PLANNING TO BUY NEW FIRE ENGINE

At a meeting held by the members of the Kewaskum Fire Department at the City Hall last Thursday evening plans were made on buying a new fire and chemical engine of the latest type and make. The reason for the purchasing of a new engine is due to the fact that the old one, which is not mounted on a motor driven truck, and which has been in use for many years, has about served its purpose, and it is feared that in case of a large fire it will not stand the strain. The new engine which the fire company is contemplating on buying, should plans materialize, is one on which the fire engine and chemical engine, together with 1000 ft. of 1 1/2 inch hose are mounted on one motor driven truck, which will be a quicker and easier way of getting to a fire. According to present plans, all farmers living within a radius of 5 miles will be asked to contribute a certain amount of money towards the purchase of the engine. Should the property owners in the rural districts agree to this plan they will in turn receive the help of the local department in case of fire, which according to present ruling of the city ordinance cannot be done, as the fire department is not allowed to take the fire fighting apparatus outside the city limits. The service will be given free. It is also planned to keep the old fire fighting apparatus, to help out in case of emergency should it occur that a fire breaks out within the city limits at a time when the new apparatus is in use in the rural district. It is thought that by the additional fire protection, the farmer will receive, it will have a bearing upon his insurance rates. Just what the outcome of the plan will be, cannot be stated at this time, as no mory will be done towards it until the city water works has been completely installed when further action will be taken.

11 HAD '27 INCOMES OF OVER $5,000,000

New York, Seven; Illinois, One; Wisconsin, One.

Washington.—Eleven persons in the United States reported net incomes in excess of $5,000,000 for the year 1927. Of them, one resides in Illinois and one in Wisconsin. The others are in the East, one being in Pennsylvania, presumably Secretary of the Treasury Mellon; one in New Jersey and seven in New York, including undoubtedly at least one member of the Rockefeller family.

Compilations relating to the income tax data for earnings of the year 1927 as reported in the 1928 returns were made public a few days ago by the internal revenue bureau. It is shown that 4,101,547 persons filed returns as compared with 4,338,092 for 1926, 4,171,061 for 1925 and 7,369,758 for 1924 which was before the 1923 revenue act with its increased exemptions cut the number of tax payers almost in half.

No names are included in the report and the identity of the persons with huge incomes are not disclosed. There were 230 persons with incomes in excess of $1,000,000 in 1927, which broke all records, even for the war time period of big profits. There were 231 of the million dollar and over incomes in 1926 and 207 in 1925.

Back in 1916, when American manufacturers were getting rich on European war contracts, there were 208 persons with incomes of $1,000,000 or more. The total dropped off to 141 in 1917, 67 in 1918, 65 in 1919, 33 in 1920, 21 in 1921, 67 in 1922, 74 in 1923, and 75 in 1924.

Of the incomes above $1,000,000 in 1927, 138 ranged between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, 53 between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, 55 between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, 22 between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, 8 between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 and 11 above $5,000,000.

Those with incomes above $5,000,000 reported aggregate taxable income of $95,551,714 and paid a total tax of $15,407,979. Half of the total income was from the sale of capital assets. Their average rate of tax was 16.3 per cent. The average tax paid by the eleven persons was $1,400,725. Illinois had 378,859 individual taxpayers, 292,148 of them being in Cook county and 246,639 in Chicago.

Twenty-five persons in Illinois had incomes in excess of $1,000,000, 12 of them ranging between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, 4 between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, 5 between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, 1 between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000, 2 between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000 and one above $5,000,000. In 1926 Michigan boasted two $5,000,000 incomes and it has been supposed they belonged to Henry and Edsel Ford. There was one income in the $4,000,000 to $5,000,000 in Michigan in 1927, but none above $5,000,000. Michigan had 19 persons with incomes above $1,000,000, 5 of them being between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, 6 between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, 4 between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000, and 2 between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000.

While Wisconsin had one of the incomes above $5,000,000 it had only two other persons with incomes above $1,000,000, and both of these were in the $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 class. Indiana had two persons with incomes between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000 and others with incomes above $1,000,000; Iowa had one income between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, and no others above $1,000,000.

