

50th ANNIVERSARY OF ORDINATION

The 50th anniversary of the ordination of Rev. Peter J. Stupfel, pastor of St. Mary's Catholic church at Lomira, was observed on Monday with about 100 priests from Wisconsin and neighboring states in attendance. The event was opened with solemn religious ceremonies, with high mass at 10:00 a. m., followed by a dinner and reception.

Rev. Father Stupfel was born in 1857, in the town of Springfield, Dane county, and was baptized at St. Francis Xavier church at Cross Plains, Wis. He attended the public and parochial schools there and in 1869 began his classical studies at St. Francis seminary, where in 1878 he completed his theological studies.

Rev. Stupfel was ordained to the priesthood on June 27, 1880, by Archbishop Heiss and on June 29 of that year celebrated his first mass in St. Peter's church in Ashten.

His first assignment was to St. Joseph's church in Milwaukee where he served as assistant pastor until Oct. 16, 1880, when he became pastor of the church at Newburg. In 1888 he took charge of St. Mary's church at Barton. In 1893 he assumed the pastorate of Holy Angel's church at West Bend and on Oct. 8, 1918 was placed in his present charge.

Out of a class of thirty-six only five of the Rev. Father Stupfel's classmates are living. They are Rev. B. Nuttman and Rev. W. Haberstock of Milwaukee, Rev. W. Hackner of La Crosse, Rev. D. Thiele of Chicago and Rev. E. McLaughlin of Iowa.

Rev. Stupfel was presented with a purse of gold in honor of the occasion.

BURGLARS AT WEST BEND

Burglars, early Monday morning forced the strong lock on the front door of the Ann Lee Dress shop in the West Bend theater building and stole about 100 ladies' dresses of the cheaper grades, leaving the more valuable garments untouched. The burglarly was discovered by Miss Alma Westpahl, manager of the shop, when she came to work at 8:30 o'clock. The store is owned by Harry Epstein of Beaver Dam. The loot is valued at about $1,000. It is thought that the burglary occurred between 4 o'clock, when the night officer goes off duty, and daylight. Rainy weather probably was of help to the burglars.—West Bend News.

Vote To Pave Main Street Carries By Five to One

At the special election held here on Wednesday, July 2nd, on the referendum vote of paving Main street from curb to curb, Kewaskum in a decisive way expressed its willingness and determination to forge ahead and keep abreast of the outside world in having our little city dressed up and give the public all the modern conveniences and comforts of life possible, by overwhelmingly voting in favor of a $9,000 bond issue to pave the street by a 5 to 1 victory. The total number of votes were 271 of which 225 were for the issue and 44 against, two blanks.

With the $13,000 appropriation of the county and state, together with the $9,000 bond issue, it will mean that Kewaskum's Main street, which was in such a deplorable condition and its condition was practically known all over the state, will now be paved from curb to curb from the intersection of Fond du Lac avenue east as far as the new concrete bridge, extending across the Milwaukee river, and from there, a sixteen foot pavement as far east as the city limits, the line of which is a short distance east of the Holy Trinity cemetery, that is if the additional $5,000 which the state will appropriate will reach. It will also mean that the approaches to the bridge on both sides, including the sidewalks will be constructed. The crown of the street will be lowered from about eight to ten inches. It is also understood that the grade starting at the intersection of West Water street and sloping towards the bridge on the west side, will be lowered, so that there will be gradual slope from the railroad crossing to the bridge.

Reports received from the county and state highway commission are, that the bids for the construction work will be immediately let so that actual work can be started the latter part of July.

YOUNG MAN DROWNS IN LAKE AMY BELLE

Coroner Clem. Reinders was called to Lake Amy Belle in the town of Richfield Monday morning, on account of the drowning of Albert Reutten, who had gone to the lake on Sunday for a day's outing. The accident happened at about 3 o'clock in the afternoon while watching the night races. He was out on the lake in a canoe, when no doubt he lost his balance, causing the canoe to capsize. Not being able to swim he was unable to rescue himself. The body was not recovered until nine o'clock Monday morning. The remains were brought to the Reinder's undertaking parlors, and later shipped to his home in Sparta for burial. The unfortunate man was 22 years old and is survived by his parents and sixteen brothers and sisters. He was clerk in the Shore Crest Hotel, Milwaukee.

AGED WOMAN STRANGLERED TO DEATH

Mrs. Pauline Zacher, aged about 70 years, keeper of a rooming house at 136 Twentieth street, Milwaukee, was found strangled to death on her bedroom floor late Wednesday. Mrs. Zacher was a mother of Fred Zacher and the late Walter Zacher of Milwaukee, and a aunt of Mrs. Fred F. Backhaus, residing about a mile and a half southwest of Kewaskum. The Milwaukee Sentinel of Thursday's issue, gives the following account of the killing.

"Strangled with a towel—apparently a burglar's victim—Mrs. Pauline Zacher, keeper of a rooming house at 136 Twentieth street, was found dead on her bedroom floor late Wednesday. Mrs. Zacher's hands were lashed behind her back. The empty purse of the rooming house keeper, turned inside out, was on the floor of the bedroom; private papers and personal effects were strewn about, and some $80 which Mrs. Zacher was known to have had was missing. The police are satisfied that the motive was robbery.

Several roomers were questioned by the police and a search was instituted for others who had stopped there recently. A dragnet has been spread for one man in particular, it was said by Lieut. Harry Rideour.

Daughter Finds Body

It was Kenneth Kelly, a roomer, who noticed that Mrs. Zacher had not been about the house during the day on Wednesday. He told the police that when he returned to his room he noticed the bed had not been made up and then paid particular attention to the fact that he had not seen Mrs. Zacher. He made no attempt to enter her room, but went to the home of Mrs. Mildred Langworthy, a daughter.

They called various hospitals and were advised that no woman answering Mrs. Zacher's description had been brought into any of these institutions, then they went to the home on Twentieth street. Breaking into Mrs. Zacher's bedroom they found her in a pool of blood. The murderer apparently had left her seated in a chair, from which she fell when death occurred.

Dr. David Mehigan, police surgeon, expressed the opinion that the murder was committed Tuesday. He said she died from strangulation and exhaustion.

Killer Did Not Break In

It was apparent that the person who killed Mrs. Zacher did not break into the home, but entered with a key or was permitted to enter by the rooming house keeper. Investigation failed to reveal any evidence indicating that there was any struggle in the rooming house. It appeared that the woman was murdered by someone she did not fear.

The police learned that there were three roomers at the house. One was Kelly, another was Arthur Martin, employed at the Eagle club, and the third was a man known as W. P. Mitchell, who had told Mrs. Zacher he once lived on Woodlawn avenue.

The police investigation revealed that Kelly and Martin were in their rooms Tuesday night, unmindful of the fact that their landlady was dead in another room. Mitchell's room had not been occupied Tuesday night and the bed was made up just as Mrs. Zacher left it."

