BANK DOES BUSINESS IN SOUTH AMERICA

The Bank of Jackson is the first bank in this locality to use air mail with customers in giving international service. Last week the Bank of Jackson received a letter by air mail from Buenos Aires, Argentina, South America, the letter having come the entire distance of approximately 7,500 miles by this modern route in a little over a week's time. The reply to this business transaction was also accomplished by air mail, the postage being only 55 cents, the rate being 10 cents per every two grains over regular postage. This method of communication is much faster than by boat mail which takes over a month, and much cheaper than the cable service which was formerly used at a cost of $15.00 a message to the same point.

BATAVIA

Miss Adeline Seider spent her week with Eida Ludwig.

Remember the big Firemen's picnic to be given at Batavia Labor Day.

Mr. Albert Held and children visited the week with the Held families here.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Spalhoff and Mrs. Ludwig left last week to visit relatives in South Dakota.

Mr. and Mrs. Roman Kelle and son Ray and Mrs. G. A. Leifer spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Leifer at Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Morgenroth of Kewaskum and Mrs. Sweeney of Chicago spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Art Donath.

Mrs. G. A. Leifer, Mrs. Al. Donath and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Terz of Milwaukee left on a motor trip to Minnesota, Dakota and Montana.

Mrs. Frank Watson of Santa Monica, who spent the past six weeks with the E. Bremser and H. Binzer families, returned to her home Wednesday.

Mrs. Holz of West Bend, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Holz and son Willie of Milwaukee and Paul and Walter Leifer spent Sunday with Mr. G. A. Leifer.

The Batavia Fire Dept. was called out Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, when Gust Mehlo's barn and sheds, all the machinery burned to the ground. The Beechwood and Random Lake departments also were on the scene. With much effort the house was saved.

Mr. O. F. Schwartz, manager of the Schwartz Tavern at St. Kilian, has completed arrangements for the Big Carnival dance which he will sponsor on Monday, September 1st (Labor Day). The hall is beautifully decorated to keep in harmony with the nature of the dance. Instead of offering cash prizes to those holding the lucky numbers, Mr. Schwartz has thought it best to offer other valuable prizes in line with a dance of that kind. He extends a cordial invitation to all to attend this social hop.

PASS AWAY IN DEATH

CHRISTIAN SCHMALTZ DIES
SUDDENLY
While walking along on Main street in Theresa, Christian Schmaltz died suddenly of heart failure at 8:30 a. m., last week Thursday. Mr. Schmaltz had attained the age of 69 years and was an old resident of Theresa. He was born December 10, 1860 at Elmmore and moved to Theresa many years ago. He is survived by his widow; a daughter, Mrs. Alfred Traube, who resides at home; a sister, Mrs. Maggie Lensing of Mosinee and two grandchildren. The funeral was held at 1 p. m. Monday from the residence with services in the Lutheran church at Elmore. Burial was made in the Union cemetery at Campbellsport.

DEATH OF MRS. MARGARETHA
JAEGER
Mrs. Margaretha Jaeger, aged 67, wife of Barthol P. Jaeger of Campbellsport, died at her home there at 5:30 p. m. Sunday, following a stroke which she suffered several days before her death. Deceased was born in Cambria July 11, 1863. On June 18, 1896, she was married to Mr. Jaeger, and for a number of years before taking up their residence in Campbellsport resided on a farm in the town of Ashford. She leaves two daughters, Miss Phoebe at home and Mrs. Susan Weiland of the town of Ashford. The funeral was held on Wednesday at 10 a. m., with services in St. Matthew's church. Rev. B. July officiated. Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

BURNS TO DEATH IN GRASS
FIRE
Michael Bennett, 74, a town of Erin farmer, burned to death on his farm about 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon last Saturday, Aug. 23. He had been cutting and burning Canada timbers on a field about one-quarter mile away from his home. Evidently the dry grass caught fire, and in trying to stamp it out, the old man's clothes also caught fire. He ran to a nearby watering place for cattle to quench the flames, but he collapsed before he reached there. Pieces of charred clothing found on the way told the story. Geo. Paif, a neighbor, who passed along the road, noticed the smoke and seeing Bennett on the ground, unconscious and wrapped in flames, lured water on him, but it was too late as he had received fatal burns. The grass fire spread over four acres and consumed a straw stack. A favorable wind prevented it from reaching another straw stack and the farm buildings.—West Bend News.

RE-ROUTING OF 28 FAVORED

The Fond du Lac county highway commission will favor the re-location of Highway 28 when a hearing on the proposed change is held Sept. 10 at Kewaskum. County Highway Commissioner J. S. McCullough and members of the commission have been invited to attend the meeting. Changing the location of Highway 28 will make the route follow County Trunk S through sections 35, 25 and 26 in the town of Auburn. Under the new plan it will pass through Beechwood and New Fane and omit Boltonville and Batavia. The present route starts at Minnesota Junction and passes in a northeasterly direction through Mayville and Theresa. At Theresa the route turns north, duplicating Highway 41 for a short distance, and then runs directly east through the northern part of townships in Washington county. The route then takes a northeasterly course through Boltonville, Batavia and Cascade, continuing through Shebygan Falls to Sheboygan.