Individual income taxes paid by citizens of New York state amounted to $305,210,059, which represented 36.74 per cent of the income tax total for the entire country of $830,639,434.

Pennsylvania with the second largest population, 9,730,000, paid individual income taxes amounting to $78,674,525, or 9.47 per cent of total collections.

Illinois, with the third largest population, 7,296,000, paid individual income taxes amounting to $73,796,361, which was 8.88 per cent of the total. The central states of Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa contributed 15.92 per cent of all individual income taxes.

Doheny after he had leased the Elk Hills naval reserve to the California oil operator. A jury held that the transaction, which took place eight years ago, constituted bribery.

100 LIVES LOST IN 4 LAKE SHIPWRECKS

Disasters in 52 Days Set Record for Michigan.

Chicago.—Lake Michigan has taken a toll of 100 lives in the last fifty-two days, during which four ships have gone to the bottom, three sent there by storms and the fourth by collision. The list of lost vessels—the Andaste, the Milwaukee, the Wisconsin, and the Senator—establishes a record.

The Senator, the latest to go down in the lake, was in a collision, due to fog, with the freighter Marquette, 20 miles off Port Washington, midway between Milwaukee and Sheboygan. Of twenty-eight in the Senator's crew eighteen are known to have been rescued. Seven, including the captain and first mate, were seen to drown or have been given up as lost.

The Senator, a freighter, was carrying 241 automobiles, consigned to Detroit. The Marquette carried $40,000 worth of lump ore, loaded at Escanaba, Mich., for South Chicago.

The ships, lives lost, and dates of the catastrophes are: Sept. 9—Gravel Freighter Andaste. 25 Oct. 22—Car Ferry Milwaukee. 25 Oct. 23—Steamer Wisconsin. 26 Oct. 31—Freighter Senator. 30

The first three ships sank in storms. The Senator went down after being struck by the freighter Marquette. The sinking of the Favorite, Chicago excursion boat, which was wrecked in a squall on July 28, 1927, with 20 lives lost, is the most recent disaster comparable to any of the four.

On December 31, 1922, the steamer Maplehurst went ashore at the mouth of the Keweenaw waterway, near Houghton, Mich., and Capt. George N. Menard and ten others were drowned when the ship was pounded to pieces. The fruit boat Forelle, bound from St. Joseph to Milwaukee, disappeared in a storm on September 19, 1923, and none of the crew of five was ever found.

On December 13, 1926, the car ferry Pere Marquette was swept on the rocks off Fox point, near Milwaukee, and the crew of 55 was taken off safely. Similarly, the steamer Lakeland was caught in the ice six miles off Sturgeon Bay, Wis., on December 2, 1924, and 26 men aboard her were taken off in safety. The pressure of the ice crushed the ship and sent it down.

Thirty-two persons were saved when the car ferry Ann Arbor sank in the ice off Frankfort, Mich., on February 24, 1923. The year 1921 saw 12 ships sunk on the great lakes, but none of them on Lake Michigan. Twenty-two lives were lost.

SENATE IS URGED TO ACT SOON ON TARIFF

President Hopes for Passage Within Few Days.

Washington.—President Hoover is exerting his influence on the tariff bill by the senate. In a statement issued from the White House the President urged its passage "within the next two weeks." He reiterated unwillingness to interfere in controversies over rate schedules, but asserted that a tariff bill should be enacted and campaign promises for adequate protection for agriculture and industry be carried out.

The immediate effect of the President's statement was a torrent of oratory in the senate. Members resented his suggestion that their inability to legislate has created a "grave situation." It was the prevailing opinion that it would be utterly impossible to pass the bill within two weeks. The President's attitude, however, served to end talk of an early adjournment of the special session or abandonment of tariff legislation. It now appears probable that the special session will continue to within two or three days of the regular session, which convenes on December 2, and that if the senate fails to pass the tariff bill by the end of November it will do so before the Christmas holidays.