THE STORY

Haverhill's father, ne'er-do-well as she is seven years her senior, had a little money or prospect of it.

...scattered opposite, forced her to look back. She had seen her father's best friend, but then her vision grew dim and distorted by the flash of light. She saw a man, but she conquered her fear.

...she explained, "by the way, it was as though I had been through a man's hands. It was as though I had been through a man's hands. It was as though I had been through a man's hands."

...he said, after a moment's pause, "I have been thinking of you a great deal lately. I have been thinking of you a great deal lately. I have been thinking of you a great deal lately."

...she said, "I have been thinking of you a great deal lately. I have been thinking of you a great deal lately. I have been thinking of you a great deal lately."

is a vulgar climate?" she asked, laughing.

"Weather that has no reserves," he answered instantly. "Perpetually smiling skies are like a woman who laughs because she has no sense."

She did not like the way he said that. There was something cold and bitter in his voice. Men did not usually speak so to her of her own sex. She was both piqued and interested.

"You mean you like to go about with raincoats and rugs?"

He nodded. "Possibly. But I like uncertainty. I like to see the sun cloud over and the end of a rainy day."

"Then you like capricious women," said Linda thoughtfully.

If he did he had ample opportunity to prove it in the whirlwind month that followed, for Linda never knew until the day after she married him whether she cared or not.

Courtney Roth was a high-headed, reddish faced man with the sort of staring gray eyes that are always looking over people's heads in search of something farther afield. He was never satisfied. If he was here he wanted to be there. If he had this he wanted that, not through fretfulness or greed but because of an unquenchable appetite for life. He wanted to see everything, to have everything and he was in a hurry about getting both. Such tastes are expensive.

His restless expansiveness fed and encouraged something that might have lain dormant in Linda if she had married another man. With Courtney Roth a train of venturesomeness was lighted in her that was to burn to a brilliant flare until that part of her that was his was consumed.

Even with this attraction it might not have happened but for Mrs. Ralston's impatience. She could not forget the senator.

"You must be sure, my dear," she warned the girl. "With your beauty you ought to go far. And, remember, it is all the same after you have been married six weeks. Courtney is a charming person, but the senator has been a wonderful friend. Your position in Washington would be superb."

Linda looked at her with dilating eyes. It was not the first time that the senator had suggested to her as other than her father's friend, and each time something within her grew colder and shuddered with deeper aversion and a strange presence that unless she was careful and quick—like a bird in the grass—this thing might happen to her. Measured by Converse, Courtney Roth became splendid and desirable. She did not consider love, but only safety and the certainty that now she could afford to forget the other man to whom she seemed to owe some vast and incomprehensible debt.

But even after the engagement they spoke far less of love than of plans for covering ground during the honeymoon. They were going around the world, but Roth was worried about missing the winter sports in Switzerland.

"If we were married six weeks sooner, we could hop off enough mileage to get us there in time," he said anxiously.

Linda laughed, but her color came and went. She was amused more than offended that his reason for hurrying the wedding was not herself but a pair of skis.

"We'll see what Cousin Amy says," Cousin Amy was not averse to an early wedding, but she wanted to know several things.

"Has he money, Linda dear? Of course, there must be some, but is there enough? It takes such a lot to live as he does, ah—skittering about the world, and two of you would be rather frightful."

Linda shrugged. She was only twenty, but the world has fallen in a way of treating girls of twenty as if they had the wisdom of their grandmothers. Linda had thought so much about money that she had begun to take her luck seriously. Money always came. There had been a bad time after her father's death, but that was bridged by the clever financing of the stock certificates. She was so certain she was on safe ground that she neglected to go into the matter thoroughly with her fiancé. So Linda, hard bitten with the virus of change, consented to hurry the trousseau and, therefore, please her lover mightily.

Courtney Roth was in love with her as he would be with a woman. He was always trying effects with her beauty—viewing it from different angles.

"You need pearls," he said one day, and soon after brought her an exquisite strand. Linda stood perfectly still while he draped the tenderly beautiful fearful casket upon her smooth neck. She had never dreamed of owning such pearls, but once they nestled against her flesh she felt perfectly at home with them.

Unfortunate Early Savant
Henry, Marquis of Villena, a Castilian savant in the reign of John II, studied astronomy so diligently that he lost all run of his worldly affairs and caused a wit of his day to comment sarcastically: "He knew much of heaven and nothing of his financial concerns cost him all his possessions and reduced him to extreme penury in his last years. He was suspected of necromancy, and at his death in 1534 the king's ecclesiastical agent threw more than a hundred of his precious books into the flames.—Detroit News.

Modern Daylight Dairy Barn Has Proven Profitable Investment

By W. A. RADFORD
Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all problems pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm. For the readers of this paper, on account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on the subject. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

Modern farm buildings are more than just structures to house livestock and crops. They are designed so that the necessary work of caring for the animals and of storing their crops can be performed easily; they are equipped so that health and productivity of the animals are kept at the highest point.

The investment in modern buildings is looked upon as one which will, over a period of years, repay the cost of the structures and return profit to the owner. In connection with this is shown the illustration of a modern daylight dairy barn, which has stood the test of experience and has proven that it is profitable to make an investment in it. Of course, the size of the building to be erected depends upon the need of the owner, but in architectural design this design is correct and may be built either larger or smaller as the size of the farm and size of the herd of live stock will permit.

The building illustrated is modern in every respect and is constructed in such a way as to cut down the labor of the farmer between profit and loss in handling a dairy herd depends upon two things. First, cows which have an annual milk production of sufficient quantity to return the profit over the cost of feed are required. Second, to reduce the labor cost of caring for the herd to a point where the milk checks will more than compensate for the feed and labor.

minutely examined for dry rot. This is generally the first member of a dwelling's superstructure that goes bad.

Foundation Is Weak Spot in Older Houses

A house is just as good as its foundation. Before you buy a house you should start with the basement and examine the house and walls for water stains and horizontal water lines caused by water seepage or water standing in the basement.

The foundation and retaining walls should be inspected for proper thickness. A minimum width for main foundation of one or two stories should be of concrete; 13 inches if of brick and 18 inches if of stone. Concrete walls that have a sandy or clay appearance are deficient in cement and gravel containing a large percentage of loam. Such walls should be examined for sand and loam pockets, which are detrimental to the wall's structural strength and permit the entrance of water.

The wall plate or mud sill which lies directly upon the foundation and upon which the floor rests should be

Rot-Proof Woods Best

Decay attacks indoor as well as exterior wood trim, so for that reason it is well to use those woods that are decay-resistant.

White pine, sugar pine, chestnut, cypress, redwood and spruce are the soft woods that fall in this class. Other woods, widely used for trim because they take paint and enamel especially well, are basswood or whitewood, red or sweet gum.

