Motor Truck Is Termed Large Farm Factor

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

After a study of motor-truck transportation of fruits and vegetables in southern Indiana and southern Illinois, Bruce Edwards, of the United States Department of Agriculture, says:

"Exclusive of market garden and canning supplies and of local distribution, 35 per cent of the 1928 crop of fruits and vegetables in southern Indiana were shipped by motor truck and 23 per cent were shipped by motor truck in southern Illinois. "Percentages of certain crops moving by motor truck in southern Indiana were: Apples 45, peaches 40, cantaloupes 36, sweet potatoes 5. Corresponding figures for Illinois were: Apples 18, peaches 29, cantaloupes 75, and sweet potatoes 5.

"It is probable that rail displacement by motor truck in hauling fruits and vegetables in southern Illinois in 1928 was not over 10 per cent, because a large part of the truck movement was of low-quality products not suitable for rail shipment."

This representative of the bureau of agricultural economics finds that "A characteristic of motor-truck shipments in this territory is the major distribution to small cities in the corn and coal belts and in rural trade. Less than 50 per cent of the motor-truck movements is to primary city markets."

Complete details of the survey may be obtained in a multigraphed report just issued by the bureau of agricultural economics and entitled "Motor Truck Transportation of Fruits and Vegetables, Southern Indiana and Southern Illinois, 1928 Crop."

Temple Grid Coaches All Quite Youthful

Temple University's football team has one of the youngest coaching staffs in the country. Three varsity mentors and the head freshman coach's average age is twenty-nine and a half years. Head Coach Heinie Miller and Bert Bell, backfield teacher, are both thirty-four years of age, while John de Grossa, head line coach, is twenty-six, and Robert Pike, chief freshman mentor, is the baby of the staff, being only twenty-four years old.

Despite the youthfulness of the Owl tutoring staff, all four coaches have seen plenty of service. Bell and Miller, who played on the great Penn team of 1913, have been in the coaching business for ten years, while Da Grossa has seen four years' service, and Pike two. Ability to produce winning teams brought them success and secure berths.

Putting Easier by Careful Comparison

Putting always has appeared to be a simple matter. All a golfer has to do is to worry the ball about the green until it becomes exhausted and faints in the cup.

Driving is much more difficult. Here is where that much discussed mental strain comes in. When driving a man must decide whether to top the ball into the trap, pull it into the rough, or slice it out of bounds.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

"A good caddie is a gem to a poor golfer," says a writer. A sort of diamond in the rough.

Serious misalignment of the various units of the driving system occurs if engine bolts are not kept tight.

Cleaning the windshield before the windshield wiper is started will rid it of hard particles which may scratch the glass.

In driving over mountains use low and intermediate gear. It will save the cost of retuning your brakes and your safety will be greater, due to the lessened speed.

Speaking of correct automobile hand signals, the motorist who flicks cigarette ashes out the window with a sweeping gesture probably is getting ready to turn over.

Have you run out of tricks to sell the car thief? If so, there's a new one in the idea of shutting off the petcock under the vacuum tank and removing the glass bowl of the gas filter.

If a woman of fifty, asks the United States labor bureau, can learn to drive an automobile, is it fair to assume that she is too old for industrial employment? But who ever saw a woman of fifty?

Golfer Is Best Dressed of All Followers of Sporting

It seems that we shall soon be able to claim for the professional golfer that he is the best dressed sportsman in the world, says Maj. C. O. Hazlet, the noted British amateur golfer, in the London Express.

The days of the old, well-worn jacket and the baggy trousers have vanished forever. No one will miss them. Had the professional golfers at Hoylake been lined up on parade they would have presented a spectacle that would have graced most beauty shows.

The sleeveless jumper has come in to fashion, and in consequence silk shirts of rare and wonderful hues now charm the eye of the beholder. Also, everyone plays without a hat and locks are sleek and well brushed.

He recently noticed two players, however, who set fashion that is not likely to be followed by anyone outside a lunatic asylum.

One of them turned out clad in bright blue shorts and jumper and, to the horror of his caddie, displayed a pair of snowy white knives. Cool, of course, and splendid for the hot weather, but not a generally accepted mode in the golfing world. At least not yet. The other player did something quite fearful. Some one should speak to him about it. He wore, over his dark and incredibly sleek hair, a woman's hair net.

Turkey Day Game

Marquette university, which introduced night football to the Northwest last season, will present another novelty in varsity circles this fall when it stages the Thanksgiving day game with Butler university at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Marquette has recorded some of its best football turnouts on the afternoon of Thanksgiving day, but the college athletic authorities believe that even more fans will be able to see the game in the morning.

Night Time Always Been Linked With Sporting

Night time has always been linked with professional sport. Even horse racing was tried at night and so was automobile racing. Neither proved a paying venture after the novelty wore off.

Minor colleges, located in or near industrial centers, will probably continue to find night football profitable and since the remainder of the sports program at these institutions must be maintained by the football receipts they will probably present their entire schedule at night since their patrons cannot get away from their labors during the daytime, but in other centers football games will be played on Saturday afternoons as heretofore. And in the major leagues baseball will be played in the daytime; for some time at least.

The Chicago Cubs are leaving no stone unturned to maintain their lead in the National league race for the pennant, their latest acquisition being the signing of Jess Petty, former Brooklyn and Pittsburgh star.

Chicago White Sox Plan to Train at San Antonio

The Chicago White Sox plan to return to San Antonio to train next year, but in doing so have announced that they will not make the mistake that they did this year, when they failed to send some one in advance of the club to the Alamo city to have everything in readiness for the team on its arrival. When the players put in their appearance this spring they found the diamond on which they were to work in such a condition that training was out of question and a new location had to be found. Next year they are going to train on the public service diamond and plan to build a clubhouse and put in necessary equipment, such as a major league club requires to get in condition.

Walks 15 Batters

Gene Jones, young Springfield Three-I league hurler, has one record they can't take away from him—the honor of pitching the first nine-inning no-hit game in night baseball.

Jones defeated Decatur, 4 to 1, in the second game of a night double-header. He set some other kind of a record when he walked 15 men and still managed to hold his opposition to one run.

Dave Bancroft, who has been managing the New York Giants during the absence of Manager McGraw, drove the team almost to the top before falling before the Chicago Cubs. Bancroft's work this season has been never.