Some likelihood of advancing the bill was seen in a statement by Senator Jones (Rep., Wash.) that the Republicans should accept amendments offered in good faith by the coalition of Democrats and radical Republicans. It was obvious, Senator Jones said, that the coalition is in control and that it is a waste of time to debate and hold roll calls on amendments.

The statement from the White House referred to conferences which Mr. Hoover has had with senators.

"The President was visited by a number of senators, all of whom called at their own suggestions, and presented to him the grave situation that has arisen by delays in tariff legislation," said the White House statement. "He called attention to the fact that the senate has had the tariff bill since June, with 15 schedules to work out, and has not yet completed schedule 1. It was pointed out that a large amount of important legislation must be undertaken at the regular session, which would be prevented by carrying the debate into the next session. Some of the senators considered progress hopeless, as it appeared to them that the coalition intended to delay or defeat legislation, or did not intend to give adequate protection to industry. Others felt that some understanding should be attempted among senate leaders by which the bill could be sent into conference with the house at an early date.

"The President said, as he has uniformly stated his position, that campaign promises should be carried out by which adequate protection should be given to agriculture and to the industries where the changes in economic situation demand their assistance. He stated that he could not believe, therefore, would not admit, that the United States senate was unable to legislate and that the interests of the country required that legislation should be completed during the special session.

"The President has declined to interfere or to express any opinion on the details of rates or any compromise thereof, as it is obvious that, if for no other reason, he could not pretend to have the necessary information in respect to many thousands of different commodities which such determination requires, but he pointed out that the wide differences of opinion and the length of the discussion in the senate were themselves ample demonstration of the desirability of a real flexible clause in order that injustice in rates could be promptly corrected by scientific and impartial investigation and put in action without such delays as the present discussions give proof. He urged the Republican leaders to get together and see if they could not expedite the early completion of the schedules and thus send the bill to conference with the house within the next two weeks."

Madame Curie Is Given $50,000 to Buy Radium

Washington.—In the presence of high administration officials, a distinguished group of scientists and leading officials of the diplomatic corps, Madame Curie, co-discoverer of radium, accepted from the hands of President Hoover a gift of $50,000 with which to purchase a gram of the costly mineral she helped to give to the world.

The ceremony took place in the auditorium of the National Academy of Sciences. The gift took the form of a draft, encased in silver, since radium can no longer be purchased in this country. The actual purchase will be made by American friends and admirers of the famous scientist.

There is a fascination about a shingled home. Shingles used on outside walls of a modern house are a silvered gray, which is an imitation of the stained shingles of New England seacoast towns. The silver effect comes from the action of the salt sea air on the unpainted wood and gives it a most pleasing and artistic effect.

The beauty of New England homes now can be had anywhere in the country through the use of these treated shingles for exterior walls. A fine example of a home of this type is shown in the accompanying design. Here is a house 24 feet deep by 29 feet wide, containing six good-sized rooms and an unusual large sun parlor at the back of the house connected with a large living room. The unusual roof lines and window arrangement in this home building design with the numerous gables give it a very unusual and attractive exterior appearance. The house is, in reality, a story-and-a-half but the steep pitched roof lines and the many gables give it the appearance of a full two-story building.

Most Important Part of House Is the Roof
The roof over a home is more than a covering over four walls. It is an important part of the house exterior and should receive the same architectural treatment and consideration as the rest of the house.

Good tile roofing insures weather-proofness. It resists and protects the house from all kinds of weather conditions. Concrete is recognized as the most lasting of all building materials. Hawthorne tile is made from a rich mixture of portland cement and a clean and correctly graded sand. The curing process, developed after a long period of close observation, prevents the disintegration customary on the surface of ordinary coarse concrete construction.

Spectacular tests have proved that the tile will not burn, although the rest of the building may be destroyed.

Most of Walnut Used Today Is Grown in U. S.

Following close upon the heels of tobacco and corn, one of the first exports from colonial America was of considerable quantities of American walnut.

