MRS. CORNELIUS WOLF DIES AT MILWAUKEE, OCT. 14
 Mrs. Cornelius Wolf, 51, (nee Lucy Hauser) of Milwaukee, died at her home in that city on Saturday, October 14, after being ill for the past few months.

Mrs. Wolf, who was better known to the citizens of this community as Miss Lucy Hauser, during the years of 1902 to 1906 conducted a millinery store in this village, in the building which is now occupied by the People's Cash Meat Market. She sold her business to Miss Lulu Miller, now Mrs. Lulu Davies, in January, 1906.

Deceased was married to Cornelius Wolf at Lomira on July 17, 1906. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hauser of Lomira. Soon after her marriage, the then young couple moved to Milwaukee, where she has resided since.

The survivors are her widower and four children, Evelyn, Edward, Andrew and Paul. She was a member of the Christian Mothers' Sodality and Happy Death Society of the St. Michael's church at Milwaukee.

The funeral was held last Tuesday, October 17, at 9:30 a.m. from the Jung Funeral Home, 2506 W. Vliet St., Milwaukee to St. Michael's Catholic church, same city, at 10 a.m. Burial was made in the Holy Cross cemetery. Rev. Roman H. Haack officiated.

HENRY M. DEGENHARDT PASSES AWAY, OCT. 11TH

Henry M. Degenhardt, 66, a former resident of Campbellsport and the town of Ashford, but of late years a real estate dealer in Fond du Lac, died at his home in that city on Wednesday, October 11th. Mr. Degenhardt was taken sick at Wautoma five weeks ago and was removed to his home in Fond du Lac two weeks ago and was believed to be recovering when death occurred.

Deceased was born in the town of Ashford on March 17, 1867, where he lived for a number of years. On July 3, 1901 he was married to Caroline Damm. After their marriage they resided on a farm in the town of Ashford and in Campbellsport, later moving to Marion, Wis., where they operated a hotel. For the past twenty-five years the Degenhardts were residents of the city of Fond du Lac.

Surviving are his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Fred Lindahl and Miss Goldie Degenhardt of Chicago, a half-brother, John Manuel, of Marion, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Deiring, residing in the State of Washington.

The funeral was held last Saturday afternoon with Christian Science services in the Cathedral chapel at Fond du Lac. Burial was made in the Union cemetery at Campbellsport.

Most of his work was done in this part of the state inspecting milk cans and farms, owners of which sold milk to stations supplying milk to consumers in Chicago. His duties brought him to this village several times a year, and was widely known throughout the community. Among the survivors is his widow, formerly Mrs. Clara Gaudette, of Fond du Lac.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LIQUOR CONTROL SUGGESTED

The Wisconsin League of Municipalities are going to recommend to the state legislature several suggestions to regulate the liquor control after the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The league is going to recommend that a minimum license fee of $200 be charged with not more than one license for every 300 population. The league also suggests that cities and villages continue to have local option as to whether the sale of intoxicating beverages be permitted, that the matter of regulation be left to local determination, that cities and villages continue to have the right to enact provisions more stringent than the state law, that cities and villages have the option of establishing a municipal monopoly and that half of the state tax be distributed to the localities where it is collected.

While the league advises that major control be left in the hands of local authorities it feels that three things should be included in the state law, the minimum $200 license fee, the restriction on the number of places where liquor is to be sold and the prohibition of the sale of liquor to minors.

TRUCK OWNERS RECEIVE WARNING

Truck owners of this community and of every community in the state of Wisconsin who have failed to apply for proper registration under the new truck regulation and ton mile tax law have been warned by the public service commission at Madison to do so before November 1.

According to the act passed the law went into effect on September 1, but all truck owners were given 60 days to comply and only ten days of that period remain.

One of the penalties of delaying until after November 1, the commission has pointed out, is that truck operators who are doing business before Sept. 1 will be regarded as new applicants to engage in trucking operations and therefore will have to prove "public convenience and necessity."

If they comply before November 1 their rights to do business will prevail and they will need only to conform to the new regulations governing their type of operation and to pay taxes imposed.

Danger that the delinquents will lose their operating rights also is imminent in view of the fact that the first mileage tax returns were to become due on October 15. Truckers who have not filed application for registration will be delinquent in their taxes.