TAPPING THE HOUSE BUDGET BOX

By ETTA WEBB

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

HELEN REID stared into the box, surprise and dismay delineated on her charming young blond countenance. Yesterday the little compartment labeled "Incidentals" had contained money. This morning it was empty. And the man was waiting for his pay for the cute bridge lamp she had ordered sent home from Kent's. Joe had simply rifled every cent out of "Incidentals." No, she could not say rifled, for when they agreed to run their finances according to the budget system they had placed no restrictions on each other. Economy was their watchword. Helen felt she had practiced economy faithfully. But she just had to have that bridge lamp. It was a bargain at $2.50.

Just one thing to do under the circumstances, and with a sigh she did it. She took $2.50 out of the house payment till. That was the only till that still was left untouched. She could replace the money later.

Connected up with the floor socket nearest the library table, the lamp was warranted to throw just the right light on the pages of Joe's book as he sat hunched up in his favorite chair reading. Other times it would serve to illuminate the cunning new bridge table which had been another of her recent purchases. Julie and May and Peggy were coming in for a game that afternoon and she would for once have her lighting just right. That was another thing; she'd have to get some candy; you can't play bridge all afternoon without something to chew on. That meant another 60 cents. Helen took 60 cents out of the fuel till. In place of the money used she wrote a couple of I. O. U.'s. All the tills contained I. O. U.'s. And pay day was not yet. The budget box seemed to be in a muddle.

Helen put on her hat and coat and went out to do a bit of marketing. As the food till was practically empty and the contents of her purse low, she took a bill for the meat and vegetables. She paid for the candy, selecting it with a view to what the girls liked—chocolates for Peg, mints for Julie, Jordan almonds for May. On the way home she ran in to see Aunt Alice for a moment.

"Well, how's the budget behaving?" asked her aunt. Helen colored. "Rather unruly sometimes, I'm afraid," she confessed. "You'll need a firm hand and a steady head." Aunt Alice, stony and calm, looked at the girl while her capable hands continued to keep her crocheted hook flying. "I never tried the budget system myself. I just take whatever your uncle Ed sees fit to hand out to me when Saturday night comes. And I make it do. You've had a fine business education, Helen, and two years of practical experience in an office. Figures shouldn't bother you any. Or Joe, either. While we're talking of money, I wonder if you want to give something toward Mr. and Mrs. Warren's anniversary present. They're going to celebrate their golden wedding. The friends are going to put together and get them a radio set."

"How much shall I give, Aunt Alice?" "That's just as you feel. Most everybody gives a dollar at least. But less will do."

Helen opened her purse. She had known the old couple all her life. She did not want to seem stingy. Her purse contained just two one-dollar bills. She took them both out and laid them on the table. "One is from Joe and one from me," she said. She returned home very thoughtful. When pay day came and they again replenished the budget box, she would put her foot down hard on such casual expenditures as she had been making. And she'd see that Joe did likewise.

By the way, what had Joe wanted extra money for this morning? He had already taken out a sum sufficient to cover the expense of downtown lunches and a haircut. Her brows knotted as she pondered this question.

The little cankering doubt stayed with Helen all afternoon. She played bridge badly. And afterward, when the girls had gone home and she was cooking dinner, she scorched the meat. Her mind was on that budget box every minute. Where did the money go? Joe earned a comfortable salary; they were keeping up the payments on their home and insurance, but still something was wrong. The money apportioned to the tills of the box vanished like dew before the sun. By the time all those I. O. U.'s were paid up the pay day check was going to shrink like everything.

Joe was glum at dinner. The scorched steak did not taste so awfully good. But the pie was delicious. Afterward, when he sat down in his comfy chair and took up his book, Helen snapped on the new bridge lamp.

"How's that, dear?" "Fine." He looked up at it and her. "A new lamp, eh? Where did that come from? A present from somebody?" "No, I got it at Kent's. A bargain. Only $2.50."

"Just the other day you bought a bridge table. The luxury till in our budget box must be empty. By the way, bring that budget box here. I want to see it."

Helen brought the box. She set it down on the arm of Joe's chair. She stood looking on while he examined the various tills of the rather clumsily arranged, homemade affair.

"Somebody's been spending a lot of money, seems to me," he said, studying the tiny slips of paper which represented promissory notes made to the budget box.

Helen flushed. The thing was getting on her nerves. "I'm always careful to put in my I. O. U.'s. You aren't," she said. "Last night there was $3.25 in incidentals. This morning it was gone. And nothing to show for it."

"—I needed a little extra," Joe looked confused. "What for?" Helen's demand was sharp and swift. Joe's reply matched it. "Say! What's the matter with you? Don't you think I can be trusted with money I earn?" Blue eyes challenged gray ones.

Suddenly Helen felt limp. Nothing like this had ever happened between them before. It wasn't going to now. She grabbed up the budget box and planted herself in its place on the arm of Joe's chair.

"Dear! You're mad. I don't blame you. That was a nasty question for me to put to you. I'm sorry. Will that make it all right?" Joe's face cleared. He put his arm around her.

"I don't mind telling you what I did with that money—"

Helen put her hand over his mouth. "You shan't. I don't want to know. We'll blame the budget box."

Helen put her hand over his mouth. "You shan't. I don't want to know. We'll blame the budget box."

"The darn thing is getting to be a nuisance," Joe admitted. The cloud had dissolved in the blue ether.

Next morning Helen took the budget box out to the kitchen table and sat down to put it in the strictest order. The postman had brought her a letter which contained a small check from her far-distant brother. Until she saw the check she had forgotten that today was her twenty-second birthday.

That check would pay up all her I. O. U.'s to the budget box. She wanted it dreadfully for something else, but the budget box must be looked after.

She was busily figuring when there came a knock at the door. Helen sprang up and opened the door. A forlorn man stood there. He made the usual request: a bite to eat? "Or a little change, lady?" Helen was so sorry for him that she turned away without looking the screen door and ran to the ice box. When she came back with a hunk of cake the man was gone. Likewise the budget box.

She stared at the empty table in dismay. Her check was there and Bob's letter. Pencil and pad where she had been figuring. Nothing else. Her first thought was to run out and try to overtake the man. Her next was one of distinct relief. There wasn't much more money in the budget box than she would have given him out of compassion anyway. She had her check safe. And today was pay day.

