopkins, right-hand pitcher with St. Paul of the American association, has been sold outright to Jersey City of the International league.

They said if Massachusetts got Sunday baseball the Red Sox would finish well up in the standing, but we guess they just meant well up in the money.

Another form of "athletic heart" is that suffered by the spectator who wonders whether the unreliable young infielder is going to get the ball across to first.

Douthit Gets Them

When Douthit goes after them he gets them.

That's what they say in St. Louis about the Cardinals' great little center fielder, who is out ahead of most of the major league center gardeners again this year.

Taylor Lee Douthit has been a central figure in the splendid defensive play of the Red Birds during their remarkable showing of the last four years.

Jimmy Dykes Is Game's Most Versatile Player

Jimmy Dykes, third baseman of the A's, is another athlete whose playing career holds more than the usual run of interest to the fans over the country. He probably is one of the game's most versatile ball players. He can play any infield position and is a capable outfielder. In the final game of the 1927 season, which had found Dykes playing almost every position, Mack listened to the pleadings of the fans and sent Dykes in to pitch the last inning. He retired the side runless and the fans packed him off the field on their shoulders.

Miss Killilea to Keep on Running Brewer Team

Rumors that Miss Florence Killilea, baseball's only woman club owner, was to sell her team, the Milwaukee Brewers of the American association, were shot to pieces when she stated that she was not going to quit the game because her boys were not on the top.

"Sure, I will be back next year even if the Brewers finish the season in last place," she said. The Milwaukee team is in sixth place to date.

Miss Killilea inherited the team from her father, Henry Killilea, who died last year.

Nebraska vs. Billikens

St. Louis university will be included on Nebraska's 1930 basket ball schedule, Herbert D. Gish, University of Nebraska athletic director, has announced. The Cornhuskers will play at St. Louis, December 23 as part of their eastern trip during the Christmas holidays. St. Louis university will play at Lincoln in a return game, but the date has not been set. The game at St. Louis will be the first of the trip.

Cards Claim Sherid

A shortstop is a little man who throws a ball 115 or 120 miles an hour and wears a first baseman's mitt.

St. Louis Cardinals' shortstop, Sherid, has been claimed by the Cardinals.

The Cardinals' shortstop, Sherid, has been claimed by the Cardinals.

TILDEN TO QUIT AT END OF YEAR

Big Bill Says He Is Playing His Last Season.

"The year 1929 sees the end of my international tennis," writes William T. Tilden II, nine times ranking tennis star of the United States and mainstay of American Davis cup tennis since 1920, in Liberty.

Announcing his retirement from international competition, "Big Bill" states he will remain an amateur and continue to play tennis "as long as my two wobbling legs will function and my aged and enfeebled arm will swing, as long as my age-dimmed eyes can see a ball."

Davis cup competition will know no longer the smashing cannon-ball service and amazing all-around tennis of the greatest player of modern times. In the future, Tilden says, he will play as an individual, not as a member of any American team.

"I have had a grand time, but I must hereafter write and speak of my triumphs and failures in world tennis in the past tense, for I am through," the Philadelphia writes.

"Not through with the game, but through with international competition. My future status will continue to be amateur. I have no thought or intention of turning professional."

Tilden, who has been ranked No. 1 in American tennis since 1920, has had frequent squabbles with the United States Lawn Tennis association, and spent the winter of 1928-29 in involuntary retirement. He makes humorous, but rather dignified, reference to his differences with the U. S. L. T. A. in announcing his withdrawal from international competition.

"I hope to be able to play for years in exhibitions at schools and colleges or in public parks where I feel I am aiding in the development of our future champions.

"Not only have I no chance but I have no burning desire to sit in the seats of the mighty in the councils of the U. S. L. T. A. My views are at variance with the traditions of the association but not with its ethics. I fear I would want to see too much progressiveness and liberalism in its administration. I am for the players, first, last and all the time."

Allen Is Clever

Jockey C. E. Allen has had more than his share of success in riding winning horses on western tracks this year. His clever ride on Martinique landed the Quickstep handicap from a high-class field of horses at Latonia recently.

Sport Notes

Great Britain boasts 100,000 women affiliated with golf clubs.

Penn State loses 36 letter winners in 12 varsity sports through graduation this year.

Warren Davis of Hoquiam, Wash., has been elected captain of the Washington university crew for 1930.

Lafayette, Lehigh and Rutgers, traditional rivals in all sports, recently banded together, and are to be known in the future as "The Middle Three" group.

Columbia crews, under the Glendons, have beaten crews of every college except Wisconsin. Wisconsin has been absent from varsity competition in recent years.

Roy Clifford, basket ball coach of Collinwood and developer of three championship teams, has been officially declared Western Reserve university cage mentor.