Farm trucks, although in most cases exempt from the ton-mile tax are required by law to carry a tax permit. In most cases, the permit fee charges on farm trucks is refunded with the purchase of the next year's license plates.

Any truck owners who have not complied by November 1, will be subject to arrest by local enforcement officers and commissioned inspectors if they operate on the highways. For each day of violation they are subject to a maximum fine of $100 or 60 days in jail or both.

Call for Hats With a Feather Accent

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WHAT the new little feathers are doing for the new little hats this season in the way of giving them swank and charm, is a trifling tale to be told. The milliner takes a wee bright feather not much bigger than your thumb and with wondrous cunning thrusts it through some little nook or crook in the crown of a soft rakish felt shape and volla! you have a sports hat which is positively devastating in its debonair lines. Perhaps it is a cluster of diminutive ostrich tips on a more formal velvet or satin chapeau which is just as captivating.

It's the Tyrolean influence which sprightly colorful feather accents on soft, folded and creased crowns is reflecting, and the result is as picturesque alpine as fancy may conceive. Your town or sports hat is supposed to be just like that—of felt novelty woolen or of stitched velvet or satin. Just so it's properly tailored, with a frivolous little feather positing most anywhere that looks nonchalant.

In the group illustrated, the hats inset in the panels flaunt their saucy feathers with a casualness which is exactly in step with the mood of the hour. The felt to the left savors of a man's soft fedora which is characteristic of the newer sports models. Its novel multi-colored whirligig of a feather poses at just such a rakish angle as fashion demands.

The draped woolen beret to the right which dips over one eye with a peak to its crown which goes a la Chinese, as the smartest hats have a way of doing these days, flourishes a teeny-weeny quill which carries a most convincing style message.

Of course, when you dress up for matinees and calling and more formal events, you will be wanting one of the perfectly fascinating ostrich-trimmed velvet chapeaus such as are making so glamorous a showing on autumn and millinery collections. There is that note of elegance and the prettily feminine about them which goes back to the gay 90s for inspiration.

The coloring of the three velvet hats shown at the top in the picture, is just too delectable for words. The ravishing velvet sailor depicted to the left is in that new blackberry tone which can scarcely be distinguished from black itself. It seems that in Paris several of the best designers are preferring this glorified berry tone to deadly black. The trio of lovely ostrich tips on this hat are in petunia shades.

The coquettish little toque centered above is one of the new fad types which, by the way, are considered a "last word" when it comes to up-and-coming millinery. Its success depends on tipping it at exactly the correct angle over the right eye, as you see in the picture. The model shown is developed of gray velvet ribbon with two little ostrich tips emerging from along its center seam.

Narrow velvet ribbon is stitched together row-and-row for the ostrich beak and to the right. This is one of the Renaissance beret types of which we are hearing and are destined to hear so much about this season.

The light blue draped felt toque centered in the illustration is trimmed with a novelty feather which has been dyed a matching light blue.

"You're right," he said. "It is going like clockwork—every blessed thing we've sold lately has been on tick."

U. E. LOYALISTS FOLLOWED FLAG

Wholesale Tory Emigration From Young Republic.

Light artillery and heavy artillery are two categories that keep the august delegates at Geneva awake nights. The Canadian army boasts still another subdivision: medium artillery. In St. John, New Brunswick, recently a brigade of medium artillery was out in the bright May sunshine hanging away a 21-gun feu de joie in honor of a great occasion: St. John's one hundred fiftieth Loyalist day.

American citizens are apt to forget that even at the end of the Revolutionary war nearly one-third of the population of the thirteen states was still loyal to king and country and, despite the provisions of the treaty of Paris, suffered a white pogrom at the hands of their exultant Whig neighbors.

On May 11, 1783, following arrangements between British General Carleton in New York and the governor of Nova Scotia, the "Spring Fleet" carrying refugees from New York dropped anchor at the mouth of the St. John river. Kept aboard their ship by high seas and driving rain, they did not land for a week.