She had made the remnant of beef-steak into a stew, disguising the slightly scorched taste with tomato and onion, when Joe came home to dinner. He slid in, trying to hide something behind him. Her birthday present. Flowers? Candy? Helen in the kitchen heard the rustling of paper. When she came in bearing the dish of stew she found her gift upon the table waiting for her. A box, not large but substantial, with lock and key. A budget box. Just for an instant she felt queer. Then she set down the stew and put her arms about Joe's neck.

"You adorable boy! Nothing was ever more opportune. The old budget box walked away this morning. With a man. Such a forlorn old fellow!" "How much did he get?" Joe grinned.

"Ninety-seven cents." They both laughed. "Well run this different, eh?" Joe said. "It cost $3.25 to begin with. But I can make that up. Boss told me there'd be an extra five in my pay envelope every week after this. How do you like your birthday present, darling?"

"I love it." Helen's eyes were misty. She bent down and touched her fresh lips to the new budget box.

POULTRY

DRESSED TURKEYS SWELL PROFITS

Co-Operative Project in Nebraska Is Successful.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Increased profits from turkey growing as the result of co-operative marketing of the dressed fowls has proved an incentive to farmers in the North Platte irrigation district in western Nebraska. "Marketing dressed turkeys by car lots," says D. H. Propps, of the bureau of agricultural economics in the Yearbook of the United States Department of Agriculture, "is one of the most practical of co-operative marketing projects."

"The growers in a county or district," Mr. Propps explains, "determine approximately the number of turkeys available for sale. Representatives of the growers get in touch with prospective buyers and receive from them sealed bids which are opened at a stated time. The entire number is then sold to the highest bidder, who then fixes the dates on which he wishes the dressed birds to be delivered. The farmers dress the turkeys the day before delivery and cool them overnight on the farms. The birds are weighed, graded and paid for as they are delivered. The purchaser bears all expenses and assumes all responsibility after the birds are received."

Turkey growers realize from 50 cents to $1 for the labor of dressing. This represents from 15 to 20 per cent of the value of the turkey, and is fully three-fifths as much as the entire feed cost of raising and fattening the birds in the North Platte district. In 1927 the growers sold nearly 25,000 birds, and netted about $18,000 for the work of dressing. At turkey-dressing time neighbors often change work, and if one grower is inexperienced he can usually get a neighbor to show him the best method of dressing the birds. Farm dressing is usually better done than in commercial establishments and buyers consider this when bidding for the turkey crop. The fact that turkeys move to market so largely just in advance of Thanksgiving and Christmas is a point favoring the co-operating sellers.

Before winter sets in Clean Up Poultry House

Before winter sets in the poultry house should be given a thorough cleaning. All the old dirt should be removed, the walls, etc., brushed down, and the place made as clean as physically possible. This should then be followed with a drenching with a good disinfectant. In fact if mites were present the house should be sprayed with kerosene oil emulsion or a similar product. Thorough treatment now may prevent the mites hibernating and causing trouble next spring and summer. The cleaning and disinfecting process should not be confined to the walls and roof but also to the floor. One advantage of the concrete floor is that it can be easily cleaned. If the poultry house has storm curtains or banking around the outside, will tend to keep out the icy winds and hold in the bird heat to make the pullets more comfortable. But ventilation must not be reduced to a point that makes the house damp. A damp poultry house always seems colder than a dry ventilated house at the same temperature. Dampness seems to be a cause of colds and low vitality and both conditions may cause roup or at least a low per cent of egg production.

Insulation of Curtains to Keep Out Icy Winds

All that can be done to the farm poultry house in the way of insulation or storm curtains or banking around the outside, will tend to keep out the icy winds and hold in the bird heat to make the pullets more comfortable. But ventilation must not be reduced to a point that makes the house damp. A damp poultry house always seems colder than a dry ventilated house at the same temperature. Dampness seems to be a cause of colds and low vitality and both conditions may cause roup or at least a low per cent of egg production.

Helps Avoid Worms

One authority has stated that worms have very little chance of obtaining a foothold in chickens that have a gizzard well filled with insoluble grit. This authority claims that all eggs and cysts of the worms are ground and damaged so much by a gizzard full of grinding material that no worm infestation results. At any rate, it wouldn't hurt to see that the young growing stock is given plenty of coarse, insoluble grit and pure, fresh water.

Cooping One Rooster

The practice of cooping one male bird in a pen of six, twenty fowls, and letting the alternate bird run with the flock day and day about, is better perhaps than allowing the two birds to run together. It has been found, however, that the cooping of the male in the pen excites it so much that, instead of resting and gaining strength, the opposite effect is noted. The "resting" bird should be cooped out of sight of the pen. It will feed better.

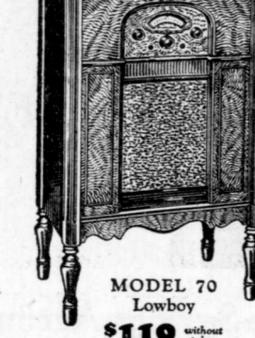

Culling at Night

Birds can be removed from the perches after dark, and can be examined and handled with considerable less excitement than when they are rounded up and forced into coops during the day time. The present production characters are such that they can be observed by touch, as well as by sight—in some cases even better—and therefore very little, if any light, will be needed for this culling. In fact, light will bother the fowls.

Additions Planned to National Park Service

The rapid development of historical national monuments in the vicinity of Washington promises additional areas to the national park service. The George Washington birthplace national monument at Wakefield, Va., has already been admitted to the system, and the Cranston bill for the Colonial national monument provides for acquisition of Jamestown, Yorktown and Williamsburg.

With the realization of the Shenandoah (Va.) and Great Smoky Mountain National parks, with the enlarged Arcadia National park in Maine and the possibility of the creation of the Everglades National park in Florida, there may be established during President Hoover's administration a string of eastern national parks capable of commanding the interest and attention of the nation.—Harlan James in the American Review of Reviews.