BEATS MAN ON HEAD WITH AUTO TO CRANK

Theo. A. Groth, local implement dealer, was hit on the head twice with an automobile crank by Eugene Poole, town Cedarburg farmer, in an altercation on So. Washington avenue on Saturday. Groth received scalp lacerations which required the attention of a physician, and Poole faces a charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. The warrant was sworn out by the former and the case will come up for trial before Justice Kuhl in Port Washington on Monday morning. Pending the trial, bond was furnished by Poole. Poole had his car parked in front of the former Gottschalk building owned by Groth where the encounter took place. It resulted over an argument on the foreclosure of a conditional sales contract. On September 15, 1928, he purchased a Case 12-20 tractor from Groth on a conditional sales contract, and on August 12, 1930 because of default in the conditions of the contract, the latter foreclosed.—Cedarburg News.

FIRST TO FILE AS A CANDIDATE

HORICON, WIS.—August 28, 1930.—Senator W. H. Markham is the first to file as a candidate for the office which he now occupies as senator in the 13th senatorial district of Dodge and Washington counties. His record of results both as mayor of the city of Horicon and as state senator, is the platform on which he stands. He states that the people of Dodge and Washington counties need to keep him at Madison.

1.—Because he is not afraid to fight for the interests of the people.

2.—Because he gets results, or keeps right on fighting for the right.

Here is a small part of his record:

1. As mayor of Horicon, he reduced city taxes 43% in four years.

2. In the same time, he rebuilt permanently 60% of the streets.

3. As State Senator, he has represented his district 100%.

4. Saved $250,000 tuition fees from out-of-state University students.

5. Helped get higher tariff on cheese, and always working for farmers.

6. Secured $250,000 from hunting license moneys to restore Horicon Marsh.

7. Saved his counties $350,000 increased gas tax threatened to be taken to northern counties, away from paying our road bonds.

8. Started fight to control chain banks and chain stores.

In the 1926 election, Senator Markham defeated Herman Blumlien for re-election on Markham's platform asking more moisture in cheese. He obtained increased moisture content for mouster cheese during the 1929 session. His opponents are now adopting his position on that issue. He fought the oleomargarine interests and the legislature adopted his resolutions asking for a tariff of ten cents a pound on cheese and higher tariffs on oleo, fats and oils. His opponents have now come around to his position on this issue also. The Congress has failed to increase the tariff and Senator Markham is advocating a united effort to bring pressure to bear upon the Congress at the short session which commences in December.

for. I had to take my medicine or leave it. "And if Senator Converse had backed you," said Linda in a low voice. "He wouldn't, if he hadn't believed in me. I was on my own with him, and that made all the difference. His mind was not controlled by anything but his own judgment." "Ah. He was not influenced by your connections then?" "I don't believe he knew I had any," said Brian simply. "You admire him?" she asked, thinking of what Converse had said last night. She could hardly keep the scorn from her voice. "Heaps," said Brian, and she had one of those illuminating glimpses of what men may be to one another and what they may be to a woman at the same time. The great facade of a hotel was suddenly before them. A liveried flunky stood before the revolving door. His blank gaze was fastened upon the distance, but it was inescapable that he knew Linda and expected her to enter. "I live here," she reminded her companion, pausing. "Won't you walk a little farther? I haven't said half I wanted to. What a fearful bore I've been." She let him draw her on. "I want you to understand of all people. I know that what I've said sounds like a prig or a boor, which is nearly as bad, but if it's going to be like that, I wonder if I really want it. I haven't any money and I'll need a lot. They'll expect me to live up to Simon Pentress." He laughed with a tinge of bitterness. She spoke impatiently. "O, but if you loved it—if it was your dream—so few of us get our dreams even in a tangled way!" He looked at her hopefully. It seemed that she had miraculously voiced his half-framed thoughts. "A chap could do a lot of good over there if he was really in earnest," he said wistfully. "It's all such a muddle, and maybe it doesn't matter much how I happen to go—" "That is true," said Linda eagerly, as if justification were pleasant to her. "The result is the thing, after all. If you get results." She was unconsciously quoting Courtney Roth, whom every one had forgotten. Suddenly she remembered him. It was beginning to mist in a fine, soft way. She was tired from the long walk, and they turned back obedient to a pressure from her hand on his arm. He began to reproach himself at once. "You're tired. You're awfully white. I ought to be shot!" as if he feared the hotel again he said diffidently. "I meant to ask you hours ago, but I got talking about myself like a duffer. Will you dine with me? Say that you will!" But Linda smiled "no." She was always dining. He could not know, of course, that her free evenings were days ahead. They selected one toward the end of the week. Brian was in New York for an elastic period. "While the Pentresses are here?" Linda suggested with sudden enlightenment. And when he admitted that a matter of course, she asked, "Why is Miss Pentress against the appointment?" She did not know how cold her voice sounded. "Daisy? Oh, I think she's rather keen on my keeping on with my profession. I'm a lawyer—a sort of one, you know. Daisy hates foreign countries and all their parades. She thinks they aren't real. She's pure American." Linda threw back her head, and laughed aloud. The gesture released the furs at her neck and a coil of the pearls she wore slipped through and lay against the dark soft collar. Her laughter was startling, a little wild. "Good-by," she told him and left him rather abruptly in the shadow of the dampened doorman. (TO BE CONTINUED.)