All summer long the spring fleet ferried back and forth until some 20,000 men, women and children had been transported. They were not the ordinary type of emigrant, these United Empire Loyalists. The fleet carried De Peysters, Ludlows, Richards and Billops of New York, Uphams and Coffins of Boston, Sayres and Pomeroy from Connecticut, Sanders from Virginia and Lieut. Col. Isaac Allen of the New Jersey volunteers. Many of the American refugees did not stay, but moved southwest to the warmer, more fertile plains of Ontario, but those that did stay not only settled New Brunswick but won it separate government.

Richard Bedford Bennett, prime minister of Canada, himself a descendant of the refugees of 1783, and the lieutenant governor of the province, recently paid tribute to the New Brunswick Loyalists. On the occasion, besides the third New Brunswick medium brigade, oldest artillery organization in the British dominions, the New Brunswick dragons paraded in their new scarlet tunics, followed by white-capped blue-jackets from the Canadian destroyers Saguenay and Champlain.—Time Magazine.

Wall Paper of Wood

A very thin veneer of wood on a paper backing is the latest thing in "wall paper." It comes in oak, maple, satin and American walnut, pearwood, cherry and in two species of mahogany, and can be applied like ordinary wall paper with rye meal. If hung properly it will not warp or crack. The new wall paper is said to possess certain insulating properties and to have the appearance of wood paneling.—Exchange.

STOMACH OUT OF ORDER? ... MAYBE IT'S COFFEE!

A month later the doctor was surprised at my improvement. The indigestion had disappeared and with it the headaches, short breath and disagreeable humor." J. K. James, Houston, Texas.

HERE ARE THE FACTS ABOUT YEAST FEEDS FOR POULTRY

Every Wisconsin Poultry Raiser should read carefully the following statements and note the amazing results obtained through the use of ANIMAL-POULTRY YEAST FOAM

Your Poultry Judges Say

"OMRO, Wis., Aug. 25, 1933: After giving Yeast Foam feeds a thorough trial I can conscientiously recommend them for laying hens and growing chicks. For hens they can't be beat. I find they aid digestion; haven't had a hard or sour crop since feeding them. They sure build vigor, larger bone and muscle and better plumage, and you should see my birds' nice, red heads. To raise poultry successfully and economically I must have a Yeast Foam ration. I feed it dry, also once a day the fermented mash."

GEORGE M. WELLS, Poultry Judge

"LAKE MILLS, Wis.: Congratulations on your Red Arrow Yeast Foam washes. You have the best egg wash I ever used. It certainly makes the hens shell out the eggs, and my flock was never in better condition than it has been this year. It is a pleasure to recommend your Red Arrow Yeast Foam feeds to those who want the best."

GEORGE E. GREENWOOD, Poultry Judge

"WATERFORD, Wis., Aug. '33: Am surely delighted with the results from feeding the fermented mash. We never had a feed that raised such fine chickens, as we have raised the past two years. Our winnings the past year in the big shows are proof. Give me the Yeast Foam ration for best results."

WM. A. HALBACH, Poultry Judge

"LACROSSE, Wis., '33: You may remember that while at the Chippewa Falls poultry show the Doughboy Feed salesman offered to send me two sacks of their Yeast Egg Mash for a test. Well, they sent the feed and I gave it a good trial. It proved to be the best feed that I have ever used. It increased production and the fertility was never as good. Like you, I am sold on Yeast Foam Feeds and their many advantages."

E. H. HOFFMAN, Poultry Judge

"WAUPACA, Wis., Aug. 28, '33: After nine years of continuous feeding of Animal-Poultry Yeast Foam to poultry, hogs and cattle, and after making and supervising hundreds of tests in Wisconsin and six other states, I repeat the statement I made nearly nine years ago: that Animal-Poultry Yeast Foam is worth its weight in gold.

It would take many pages to tell you the wonderful results obtained, and the thousands of fine testimonials which we have received from feeders, along with their repeat orders. What more can anyone ask in the way of proof that this product is doing all that we claim for it?"