Textured Finish

Textured interior finishes, according to noted interior decorators, are not merely a fad and as such doomed to early obscurity, but are a distinct contribution to the art of lovely interiors.

Requeening for Better Colonies

Good Time to Plan for Increased Number of Young Insects.

Now is a good time to put a good young queen bee into each colony, suggests F. B. Meacham, entomologist at State college. This will insure a good number of young bees for the winter and a rapid building up of the colony next spring.

Where black or hybrid bees are kept, a new Italian queen will change them into Italian colonies in two or two and a half months," states Mr. Meacham. "It is best to get the new queens as near home as possible so as to avoid the long confinement in shipment."

Find Old Queen

In introducing a new queen into a colony, the bees accept her best when well fed. The old queen and queen cells should be destroyed. The old queen can be found by carefully looking over the combs, by smoking and drumming the bees into an empty super. A queen excluder should then be slipped underneath the super and the bees smoked back. The queen will be found trying to get through the excluder. After she is found and destroyed the hive is assembled as before. Where bees are inclined to rob each other, it is best to requeen late in the afternoon so that night will stop any robbing that has started.

Rob Hives Too Close

M. Meacham states that it is a common practice among many beekeepers to "rob" the hives too close for best results. Each colony should have at least fifteen pounds of honey always on hand and where this is not left, the colony either dies during the winter or comes out in the spring too weak to store any surplus honey. Do not depend on the summer and fall honey plants to furnish this winter supply as in many cases these plants yield very little honey, he states.

Feed Cod Liver Oil to Increase Production

For increasing egg production, securing of a finer texture shell on eggs and raising chicks of great vitality, use cod liver oil in the ration for hens, is the advice of Iowa State college poultrymen.

Cod liver oil contains the vitamin D which birds get from the sunlight during the winter months. Influence of the cod liver oil upon the hatchability of eggs is still an open question but one which is being studied in many places.

In purchasing cod liver oil poultrymen are advised to get that which is vitamin-tested and guaranteed. Untested oils may contain impurities and be low in vitamins.

Don't Overfeed Fowls During Molt Period

Over-feeding during the molt must be avoided, there being a tendency for some hens to increase in weight at the expense of their laying qualities. Large quantities of grain will tend to fatten them during the sluggish period, and the same remarks can be applied to some of the mashes used.

The chief point to remember is that fertile eggs and strong rearable chicks can only be obtained in any large number when the management is right; and the simpler the diet and treatment the greater the probability of getting first-class results.

Corn Planting Lesson

The lesson of planting corn in squares to get fuller ears cannot be too thoroughly emphasized, a common sense discovery of scientific gardeners and experiment station workers. A square planting equalizes the distribution of the pollen or dust from the tassels without which deposited upon the silk there can be no corn. The pollen is sifted over the patch with every shift of the wind. In long narrow plantings half of it is wasted.

Farm Hints

Forced fresh air ventilation for greenhouses has proved successful in checking fungus diseases.

Successful farming means that the farmer must intelligently market as well as scientifically produce his commodities.

Alfalfa and sweet clover will build up the soil, help clean up the weeds, and provide the best of feed for farm live stock.

Spring housecleaning in the brood-house before the new crop of baby chicks is installed, is one of the best insurance policies against ravages of disease in this year's flock.

Hauling out the manure aids in keeping the surroundings of the dairy barn clean and sanitary.

Green feeds are natural and furnish a valuable method of refreshing the fowl's system. Alfalfa or clover hay will also aid in furnishing nutrients which the fowls desire.

It is possible that raspberries would do better than strawberries if mulched with leaves to keep down weeds. Good cultivation from early spring to late summer, July and early August, should give better results.

A flock of Leghorn pullets laying 50 per cent must eat from 24 to 25 pounds of grain and mash daily. A decline of 2 pounds of feed from that amount is enough to cause a falling off in egg laying.

When spring seeded alfalfa is being injured by a heavy growth of grass and weeds the weedy growth should be cut with a mowing machine leaving the cutter bar set quite high so the alfalfa plants will not be severely injured.

Anti-Hog Cholera Serum Improving

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Constant improvement in the process of preparing anti-hog cholera serum has resulted in a high standard of quality for this biological product in the United States. Among important developments of recent years are the clarification of serum, concentration of the serum into smaller volume, and, more recently, an improved method of pasteurization in which all containers are completely submerged in a water bath and the serum is agitated while being heated. A description of present methods of serum production as conducted under federal licenses appears in a scientific paper presented recently by Dr. O. L. Skidmore at a conference of farm bureau members, veterinarians, and live stock sanitary officials. Doctor Skidmore is the official of the United States Department of Agriculture in charge of the administration of the federal virus-serum toxin law which seeks to insure a high quality of veterinary biological products.

Results Satisfactory

Anti-hog cholera serum is prepared in large quantities and is used by many individuals under varying conditions. But there is no other biological product, Doctor Skidmore stated, which is used with such uniformly satisfactory results. In a few cases reported as unsatisfactory, the actual cause usually was traceable to underdosing the animals with serum or to some other factor rather than to any lack of serum potency. In the last calendar year manufacturers produced enough serum to immunize more than 19,000,000 hogs, or more than 29 per cent of the estimated pig crop.

Teach Chicks to Perch While They Are Young

Not all authorities agree that chicks should be allowed to perch early in life. Neither do all agree they should be permitted to squat on the ground. But they must do the one thing or the other. As soon as the wing feathers have sufficiently grown so they may be used, Nature seems to prompt the chicks to perch.

Perching at a tender age is likely to bend the breast bone, which is little more than gristle. But after the breast has become more firm it will require considerable pressure to bend it.

In a young bird this crookedness is not due to a break, but rather by pressure, or the shape molded. Small round roosts are generally at fault.

Cabbage Disease

A common complaint concerning cabbage is that although it may appear to start off well, its growth slows up and yellowing and wilting take place, and the plants finally die, at what should be heading time. The trouble is likely the "yellows" disease. This is soil trouble found usually in old gardens, and its only control is to use varieties which do not "take" the disease. There are yellows resistant, all seasons, laceo and marion market.

SPRAY TOMATOES TO PREVENT DISEASES AND DESTROY WORMS

Use Bordeaux Mixture to Control Pests.

Tomatoes should be sprayed every two or three weeks with poisoned bordeaux mixture to prevent leaf diseases and to get rid of worms, advises E. B. Morrow, extension horticulturist at the North Carolina State college.

The mixture may be brought ready prepared or made at home but care should be used in home-mixing so as to get the proper solution. If as much as fifty gallons of the mixture is needed, three pounds of bluestone and six pounds of hydrated lime should be used for each fifty gallons of water. Mix the lime with enough water to form a thin paste before adding to the larger amount.

When the tank or barrel is filled, add the dissolved bluestone and one and one-half pounds of arsenate of lead to the fifty gallons. Bluestone may be dissolved by using hot water but care should be taken to use only glass, earthenware, or wooden containers for this work.