Great African Lake

Lake Nyasa, which covers about one-fourth of the protectorate's entire area, is the third in size of the great lakes of central Africa. It is 340 miles long and its greatest width, which occurs at the center, is 45 miles. The total area of the lake has been estimated at 11,000 square miles. Its waters are carried into the Zambesi via the River Shire. Nyasaland and its great lake were only vaguely known until 1859 when David Livingstone and the German traveler, Albrecht Roscher, explored it simultaneously. Livingstone from the south and Roscher from the east. Since that time it has been the scene of civilizing work on the part of missionaries and government officials.

Old English Expression

A nine-day wonder is something that holds attention for a few days and then is forgotten. The expression is very old in England. It was used by Shakespeare. It is thought to be based on the old proverb, "Wonder lasts nine days and then the puppy's eyes are opened," referring to the fact that dogs are born blind and their eyes do not open for about nine days.

Finds Throw Light on Tribe of Philistines

Really and even individually has been given to the Philistines, who for many generations have been known by a name, by some of Sir John Penton's observations on discoveries in Palestine. It was while searching in the mounds near the most curious revelations were made about missing epochs in Biblical history. First the diggers found knives, hand axes, spears, and "spurious Egyptian antiquities" bought and brought here by English and Australian soldiers. Next the Roman occupation of Palestine was unearthed, then a city of the Greeks, and then pilgrim bones carried when Solomon was king. It was at the periods of the Egyptian conquests and weapons of the ancient Phoenicians, together with the scarabs and jewels, which were the journey of the Israelites to the Promised land. A fragment of all, is that the soldiers

SPEEDOMETER IS MOST ESSENTIAL

Device Often Blamed for Noises Originating in Other Parts.

Often speedometers are blamed for noises that originate elsewhere. According to Sumner S. Howard, director of service for a large spark plug company, rarely can noise be traced to the speedometer itself. So-called speedometer noises occur when the flexible shaft or cable is kicked or pushed into a position where it has too sharp a bend. Any motorist, he says, can correct this simply by reaching behind the instrument board and moving the shaft into a more favorable position. How Speedometer Works. Many motorists will be interested in knowing how the speedometer on their cars works. The speedometer operates from a drive, which is an integral part of the engine's transmission. One end of a flexible shaft or cable is attached to this drive and the other end to the speedometer. As the shaft revolves the speedometer operates, and for every 1,008 revolutions the speedometer will register one mile. By the same token 1,008 revolutions a minute will indicate 60 miles an hour on the speed dial. Speedometers seldom get out of order nowadays, and whenever they fail to function it usually is due to the breaking of the cable which connects the speedometer with the driving mechanism. This breakage occurs only when the cable has been sharply twisted and bent through carelessness. Most Necessary Device. That the speedometer is one of the most necessary devices on the automobile can be seen from a partial list of services it performs: It tells how fast you are driving. How far you have traveled. How your car is performing on acceleration and hill climbing. Gives distance between towns. Guides you when a person gives directions. Tells when to change oil and when to have other services done in accordance with car instruction manual. Tells how much tire mileage you are getting. How much mileage per gallon of gasoline. Tells cost per mile of car operation. Tells you not to drive a new car too fast.

"Wreck Ambulance" Car Used in Austrian City

A mile-a-minute "wreck ambulance," equipped to meet practically any large scale emergency, has been put into use by the city of Baden, near Vienna, Austria. This is the first time service of this kind has been established in Europe. A second machine of the same type will be equipped for similar work. Each relief machine will carry enough bandages, antiseptics, surgical instruments, and other first aid supplies to treat nearly 50 patients. Gas masks, ready to afford workers protection against all kinds of poison gases, are part of the equipment. Six stretchers and a tent enable an emergency hospital to be erected at the scene of disaster. An attachment will bring about a quart of water to boiling point in five minutes for disinfecting purposes. The machines are expected to save many lives through prompt aid in railroad wrecks, fires and similar disasters.—Popular Science Monthly.

Engineers' Rules Help to Automobile Drivers

The rules drilled into the locomotive engineer, if practiced by automobile drivers, would aid materially in diminishing traffic accidents, says the National Safety council. Three important practices demanded of engineers follow: Unless you are sure, slow down to a speed at which you can stop in half the distance you can see. Keep your eye on the road. Keep your brakes in condition to stop.

HORSES VIE WITH AUTOS IN GAME OF POLO

Some of the members of the Diamond-and-a-Half ranch near Herford, Ore., playing polo according to their own rules. The bold bad men of the West have taken up the eastern society sport and by way of variety use their autos when their ponies do not feel fit. They have cleared off a patch of brush to make a fairly satisfactory polo field, and what they lack in turf etiquette the ranchers make up in rough and ready sport.

Heat at Higher Speed

Heating up of the engine at high speeds is not mysterious to engineers. In some cars it is due simply to the fact that the mixture is too lean—not because of carburetor adjustment, but because the vacuum tank is unable to deliver sufficient fuel. It is this situation that has caused so many car makers to adopt the mechanical fuel pump. The pump works faster at high speed where the vacuum tank operated sluggishly. Do not let an overheated engine go unnoticed.