Now another record for the hundred yard dash has been set, but it is only a mark to shoot at. No record can be said to represent the permanent limit of human endeavor.

Fred Horde of Devils Lake, N. D., fleet quarterback of the University of Minnesota football team last fall has been named a Rhodes scholar to Oxford university, England.

Los Angeles has 15,000 members of private golf clubs, as many more on public or semipublic courses, a total of 3,447 acres of links; $50,000,000 in golf, polo, tennis and club houses.

Many sports clubs in Brazil are planning to raise money to send representatives to the 1932 Olympics in Los Angeles.

Michigan collected approximately $100,000 in fees from boxing matches in 1928.

Championship boxing exhibitions are now permitted to go 15 rounds in Michigan. Matches not involving championships are limited to 10 rounds.

Combination Horse and Dairy Barn With Modern Equipment

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1837 Prairie Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

While building costs today are greater than they were 15 years ago, dairy-men throughout the country are finding it economical to build a modern dairy barn to house their milking herd and the feed required to carry the animals through both the fall, winter and spring when there is no pasture. And even in the summer it is advisable to add a grain ration to the pasture, in order to keep up milk production and keep the dairy operation on a paying basis.

Shown in the accompanying design is a combination horse and dairy barn for the farm where a small herd of dairy cows is kept. It will be noted that a concrete wall separates the dairy barn from the horse barn. This is in conformity with the laws of many states, which prohibit the housing of horses and dairy cattle in the same stable. The floor plans of the stable show single stalls for twelve cows. There are stalls for four horses in the other section of the stable floor.

This barn is 34 feet wide and 46 feet long. The width—34 feet—has been found to be the most economical

Brighten Up Kitchen With Attractive Color

There is every reason why the kitchen should be as charmingly decorated as the other rooms of the house. It is a place where the housewife spends many hours. An attractive color scheme goes a long way toward making it a place of happiness instead of drudgery.

One of the many attractive color suggestions is based upon walls of taupe gray, painted with white lead and flaking oil which has been tinted very sparingly with lampblack. The paint for woodwork and trim is tinted a slightly darker shade of gray, just dark enough to give contrast between the two shades. Then the inner sides of doors, shelves, interiors of cupboards, built-in features and rings of chairs are painted a deep orange. Curtains of pale gray voile with complete covering of blue and gray complete the color arrangement.

This is only one of hundreds of color suggestions, all of which depend upon harmonious colors to create an

Corn Smut Will Decrease Yields

Disease Is Caused by Certain Type of Germ Belonging to Molds.

"The enlarged outgrowths or galls which may now be seen on the corn is smut," according to W. E. Brentzel, botanist and plant pathologist at the North Dakota Agricultural College. "This trouble," he says, "is somewhat similar to wheat smut although different in many important respects. Corn smut never goes to wheat and wheat smut never goes to corn. Seed treatment will control covered smut of wheat but has no value in the control of corn smut."

"This disease is caused by a certain type of germ belonging to the class known as molds. These germs may now be seen as a black powder falling from the corn smut galls. They pass from one season into the next by wintering over in old diseased stalks, sometimes in the soil and may also live in manure for several months. During the summer while the corn is growing the smut germs move about as dust in the winds and find lodging on the corn. The funnel-shaped pockets in the tops of corn and the pockets at the base of the leaves collect dust and water. When the germs or spores lodge in pockets containing moisture they begin to grow and in a short while form the smut ball which we now see in the corn fields. Will Grow on Any Part.

"Corn smut is not particular about which part of the plant to grow on. When the parasite attacks the ears the grain usually is a total loss. When other parts of the plants are smutted, such as the leaves, tassels, silks and nodes, the amount of loss is hard to estimate. Often the plants are broken over, sometimes by the excessive weight of the smut galls and sometimes by the weakening of parts where the smut growth comes out. In one way or another smut is causing heavy losses in some fields.

"Growers have asked whether sludge made from these smutted ears and stalks will injure cattle. It is very true that these smut galls have an ugly appearance and some may hesitate to feed them to a fine lot of cattle. However, so far as is known corn smut has never caused any disease or ill effects when fed to cattle.

In experiments conducted by the experiment stations of South Dakota, Kansas, Michigan and the United States Department of Agriculture cattle were fed corn smut in heavy amounts. In no case was any injury done to the cattle resulting from the smut.

Only Known Remedy.
"The only remedy known to avoid losses to the crop is to destroy the nearby source of the disease for the next year. In fields where this means of control is impractical it is necessary to rotate crops. Smut resistant corns have not been developed yet but plant breeders are having some success in this direction. It is hoped that in the near future we may have developed a variety of corn which will resist smut."