Smaller amounts of the mixture can be made by using one ounce of blue stone, two ounces of hydrated lime and one-half ounce of arsenate of lead to each gallon of water.

Mr. Morrow states that this mixture should be applied every three weeks at least and that every part of the plant should be touched with the spray. By doing this, the worms and other insects will be destroyed and the plants protected from leaf diseases.

Beef Calves Are Quite Desirable for Feeders

Beef type calves can be turned for cash at six or seven months of age if fed grain. They will begin to consume some grain very early and by the time they are six months of age will have consumed 600 to 700 pounds of grain if they are given access to it twice daily. Calves so fed should weigh between 450 and 500 pounds in six months. They will be fat enough for slaughter or showing such growth as to make them highly desirable for feeders. Last fall such calves brought $10 to $12 per hundred, states M. W. Muldrow, Arkansas extension service.

A limited amount of grain is required. With the grass and milk, corn and cottonseed meal or cake may be used, the amounts of which should be about eight parts of shelled corn to one part meal.

FARM NOTES

The shallow furrow method of potato planting followed by cultivation with a weeder cuts costs and increases yields.

One can make as much money putting phosphorus on the soil, where it is needed, as in any other kind of farming activity.

Four hundred pounds of live chickens are as much as a 1000 pound horse, so ventilation in the hen house is as necessary as in the barn.

Leaving machinery standing outdoors increases farm expenses and cuts down profits.

More than four hundred million hens live on American farms. Some of them lay, some lie, some sit and hatch a brood of chicks, and some just set.

It has been the history of most plant diseases that it is easier to prevent their establishment than to effect a cure after they have been established.

Corn silage, especially when the soy beans are grown with the corn, is one of the most important constituents of the winter ration of a dairy cow.

Orchardists who have not had experience in dusting should try the practice out on a small plot or acreage before attempting to adopt the new method over the entire orchard.

There is still time to save heavily loaded apple trees from breakage by bracing through the center of the tree with heavy wire fastened to screw-eyes or bolts through the limbs.

Observe All Saints Day With Light and Music

Those who are further interested in the All Saints day service in Philippine cemeteries, attend the following additional ceremonies of the annual celebration.

The poor burn candles on the graves, while those who are financially able install electric lights. At the cemeteries are seas of lights. The departed persons are on the graves, and roving bands of musicians wend through the premises and play pieces for them on the organ.

Groups of 50 centavos (50 cents) are given to the relatives. The mausoleum of the rich are opened to the public and long lines of persons are seen through them throughout the night.

The custom of playing lively rather than slow music in the cemeteries is the custom of the Philippines during All Saints Day. One story is that it was during an appalling epidemic that people were dying by hundreds. The Spanish authorities, fearful of the bad psychological effect of dirges, prohibited the playing of them.—North China Standard, Peiping.

Unfortunate Early Savant
Henry, Marquis of Villena, a Castilian savant in the reign of John II, studied astronomy so diligently that he lost all run of his worldly affairs and caused a wit of his day to comment sarcastically: "He knew much of heaven and nothing of his financial concerns cost him all his possessions and reduced him to extreme penury in his last years. He was suspected of necromancy, and at his death in 1534 the king's ecclesiastical agent threw more than a hundred of his precious books into the flames.—Detroit News.

Ford Offers New De Luxe Sedan

Ford De Luxe Sedan

THE De Luxe Sedan, recently added to the Ford line, is designed for those who desire distinctiveness and unusual comfort in an automobile. The interior is inviting and roomy with wide doors to both compartments. Absence of rear quarter windows gives the car a striking individuality and affords privacy to the occupants.

Interior trimmings and appointments are luxurious. Upholstery is either in brown mohair or a deep tan Bedford cord patterned after that used in high-priced cars.

Other refinements include arm rests for the rear seat, mahogany finished garnish moldings on the windows and beneath the windshield, flexible robe rail and hardware in an attractive pattern.

The front seat is adjustable within a range of four inches to suit the convenience and comfort of the driver. It is moved quickly and easily by a small, inconspicuous handle in the front center of the seat just above the floor.

The De Luxe Sedan, like other Ford body types, can be obtained in any one of several color combinations.

Unmeasured Winds

The strongest winds are those of tornadoes and have never been measured. Plausible estimates based on the effects of these storms run up to 400 or 500 miles an hour in some cases. The strongest winds ever measured instrumentally blew at the summit of Mount Washington, N. H. January 11, 1878. The indicated velocity was 186 miles an hour, but certain necessary corrections reduce this to about 140 miles an hour.

No Mere In Life

When he is punning his first around in a perambulator he looks happy enough, but twenty years later when he is taking the wife's pet poodle around the block for an airing you don't have to ask him—his looks fairly shout that he wishes he had remained a bachelor.—Kansas City Star.

Esquimo Music

The Eskimo are very fond of music. Their native music consists chiefly of songs, chants and melodies, many of which possess considerable musical rhythm. Although the tunes to which they are sung are very crude, they can be traced to keynotes. The melodies especially are said to be very pleasing and a number of them have been published with corresponding music.—Exchange.

Emergency Took Him Out

During her first week of school little Mary came home saying her teacher had told the class the story of Joseph and his coat. In repeating the story, Mary exclaimed: "Joseph's brothers put him down in a deep well and went away and left him and the 'emergency' came along and took him out of the well."

Urban Age

It is nearly 2,000 years since an urban settlement was founded on the territory which today is covered by Vienna. The small Roman military camp Vindobona developed into the modern metropolis with her enormous municipal area of 275.88 square kilometers, second only to London.

When Brain Works Best

The best brain work is said to be done in the latitude of New York about the end of November or early part of December or, in other words, a month or six weeks after one's physical strength is greatest.

Research and Education

In the last analysis humanity has but one supreme problem, the problem of lifting the torch of enlightened creative effort here and there and everywhere and of passing on for the enrichment of the lives of future generations the truth already discovered—in two words, the problem of research and education.—Dr. Robert A. Millikan.

Began a Big Industry

The shoe industry of this country was begun in 1629 by Thomas Beard, who came over on the Mayflower on its third voyage and brought hides for making shoes. Seven years later Philip Kertland, of Buckinghamshire, began making shoes in Lynn, Mass. Since that date the state of Massachusetts has come to lead the world in the manufacture of boots and shoes.

New Fireproof Wood

One of the most important uses to which straw has been put is that of making a new kind of wood called solomite. The straw is compressed, under a pressure of 200 pounds to the square inch, in a machine which interlaces it with wire. The machine can turn out four thousand square feet of board a day, and a remarkable feature of the wood is that it is fireproof.

Specialists

"Specialists may have their good points," says Abe Martin in Farm and Fireside, "but who'd want 'em employ a phenomenal pool player? I used to know a glib edged contortionist but he wasn't a feller you'd want 'em spend an evening with."