The English cabinet makers of the Seventeenth century, ever alert for new materials, soon learned from visitors to America of the beauties of American walnut as distinguished from European species. So, at their request, a returning visitor first imported into England some American walnut in the year 1620.

Woman Converts Old House Into Modern Home

How an old house can be modernized through the laying of oak floors, remodeling of the roof and other improvements, was strikingly demonstrated by Mrs. Charles Treas, of Aberdeen, Miss.

Mrs. Treas was obliged to take the house, built 80 years ago, in payment of a debt. He did not think much of the place, but his wife saw possibilities in it. He turned it over to her.

Painting Shelves Modern

In order to last, shelves should be protected with paint or varnish. The bottom as well as the top surface should be well attacked and well covered. It is well to paint or varnish the shelves as soon as it is put up.

Concerning Walls

Of the many types of wall paper there are advantages as to color, texture, decoration, fastness, etc. Which will give you the most satisfactory for the job you have in mind.

CHAPTER VI

pointed for the meeting? Isn't the rest of the committee late?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, the rest of the committee is not coming. Brother Hayes was called out of town on business—late this afternoon, and Brother Macklin is in bed with an attack of acute indigestion. Not that I believe a word of it myself. They just backed out, that's all."

"Is the meeting postponed, then?"

"Well, no. You see, I was the chairman anyhow, and I can do as well without the committee. We'll just have it out by ourselves."

"The girls rose quickly. 'We'll run upstairs if you will excuse us,' said Miriam."

"No, don't go," said Joplin Westbury quickly, evidently not at all desiring to be left alone with his gentle, unseeing pastor. "You stay right here. It's a family matter, as you might say, and we'll just have it all right out in the open."

Mr. Tolliver sat very still, a rigid figure against the faded blue velvet of the big chair, his head bent forward.

"You see, we had a meeting of the official board Monday night."

"You did! Why, I could have come in for it."

"Well, we just had it by ourselves in fact we've had several. Well, there's no use beating about the bush," continued the embarrassed official.

"You see, Brother Tolliver, that while all our people like you, and like your son—like your whole family, in fact—still—well, you can see that a blind man can't run a church—not rightly—not a fine new church like this one of ours. Now that we've put so much money into this new church, we've got to get in the crowds to fill it up, and help pay the expenses. And a blind man—"

Mr. Tolliver did not move. "Yes, Brother Westbury. Go on," he said gently.

"Well, you see how it is. And since the Congregationalists have started to hold meetings of their own in the Odd Fellows' hall, they're taken about a dozen of our good payers, and we've got to get in others to take their places. Now you see how we're fixed. We like you, first-rate, but we've got to work for the church, first and last. Well, we waited, and hoped you would get over it. We wrote to the doctors, and they say you've not got much chance—not one in a hundred. You're all run down, and you need a long rest—maybe a year, maybe two years—to build you up."

"But perhaps an operation—it would be expensive, but—"

"We asked about the operation. They just talked about that to cheer you up. An operation wouldn't do any good. Your eyes are just plain worn out. You'll all work out—that's the straight of it."

"I see."

"Well, we talked it over with the district superintendent, and he hadn't a word to say against you, Brother, nor any of us either for that matter. But you see how it is. The new church and all. So he said we should fix it up at the conference this fall, and they'll retire you according to the books—I don't know just how it is, but they pay you right along, and it's all down to the 'discipline.' And you'll get a good long rest, and we'll get in some fresh young chap to draw the crowds and fill up the new church."

"But—but it's father's—the new church is," gasped Ginger, unable to endure the dead silence that hung so blackly over the little group.

Joplin Westbury turned on her sharply, evidently glad of a chance to switch the tide of his talk from the stricken minister. "No, Ellen, it's not your father's church. It's not our church. It's God's."

Ginger wilted suddenly. "Yes," she assented. "Yes, of course. I wish we could let God run it."

"Ellen," reproved her father gently.

"I'm sorry—I didn't mean—" she stammered nervously.