Future Fighting Planes Marvels of Efficiency

Airplanes are now able to climb to greater heights than ever before, and the air battle of the future—if there is one—will be fought eight or ten miles above land, out of range of anti-aircraft guns. Designers have been compelled to revolutionize the airplane to enable pilots to live at such a height, and the cockpit of these machines will be totally enclosed. The cabins will be electrically heated and the pilots will wear specially heated clothing to withstand the cold. Air will be provided from cylinders of oxygen, fed through a small mouthpiece. Great care is being taken over this item, and accurate experiments will have to be made, for should the supply of oxygen fail the pilot would lose consciousness in mid-air.

Auto Company in Luck

A wallet containing $748 belonging to a New Haven automobile company, reported missing to the police of that city, was found on the running board of a company car that had been driven all over New Haven for three days by one of the company's employees. It is thought that the money was dropped on the running board of the machine shortly before the employee was to take it to the bank for deposit. In three days of exposure the wallet was not stolen, nor did it drop off.

Happy Woman Tells How She Lost 19 Pounds of Fat in 27 Days

During October a woman in Montana wrote—"My first bottle of Kruschen Salts lasted almost 4 weeks and during that time I lost 19 pounds of fat—Kruschen is all you claim for it—I feel better than I have for years." Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses. Every morning take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast. Be sure and do this every morning for "It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat."—Don't miss a morning. The Kruschen habit means that every particle of poisonous waste matter and harmful acids and gases are expelled from the system. At the same time the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels are toned up and the pure, fresh blood containing nature's six life-giving salts are carried to every organ, gland, nerve and fibre of the body and this is followed by "that Kruschen feeling" of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure. If you want to lose fat with speed get an 85c bottle of Kruschen Salts from any live druggist anywhere in America, with the distinct understanding that you must be satisfied with results or money back.

There is no race so easy for the bookmaker as the human race.

COMMISSION LISTS DONT'S FOR HUNTERS

The approach of the 1930 hunting season, the first of which opens on September 16, brings an earnest appeal from the conservation commission that hunters in Wisconsin cooperate in an effort to lessen the number of fatalities and injuries caused by the careless use of firearms.
Hunters are reminded that firearms are deadly weapons and that too much care cannot be exercised in their use. The following series of "Dont's" given out by the conservation commission, if followed by hunters, will reduce accidents to a minimum.
Don't keep your gun loaded except when you are actually hunting but handle it at all times as if it were loaded.
Don't point your gun at anyone even if you are sure it is empty.
Don't handle a gun by the muzzle or pull it toward you.
Don't carry your gun when climbing fences or brush piles.
Don't carry your gun so that an accidental discharge might shoot your companion.
Don't shoot at any game unless you can see it clearly enough to positively identify it.
Don't be the fool who "didn't know it was loaded."

STATE FAIR BREAKS RECORD IN ATTENDANCE

While Iowa and Illinois state fairs decreased in attendance this year, not only did Wisconsin's 80th annual state fair exposition break ten year records on attendance, but total receipts from all sources were approximately $25,000 over those of 1929 according to Manager Ralph E. Ammon. The official figures give the 1930 attendance at the state fair as 283,426 for the six days, while the attendance for 1929 was 272,811. This does not take into consideration a crowd of between 40,000 and 50,000 which rushed the fair grounds on the Sunday previous to opening. In other years the Sunday before opening crowd has rarely exceeded 18,000 persons, so that the total visitors to the fair might be estimated at more than 300,000 for seven days.

GRAFTON TO VOTE ON WATERWORKS IN NOVEMBER

Our neighboring community, Grafton, is again going to vote on the question of a municipal sewerage and waterworks system. This sanitary system has been agitated in Grafton for the past few years, and was voted on by the people at two elections and defeated. This year however, a determined effort will be made to have the people endorse this project at the polls and it will be submitted to them at the general election in November. Officials of Grafton have been inspecting various sewerage and waterworks plants in Wisconsin cities, and have also engaged an engineer to make a survey. With a detailed statement to the public, it is believed that the issue will carry in the November election.—Cedarburg News.

A Poor Sort of Wit

RUECKER-BOEGEL WEDDING

The marriage of Dr. Arnold Boegel of Theresa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Boegel, residing about two and one-half miles west of Kewaskum, to Miss Ludmilla Ruecker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Ruecker, took place at 8 a. m., Tuesday at St. Theresa's Catholic church at Theresa. Rev. M. J. Groff, performed the ceremony. The bride wore a suit of Burgundy transparent velvet, a fur-trimmed hat and slippers to harmonize. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Her sister, Miss Gabriella Ruecker, was bridesmaid. She wore a suit of golden brown transparent velvet with hat to match and shoes and her bouquet was of pink roses. The groom was attended by his brother Oscar Boegel. After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to about 20 guests at the bride's home at Theresa. The home was decorated in orchid and pink with asters, gladiola and zinnias to carry out the color scheme. Dr. and Mrs. Boegel left on a wedding trip in the East, after which they will reside at Theresa where the groom is practicing dentistry.

CLOSING DANCE AT GONRING'S RESORT SEPT. 20th

"Billy" Marquardt and his orchestra of Sheboygan, one of the finest dance orchestras in this section of the state, have been engaged to furnish the music at the closing dance of the summer lake season at Gonring's resort, Big Cedar lake, this week Saturday evening, Sept. 20. Jac. J. Gonring, proprietor of the resort, has made plans to wind up the social season at his popular resort in a big way, and for this reason he has engaged Mr. Marquardt and his band, who are famous for their excellent arrangements of modern dance music.

Sunday, Sept. 21, will be another big day at the resort. Mr. Gonring has arranged to have a Ryan passenger seaplane at the resort throughout the entire day. This seaplane, a product of the Lead of Lakes Airways Corp. of Pewaukee, will be on hand from early morning until dusk to take passengers for thrilling scenic air-rides about the lake region. This ship which is a sister ship to Lindy's "Spirit of St. Louis," is skillfully operated by a government licensed pilot and will conveniently accommodate a party of four passengers. If you have never taken an airplane ride you surely will not want to miss the opportunity to take one at Gonring's resort next Sunday. Come and bring your friends.

SCHICK TEST TO BE GIVEN IN WASHINGTON CO. SCHOOLS

The Schick test, following the administration of toxin-antitoxin to immunize against diphtheria last year, will begin next week by the Washington county physicians, assisted by the County Nurse. Each school will be visited in the same manner as last year. The Schick test is to be given only to those children who have received toxin-antitoxin.