Penny an Old Coin

It is curious, but true, that that most common coin, the penny, is the most ancient of our coinage, and is the only one left which was known to our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. They called it "penig," which has been corrupted into "penny."

Radium Famine

Radium releases about ten million times as much energy per gram in disintegrating as carbon does in burning, but there isn't enough of it nor any radio-active substance to do more than keep a few corner popcorn men continuously going.—Woman's Home Companion.

The Pastor Says

He who burns with hatred lets his enemy heap coals of fire on his head. A man does not truly love his wife until he loves the bill for her Easter bonnet, neither does he love the church until he loves her budget.—John Andrew Holmes.

World's Fastest Bird

The fastest known bird is the spinnetail swift, which reaches the speed of 220 miles an hour over the mountains of Asia; the tarpon of Florida, the fastest fish, can cover 50 miles in an hour.

What Did Referee Say?

A few years ago a woman well known in her vicinity took boxing lessons and challenged the feminine world. One day she met a hostile female who knew nothing about boxing but seized the lady boxer's hair and held on until she cried, "Enough!"—Washington Star.

Knighthood Still in Flower

The extreme limit to which some married men will go in courtesy to their spouses was demonstrated this morning when a man driving down North Summit street stopped his car, picked up his wife, who was walking, and took her to work.—Arkansas City Traveler.

Fighter, Not a Writer

An old letter written by Daniel Boone furnishes this specimen of original spelling: "I hope you Will Wright me By the Deener, Mr. gee, how you 'om on with My Horses—I hear the Indians have Killed Some pepel near Limstone."

Sure Sign

When she begins having kinds of food she knows he does not like it is a fair sign the honeymoon is waning.—Lorain Journal.

He Deserves a Bust

Whoever wrote that line about "carriages without horses shall go and accidents fill the world with woe" ought to have a bust in the Hall of Fame.—Bay City Daily Times.

MANAGER HARRIS LIKES DESAUTELES

Tiger Pilot Praises His New Backstop.

"Gene Desautels, young catcher from Holy Cross college, made a most favorable impression upon me," said Stanley Harris, manager of the Tigers, "he handled himself well behind the plate, did a nice job of receiving and showed that he can throw to those bases. Although he didn't get a hit, he took a nice cut at the ball. His first attempt backed Tom Oliver up against the centerfield wall and the next time he laid down a nice sacrifice bunt.

"I put him in with Walte Hoyt, so he would have the benefit of Hoyt's experience. I allowed him to give the signals, with Hoyt having the prerogative of shaking him off, or agreeing with his judgment. There were very few occasions in the abbreviated contest that it was necessary for Walte to change the original signal. Which shows the youngster has a pretty fair idea of sizing up a batsman."

Babe Ruth always has had a special fondness for the outer reaches of Sportsmen's park in St. Louis, scene of his two great outbursts of world series home-run hitting in 1920 and 1928. As a salute, therefore, the Babe stepped up to bat in the first inning of his first game this season there and belted one of Walter Stewart's south-paw slants into the right-center pavilion for his nineteenth round-tripper of 1930.

Ruth hit one of his first homers there in 1915, when he was with the Red Sox and has rattled off 43 altogether in St. Louis, more than in any other western park.

They laughed when Jeff Tesreau, former Giant pitching ace, left New York to become Dartmouth baseball coach at a moderate salary, but today when Jeff makes out his income tax he includes therein the statements, not only of his coaching salary, but of his thriving campus restaurant, his well paying gasoline station and his motor car salesroom, which net him, according to report, far more money than he received as a high-salaried baseball star.

Joe Lally, the Corwall (Canada) sportsman, in an effort to put lacrosse back on the sports map, has offered to donate a trophy for world's championship competition if the Minto cup cannot be secured for this purpose.

Goose Goslin is giving Manager Bill Killefer good cheer these days. He has been performing right up to Bill's estimate of his ability and may yet make the baseball world cease titling over the trade for Manush and Crowder. "Goose" not only is hitting hard but he has shown that he has no lame wing.

The Tom Thumb golf course is a move in the direction of greater convenience, and we suppose the next step is an 18-hole board you can fold up and slip in a topcoat pocket.

Perhaps Mr. Sharkey's next opponent, if any, will stand on his head. This should confuse Mr. Sharkey a good deal, and mitigate the chances of a foul.

Golf is harmful, in the opinion of Dr. William Muhlberg, Cincinnati, president of the Association of Life Insurance Medical Directors.

"The average man who plays golf goes out to the course, dubs a shot, gets mad, tears his hair, maybe throws his club away, and as a result increases his blood pressure," Doctor Muhlberg said in addressing a group of life insurance agents.

Next to the Pirates, Jewel Ens, manager of that team, thinks the New York Giants figure the strongest team in the National league. "You've always got to figure on John McGraw," he says, "and in strength the McGraw boys also look better than Brooklyn or Chicago."

In spite of published stories to the effect that Max Schmeling and Jack Sharkey will box again in September, the bout is still doubtful. It is true that Schmeling's claim to the heavy-weight title is a bit clouded. He won it while on the floor. One of the New York boxing commissioners had to stoop and lift Max's head, while another commissioner fitted him with a crown. But under the agreement, Schmeling is the pugilistic king.

Night baseball in the new San Francisco park in 1930 looms as a strong possibility. Under the new order of things it is believed by some of the enthusiasts practical to schedule eight games a week. George Putnam, secretary of the Seals, favors starting the series as usual on Tuesday, have a double-header on Saturday afternoon, eliminate the Sunday morning game and play in the evening instead.

The National league club owners recently decided to let sleeping dogs lie. That is to say, they will not move to modify the official baseball or undertake any change in conditions that might reduce the hitting.

The rabbit ball and the home run without zoning is in the National league to stay.

The reason for this decision is that the public wants it; and what it wants the public ought to have. A straw vote showed that fans like an average of 14 runs per game. The 1-0 stuff received no votes at all.

That straw vote indicates that the fans want haymakers, what?

A new Japanese headliner soon will visit the United States in quest of billiard honors. Yoshio Fujiwara, holder of the 18-2 balk-line championship of Japan four years ago, has just announced that he would arrive here some time this summer. This information was received by Kinroy Matsuyama, now in New York, from Dr. K. Suzuki, former holder of the American junior 18-2 balk-line crown and now a billiard official in Japan.

James Campbell, left-handed pitcher of the San Jose club of the State (Calif.) league, has been signed by the New York Giants.

Anna Koll, promising New Orleans tennis star, is an indefatigable player. In one day she participated in 11 sets of competitive play held in two cities.

There are more than 1,000,000 billiard tables in public academies in the United States, and it is estimated that at least 200,000 tables are in the homes.

Although he has only been playing baseball since 1921, Babe Herman of the Brooklyn club has seen service with 14 different teams in ten different leagues.