THE MOTOR QUIZ

(How Many Can You Answer?) Q. When a car is sluggish, loses power on hills and has a slow pick-up, what should be done? Ans. First inspect the spark plugs. By replacing worn plugs new life is given an engine and often expensive repairs are avoided. Q. Why is it particularly advisable to shift the car into second gear when driving on a grade in heavy traffic? Ans. The engine makes a better brake thus taking some of the strain of the regular brake stream. It also permits quicker pick-up. Q. How many gasoline filling stations are in the United States? Ans. Approximately 320,000. Q. How many service stations and repair shops are in this country? Ans. Some 95,800. Q. At what temperature will a battery showing a reading of 1250-1300 freeze? Ans. Approximately 30 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Girl Owns and Operates Gasoline Filling Station

Pretty Loretta Rabbitt, eighteen, of St. Louis, Mo., is probably the youngest of her sex to own and operate a gasoline station in the United States. Since her father's death six years ago she has been operating her station in the Mound city and is kept so busy by her work that she "can't seem to find enough time to go out with her boy friends."

Miss Rabbitt Filling a Customer's Gasoline Tank.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

Engines which burn a solid fuel are not unlikely before liquid fuel supplies are exhausted. If one cell of the battery always requires more water than the others, it indicates a leak. When bandits "see in a high powered car" these days it may be almost any make of car. "Fading" is the term that describes the lowered efficiency of the brakes after they have been "on" some time. Heat causes it. Does the annual production of pickles in America—given as three billion—include those times when the driver's license was left in the other suit? Paris has adopted a half hour parking limit. Increased registrations of automobiles led to the rule, which applies to the entire downtown district. There should be no mystery why the jack, placed on soft earth, sinks. The base of the device is small and the concentration of the weight of one side of the car upon it is bound to drive it into the ground.

TEMPTING DISHES FOR CHILDREN.

Every mother knows how hard it is to force children to eat the food they should eat. The only way to accomplish this is to begin with the baby. Food and feeding time will be a happy time if habits of correct eating are formed early. The child who has had his own way in all things is going to make a difficult adult to live with or for other people to enjoy being with. It takes but little patience to train a baby, but often it is difficult when the child has become willful. All foods given children should be simple, well cooked, easy to digest and attractively served. Tasting the food before being served is an important duty for the mother or nurse, to be sure it is palatable, for often dislikes have been formed that are hard to overcome by one dish of poor food. The following are a few breakfast suggestions: Orange Honey Crispy.—Peel an orange and separate into sections, removing the membranes. Allow six to eight sections for each serving. Dip each section into honey and turn over in rice or corn flakes, puffed wheat or any of the light cereals which have been warmed until crisp in the oven. Arrange on an attractive plate and serve. Maple sirup may be used in place of honey for variety. Breakfast Cocktail.—One beaten egg yolk, a pinch of salt, a teaspoonful of honey and the juice of two oranges. Beat well and serve cold. This supplies iron from the egg yolk and vitamins from the orange juice. This is a good drink to give as a mid-meal. Orange Milk Foam.—Take six tablespoonfuls of orange juice, six tablespoonfuls of milk (evaporated milk may be used), six teaspoonfuls of cold water and a teaspoonful of sugar. Beat and shake thoroughly; serve at once in a large glass. The citrus fruit juices act on milk and make it more digestible as well as more palatable. This is a boon to the mother whose children do not like milk or seem to be unable to digest it. All the above recipes are equally good for the nursing mother who needs to take as much liquid as possible. For a child of six years the addition of the juice of half a lemon to a glass of orange juice is recommended to give increased vitamin C and to prevent and cure tooth troubles. Frosted Orange Juice.—Into a large glass pour a cupful of orange juice. Add a spoonful of vanilla ice cream and stir a moment, then serve.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Here's a drink or two that will be a bit different, to serve on occasions: Coffee Egg Nog.—Combine three tablespoonfuls of coffee sirup with three-fourths of a cupful of rich milk and a well-beaten egg. Add a few drops of vanilla. Beat all well and pour into a glass of crushed ice. Serve at once. Ginger Ale Lemonade.—Place a block of ice in a pitcher. With the juice of four lemons mix one cupful of sugar, and when well dissolved add one pint of ginger ale and one and one-half pints of water. Pour into the pitcher and stir thoroughly. Allow to stand a few minutes before serving. A quick topping for saltines or the small, round, butter thin crackers which may be served with a cold drink or with a cup of tea: Take a few marshmallows, a piece of peanut brittle, nougat or a candy bar, melt over hot water and drop on the crackers, sprinkle with nuts if desired and brown in the oven. Serve crispy and fresh. The small ginger snaps put together sandwich fashion with softened candy bar makes a most delightful little cake. The candies wrapped in waxed paper may, any or all of them, be melted and poured over ice cream to make the dish more festive. As the sweetening, flavor and blending is all done in the candy, all that is necessary is to melt it for spreading. Happy's Waldorf Salad.—Here is a salad that may be served to a crowd: Take five pounds of cabbage, five pounds of tart apples, one and one-half quarts of freshly cut green spinach, six heads of lettuce. Freshen the cabbage in cold water, chop fine. Wash apples, core but do not peel. Cut apples into small cubes, chop spinach, mix with sour cream dressing and serve well seasoned with salt, celery salt and two tablespoonfuls of sugar on crisp lettuce leaves. Mushroom Sauce.—Take one-fourth of a pound of sliced mushrooms, cook in two tablespoonfuls of butter for five minutes, add two tablespoonfuls of browned flour, one cupful of stock or cream, seasonings to taste.