"Yes, never mind. We know you meant nothing wrong. You are quite right, of course, Brother Westbury. It is all true. A blind man would only be an embarrassment—in a new church like that. I should have resigned before—but I kept hoping I would recover. And I had my family—"

"Oh, you'll be taken care of, Brother Tolliver, don't you worry. You won't be allowed to suffer, you nor your family either. Just you remember that. It's all down to the 'discipline.' The conference will take care of you."

"How soon—When do you—"

"Well, now, Brother, we figured we would just keep you right along until conference, on full salary and everything. And you can just rest up in the country, and let this young Buckworth do the preaching. We like him first rate. And we want you to preach the dedication, we're absolutely unanimous on that—nobody but you for the dedication, for as you might say, it's your church. That is, you understand, you raised the money and all."

"Yes, I see. Thank you very much."

Awkwardly, the trustee made his good-bys and hurried away. He did not look back. Miriam walked with him to the door, shook hands with him. She even smiled. Then she slipped back and joined the bushed little group.

"Father," begged Ginger, in an anguished tone, "don't be shocked—please don't. Remember what the doctors said."

He put out his hand to her, with a sad smile, and she crushed it between both of hers.

"You see, there is no hope," he said. "They were only pretending that I had a chance."

"No, father," contradicted Miriam sweetly. "No, they were not pretending. They said you had a chance, and they meant it. They said the only way was for you to become so strong and well that your eyes also would grow strong and well. They did not deceive you. You did have—you have got a chance. I asked them a dozen times, and they told me honestly."

"And as for as money goes," cried Ginger, more cheerily, "I have quite a few little secrets of my own. It is two months till conference. By that time, old darling, I shall probably be able to take care of you myself."

He smiled at her again. "Dear Ellen," he said gently. "If only these slim little hands could carry out the kindly projects of that eager little heart we should never want for much in this world."

"Oh, but this time I really mean it—I mean—I am quite sure—" The disclosure of her hopes trembled at the tip of her tongue—her eyes grew rapt and luminous. But her sisters, so used to her daring dreams, and her extravagant promises, paid small heed. Their thoughts were upon the sordid reality of the present moment and its disappointment.

"It's a good thing the wedding is over," said Marjory. "Helen would never have gone, if she had suspected this."

"Boarding Mr. Buckworth will help out quite a little," said Miriam. "As for us, as long as we stay at Pay Dirt, we're simply gorging ourselves among the feshpots of Egypt."

Ginger shook the rapture from her eyes, closed her teeth firmly upon her secret. The time had not come for her triumphant pronouncement.

"Well, as Old Jop says—" she began. "Ellen!"

"I mean Brother Westbury. Eddy Jackson calls him Old Jop. Well, as he says, the conference will take care of us. What will we get, father? Where is the 'discipline'? Let's look it up."

She ran upstairs for the book.

"I should have resigned," said her father drearily. "I know I could not minister to them properly. But I did keep hoping."

Hard to Picture Orient Without the Date Tree

For untold ages the date has been a staple article of diet in the Orient. It is said that a half-pint of dates and a half-pint of milk make a sufficient meal for a person of sedentary habits. The date needs milk to round out its food balance. An intensely hot climate and plenty of water are necessary for the production of dates. As an old Arabian saying goes: "A date palm must have its head in fire and its feet in water." Some believe that when Adam and Eve lived in the Garden of Eden, they subsisted very largely upon the date. In fact, that part of Mesopotamia which produces this of the best dates is regarded as the probable site of the Garden of Eden. Archeologists, in making excavations in this region, have uncovered ruins and thousands of years old, among which have been found broken sculptures of the date palm, together with refer-

Mystery of Sleep

Science has evolved drugs that will put one to sleep, but just what it is that brings natural sleep is as great a mystery today as it was to the cave-man who curled up on his rock mattress, with his flowing beard spread over him for a quilt.

It is a commentary on human nature that we are more particular about our food than we are about regular hours of sleep, yet it is a fact, definitely established, that it is possible to live much longer without food than without the benign embrace of Morpheus.

Another Cause for Wonder

One wonders what the merger experts will do for a living after all the industries have been merged.—Harrisburg Telegraph.