The Schick test is a simple skin test given for the purpose of determining whether or not the child is protected against diphtheria. Experience has taught us that a certain percentage will not be protected with one series of T. A. T. and will need another series of injections.

After the completion of the Schick test program, toxin-antitoxin will be offered to those children who did not become immune from diphtheria. At that time, all of those children who did not receive toxin-antitoxin last year will be invited to take their first series of treatments. It is sincerely hoped that the children who did not receive the treatment last year will respond 100 strong this term.

This measure for the prevention of diphtheria has the hearty approval of, and is sponsored by the County Health Committee, the Co. Medical Society and the County Board of Supervisors. It is hoped that every parent will inform himself and cooperate with these groups in protecting the children of Washington county from an unnecessary contagious disease which yearly takes its toll of lives in Wisconsin, and leaves many children handicapped for life.

LIGHTNING STRIKES FLAG POLE

During the severe electrical storm early last Saturday morning, lightning struck the flag pole on top of Clem Reinders furniture store. The pole was badly splintered, and an iron rod about a foot and a half long and an inch in diameter was torn off the pole and forced through the roof of the building. No damage was done to the interior of the building.

A reduction of 53 deaths during the year involved improvement shown in the case of influenza, nephritis, childbirth and pneumonia.

Madison—For the first time in many years white herons are present in Wisconsin, the conservation commission reported. The white heron is an immature little blue heron. Both are exceedingly rare in Wisconsin, this being the third time in 50 years that their presence has been reported. The normal range of the birds is farther south than Wisconsin and their presence in this state is believed due to drought conditions in the southern states.

Ashland—After creating a new organization, to be known as the International Association for Conservation, delegates from several northwest Wisconsin counties voted to request all county boards of Wisconsin to pass resolutions urging the 1931 legislature to appropriate "a sum of money sufficient to carry on such program of fire prevention and suppression, reforestation and propagation and protection of fish and game as may be outlined by the conservation commission."

A wide variance in the percentage of decrease or increase was noted for Wisconsin counties. Iron county showed an increase of 54.1 per cent in the 10-year period, but the number of farms on the latter date was only 587. In the same period Douglas county showed an increase of 26 per cent. NATION'S CORN CROP LOWEST IN 29 YEARS

Heat, Drought Cut Yield to 1,983,000,000 Bushels.

Washington—Heavy additional damage from heat and drought during the first half of August, indicated in all private reports to the grain trade, is now confirmed by the United States Department of Agriculture in its report published a few days ago. This report indicates that only 1,983,000,000 bushels of corn will be produced in this country this year, the smallest crop in 29 years. Yield in 1901 was 1,523,000,000 bushels. The condition figure, 51.6 per cent, is the lowest on record, comparing with 51.7 in 1901.

The crop estimate of 1,983,000,000 bushels is 229,000,000 bushels smaller than the August figure and 639,000,000 bushels less than grown last year. Comparison with the five-year average crop is still more unfavorable, being 717,000,000 bushels smaller than that figure. A yield per acre of only 19.5 bushels is indicated, against 26.8 bushels last year.

Losses in corn crop prospects during the month of August were most severe in the states of Iowa, Illinois and Missouri, according to the report by the Department of Agriculture. These states showed a shrinkage of 110,000,000 bushels from indication of a month ago, with Iowa losing 44,000,000 bushels, Illinois 38,000,000 bushels and Missouri 28,000,000 bushels.

Nebraska actually showed an improvement during August, with an increase of 32,000,000 bushels in indicated promise. This was the only major corn-producing state to show a gain and the only one to raise a crop in excess of the five-year average.

This enormous shortage in feeding grain is further emphasized by the poor condition of pastures and the small crop of tame hay. Condition of pastures is placed at only 47.7 per cent compared with 66.4 a month ago and 67.1 a year ago, while the ten-year average condition is 80.0 per cent. Condition of the tame hay crop is given as 63.9 per cent and indicated crop is $2,100,000 tons last year, a decrease of about 101,715,000 tons last year, a decrease of about 20,000,000 tons.

Other grain crops fared better. A total wheat production of $38,000,000 bushels is indicated compared with $07,000,000 bushels last year, while oats crop is estimated at 1,391,000,000 bushels, against 1,234,000,000 bushels in 1929 and barley at $23,000,000 bushels, against 307,000,000 bushels last year.

Total of the five leading crops of grain is 4,334,000,000 bushels compared with 4,355,000,000 bushels last year, a loss of 424,000,000 bushels.

The Department of Agriculture increased its estimate on spring wheat to 17,000,000 bushels over the August figure, of which 14,000,000 bushels was in the so-called bread wheat variety. The durum crop is placed at 51,000,000 bushels and other spring wheat at 189,000,000 bushels, which compares with 52,000,000 and 176,000,000 bushels, respectively, a year ago. There was no new estimate on winter wheat crop, the August figure of 597,000,000 bushels, standing until final revision in December.

Estimate of 1,391,000,000 bushels on oats is 75,000,000 bushels above the August figure and compares with 1,239,000,000 bushels last year. The barley estimate was raised 17,000,000 bushels over a month ago. Last month's estimate of 46,700,000 bushels of rye stands until December.

Ottawa, Ont.—Preliminary estimate of the wheat crop by the Canadian government bureau shows a total of 84,769,000 bushels for all Canada, which compares with 304,520,000 bushels last year, of which there is 262,000,000 bushels in the three western provinces against 282,000,000 bushels last year.

Five in Family Die in Gas-Filled Silo in N. D.

Hebron, N. D.—A tragic tale of heroism in which four children of Tony Neldhardt, a farmer, went to their deaths, one by one, in a futile effort to rescue their father from a gas-filled silo was told here as the five bodies lay in the farm home.

Four of the victims were drowned in the brine of the silo pit after having been overcome by methane gas, poisonous fumes generated in refuse at the bottom of the silo. The fifth victim, George, twenty-four, was taken unconscious from the death trap, but died later. Tony Neldhardt, fifty, the father; his son, Fred, twenty, and two daughters, Margaret, twenty, and Freda, eighteen, all were dead when discovered in the pit of the silo.

U. S., CANADA FAVOR WATERWAYS PARLEY

Early Conference Is Indicated by the Recent Notes.