BLACK AND WHITE FOR AUTUMN; BEADED GOWN STAGES COMEBACK

HERE'S how to start the fall season with a flourish of chic that will tell the world you are properly style-minded. The order of procedure is as follows: Acquire a stunning suit of black-and-white tweed, for black-and-white is scheduled to repeat its triumphs this fall. Having decided upon tweed in black-and-white for your initial fall outfit, next to consider is the silhouette. An answer to correct "lines" is given in this illustration of a pert little bolero topping a skirt which flares, thanks to its adroit seaming. Please to take note that this skirt fits ever so snugly about the hips, which it must do to comply with the dictates of fashion. No doubt you have been impressed with the extreme simplicity of this suit. The explanation is that it is true chic to be simple in a sophisticated way. In this analysis of that which goes to define autumn swank let us next turn our attention to the footwear, the gloves and the chapeau which leads to distinction for the costume pictured. Being black they reflect the very essence of smartness. At all the best booteries they are declaring the prestige of fine, shapely and supple black kid shoes for fall. As to the correctness of black kid gloves for wear with the autumn costume, ask la Parisienne—she knows. The modish little black beret tops this black-and-white tweed suit to perfection. Choose it of velvet, of felt or of chenille. The tweed of which the bolero and skirt in the picture is styled is of the smooth lightweight variety, but to match merely begins to tell the program mapped out for beads for the season before us. The touch of sparkling embroidery will enhance many a velvet gown, also those of stately white satin for evening. Shoulder straps of glittering beads will collaborate with low-cut necklines to achieve flattering décolletés. Our afternoon frocks of satin, velvet, crepe and faille silk, will take unto themselves beaded yokes, beaded collar-and-cuff sets, beaded bandings and beaded motifs of every sort. Beaded frocks for evening wear assume an entirely different aspect from those of the past. The latest is the gown fashioned of beaded net or chiffon which can be bought by the yard. Two very beautiful exponents of the formal beaded frock are presented in illustration below. The exquisite princess dress in the foreground just suits the delicate beauty and lovely slenderness of Jeannette Loff, the cinema artist who registers so beautifully

Swanky Costume for Autumn.

Exponents of Formal Beaded Gown.

all white mixtures woollens are not thin. Some of the newest mannish worsteds are almost shaggy in appearance because of the nubs of white yarn which have fallen on a dark snowflake had only does white tone up black in fashionable autumn weaves but there are other equally as stunning effects, such as dark white colored woolen flecked with white. Beaded Gowns Are Back. Glitter, glitter, little head, "how I wonder what you are." You may be a gold or silver spangle, an Novel Neckwear Neckwear is becoming odd and novel. An attractive finish for the neck-line is one of pique consisting of a collar section at one side and a bow at the other. The bow tie of pique is the trimming note of the moment. Gingham Aprons Gingham is again popular for the big apron which completely covers the frock, or which, indeed, may easily take the place of a frock while housework is in order.

PRIMARY ELECTION
Tuesday, September 16, 1930

He appreciates the confidence his constituents have placed in him. He is now serving his second term in the House of Representatives. He has become familiar with the duties of the office. He is acquainted in the various departments of our government. He has important committee assignments. He has acquired a close contact with the older and more influential members of Congress. He has given general satisfaction to his constituents by hard work and careful attention to the duties of his office. It is conceded that it is not wise for any district to change representatives at intervals as it takes some time for a representative to become familiar with the duties of his office. If re-elected, he is in a position to render still better service. He will appreciate your vote and support.

IN MEMORIAM

In sad and loving memory of our dear wife and mother, Mrs. Math. Beisbier who passed away three years ago August 31, 1927:

At twilight, when twilight hour draws near,
And sunset flowers the sky,
We think of you dear mother,
And the happy days gone by.
Thoughts of you come drifting back,
Within our dreams to stay
To know that you are resting
When the twilight ends the day.
Not lost to those who loved you, only gone before,
To that beautiful Isle of somewhere
Where parting is no more.
Sadly missed by her husband and children.

"Wings of Adventure"

With Rex Lease, Armida and Clyde Cook.

What would you rather do than die? Dave Kent, an aviator, and Skeets Smith, his mechanic, make a forced landing in the midst of bandits with political ambitions. They have to enlist in the army of the new republic—or be shot without waiting for sunrise—so they enlist. But when Dave finds a beautiful girl held prisoner to be the bandit chief's bride and she implores him to rescue her—he risks a million bandits' bullets for her brown eyes. And thereby hangs this breath-taking, heart-catching tale of romance and adventure. Also Sportlight, Comedy and "Lightning Express"

NO LICENSE NECESSARY

Neither the state nor any municipality may require a license fee of a farmer who is selling his own produce from house to house, William F. Renk, commissioner of the state department of agriculture and markets advised Mayor Taylor G. Brown, Oshkosh in a recent letter. Rumors recently became current in the Oshkosh territory to the effect that farmers would be arrested if they attempted to peddle their products in that city. Mayor Brown was advised that there was no city ordinance requiring a license for such sales and wrote to the commissioner for details as to the state attitude. The commissioner replied that while a farmer may sell his own produce, a person who purchases farm produce for re-sale must have a state license.