Mado Store a Shrine

The secret of a little general store in an English village, shuttered and closed for forty years, was disclosed on the death of its owner. Flaxius Josephus Wilkinson had left the store absolutely unaltered since the death of his father. Calendars and papers of forty years before were found, and on the counter was a pair of old-fashioned scales. There was also a yardstick that had evidently been used for measuring cloth, and the medicine bottles, tea canisters and jars were as the old man had left them—even the jacket of the old shopkeeper still hung on the wall. Few persons knew of this remarkable instance of a son's devotion to his father's memory. The son had been left comfortably well off, but he carefully dusted and swept the little store and lived for many years in the house adjoining it.

Jacket in the Mode

The jacket this season is of paramount importance. There is hardly a costume that does not have its accom-

Metal Fabrics Worn

Next to those lovely sheer velvets that follow the lines of the figure so lovingly and drape so exquisitely, sheer, supple metal fabrics are worn. Many of these are printed; some in a small flower pattern. There is one that is very smart, that is printed in paisley shawl fashion.

NEW HATS HIDE MILADY'S HAIR; PEPLUM ADDS SPRIGHTLY LINES

PLEASE the beauty doctors, please! The summons is urgent. 'Tis a special call from fashion's clientele for "facials," for be it through the steaming and massaging of the brow, brows must be unarrowed, without a wrinkle else the picture of the new hats which reveal the forehead so uncompromisingly, this season, will be marred.

One is not to question why fashion insists on putting our features so severely to the test in introducing hats which allow not a wisp of hair to soften the effect. It is enough for us to know that in the name of "style" we must accept. Of course, for those who are young, these petite chapeaux which cut so uncompromisingly across the forehead are perfectly charming, but for women who have reached years of discretion—well as said before, the beauty parlor is the one resort, for there are all women made youthful and lovely these days.

Anyways this much can be said of the new forehead-revealing hats, while they may not always prove entirely flattering they possess to a high degree that other element, that elusive something, which really counts for more than mere prettiness nowadays—smartness, chic, style or that which by any other name leads to distinction.

A quartet of brow-revealing types make up the millinery group in this picture. The first hat is rosebeige felt cut and slashed and generally manipulated as only a milliner who knows "lines" would dare to do. The front of the brim is cut away as if to more decidedly emphasize, through pliant detailing, the width of the sides and back.

The "plaid brow" is set off to perfection by the little hat to the right.

design this season is the peplum. Whether wide or narrow, whether placed at low waistline or lower hipline, these circular flares never fail to animate the silhouette with sprightly lines.

The wide use of crisp taffetas and other of the modish stiff silks, also the handsome metal cloths highlighted by fashion for the evening frock has redounded to the glory of the peplum, for these flare movements are at their best when interpreted through materials which have enough body to stand out in pert and piquant lines.

The handsome evening dress in the picture demonstrates that velvet also yields effectively to the peplum theme. Isthmosean embroidery in lattice design adds interest to this deep circular peplum which so distinctively stylizes this handsome model.

Not all peplums, however, are as decorative as this one. In most instances the peplum is a matter of "lines" rather than detail. One appreciates this fact in connection with the many moire and satin gowns which

A Handsome Evening Dress.

This youthful and very smart bicorne effect is of black velvet with black galyak fur.

Of course, not every woman can successfully wear the new bonnet types which are such smart mode, but for those who can they are proving quite an attraction, from the standpoint of "something different" in the way of a silhouette. The model centered in the group is a bonnet all but the ties. It is made of green felt with an iridescent dragonfly.

The hat with a veil is fashioned of a soft jerseylike cloth. While it is an extreme type it eloquently speaks the trend of the mode. Wispers of lacy mesh, which Paris calls veils, are smartly introduced into millinery design this season.

A detail which is very successfully entering into the scheme of dress

VARIOUS GOOD THINGS

If one enjoys the delicious prune, the following will be another treat:

Baked Prunes.—Wash one pound of prunes, cover with four cupsful of water and soak over night. Add one-fourth cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful stick cinnamon, place in a baking dish well covered and bake in a medium oven for one and three-quarters hours. This will make a thick preserve.