Ty Cobb, one of baseball's immortals, once singled in a game against Washington and then proceeded to steal second, third and home on three successive balls pitched.

Having won the Kentucky derby three times, it is reported that Earl Sande will go to work for Lord Derby. Fair enough. He may add the English derby to his string of "darbies."

Sluggers, Not Hurlers, Big Need of Baseball

Baseball, America's greatest outdoor sport, is today most dependent upon and derives greatest inspiration from the boys behind "Old Hickory," the bat, according to Connie Mack, famous manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, in an article in the Boys' Life.

This, according to Mack who has seen nearly 50 years of baseball, represents a change from the days of baseball's infancy when pitchers were the biggest drawing card of the game. The batting rally, by which Mack means a succession of heavy slugging, bases continually full, and the yelling spectators tense on their toes, has become, he says, baseball's greatest thrill. As a result, the tendency of the sport has been to develop a remarkable group of hitters headed by that king of the home run, the renowned "Babe" Ruth. Says Connie: "A team of this day must have batters and a lot of them. Every man must be a genius with the hickory. It isn't enough that a man is a good fielder any more to fit into the modern baseball picture. I don't care how good a team's pitching staff is, and how fast their fielding combination may be, if they haven't got batting ability their chances of winning a pennant are mighty slim."

Jones' Golf Titles

Bobby Jones' record of major golf championships follows:

Three times winner of the United States open—1923, 1926, 1929.

Four times winner of the United States amateur championship—1924, 1925, 1927, 1928.

Three times winner of the British open—1925, 1927, 1930.

British amateur champion, 1930.

Now holds three major titles, first man in history of golf to do so.

Only man ever to hold the open championships of both Great Britain and the United States, doing so twice—1926 and 1930.

First since John Ball in 1890 to win both British amateur and British open in the same year.

Star Runner Will Race in Europe This Year

Reginald F. (Pete) Bowen, All-America quarter miler of 1923, and intercollegiate champion this year, has finished his track career at the University of Pittsburgh but is not expecting to put his spiked shoes in the closet for some time to come. Bowen is now packing for a second trip to Europe and when he returns will attempt to make it two in a row in the A. A. U. meet over his home track at Pitt stadium. After that Pete expects to complete through the 1932 Olympics, running under the colors of the New York Athletic club.

Lehigh Baseball Hard Hit by Graduations

Big "Bob" Karrin and Harberth, first sacker, will be the only veteran infielders to report to Coach Bob Adams when the Lehigh mentor lines up his baseball forces for another campaign next spring.

Harris, who will remain for summer school, played his second season in the Varsity and has one more year in baseball. The inner defense will lose three veterans in Max Schultz, keystone custodian, and Jerry O'Leary, shortstop, and Bob Bennett, third baseman.

New Ross-Ade Stadium Is Nearing Completion

Assurance that the Ross-Ade stadium at Purdue university will be completed in every detail long before the Big Ten championships open their season on October 4 against Baylor has been given through the record-breaking work of the contractor, who has already completed all of the concrete work that increases the capacity of the plant by 10,000 seats.

CHIC "GOING AWAY" COSTUME; FOR THE DAINTY FLOWER GIRL

After her wedding gown of tulle, satin, lace, orange blossoms and all things lovely, the next number on the bride's dress program, and one of the outstanding importance, is her "going away" costume. Of course Mrs. Newlywed aspires to appear at her most charming and chic as she and herself make a smiling exit amid showers of rice, eager to catch train

Smartly Tailored Two-Piece Outfit.

Not so "strictly tailored" is the bride in the panel. Her bolero costume is styled of navy flat crepe. The soft-tied bows add a feminine touch. Among other of her possessions this bride has a lovely lace blouse to wear with this silk two-piece. Likewise a cunning short sleeved model of dotted swiss, one of rose-color handkerchief linen which is lavishly frilled. The latest fad in corsage bouquets even for those who are not brides is white orchids, and she is wearing just such. The Important Flower Girl. It is not only the pridel feeling of being flower girl that counts with the very young, but after the wedding scene becomes just a memory, little Miss Flower-Maiden is going to experience continued joy in the possession of a perfectly lovely frock to wear to parties for a long time to come.

Which is the reason why mothers should make it a point to look to the future in selecting a dress which will not only add a touch of beauty to the bridal cortege, but which will through-out months following answer the question for little daughter of "what to wear" at this festive occasion or that to which she is invited. The charming flower girl in the picture is exquisitely gown in a dainty frock of pink mousseline de soie, thus again emphasizing the voguishness of sheer weaves for this summer. It is made over a slip of satin, inset with ecru lace. The simplicity of its fashioning has much to do with its attractiveness. A unique touch is the tie-over-the-shoulder rose-tinted ribbons which calls for delicate tones and tints, imparts a new appeal to woollen weaves. The bride to left in the upper picture, whose luggage is as smart as her costume, chooses for travel wear, always bespeaks good judgment. The thought takes on special allure this season, since the blouse is being made to play a role of unusual fascination in the present-day world of fashion. Under the caption blouse, designers are putting forth the most beguiling models fancy can picture. Wherefore the bride who chooses a tailors' suit can at will change the character of her costume through the magic of its accompanying blouse.

As to whether the two-piece tailleur be of wool or silk is optional, for as far as fashion is concerned, the honors are about equally divided between the two. There is this in favor of modern woollens, being delightfully lightweight they are very adaptable to summer comfort. Then, too, the flair for color, which serve instead of the usual built-in self-fabric straps. Hand-run pin tucking, the wee tucks crowded as close as it is possible to crowd them, achieving a graceful fullness which terminates in a hemline dounced with soft ruffles. It seems that fancy is turning directly to monotone chiffons and similar transparencies for summer frocks for both grownups and children. For these the favorite trimming is a pretty profusion of self-fabric ruffles.

Net, especially point d'esprit, also organdie are outstanding media for flower girl frocks. Short-waisted, full-skirted silhouettes are sponsored with ribbon sashes tied at the back.

SUMMER MEALS

During the warm weather in most households the meat is cut down in quantity. A little with plenty of fresh vegetables will supply all the food value one needs for the warm days. If there is a bit of chicken, veal steak or even beef-steak, it will make a good meal combined in a chop suey.

Cut up a bunch of celery into small pieces and cook it with an onion or as one's taste dictates. Add a little boiling water with the finely cut cooked meat, a few fresh green beans and simmer until all are nicely seasoned and the onion well cooked. Celery is better served in this dish not soft, but crisp and transparent. When serving place on a platter with a border of hot cooked seasoned rice. Use a dash of chop suey sauce over the dish before taking to the table.