McCormick-Deering Corn Binders Save Time Cutting Corn

WHEN your corn is ready to cut, depend on the McCormick-Deering Corn Binder to do this heavy job for you, quickly. It has a record of successful, reliable performance throughout the corn belt. It does the work of 5 to 6 men, pushing the corn over against the binding mechanism. The reliable McCormick-Deering assures binding every bundle. Short corn is bound equally as well as tall corn, because the binder provides evenly butted bundles, with a wide range of adjustment. Clear, open sides permit easy removal of undergrowth. The shielded drive excludes trash and undergrowth and is long life. A bundle loader can be furnished at additional cost. Let us show you these features that have made the McCormick-Deering the popular binder among corn growers.

Soil Color Tells of Its Contents

Often Gives Clue to Presence or Absence of Desirable Qualities.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The color of soils is often a good clue to the presence or lack of desirable qualities, says W. O. Robinson, of the United States Department of Agriculture. Different colors in soils are caused by differences in composition, but the soil with the greatest amount of colored constituents as revealed by analysis does not always have the deepest color because the constituents of the soil are not always in proper combination to make them noticeable.

Dark Soil Productive.
"A black soil is usually a rich soil, and in general the darker the soil the more productive it is. Black color in soils is due to organic matter in combination with lime. The actual quantity of organic matter may be small, but if it is saturated with lime or other bases it makes a most favorable condition for plant growth."
"Organic matter also colors soils brown. Such soils are generally acid, and the organic matter, while it may be abundant, is not saturated with lime. A reddish-brown color ordinarily indicates the presence of organic matter and iron oxide. Examples of such soils are the prized mahogany lands of the South.

Red Soils Rated High.
"Red and yellow soils owe their color to the iron oxide they contain in the free state. Experience has shown that the coloring matter is in the clay or finest matter in the soil. This clay is largely made up of silica.

Danger Periods in Life
Cycle of Dairy Heifers
College men nowadays seem to be investigating almost everything that can be investigated. The Missouri College of Agriculture has been investigating the rate of growth of dairy heifers at different ages, from conception to maturity. The investigators find that the rate of growth is not uniform but that growth is in three cycles. The first spurt of very rapid growth occurs before birth, at the fifth and sixth months. The second spurt begins two months after birth and ends at four and one-half months. The time between these spurts is a critical period for cow and calf and it is in this period that abortion is apt to occur, generally at seven months. The third period of growth begins at 12 months and ends at about 23 months. The practical application of these results of investigation is that calves and heifers should be extra well fed during the periods of greatest growth.

Symptoms of Parasites in Sheep Are Varied
What are the symptoms of parasites in sheep, both internal and external? When sheep have parasites they run down in condition, they lose flesh, they lose their appetites, they hump in the back, the wool sometimes parts on the back, the heads and ears drop, the eyes become dull, the sheep become less active in moving around, the skin becomes pale, the wool fiber becomes weak, the sheep coughs, a swelling may come under the throat and the sheep scours. From external parasites they rub against anything convenient to get temporary relief. If sheep show any of the above mentioned symptoms, make an investigation.

NEW BAIT QUITE EFFECTIVE FOR JAPANESE BEETLE TRAPS

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Japanese-beetle trappers will have better luck if they will make a slight change in the bait used in their traps by increasing the quantities of the attractive agents, geraniol and eugenol, says the United States Department of Agriculture.
Two years of experimental work at the Japanese-beetle laboratory at Moorestown, N. J., has shown that traps containing the improved bait captured more than two and one-half times as many beetles as did the traps in which the old bait was used. Increasing the quantities of geraniol and eugenol will make the bait slightly more expensive, the department says, but the increased catch will more than offset this cost.
The formula for the bait recommended by the department is as follows:

Straw for Scratching Litter for Chickens
If the farm straw supply has been used up until threshing time, it will often pay to buy a few bales of clean yellow wheat straw for fresh scratching litter in the poultry houses. Then you will find the eggs will be clean for a long time and the hours saved in washing or sponging dirty eggs will more than pay the cost of the straw. During hot dry summer weather the straw has fine powers of absorption and will take up the poultry manure much longer than in the damp winter weather.

Average Daily Gain on Mixed Pasture Best
Sweet clover pasture has earned a place in the corn belt, particularly in dry seasons. It has been a big factor in increasing milk production of dairy cows. For young animals, however, experiments at the University of Wisconsin with dairy heifers, indicate that it may not be as valuable as mixed pastures and blue grass pastures. During four years, experiments with three lots of five heifers each ranging in age from one to two years, show an average daily gain on the heifers on sweet clover of 0.331 pound; for mixed pasture the daily gains were 0.277 pound and for blue grass and red top mixture the daily gains were 1.1 pound.
Each acre of the sweet clover pasture annually has supplied 152 days for one heifer, 157 days for the mixed rotation pasture, and 176 days for the blue grass and red top mixture. This experiment bears out the contention that good crop land may profitably be used for permanent pasture for dairy animals.

alumina, iron oxide, water, and organic matter. The color does not depend primarily upon the total quantity of iron present, as the percentage of this mineral varies little in the clay of surface soils, regardless of color. Reddish soils are usually rated high for farming."
White or light-colored soils are not regarded favorably for farming, except for special crops, says Mr. Robinson, for such color shows a lack of important constituents. Very light-colored soils are generally sandy and contain neither the clay nor the organic matter necessary to absorb and retain plant food and water.