Syrian Meat Balls.—Cook one-half pound of shoulder of mutton and one-fourth pound of shoulder of veal, both reserving the liquor. Put the meat with two onions through the meat chopper. Add three cupsful of bread crumbs, one-fourth of a cupful of warm milk, three well beaten eggs, three-fourths of a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, two teas. cupsful of salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of nutmeg and a dash of pepper. Stir until well mixed, then form into small balls the size of a walnut. Roll the balls in seasoned flour and brown in fat until all brown. Serve with the following gravy: Melt two tablespoonsful of butter, add four tablespoonsful of flour, then add one cupful of canned tomatoes; stir constantly, add two cupsful of the seasoned meat stock and serve when hot.

Different Rice Pudding.—Wash one and one-third cupsful of rice and cook until flaky in plenty of boiling water, lightly salted. Drain and add four tablespoonsful of corn sirup and three tablespoonsful of sugar. Butter a pudding dish and put in a layer of rice, cover with a layer of sliced apples, repeat rice and apples until the dish is full. Cover and bake until the apples are soft. Remove the cover to brown the last ten minutes. Serve with cream.

Beef and Parsnip Stew.—Cut one pound of lean round of beef into cubes; dredge with salt and pepper and add two tablespoonsful of flour. Place in a kettle with three medium sized onions cut into rings and brown quickly. Cover with two quarts of boiling water and cook at a low temperature for two hours. Add four medium sized parsnips, cut into dice, four potatoes also diced, and cook until the vegetables are tender. Serve with dumplings.

Spaghetti and Tuna.—Cook one package of spaghetti in boiling water until tender. Brown a can of flaked tuna in a tablespoonful of butter, using care not to get too hot. Add a tablespoonful each of chopped onion and green pepper, one tablespoonful of minced parsley, one small can of tomato soup diluted with one-fourth of a cupful of water. Heat well and serve garnished with sliced hard cooked egg.

Quick Desserts.

It is convenient to have at one's finger tips a list of easy desserts to prepare. One may have planned the meal but the dessert will not stretch to serve two or three additional.

With a well stocked fruit closet one may always prepare a small steamed pudding in a very few moments. Here is one:

Fifteen-Minute Cherry Pudding.—Make a lattic with a cupful of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half cupful of milk, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Butter old tea cups well, drop in a spoonful of the batter, add two tablespoonsful of canned cherries, juice and all, cover with another spoonful of batter, leaving the cups two-thirds full. This will make six small puddings or less of larger size. Steam by setting into a deep pan of water, cover tightly and cook fifteen minutes. Do not have the water deep enough to boil up into the pudding cups. Serve with the cherry juice slightly thickened or with whipped cream and sugar, or plain cream.

Orange Nut Whip.—Whip one cupful of heavy cream, fold in one cupful of crushed and powdered peanut brittle, then add one cupful of orange sections from which all the membrane has been removed and cut into small bits. Serve at once in sherbet glasses.

Mocha Junket.—Mix two kinds of Junket using coffee and chocolate; add to a pint of warm milk, stir until the junket is well dissolved and allow to stand in a warm place to set. Chill before serving. Serve with whipped cream to which quartered marshmallows have been added. Any flavor of junket may be used, suiting the taste.

Cheese and Potato Croquettes.—Add two and one-half cupsful of rice potatoes to one egg slightly beaten, two-thirds of a cupful of grated cheese, one and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt, and a bit of paprika. Roll in egg and cracker crumbs and brown in deep fat.

The Swiss legation says "Zofingue" (in French), "Zofingen" (in German) is a small town in the canton of Argovie (Switzerland), whose name has been given to a society of students which was organized more than a hundred years ago and has chapters in all the universities of Switzerland.—Washington Star.

A Sour Stomach

In the same time it takes a dose of soda to bring a little temporary relief of gas and sour stomach, Phillips Milk of Magnesia has acidity completely checked, and the digestive organs all tranquilized. Once you have tried this form of relief you will cease to worry about your diet and experience a new freedom in eating.