Short Bread Cakes—When you wish to serve something out of the ordinary try these: Line patty pans with short bread pastry, sometimes called Scotch shortbread. Fill the shells with any kind of cake batter—sponge or cup cake is preferred. Bake and remove carefully from the pans and cool. Scoop out a little from the center of the cakes and ice all over with icing, sprinkle with shredded coconut or shredded almonds and brown. When cool fill the centers with flavored whipped cream and pipe a border around the edges. Fresh berries with the cream will add another variation.

Sponge Cake—Beat the yolks of six eggs until thick and lemon colored, add one cupful of sugar gradually and continue beating, using a rapid egg beater. Add one tablespoonful of lemon juice, the grated rind of half a lemon and the stiffly beaten egg whites folded in. When the whites are partially mixed remove the beater and carefully cut and fold in one cupful of sifted flour with one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt. Bake one hour in a slow oven in an angel cake pan or a deep narrow pan.

Creamed Sardines—Drain one can of sardines. Remove backbones from fish and mash. Melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one-fourth of a cupful of soft bread crumbs and one cupful of cream. When thoroughly heated add two hard cooked eggs finely chopped, the sardines, salt, pepper and paprika to taste. Serve on pieces of toasted bread.

Orange Ice Cream—Add two cupfuls of cream slowly to two cupfuls of orange juice, add a little of the grated rind and sugar to taste. Freeze and serve with fresh chopped and sweetened strawberries.

SEASONABLE FOODS

A most delicious dinner may be prepared in a Scotch kettle. Place a piece of brisket or shoulder of beef in the kettle with plenty of fat to brown all over. Then add a little water, cover it lightly and cook at a low heat. An hour or more before the meat is to be served add carrots, onions and later a few potatoes; cook, basting them occasionally and season well during the basting. Serve the meat surrounded by the vegetables and prepare a gravy from the liquor in the pan.

Black mustard seed sowed for greens will make a most welcome addition to the vegetables for the summer. Cook it as any greens, or cut it fresh and serve with lettuce in any salad where lettuce is used. Did you ever eat: Molasses Pie—It may be baked in individual tins or in the usual sized pie plates. Line a pie plate with flaky pastry and fill with the following mixture. Bring one cupful of molasses to the boiling point and add carefully a tablespoonful of butter rubbed to a paste with a tablespoonful of flour, cook in the molasses until slightly thickened, then remove from the fire and add the juice of a large lemon and a pinch of cinnamon. Walnut meats may be added to make it more tasty. Cover with a top crust and bake in a moderate oven.

Raisin Pie—Line a pie plate with rich pastry. Pour boiling water over one and one-half cupfuls of seeded raisins, let stand until cool, drain and mix with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt, and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Turn the mixture into a pie pan, piling it high in the center, sprinkle with the juice of a lemon and a grating of the rind, add one-half cupful of water in which the raisins were soaked and dot with two tablespoonfuls of butter cut into small pieces. Cover with pastry and bake forty minutes. Have the oven very hot the first ten minutes to bake the pastry, then reduce the heat. Serve hot or cold.

Little Danger Now to Hunters of "Big Game"

Wild beasts are not one-hundredth so dangerous as they are reputed, writes John W. Vandercook in the Forum. All capable judges not obsessed by their own importance and by a desire for indiscriminate killing agree to that. The two greatest of all wild animal photographers—Maj. Arthur Dugmore and Martin Johnson—ridicule the notion of the spontaneous ferocity of big game animals.

"In the course of an ordinary African journey, and I care not where one's route lies or how remotely one penetrates, I profoundly believe there is no more danger from animals than there is from being hit by a stray meteor," says one noted wild animal hunter.

Every big game hunter, and there are invariably several in a party, is equipped with a multiple shot, modern rifle, which aims true at upward of half a mile and delivers such a terrific impact that the bullet will upset most animals, no matter where it hits. And always near at hand is to be found an efficient native gun bearer, equipped with and capable of using a duplicate weapon. Much shooting, in fact, is now done from the idiotic security of an automobile's back seat. Some expensive Englishmen have even announced that there is "sport" to be had from an airplane.

Super Hosepipe Used by Malay Tin "Miners"

One of the most extraordinary ways of extracting metals from the body of this world of ours is that to be seen in the tin mines of the Malay States. With the exception of precious metals, such as gold, silver, platinum, and radium, tin is now the most valuable in the world. Often the tin-bearing ground rises cliff-like from the plain. Mining is then carried out not by orthodox methods, but with the help of a super hosepipe. This hose throws a thin jet of water at a pressure of more than 200 pounds to the square inch. Until one has seen such a jet it is almost impossible to realize what it is like. The strongest man, for instance, could not cut through the jet near the nozzle of a hose with a heavy sword. If he tried, a broken blade, and probably a broken arm, would result. The jet is directed against the face of the cliff, which crumbles away almost as if it has been blown up by dynamite.

Where He Drew the Line

A fine example of self-denial was that exhibited by a rotund Detroit. Although he had had only a light snack, consisting of two English mutton chops, weighing about a pound each, seven broiled kidneys, eight or nine broiled mushrooms, five ears of corn on the cob, a sheaf of asparagus, six rolls, a bowl of soup, ten crackers, a quarter-pound of cheese, and four cups of coffee, he steadfastly refused potatoes. "Potatoes," he explained, "are fattening."

A MOCK MARRIAGE AND THE REAL THING

question they had debated among themselves. They entered into it as actors who are playing; a drama with in a drama.

The stage was set. The arrangements were made and every detail had been attended to, as carefully planned and timed as a stage production. In excited knots of two and three, the actors of the comedy talked over their roles in subdued voices.

At nine o'clock Lorimer drove up in his car and deposited the intended victims on the front porch. He went into the house with them. They entered to find the place a bower of flowers. Their wraps were taken from them, and flanked by Lorimer and his wife, Jack and Elaine were led into another room, which was arranged, even in detail, to look like a small chapel. At the other end of the room stood a minister.

Jack and Elaine looked at each other with startled expressions. Then they smiled at each other and in their smiles was a note of acquiescence. They marched up to the minister and, without a tremor in the voice of either, pronounced the mock marriage ceremony after the mock minister. This was the unexpected, and it showed plainly in the dumbfounded expressions of the audience. Prescott retrieved the situation by gesticulating wildly for silence and telling them by pantomime to follow his lead.

The mock ceremony was over and the bride and groom turned to receive the congratulations of their friends, but no one stirred. The joke had gone too far. There seemed no alternative but to disillusion the young couple and to confess the complicity of every one in the hoax. Prescott stepped forward to explain.

Before he could speak, Jack Day touched him on the shoulder. "Just a minute, Bill," he exclaimed, "I have something to say."

He turned to the crowd with an odd smile playing about the corners of his mouth. "Elaine and I want to thank you for arranging this little surprise for us," he said; "we certainly appreciate it. We feel that it's the next best thing to being married at home, and it was thoughtful of you. But what we can't understand is this: How did you know about it so soon? We were married only yesterday in New York."