WM. H. LAABS, Poultry Judge

Your Feed Manufacturers Say

"EMBARRAS, Wis., Aug. 17, '33: We have been making chick mash feeds for 12 years and have added Animal-Poultry Yeast Foam for the past three years, and are pleased to say that the addition of this product makes a wonderful improvement. We have pullets here this year, fed on our Yeast Mash, that laid at 4 months! We have also taken over a few flocks badly infested with so-called coccidiosis and in a few days after feeding the fermented mash, death losses stopped and the flock came through in good shape. We intend to mix yeast in our feeds as long as we have the success we have had for the past three years."

T. H. BUNLICK, Mgr., Farmers Milling Co., Inc.

"LIND CENTER, Wis., Sept. 16, '33: As a manufacturer and feeder for eight years, no one can tell me that Animal-Poultry Yeast Foam is not of great value in growing chicks or in getting a larger and better egg production, also in getting a better quality egg.

I have tried most of the so-called "best" mashes on the market, feeding them with and without yeast. I find my manufactured mashes containing Animal-Poultry Yeast Foam have given my customers better results, and at a lower cost.

Animal-Poultry Yeast Foam keeps my flock free from coccidiosis, reduces mortality, grows a nicer, more uniform flock, develops fine plumage, birds with nice, red heads, all of which means vitality."

FRANK KUENHOLD, Feed Manufacturer

"CHILTON, Wis., Sept. 9, '33: We have been manufacturing Animal-Poultry Yeast Foam Mash feeds for the past six years, and I am pleased to state that we are sold 100% on the value of yeast in the ration. Could it be any other way when we get reports like the following, from our feeders?"

"Feb'y 1st hatched Leghorns weighing 5 lbs. at 5 months and 12 days, producing at rate of 78 eggs, 215 eggs per bird for 1932-33 season; and this production at a lower cost per dozen eggs."

"We furnished a beginner this season, who purchased 2,000 baby chicks, with our feeds, and asked him to feed one fermented mash daily, which he did from the very first day."

"Results: Death losses from natural causes only 4 chicks, and birds at 5 months are laying and in wonderful condition."

This should answer your question as to what we think of Animal-Poultry Yeast Feeds."

OLD TRUNKS HIDE "LATEST" FASHIONS

Now that the spirit of the 90s has returned in leg-o'-mutton sleeves, wide-shouldered frocks and a return of some of that gay "fuss and feathers" spirit, it may be that a little rummaging among the family relics will be more than repaid.

Of course, most old clothes are discarded or given away, but the exceptions are always lovely things.

The styles of the coming winter are going to be more formal, more graceful in some ways than they have been for years. Perhaps if you rummage through some of grandmother's packed away belongings (if she'll let you), you may be rewarded by finding some exquisite pearl embroidery, a priceless egret plume, or a bit of delicate valencienness that will give distinction to your winter wardrobe.

New Ribbed Fabrics Are Favored in Winter Mode

From present indications, ribbed fabrics will have first place next winter, and very interesting novelties in corduroy and ottoman are anticipated. There is a new wide-waled corded ottoman in rayon, which might be called corduroy ottoman, and which is recommended for suits, coats and dresses, and exists in several weights.

It can already be foreseen that broadcloth will be prominent next winter, especially for afternoon coats over crepe or satin dresses. Spongy, sometimes very slightly boucle' materials and loose woven etamines will displace the supremacy of the morning mode with hairy angora wools, djarred kashmere and rabbit-hair fabrics.

Slipper Satin

Stiff shiny satin, the kind they make slippers of, is being used for the newest and smartest evening wraps for fall.

Interesting Notes on the Season's Fashions

Fur borders coats down the front fastening.

Sheers are important again this autumn.

There is a renewed interest in colored velvet ribbon on felt hats.

CORD AND TASSEL

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

Ever so many unique things are being done in the way of trimming this season. One is the use of ornamental cord and tassel novelties. An Araby red jersey frock as pictured has heavy red silk cord and tassels at belt and neck. A red and beige check coat complements this frock. The red felt hat has a perky feather which poses erect at the back.

Wool Makes Appeal

Lots of women who have steered clear of wool dresses because of a delicate skin which cannot stand the slightest scratchiness had better look twice before they veto them this year. Never have wool materials been so soft and silky.

Gray shoes are a new note in fall footwear.

Bateau necklines, revealing the shoulders, are favored for evening.