Washington.—A move toward resuming negotiations over the St. Lawrence waterways project has been started in an exchange of notes between the United States and Canada.

The text of the notes were not made public. The United States' suggestion was authoritatively said to have reiterated its willingness to proceed with negotiations. It was taken to Canada by Hanford MacNider, the new American minister.

Advices from Ottawa said the Canadian reply contained assurance by Premier Bennett that he would open negotiations after his return from the imperial conference in London in October.

The exchange of notes was the first known move through formal diplomatic channels since 1928. A series of communications then outlined two major economic problems: First—The proper division of costs between the two countries; and Second—The development and allocation of water power created by the project.

Experts said these same problems probably would remain large, but that other waterway stumbling blocks had now been removed.

Commissioners will be appointed by both countries to settle existing differences and draft a tentative treaty. Although no formal communications have been made public by the State department since 1928, William Phillips, former minister to Canada, discussed the project often with Canadian officials.

Russia Best Customer for American Tractors

Washington.—A new high record in exports of tractors was established in the United States this year, with Russia the leading market. The Commerce department announced that 35,790 tractors valued at $40,537,650 were expected the first half of this year, compared with 34,666 valued at $32,996,220 the first six months of 1929. Exports to Russia were valued at $21,715,867, a new high record, compared with $4,300,000 during the first half of 1929.

The department added it is reported that additional contracts have been signed by Russians with leading American tractor manufacturers for additional shipments to begin the latter part of this year and continue into 1931.

WET AND DRY ISSUE WORRIES 10 STATES

Champions of Both Factions Win, Lose Primaries.

Columbus, Ohio.—Effort by opponents of prohibition to obtain declarations in the Ohio Republican state platform favoring repeal of the Eighteenth amendment or a state referendum on it failed before the resolutions committee at the Republican state convention. Each proposal received only three of the twenty-two votes.

Washington.—New ferment was poured into the cauldron of prohibition debate by the results of primaries in ten states during the last few days. Although a number of wet office seekers met defeat, some dry champions were overthrown and a few candidates opposed by the prohibition forces were victorious.

The anti-prohibition cause received support also from Governor Roosevelt of New York, who after a two-year silence on the question placed himself on record as favoring repeal of the Eighteenth amendment, with substitution of a statute granting each state control of intoxicants.

In few instances did the political wet or dry victories furnish unclouded evidence of popular sentiment, however, as even in races where prohibition became the paramount issue other influences entered.

Prominent among the dry losers was Representative Grant M. Hudson of Michigan, a former Anti-Saloon league official, in whose contest the prohibition issue was outstanding. Representative Louis C. Chamton, another Republican dry of that state, was in doubt of renomination, with an official count needed to settle the result of a close race.

Representative John F. Miller of Washington also was a loser for Republican renomination, going down before the wet attack of Ralph H. Horr. Dry victories occurred in Republican ranks in New Hampshire and Vermont, but in most cases the wet opponents were third men in the races. The Democrats of the two states will wave the wet flag in the November elections, making a bid for normally lacking popular support for their party.

Colorado's Republican senatorial primary yielded a victory for the only candidate not endorsed by the Anti-Saloon league, George H. Shaw. He did not campaign as a wet, however.

Briand Puts U. S. of E. Up to League of Nations

Geneva.—The plan of Aristide Briand, foreign minister of France, for some kind of a federation of European nations, which has been referred to as a "United States of Europe," was placed, in the hands of the League of Nations.

Arthur Henderson, the British foreign secretary, expressed the hope before the assembly that no action would be taken on the plan except by authority of the league.

M. Briand simply presented the plan to the assembly as he did a year ago. His remarks were much the same as then and he was greeted with a warm welcome by the delegates. He assured them that his plan would not be inimical to the league nor to the United States.

The federation plan was undefined, he explained, but he urged it was needed to bring about greater co-operation among the European nations. Efforts to disarm nations, he asserted, had met with and would meet with great difficulties. The difference among peoples would make it difficult to reach a union, he declared, but all objections would yield to real good will.

Farm Board to Request More Cash From Congress

Washington.—C. C. Teague, member of the federal farm board, said the board is likely to request an additional appropriation out of the $500,000,000 authorized for the board when congress meets next winter. It is understood that these funds, if requested, would be made available during the current fiscal year. There is no thought at the present time of asking congress that the $500,000,000 be increased. Mr. Teague could not say how much the additional appropriation would be.

Popular Type of Small Home Follows the Colonial Interior Arrangement

By W. A. RADFORD Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to practical home building for the reader of this paper. On account of his wide experience as editor, author and manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 407 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

The modified type of the Colonial home building design which has a regular pitched roof and wide dormers is commonly termed the "Dutch Colonial." This is a popular type of home because its exterior appearance is made attractive by the breaks in the roof and the wide dormers. However, in the interior arrangement it follows rather closely the Colonial.

Such a home is shown in the accompanying illustration. This is a five-room house 23 feet wide and 22 feet deep. The five rooms are large, however, and are of the type that are rectly into the living room which is 14 feet by 21 feet. The opening out of the living room beside the entrance door leads to the second floor. An open fireplace is set in the wall with two floors on either side lead to the open porch. This porch may be walled and glazed to make it a "sun room" or a "sun porch." The dining room is 10 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 6 inches and the kitchen of the same width and is 8 feet 6 inches deep. The bathroom is 5 feet 6 inches by 7 feet 6 inches. Both bedrooms are off this one on either side of the living room. These rooms are large, one being 12 feet 6 inches by 14 feet and other 10 feet 6 inches by 17 feet 6 inches.

The house is of frame construction and sets on a concrete foundation. A basement of the same dimensions as the house proper. This is the type of home that the small family desire. Its rooms are large and airy. The arrangement of them is such that one can do with the least amount of work on the exterior. The exterior appearance and when surrounded by shrubs and flowers as is shown in the illustration, it will make a very attractive home.

When a house begins to show its age, appearing out-dated and gloomy, it is time for some form of rejuvenation.

Structural remodeling is usually the first thought because removing a partition here or adding a window there often greatly improves a house. But such reconstruction work is expensive, so that home owners who feel that they cannot afford to put forth any large sum in remodeling would be wise to turn to paint as a medium for modernizing and freshening their houses.