Big Quantity of Humus in Soil Most Desirable

One of the important explanations of the desirability of having a quantity of humus or decomposing organic matter in the soil is found in the capacity of humus for soaking up and storing water which is thus made available later for use by growing plants. Experiments have revealed that 100 pounds of sand can hold only 25 pounds of water, and 100 pounds of clay soil can hold only half its weight in water. In contrast, 100 pounds of decaying organic matter may hold as much as 190 pounds, or nearly twice its weight of water. Most soils are mixtures in varying proportions of sand, clay, silt, and organic material. As a rule the greater the proportion of organic matter contained in the soil the greater its water-absorptive capacity, and the greater reserves of moisture it will retain for resistance to drought and hot weather.

Feeding Sweet Clover

So far sweet clover has not been observed in any way injure sheep or horses. Its bad effects seem to be confined to cattle. Then, too, sweet clover pasture has never been known to produce this trouble. Thousands of farmers have used sweet clover pasture for years without any bad results. The North Dakota experiment station has conducted a sweet clover pasture test with calves without discovering bad effects.

HOUSEKEEPERS ASKED TO WATCH FOR DANGEROUS FOREIGN PEST

Mediterranean Fly Threatens All Fruit in Country.

Housekeepers throughout a large section of the United States are being enlisted by the United States government as inspectors and scouts in the effort to repel a thoroughly dangerous foreign enemy—the Mediterranean fruit fly—which has already invaded the country.

Fruit from Florida, where the infestation of the fruit fly was first discovered, has been placed under an embargo, but only after much fruit which may have been harboring the pest, had been shipped to distant states. Federal authorities urge the utmost care in inspecting any fruit imported from Florida.

Except for the watermelon and the pineapple, all fruits grown in the United States are vulnerable to the attacks of the Mediterranean fruit fly. The fly is to be found in the form of small maggots or worms, inside the pulp of the fruit. When these maggots have reached full size or when they have been working for some time, the infestation is easily discovered, since they will destroy most of

Date of Seeding Wheat and When to Harvest

That the date of seeding wheat has little or no effect on the time of harvesting is the conclusion which may be drawn after looking over the seeding and harvesting dates kept for the past 36 years on plots at the North Dakota experiment station.

In the years of 1896, 1901, 1908, 1920 and 1924 the date of harvest was August 10, but the dates for seeding in those years respectively were May 6, May 4, April 18, April 26 and April 22. In some instances there was a variation of a month in the date of seeding while in every instance the date of harvest came on the same date.

Late seeding of wheat is not advocated by the station, however, as it is usually followed by a short straw and a lighter crop, taking the weather conditions into consideration.

Turkey Is Roamer

Many poultry men consider that turkeys are naturally a roaming bird and that they can pick up their feed from all over the farm. It has been found, however, that much better success with turkeys can be enjoyed by keeping them confined and by following out the definite up-to-date practices that have been found economical and efficient. Another practice which should be kept in mind in handling the turkey flock is that of feeding sprouted oats or fresh well-cured alfalfa meal.

Feeding Steers

The Ohio experiment station recently conducted a test showing that where silage was used in large rations for fattening steers, $16 more per acre for corn could be realized. There are many experiments carried on by many of our experiment stations which have demonstrated conclusively that silage will lower the cost of beef production. With this evidence, certainly agricultural advisers would do well to urge a greater use of the silo.

Field Stones Useful in Walls and Footings

Concrete foundation walls and footings can be cheapened somewhat without injury to the quality of the concrete by filling in to some extent with hard, clean, field stones. This also offers a means of disposing profitably of what otherwise is more or less of a nuisance.

Cattle Grub Expensive to Many Cattle Owners

It costs in the neighborhood of $30,000 a year for cattle owners, dairymen, feeders, butchers, and tanners to support the cattle grub, yet this pest can be destroyed. Either the old method of hand extraction may be used, or the newer methods developed by the United States Department of Agriculture. The department advises the application of Derris as a wash, ointment, or powder, pyrethrum ointment, fine tobacco powder or nicotine dust, or the injection of benzol or carbon tetrachloride. A concentrated drive on the cattle grub is necessary to eradicate it from a locality. The pest is becoming more serious, says the department, owing to the spread of a second species of grub, known as the northern, or European grub.

"When I was married 14 years ago I was in bad health for a couple of years and when I tried to do anything I would get tired and worn-out. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound off and on all these years and have recommended it to hundreds of women. I have given birth to six children and have taken the Vegetable Compound as a tonic before child birth. It has done me worlds of good. My mother had taken it several times and she recommended it to me."—Miss. JOHN BRASSER, Wetmore, Colorado.