This pleasant preparation is just as good for children, too. Use it whenever coated tongue or fetid breath equals need of a sweetener. Physicians will tell you that every spoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Get the genuine, the name Phillips is important. Imitations do not act the same!

Standhaft hast du sie ertragen,
Deine Schmerzen deine Plagen,

Early Political Parties

The first organizations corresponding to the political parties of today were the Whigs and Tories, which sprang up in England toward the end of the Seventeenth century. The name "Whig" came from the word "whiggamore," sometimes used by the Scots to describe cattle thieves, while to call a man a Tory in the old days was equivalent to calling him an Irish outlaw.

Chicago shows 104% increase in EIGHTS

Facts just obtained from 28 representative American cities indicate conclusively that the motoring public prefers the Eight to all other engine types. Take Chicago as an example: for the first eight months of 1929, new cars with list prices above $1,000 showed a 104 per cent increase in Eights and a 12 per cent decrease in Sixes!

At the famous Paris Salon this fall, 44 makes of eight-cylinder cars were exhibited, compared with 27 last year.

Studebaker, world's largest producer of Eights, has now initiated this era of the inexpensive Eight with the champion Studebaker President which traveled 30,000 miles in 26,326 consecutive minutes.

And today, at customary six-cylinder prices, you can choose from three great lines of Studebaker Eights—built of eleven, world records for speed and endurance and made American stock car records than all other makes combined.

Get a smart, new, thrifty Studebaker Eight—backed by 77 years of manufacturing integrity—and your car will be worth more in the trade-in markets of the future.

The Stock Raiser Needs McCormick-Deering Grinders-Shellers-Engines

WHOLE GRAIN is bulky and it fills the animal's stomach, but it cheats you by satisfying the hunger through this bulk rather than through complete nourishment. Tests have been conducted by Government stations in past years, on healthy animals, to determine the seriousness of these cheating losses. The tests show an average loss of from 12 to 20 percent. In other words, out of every 100 bushels of grain passing through the digestive tract. The unground oat showed a similar loss of 12 bushels out of every 100. Grinding losses can easily spell the difference between a handsome profit. Many farmers are putting various combinations of grains through the McCormick-Deering Feed Grinders, assuring their animals a nourishing ration that is completely assimilated.

Expensive Equipment not Necessary

There are four things necessary to make good milk. First, a clean healthy herd; Second, clean milk utensils; Third, clean milking; Fourth, quick cooling. No elaborate equipment is needed. The man with modest equipment can produce good milk just as easy as the man with a high priced outfit. High acid and bad odor are the two most common reasons for milk being rejected. These are usually caused by improper cooling, or improper cleaning of cans, milk pails, covers, strainers, and milking machines. Proper care of equipment and immediate cooling makes the production of good milk an easy matter the year around.

IN MEMORY

In memory of our dear husband and father, Carl W. Bleck, who passed away one year ago November 12, 1928 in his lonely grave he sleeps

As the shadows onward fall, And our loving hearts are weeping,

No more his presence we can call. Do not ask us if we miss him

Oh there's such a vacant place Oft we think we hear his footsteps,

Or we see his smiling face. A loving father true and kind,

No friend on earth like him we'll find, God called him home it was His Will,

But in our hearts he still lives on It is true you're gone but not forgotten

Your memory shall never fade, Our lonely hearts shall ever linger,

Around the grave where you are laid. May God grant you eternal rest.

Sadly missed by surviving wife, Mrs. Carl W. Bleck and children.

DAMAGE MANY TREES

Vandals of the lowest order, did hundreds of dollars worth of damage on the Walter-Urkart fruit farm south of this city some night last week when 40 Macintosh apple trees, just nearing the bearing stage, were broken off just a few inches above the ground. Not a single tree that was damaged can be saved. The trees were about one inch in diameter and were bent over and the trunk snapped a short distance from the ground. The exact time it happened is not known, but it is thought that it may have been done as a Hallowe'en stunt—