For example, an old-fashioned house where the first floor had been divided into four rooms instead of the three that the space actually permitted had two living-rooms, connected by an archway. Each room was dark and uncomfortably small.

The owner, not wishing to add any windows or to tear down the dividing wall because of the expense this work would entail, decided to repaint the dark tan walls a pale buff. Immediately the rooms appeared lighter so that the lack of sufficient windows was not so apparent. Finished alike the two rooms no longer resembled two stuffy boxes. When the wood trim of the arch between the two rooms was finished in ivory white enamel, along with the rest of the trim, the division between the rooms was even less noticeable.

Paint will also go far in making ill-proportioned lines in a room seem less pronounced. If a room appears too high in comparison with its length and breadth, a picture moulding may be placed low and the ceiling color carried down to the moulding.

On the other hand, a sunny room that seems even hotter than the temperature would indicate will acquire a more pleasing atmosphere if its walls are painted a cool tint, such as pale green, blue or a soft gray.

Poor flooring makes a room look shabby despite nice furnishings. Wood that lacks attractive grain or coloring, or that presents a rough surface which no amount of papering will remedy is not to be painted but will conceal the faults at the same time it brings color to the room. Paint is excellent for concealing a discolored or marred floor. No paint but a floor paint should be used for this purpose. It is important to remember, however, that lacquer or stain is also removed for the floor that is not of the type to have its natural beauty enhanced by varnish. One or two coats of floor paint should be given a floor after it has been painted or stained to keep it longer wear and to simplify the work of modernizing and freshening their houses.

Fashions in kitchen and bathroom decoration have changed in a few degrees in recent years, so that a room that was the latest word in interior decoration fifteen years ago may seem dowdy today.

As long as the plumbing is in working order, extensive and expensive work need not be made to bring up-to-date a room. Walls and woodwork are finished in white or a light treatment, once considered impractical, may be considered pleasing color to modernize the rooms.

This sort of "remodeling" may be extended to the exterior, too. A rate carving that belongs to the "gingerbread" decoration, when not frowned upon will appear conspicuous if it is painted white, but that does not call attention to it but that blends instead with the coloring of

"I have you no encouragement to believe yourself my friend," she said coldly. "I would have paid you for what you did. That is how I have always felt to you."

She realized that she had made an error when she saw him start violently. She had angered him and he had power. He repeated her words slowly.

Scraps of Humor

COMMON MALADY

"I say, Tom, are you ever troubled with sleeplessness?"

"I am. Some nights I don't sleep three hours."

"I pity you, then. I've got it awfully bad. I've been afflicted now about two years. The doctor calls it 'neuro insomnia paralytica.'"

Tom grunted and said: "I've had it about six months, but we call it a baby."

"Well," said the husband, "there is one good, sweet thing that a woman can never have, and which her husband (if she has one) can always possess."

"There is not," replied the wife in angry tones.

"Oh, yes, there is," he remarked quietly—"a wife."

Identity Lost "So our engagement is at an end?" said the man.

"It is," replied the girl.

"I suppose you will return the engagement ring?"

"Certainly, if you wish it. Call round some evening and we'll pick it out."

BOLERO SUIT FOR COED; "CLASSIC" IN EVENING DRESS

THE youthful bolero is flourishing in the autumn mode. It is a theme which admits of infinite variations.

As the picture shows, it is especially attractive made up in lightweight wool crepe. Imagine this model in any color you please, for the new autumn wool crepes revel in all the fashionable hues, making a special feature of the handsome red wines which everyone admires, and the dark rich greens and the very last-word "inky" of the most triumphant modes registered on fashion's program.

Grecian Evening Gowns. Handsome fabric treated simply is the central thought around which all other thoughts revolve in the matter of creating evening styles for the coming social season.

This supremacy of the "classic" in the evening mode is to a large extent due to the fact that designers have turned to the fashions of ancient colors or "off-blacks," as some prefer to speak of them. These newcomers on the fall and winter color card are destined to be as popular as were the "off-whites" during the summer. They are just what their name implies—very near black, yet with enough indigo blue or deep purple or black-berry hue to identify them one from another.

The original of the suit pictured was developed of African brown wool crepe with white satin for the blouse. Brown and white, by the way, is considered to be one of the very smartest combinations that are to be seen this season.

In many instances, especially for early fall wear before the cool days set in, the bolero gives a new aspect to the suit in that it has elbow sleeves.

Greece for their inspiration. The exquisite simplicity and artful grace which marked the dress of Grecian women in the early centuries has ever commanded the admiration of the world. And now it seems that we are to adopt them for our very own.

The media through which modern fashions will interpret classic art in dress will be quality-kind satin, soft heavy-textured crepe, rayon velvet, and from Paris comes the message of the white lace frock worn with white jewelry and stressing a silhouette of almost exaggerated simplicity.

Inspired by Grecian "lines" so far as the draped neckline with flowing scarf ends and the belted-in waistline is concerned, the evening gown of handsome white crepe in the picture eloquently bespeaks the trend of the

Evening Dress Along Grecian Lines

The blouse is often quite elaborate, particularly as to its sleeves, which are often of lace and full below the elbow. If not of lace, or fancifully embroidered, then the undersleeve is very apt to be handsomely beaded.

One of the most thrilling fashions exploited for the coming months is the bolero made of fur and worn over the light woolen one-piece dress. The rich autumn color of the frock strikingly contrasts the black or neutral tone of the fur. There is every reason to believe that the costume which shows the bright wool one-piece frock with a bolero made of any one of the flat furs, such as caracul, kidskin, dyed ermine, or lapin will prove one

The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1930, Western Newspaper Union.) The world is all dark or the world is all bright. Just as we choose to make it: Our burden is heavy, our burden is light.

Just as we happen to take it: And people who grumble and people who groan. At the world and at every proposal. Would grumble and groan if the world were their own. And the sun, moon and stars at disposal.

TO ADD TO THE FRUIT CLOSET

As sugar is one of the cheapest of foods in common use, its food value high, most housewives are appreciating the chance to preserve and jelly as much of the delightful fall fruits as possible.