STATUS OF GYPSY WOMEN
Who have always occupied rather a curious position among the gypsies. When a Romany girl marries she becomes her husband's servant as well as his wife. To symbolize this when she goes to her lord's carriage after the gypsy wedding, she walks behind him and gathers firewood as she goes.

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?
Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative whose dose can be measured, and whose action can be controlled.

The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.

The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The wrong cathartic may keep you cramped as long as you keep on using it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a cathartic, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is at all druggists. Member N. R. A.

Give Thought To Halloween

TEETH PUT IN NRA

Those violating the national recovery codes and agreement will in the future find it not so easy going as President Roosevelt last Wednesday in a sweeping executive order invoked the penal sections of the National Recovery Act and delegated full powers to Administrator Hugh S. Johnson to prevent violations of the law and force compliance with codes and agreements and all rules and regulations issued under him.

LAW IS CITED

The President acted under Section 10 (A) of the law. It reads: "The President is authorized to prescribe such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the purpose of this title and fees for licenses and for filing codes of fair competition and agreements, and any violation of any such rule or regulation shall be punishable by fine of not to exceed $500 or imprisonment for not to exceed six months, or both."

The order issued by the President was in four parts. The first prohibited anyone from falsely representing himself to be discharging the obligations or complying with the provisions of agreements, codes, rules or regulations. The second prohibited use of the blue eagle contrary to rules prescribed by Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator.

The third delegated the administrator the power to enforce the first two prohibitions and "take such other steps as he may deem advisable to effectuate such rules and regulations or any rules so prescribed by the administrator and to appoint personnel and delegate thereto such powers as may be deemed necessary to accomplish the purpose of this order."

The fourth part of the order set forth the penalties contained in the law.

THE NEED FOR COOPERATION GROWS

The farmer who believes that because the government is seeking to do certain things for him, he needs to help for himself, might ponder these words of Governor Henry Morgenthau, Jr., of the Farm Credit Administration: "I believe in cooperation both as a way of advancement and as a necessity for the American farmer. I don't believe any new form of economy or new re-valuation of production will ever make it less necessary. It is more likely to increase the importance of it."

Agricultural cooperation means that the farmer, in association with his fellows, is taking definite steps to help himself—and is adopting the soundest and most proven means of achieving a given end. The government itself recognizes that—and the careful reader of recent farm legislation will be impressed by the emphasis laid on cooperative methods. Indeed, Mr. Morgenthau says that the new system amounts to a chain of banks of cooperatives. The government is going to help by providing necessary financing, and the rest is up to organized farmers.

During three years of depression the membership rolls of the established cooperatives have constantly grown. During the next few years—the years of recovery—their rate of growth should be immensely accelerated. If that happens, and all indications are that it will, agriculture faces a bright future.

Celebrated Economist Says: "When Prices Are Rising it is More Advantageous to Buy Than to Hoard"

BY WM. F. HAUBERT
Director, Dallas School of Commerce,
Dallas, Texas.

It goes without saying that the NRA in carrying out its purpose is dependent on the cooperation of the general public. In various ways this cooperation has been freely given. Many of us feel, however, that the progress which has been made toward general recovery would be considerably enhanced if the latent or unused purchasing power which is among the people could be made effective in a demand for goods on the market.

Under ordinary conditions it is not necessary to urge people to spend money. They will, with few exceptions, tend to consume more of their income than is consistent with their own permanent good. It is a well known fact, however, that as a result of a depression, we are likely to be beset with a fear which tends to cause an abnormal hesitancy in making the customary purchases. To be sure, the lowered income of the past few years finds some of us unable to put as much buying power on the market as we were able to do in more prosperous years. But there are also many who are merely holding back some of their purchasing power. They may be prompted to do this by a feeling of uncertainty in regard to the future and sometimes they claim that they are waiting to see whether prices might not go lower, thus giving them a more favorable position in the market.

Right now this attitude tends to retard our economic recovery. This is the more true, the greater the number of people who hold to this point of view. It is well known that good times economically are always characterized by the liberal use of purchasing power in the hands of possible consumers. On the other hand, during a depression and even after signs of recovery are clearly on the horizon, many consumers maintain a hesitant attitude toward new purchases. It is estimated that about 50 per cent of the decline in the price level of the last few years was due to the failure of those who had purchasing power to make it effective on the market.