Illinois Cherry Trees Now Facing Extinction
Cherry trees in Illinois face extinction by the cherry leaf spot, according to Dr. H. W. Anderson, University of Illinois.
The leaves of the cherry trees are attacked before the fruit is ripe and often drop off, stopping the storage of food for the coming winter. This weakened condition makes the tree quite subject to winter injury and causes the loss of large numbers of trees every year. Some trees put out new leaves and even blossoms in the fall and the new wood produced is not matured and is generally killed by severe winter weather.
"The disease lives over winter in the leaves that fall from the tree and the spores reinhabit the leaves the next year. Burning the leaves in the fall and winter helps to control the disease," Doctor Anderson says.
Commercial lime-sulphur, one gallon to 50 gallons of water, should be applied just after the blossoms have dropped and again ten days after. The third spray should be applied about two weeks before the fruit is harvested. After the harvest another spray is advisable. The addition of one and a half pounds of arsenate of lead to 50 gallons of water should be used to control the curculio in the first two sprays.

Sure
Edward, age four, lives in a double house on the east side, Mr. Mc—, who lives on the other side, bought a new car recently. Edward got quite a thrill out of this, and early in the evening, after the car had arrived, he ran to meet his father with, "Daddy, the Mc—s have bought a new car! Mr. Mc— is on the porch, and he'll tell you all about it!"—Indianapolis News.

They Locked the Door
Some 600 persons were injured in bathtub accidents last year, it is said. Some of them turned on the light while standing in water and were shocked, others reached for the soap and slipped down, while a few went to sleep in the tub. None, however, were murdered for singing in the bathtub.—Florida Times-Union.

Social Martyr
"The man who serves on a jury often makes a great deal of sacrifice for the public good," said one juror. "It is hard work to listen to all this testimony."
"It is not only hard work," answered the other, "but it is mighty demoralizing."

Great Mule Market
Memphis, Tenn., claims the largest mule market in the world as well as the largest mule stable. More than 80,000 mules, valued at an average of $100 each, are handled there each season. One stable has accommodations for 4,000 mules.

Sentence of Outlawry Still Holds in Britain

The people who think that outlaws belonged to the days of Robin Hood and his merry men, and have no connection with the modern world, must have rubbed their eyes recently when a sentence of outlawry was passed in the High court of Edinburgh. An outlaw, under Scottish law, loses the greater part of his legal rights as a citizen. He cannot be a party to any legal action, give evidence as a witness, or act as a jurymen. Then, if he is found, he may be arrested, an imprisoned, and cannot in that case, be released on bail. The modern outlaw is more fortunate than the ancient outlaws in at least one respect, however. At one time an outlaw could be killed at sight, but although the outlaw is excluded from the protection of the law in other respects, his life is no longer in danger at the hands of every one he meets.—London Mail.

Gifted Chinese Artist Scorns Use of Brushes

We sometimes see an artist with long, tapering fingers, and we are reminded of the expression "artistic hands." In China there is a man who not only possesses artistic fingers, but who actually uses these fingers in the paintings he does.
Kwei Teng, a Chinese artist, scorns brushes and ordinary drawing tools—his hands provide him with everything he needs. With his nails he draws his pictures, and then with his sensitive fingertips he puts on the required colors!
The work of this strange artist was recently exhibited in New York, and met with great admiration—fempered with a goodly amount of curiosity! People found it difficult to believe that good results could be obtained by such primitive methods, but they came away from the exhibition entirely converted.—Montreal Family Herald.

Pictures for Public
While the French government is endeavoring to arouse interest in the natural features and beauties of the country by printing views of the more interesting sights, the tramway companies are trying to improve the mental equipment of their passengers by printing the portraits of celebrated characters of French history upon the tickets which are issued to riders. The faces of Turgot, Lamartine, Michelet and Victor Hugo are among those appearing upon the tickets, and it is supposed that the passenger will be spurred on to improving his mental equipment by contemplating the portraits.

Manganese Boon to Steel
The steel industry takes approximately 35 per cent of all the manganese consumed in this country. The percentage of the metal which goes into the steel varies from around 1 per cent to as high as 12 per cent in steels in which particular hardness is desired. Manganese has long been used in removing oxygen from molten steel, but it is only of late years that its value as a hardening agent has been realized.—Washington Star.

Sure
Edward, age four, lives in a double house on the east side, Mr. Mc—, who lives on the other side, bought a new car recently. Edward got quite a thrill out of this, and early in the evening, after the car had arrived, he ran to meet his father with, "Daddy, the Mc—s have bought a new car! Mr. Mc— is on the porch, and he'll tell you all about it!"—Indianapolis News.

They Locked the Door
Some 600 persons were injured in bathtub accidents last year, it is said. Some of them turned on the light while standing in water and were shocked, others reached for the soap and slipped down, while a few went to sleep in the tub. None, however, were murdered for singing in the bathtub.—Florida Times-Union.

Social Martyr
"The man who serves on a jury often makes a great deal of sacrifice for the public good," said one juror. "It is hard work to listen to all this testimony."
"It is not only hard work," answered the other, "but it is mighty demoralizing."