Try some of these and see what an addition they will make to your preserve closet:

Tomato-Raisin Conserve.—Take two quarts of fresh ripe tomatoes, two lemons cut fine, four sour apples cored and cubed, six sticks of cinnamon, one tablespoonful of whole cloves, two pieces of ginger root, one small piece of mace. Tie the spices in a bag. Cook all these ingredients together until a thick mass is made, then add two pounds of sugar and boil 15 minutes, or until a jelly stage is reached, which is when the mixture drops off in sheets from the side of the spoon. Add one cupful of nut meats just before removing from the fire, if liked.

Carrot Marmalade.—Grate 12 medium-sized tender carrots, add four cupfuls of sugar, three lemons, juice and peel; one teaspoonful each of ground cloves, cinnamon and allspice, tied in a small cloth. Before adding the spice let the mixture stand one hour, then cook slowly one hour, turn into sterilized glasses and seal.

Pear and Apple Conserve.—Take one pint of diced pears, one pint of diced apple, one lemon juice and grated rind, one cupful of seedless raisins, one-half cupful of walnut meats, three and one-half cupfuls of sugar. Steam the raisins for 30 minutes, add them to the other ingredients and cook until thick and clear. Turn into glasses and cover with paraffin. Nuts may be omitted and a small amount of preserved ginger may be added.

Pickled Pears.—Peel four quarts of pears. Boil two pounds of sugar with two cupfuls of vinegar, one-half ounce of stick cinnamon and one-fourth ounce of cloves for 20 minutes. Place a few of the whole pears in the sirup and cook until tender, then place in the cans. Fill each jar to overflowing with the hot sirup, then seal.

DAINTY DISHES.

Some time when entertaining one's friends at a dinner, try this method of serving sweet potato:

Orange Sweet Potato.—Cook the sweet potato in their skins, peel, mash and season with butter, salt and white pepper. Prepare the halves of oranges that have been squeezed of their juice by removing all the white inner lining of the skins. Fill them with the seasoned potato and about twenty minutes before serving time heat in a small piece of marshmallow may be placed on top to brown or a sprig of parsley used on top for a garnish when serving.

Cocunut Drops.—Grate a fresh coconut and add to it half its weight in sugar, stir until well mixed, then add one beaten egg white and drop on buttered tin and bake in a slow oven until brown.

Oyster Soup.—Add four tablespoonfuls of quick cooking tapioca to a quart of rich milk, two teaspoonfuls of salt, and cook until the tapioca is clear, stirring often and cooking in a double boiler. Add one cupful of oysters and the oyster liquor, a dash of cayenne and paprika and four tablespoonfuls of butter. Serve when the oysters are curled.

Sour Cream Pie.—Mix the yolks of two eggs well beaten, one cupful of sour cream, one-half cupful of sugar, one tablespoonful of flour, one cupful of raisins and one teaspoonful of cinnamon. Cook together until thick, then pour into a baked pastry shell. Whip the whites of the eggs until stiff, add four tablespoonfuls of sugar and spread over the top of the pie and brown slightly in a slow oven.

Ozark Soup.—Cover a fresh soup bone with cold water and simmer until the meat is tender, adding salt toward the end of the cooking. Strain the broth and to one quart of the broth add one medium sized potato cut into dice, and one-half cupful of washed rice. Let cook until tender, then add one can of tomatoes, bring to the boiling point, add a tablespoonful of flour mixed with one cupful of sweet cream, boil five minutes, add seasoning of salt and pepper and then pour into a baked pastry shell. Add one teaspoonful of sugar, a little chopped celery, a pinch of curry powder and a bit of mace with a few dashes of cayenne pepper.

Let's Be Old Fashioned Gratitude, it seems, is no longer in good standing. Fathers and mothers don't want favors in return for all they do for their children, but how they rejoice when the youngsters show signs of appreciation.—American Magazine.

Electric Rolling Mill An all-electric rolling mill in western Pennsylvania rolls steel strip at a maximum speed of 2,400 feet per minute, or around 26 to 27 miles per hour. The steel enters the mill with a length of 30 feet, and is rolled to a length of from 1,500 to 1,800 feet, the thickness being greatly reduced during the process. When its final thickness is reached—all in the space of a few seconds—the long strip flashes from the rolls, white hot and at high speed, and is led through serpentine convolutions to conserve space in cooling.

Announcing STUDEBAKER'S new Dictator Eight lower prices ...plus free wheeling MOTORDOM'S biggest surprise in 1930 is Studebaker's introduction of Free Wheeling with positive gear control.

Today's biggest surprise is the unexpected application of Free Wheeling to the one Studebaker Eight that seemed too low-priced to command it.

Free Wheeling, with positive gear control . . . until now obtainable only in the President and Commander Eights . . . is today offered in a new Dictator Eight at a new low price!

Now, with greater power and exquisite new beauty, the Dictator Eight is more than ever first of all Eights at its price. And it tops the great records it has piled up for economy of operation with the super-economy of Free Wheeling.

Free Wheeling means the harnessing of momentum and the consequent saving of 12% to 20% in gas and oil consumption. Free Wheeling delivers five miles and charges for four . . . your engine has "worked" only 8,000 miles when it has travelled 10,000 miles. Chassis wear is reduced. Tire life is lengthened.

You can shift from high to second, back and forth, at 40—50 miles an hour and never touch the clutch. Yet, with Free Wheeling, under positive gear control, the braking power of your engine is always available—so surely and instantaneously that Public Safety Commissioners have pronounced it a distinct contribution to safety.

See this new Dictator Eight, shown today for the first time. Drive it. Experience the thrill of Free Wheeling. Studebaker considers this new Eight with Free Wheeling a crowning triumph of its 78 progressive years.

CARELESS DRIVER BACKS CAR INTO GROUP OF WOMEN

Mrs. Otto Schuster of 1117 Los Angeles street, Sheboygan, was seriously injured at Holy Hill last Sunday. Mrs. Schuster, in company with a group of women, were sitting in the grass eating their picnic dinner, when a driver of a large sedan got into his car and threw it into reverse without looking backward and ran into the group of ladies, striking Mrs. Schuster. As the other women screamed the driver applied his breaks and a wheel of the car rested on the abdomen of the un- fortunate woman, and then drove his car ahead. The lady was brought to St. Joseph's hospital in this city and examination revealed severe pelvic fractures. She is now confined to the hospital and is suffering terrible pain from the injuries. The other women in the party were slightly injured and bruised.—Hartford Times.