It is not intended to suggest that we would be helped by purchasing in a spendthrift manner. But the products of the farms and industries must reach the hands of the consumer for ultimate use if we are to prosper economically. If farmers and manufacturers can dispose of their products to consumers, they can go on producing more, and this enhanced production increases the demand for laborers. It also keeps those steadily employed who were previously on the job. This in turn puts more purchasing power in the form of wages and salaries into the hands of workers which will be added to the demand for goods and services, thus continually augmenting the demand for more labor.

This is a circular process, so to speak. Increased consumption stimulates the demand for goods. This in turn enhances the demand for labor which again furnishes added purchasing power to increase consumption. If added impetus can be given to this movement, by calling forth the buying power which is latent among the people, we will move gradually forward to a greater degree of prosperity and all of us will enjoy a higher standard of living.

Let us take now the two reasons mentioned before why some people are withholding their purchasing power. (a) on account of the possibility of lower prices, and (b) uncertainty as to their own future. It is quite certain that the price level is continually rising and has been going up for many months. There is no longer any doubt of our gradual emergence from the recent severe depression. It would not seem reasonable therefore to wait for a further fall in prices. Self interest demands that buying be done now for immediate consumption and forward buying of an investment nature, by stocking supplies of nonperishable materials and buying durable goods, such as furniture and machinery, as well as making investments in real estate, stocks, etc. The foundation for most of the large fortunes have been laid during past depressions by courageous purchase of commodities, securities, and real estate which grew in value as the price advanced.

When people refer to the uncertainty of their future income as an excuse for not making prudent purchases, they are forgetting the extent to which their own economic welfare is tied up with the economic welfare of their fellows. The prosperity of one is dependent upon the prosperity of everyone else. It is necessary at times, therefore, to cast our bread upon the waters in an economic sense also, so that it will return to us in later days. Our government, in its efforts to assist us, has allied itself with the natural forces of recovery, and in our own interest it is incumbent on us to fall in line with its endeavor.

The processing tax on cotton is only 4.2 cents a pound of the net weight of raw cotton going into the manufactured goods and those who do buying for households should bear this fact in mind when buying cotton articles. This tax, alone, does not justify many of the increases being made. When cost-omers are told by sales clerks that "marks-ups" are due only to the processing tax, they should question the statement closely, the council in a recent statement asserts.

Highest Paid Short Fiction Writer

FANNIE HURST is the highest paid short story writer in the world today. There's a good reason for that. She knows human nature and under the magic of her touch, the people about whom she writes become real people, not mere literary creations. The plots of her stories are based on incidents from real life as it is lived every day by the common people.

Such are the stories which are appearing in this newspaper. Be sure to read them and talk to your friends about them, for they like interesting stories, too. And Fannie Hurst's stories are interesting stories.

Here's the Watchdog of Your Profits

McCormick-Deering No. 3 Field Cultivator

MAYBE it's Quack or Johnson Grass... perhaps it's some other noxious weed... but—nine chances out of ten—weeds in your fields are stealing fertility from your crops and lowering your yields and profits.

After deep plowing, use this McCormick-Deering Field Cultivator on your land and yank out those fertility-robbing weeds by the roots. Then rake them up and burn them!

This cultivator is great for summer-fallow, alfalfa cultivation, or seed-bed preparation. It does good work under all conditions because its entire weight can be thrown on the gangs when the going is tough.

Bring your weed problem to us. We can supply this cultivator in different sizes with sweeps best suited for attacking your weeds.

FARMERS WARNED AGAINST ASSIGNING WHEAT CHECKS

Wheat growers are being cautioned against assigning their wheat adjustment payment checks to creditors or other parties by George E. Farrell, associate chief of the wheat section of the A.A.A. (Agricultural Adjustment Administration).

"That purpose of the wheat adjustment payment is to put this additional purchasing power into the hands of the farmer for him to use at his discretion—not merely to have him assign his adjustment payment to the first creditor who reaches him", Farrell declared in a recent statement to the Wisconsin acreage reduction officials.