Eradicate Barn Flies With Cresote Spray

Fleas grow in fifth and the first step in cleaning up a place is to remove all the dust, straw, manure, etc., from the barns and haul it out to the fields. Spray the floors and walls with a very strong solution of cresote. It is better to use this dip in its original strength if you can do it. After the dip has soaked in for a day or two spray again with kerosene, following that with an application of naphthalene crystals. Be very careful of fire.

Hogging Off Corn

Hogging-off standing corn is a common practice in some localities. Pigs grown on limited rations of grain are more suitable for this purpose than those that have been full fed from the weaning age, as they are more active and not so nearly finished for market. In fact, March farrowed pigs that are full fed are close to market condition by the time now corn is available, so are fed almost entirely on the old crop of grain.

Fear Loses Power When Confronted by Faith

"Fear is the common heritage of all thinking creatures," says Dr. William S. Sadler in Collier's Weekly. "It is one of the ten or twelve basic human emotions—emotions which we share more or less with the animal world. "When you have once become a victim of fear in any domain of your life, faith is the only known remedy. Common sense, reason and good judgment all enter into it, but the real, the definite and positive cure, the one which does the business, is the exercise of faith.

"Modern civilization has largely eliminated the dangers which beset our ancestors, but it has not terminated this inherent fear tendency. Today, not having the dangers of our ancestors to fear and avoid, we are prone to dig up sensations and feelings in our own bodies to accommodate our imaginary fears."

Fire Cannot Smolder Long on Ocean Liners

The captain on a modern liner can look into a cabinet and tell at a glance whether fire has broken out, and also in what part of the vessel. Go into the hold of any properly equipped ship and light a cigar; in less than five minutes the captain on the bridge can tell where you are smoking. In the captain's cabinet is a series of glass-fronted tubes, one for each hold, through which air is constantly flowing. Ordinarily you can see nothing—all is black; but with the faintest trace of smoke from the hold there suddenly appears against this black background a thin, quivering thread of blue. For within the tube is a shielded bulb of brilliant light. As long as the air current is pure there is nothing to illuminate; but the moment a wisp of smoke flows through, the light rays make it show up against the black background like a meteor.

Could "Improve" Tennyson

The present Lord Tennyson, grandson of the famous poet, is becoming one of the most popular cricket players in England. Since he has ceased to be known as the lion, Lionel Tennyson he has had many reminders of his distinguished grand-parent. He recently received the following letter from a woman: "In honor of your visit and your vigorous batting, I have purchased a volume of your poems, which I think are exceedingly good, but I'd like to meet you personally and point out one or two parts that I think you could really improve."

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—

TOOK ADVICE OF HER MOTHER

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Wetmore, Colo.—"When I was married 14 years ago I was in bad health for a couple of years and when I tried to do anything I would get tired and worn-out. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound off and on all these years and have recommended it to hundreds of women. I have given birth to six children and have taken the Vegetable Compound as a tonic before child birth. It has done me worlds of good. My mother had taken it several times and she recommended it to me."—Miss. JOHN BRASSER, Wetmore, Colorado.

We could hardly afford to do otherwise with USED CARS

EVERY Ford dealer has a reputation to maintain. Our name for fair-dealing in selling new cars, and in servicing those cars, means far more than "quick profit regardless of consequences."

Likewise, our good name must also be upheld when we sell used cars, accepted in trade for the Model A. We could hardly afford to have it otherwise, for we realize that the person who buys a used car from us is a prospect for a new car later on—or at least another used car.

You will find here many bargains in used transportation, sold for what they are actually worth.

There is no inflation of used-car prices to care for excessive trade-in allowances—for the low price and high value of the Model A allows no margin for unreasonable trade-in concessions.

When we sell a used Model T Ford, it has been thoroughly reconditioned, and we guarantee it. Other makes of cars are priced according to the service you may expect from them. Stop in today.

JULY OFFERINGS

One Model A Ford, driven six months. A real value for you.

One 1928 Pontiac Coach, driven 8000 miles. A1 condition throughout. Ask us about this exceptional value.

COOLING MILK

To produce the best milk as to odor, flavor and bacteria count, it is positively necessary to place the cans in plenty of fresh, cold water and stir until the milk is cold. When water is pumped with a gasoline engine or electric motor it is an easy matter to arrange stirring apparatus that will keep the milk agitated while the pumping is going on. Market milk, in fact milk for any purpose, should be brought to a low temperature to effectively check fermentation. High temperatures cause bacteria to grow rapidly, the by-products formed during their growth, acid or gas, or both, is the process of fermentation or chemical change which destroys the value of milk for any purpose. Clean milk, cold water and stirring to cool rapidly is the whole secret of producing grade A milk.