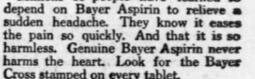

Great Mule Market
Memphis, Tenn., claims the largest mule market in the world as well as the largest mule stable. More than 80,000 mules, valued at an average of $100 each, are handled there each season. One stable has accommodations for 4,000 mules.

To Disperse Mobs With Water

Belin's police department has been equipped with a number of anti-riot automobiles to disperse unruly crowds. The car is an armored water tank on wheels capable of shooting water at tremendous pressure. Each car has a capacity of 50 gallons and the turret, resembling that on war tanks, is so arranged that water can be thrown in any direction.

Makes Life Sweeter

Too much to eat—too rich a diet—or too much smoking. Lots of things cause sour stomach, but nothing can correct it quickly. Phillips Milk of Magnesia will alkalize the acid. Take a spoonful of this pleasant preparation, and the system is soon sweetened.

PHILLIPS Milk of Magnesia

Phillips' always ready to relieve distress from over-eating; to check all acidity; or neutralize nicotine. Remember this for your own comfort—for the sake of those around you. Endorsed by physicians, but they always say Phillips. Don't buy something else and expect the same results!

Train Night-Flying Birds

A race of night-flying pigeons is being developed under supervision of the War department. Soon after the World war the United States army signal corps started to develop these birds, realizing that they would be of invaluable service in case of war or in time of great national disaster, such as floods, cyclones or earthquakes. At the army signal school at Fort Monmouth, N. J., there is now a loft containing only night-flying birds. These are the result of careful training of homing pigeons, selection and breeding of the most intelligent, the sturdiest and those that had habitually flown in twilight or darkness.

"And how sad her husband looks."
"No doubt he's thinking of the same thing."—Lustige, Leipzig.

W. A. RADFORD

A standard will answer the question. FREE OF CHARGE. For the reader's convenience, the author and editor, on account of his long experience, and the fact that he has written, without doubt, the most complete and authoritative book on all these subjects, has written a book on the subject of "The Home" and only inclose a copy for the family of five people.

For the smaller towns and villages, there is a demand for a home such as shown in the illustration. On larger farms this is a very excellent tenant house for the use of those who own a large farm.

The entrance door leads to a stair hall and at the left is the living room extending most the width of the building. This room is 16 feet by 11 feet 6 inches wide. It is connected with the dining room, 11 feet 9 inches by 11 feet, by a double cased opening which makes the two rooms practically one. The kitchen is of good size, being 10 feet 9 inches by 7 feet 6 inches. Upstairs there are two large bedrooms, the one at the front of the house being 19 feet 6 inches by 11 feet 6 inches. The one at the rear is 13 feet 3 inches long by 11 feet deep. Both rooms have ample closet space in connection with them. At the head of the stairs off the hall in a convenient place is the bathroom.

This house is set on a concrete foundation and has a basement of the same size as the house itself. It is of frame construction, the outside walls being covered with ship-lap siding. This home building design will appeal to those who want a small attractive home but who do not have a large sum of money to invest.

Another obvious disadvantage of this type of heater is the fact that it is necessary to light it every time hot water is needed. When the heater is in the basement, this is often a serious inconvenience.

The two other kinds of gas water heaters are the storage heater and the instantaneous heater. The storage heater is the type most popular with the average housewife. It is economical, yet very convenient. Once this type of heater is installed, the home-owner need no longer worry about his supply of hot water. When the water in the storage tank falls below a certain temperature, whatever temperature the home-owner desires (usually about 150 degrees)—the burner is automatically lighted from a pilot which burns continuously. Thus, there is always a tank full of hot water.

The best heaters are well insulated with thick blankets of rock wool, asbestos, hair or cork. The insulation is between the outer jacket of steel and the inner tank of rust-proof metal.

Instantaneous gas heaters have no storage tank. At a turn of a faucet anywhere in the house, a powerful flame is lighted in the burner and water is heated in an elaborate structure of copper coils. Hot water pours from the faucet almost instantly.

This type of heater may be used efficiently in a home, apartment, school or hospital where the demand for hot water is constant. But, if the demand for hot water is intermittent, such as is usually the case in the average home, this type of heater would prove expensive in operating cost.

The "side-arm" type of heater is called because the water is heated in a copper coil placed at the side of a galvanized iron tank. The original purchase price for this type of heater is small, it is relatively cheap in operation because the tank allows the water to cool off quickly. Furthermore, the hot water is drawn off from the top and cools off as it goes down.

Use Care in Selecting Heater for Residence

Selecting the type of furnace best adapted to meet building conditions demands as great consideration as the location of radiators and other features of installation with a network of piping. A pipeless furnace would have heated the considerably less expensive. Also pipeless heaters have been installed in certain buildings where satisfactory results never could have been obtained with another type of plant.

Supply Tile Flooring on Square-Foot Basis

The flooring is generally supplied practically on a square-foot basis, with extra charges for specialties like a sanitary cover, moldings and the like. The use of tile has been extended from bathroom floor to many other uses in the house—the vestibule, stair treads, the mantel facing and hearth, kitchen floors, drain boards at the side of the sink and even window stools

Colonial seats on either side and the trellis over which vines or flowers can be trained are features which will appeal to the prospective home builder.