Justice by Ordeal The Celts in Ireland, the Germans before their conversion to Christianity, and the early Slavs made use of various kinds of ordeals in administering justice. They allowed the defendant to prove his innocence by remaining unhurt while undergoing the ordeal.

There were two forms of the ordeal of iron in use. One was to allow the accused, blindfolded, to establish his innocence by his ability to avoid stepping on red hot plowshares, from six to twelve in number, spaced a certain distance apart. The other form compelled the accused to carry a red-hot iron, usually for a distance of nine feet. This ordeal was generally chosen by persons of rank.

Most Punctual Prisoner The height of chivalry was exhibited at the penitentiary of Verolanova near Brescia, when a prisoner made his escape and left behind a note pinned to his coat on which was written, "I'll be back tonight at seven sharp. Going home to see mother." The prisoner kept his word and at the appointed hour duly reported for work. A negligent guard responsible for the escape was arraigned before the tribunal and sentenced to 75 days in prison and three months' privation from public office.—Washington Star.

Knower, Doer, Sayer For the universe has three children, born at one time, which reappear under different names in every system of thought, whether they be called cause, operation and effect; or, more poetically, Jove, Pluto, Neptune; or, theologically, the Father, the Spirit, and the Son; but which we will call the Knower, the Doer and the Sayer. These stand respectively for the love of truth, for the love of good, and for the love of beauty. These three are equal.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

Mexico's War on Rats Agents of the Mexican department of agriculture are waging determined warfare against a plague of rats which recently have invaded wide areas in the states of Jalisco and Michoacan. In response to appeals from the farmers of the affected districts, enormous traps have been constructed. The capture of 50,000 rats in a single night in a trap half a kilometer long was reported by one of the agents operating in Jalisco.

Sparrow's Many Songs One song sparrow may have as many as 20 different songs, says Nature Magazine, such as much his own exclusive property as though copyright. But all of these, as well as the songs of all other song sparrows, have certain qualities that proclaim that the singers belong to that species and no other.

Better Writing by Men Seems to Be Lost Art

One man in a million can write satisfactory letters to his wife, according to William Feather, Cleveland newspaper and syndicated analyst of human nature. Probably he meant to say that few men are able to write interesting letters, that men, in fact, "lose" their letters. If that is his case, we can join him. Earlier days in this country letters were not numerous, but they were interesting. Some recent biographies contained letters that were magnificent, written merely to convey information or carry on a discussion with a friend. Today one writes a letter, or uses the telephone, or the radio. Few men give up writing a letter, but they do not write with a bit of sentiment, even when they are away on vacation.

Classes Under Water At the University of Miami students of marine biology have laboratory work under water. Specially constructed boats with glass bottoms are used to make trips to the marine gardens, where the students can see how the creatures that live in the ocean exist. On these expeditions the attire consists of bathing suits and shoes and a diving helmet. The necessary supply of oxygen is received by means of pumps on the boat.

Black-White A striking street suit is made of pin-striped black and white fabric, with the stripes used crosswise for the skirt that pleats below a hipline yoke and for the fitted peplum of the jacket.

Batiste Blouse For a second blouse for one's blue suit, nothing could be lovelier than a little hand-embroidered white batiste, with its youthful collar worn outside the coat.

Separate Belts A new trick is to have two or three colored suede belts and matching neckties for either beige or gray tweed frocks. Match the color up in a beret or soft hat, and your frock leads a triple life.

Short Sleeves Many of the new printed frocks for office wear and daytime street wear on warmer days have short sleeves. They either end in cuffs at the elbow or flare over the elbow.

Miles of Conveyors in Ford Plant

This picture shows two types of conveyors in use in the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company.

AN ENDLESS chain conveyor, three and a half to four miles long, said to be the longest in the world, has just been completed at the Rouge Plant of the Ford Motor Company at Dearborn, Michigan. On it parts of Ford cars in the process of manufacture are transported from one building to another and completed parts are carried direct to railroad cars for shipment to branch assembly plants.

The conveyor, which carries its cargo on suspended hooks, has a daily capacity for 300,000 parts weighing over 2,000,000 pounds. It supplants freight cars and trucks which have been used for the transfer of many parts from one point to another in the Ford plant.

This longest conveyor of them all is a development of the Ford policy that nothing should be done by manual labor that could better be done by machine.

In the early days of his manufacturing career, Mr. Ford devised the assembly line—a moving track on which cars in the process of assembly went to the workmen instead of the workmen carrying parts to the car. The assembly line, perfected in many ways, is now used by automobile manufacturers generally.

The value of the conveyor in reducing physical labor, in saving time, in preserving system and in cutting costs soon became apparent and its use was extended to other purposes about the plant. Now there are literally miles of conveyors of various types in the Ford plant. Some of them carry parts from one building to another and are carefully synchronized so that the parts arrive at precisely the right moment and in the exact spot where they are needed. Others transport red hot in gots of steel weighing nearly a ton each. Still others move outgoing shipments.

If it were not for the conveyors, according to officials of the Ford Company, mass production would not be possible on its present scale.

THE VALUE OF SOUND DESIGN

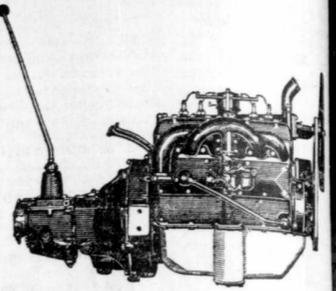

New Ford engine gives outstanding acceleration, speed and power without sacrificing reliability or economy

THE good performance of the Ford car, so apparent on every highway, is due largely to the sound mechanical design of the engine.

It has outstanding acceleration, speed and power, yet that is only part of its value to you. Greater still is the fact that it brings you all these features without sacrificing either reliability or economy.

That is the reason the Ford car has given such satisfactory service to millions of motorists all over the world and has been chosen by so many large companies that keep accurate cost figures. In every detail of construction it has been carefully planned and made for the work it has to do.

The design of the compression chamber is an important factor in the efficiency of the Ford engine. It is built to allow free passage of gases through the valves and to thoroughly mix the fuel by producing turbulence within the cylinders during compression. The spark thus flashes quickly through the whole fuel charge, resulting in quieter and more effective engine performance. Other factors are the direct gravity gasoline feed, the specially designed carburetor, the new hot-spot manifold, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves of larger diameter, statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft and flywheel, the simplicity of the electrical, cooling, lubrication, and fuel systems and accuracy in manufacturing.

Early Diving Suit

The diving suit is not so new as one might think. A patent was granted to John Stapleton on March 17, 1836, for "a new engine so by him contrived as to permit a person inclined in it to walk under water, and to a new invented way to force air into any depth of water to supply the person in the said engine therewith and for continuing a lamp burning under water; also a way to deserate and purify the air so as to make the same serviceable for respiration."