To protect farmers against such practices, the wheat allotment contract forbids the contracting farmer to assign his payments and farmers should so inform any creditor who makes such request, says Farrell.

Be sure and attend the Firemen's Dance in the Opera House, Kewaskum, Sunday evening, October 22nd. A good time is in store for all.

CORN—HOG PLAN GOES INTO EFFECT

Wisconsin farmers, according to an announcement made by Prof. K. L. Hatch of the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture on Wednesday, will receive part of $350,000,000 bounty under a federal plan to reduce corn acreage 20 per cent and the number of farrowing hogs 25 per cent in 1934.

The fund is to be raised by a processing tax on pork and on commercially processed corn. The hog control will be organized on the lines of the wheat control campaign, including the set-up of county groups and hog-corn producers associations.

In a typical case outlined by Prof. Hatch a farmer who normally plants 40 acres of corn would agree to reduce his acreage 20 per cent or eight acres. Supposing his yield to be 50 bushels per acre on a three-year average he would receive a bounty of $15 per acre on the remaining 32 acres.

If he normally raised 40 brood sows and agreed to eliminate 25 per cent or 10 sows, he would be paid a bounty of $5 each on the remaining 30.

Program Ready For Operation

The national program to bring corn and hog production into line with consumption will go into effect on Nov. 5. It was the government's newest plan for fixing farm prices. It involves payment of as much as $350,000,000 cash benefits to farmers and purchase and distribution of 400,000,000 pounds of pork to the needy, in addition to the 100,000,000 bought recently.

A swine processing tax at 50 cents per 100 pounds will be the first rate of bounty to be paid when the new program goes into effect and is to be increased to $2 by Feb. 1. The tax is expected to raise $348,000,000 in 2 years. A similar tax of 30 cents a bushel on corn production is expected to raise from $60,000,000 to $70,000,000. Corn growers will receive an additional $40,000,000 from a fund provided in the national recovery act.

The work of obtaining contracts from the farmers to curtail their corn and hog output will be started shortly. The campaign will center in ten middle states—Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

A hearing on a proposed processing tax for milk and its products was called for October 16, by Secretary Henry Wallace. While plans for production control are under way, organizations in the dairy industry, with the aid of the department of agriculture, will proceed on a program to increase consumption of dairy products in cities and on farms.

TRUCKING TO CHICAGO REQUIRES LICENSE

Wisconsin farmers trucking produce to Chicago are warned that they must have a wholesale itinerant produce dealers license in an official notice received by the department of agriculture and markets at Madison.

Under a new licensing ordinance passed by the Chicago City Council, examination, inspection, and a yearly license fee of $150 is required.

A grower and trucker from Bloomer, Wis., was one of the first Wisconsin truckers to be fined by a Chicago judge under the new ordinance. When he brought a truckload of potatoes to Chicago and offered them for sale to several wholesale produce dealers, he was arrested. In his defense, he stated that he had no knowledge of the ordinance, that he was a farmer marketing his own produce, and that he had trucked potatoes to Chicago last season although this was his first load in 1933.

Judge Hartigan of the Chicago Municipal Court, however, ruled that the defense was not adequate, said that the defendant was guilty of violation of the ordinance and fined him $100 and costs.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR SERVICE

The warning comes from every side that the Winter of 1933-34 is going to be the hardest yet, from the point of demands upon public and private funds for relief of distress.

While there are more workers back on the payrolls, and projects of public works and private enterprise are beginning to show signs of life, yet there are those difficulties have been lessened by getting back to work.

Millions have been living on their capital through these past four hard years. Many of these have exhausted their savings and, will be forced to look to others for help in keeping warm and getting enough to eat this winter. Other millions have been giving to the relief funds until they, too, are feeling the pinch severely. And all of the sources of help based upon taxation are running dry. We are confident that the peak of the depression has passed, that the upturn has really begun. But as President Roosevelt told the gathering at the Catholic Charities Association the other night, the hardest pull is still ahead of us.

More than ever is it necessary now for everyone who can to help those who cannot help themselves. Looked at in one way, it should not be a burden but a joyous privilege to be able to feel that one has done something for the benefit of somebody else. There is no satisfaction in life like the satisfaction of unselfish service. And now, if ever, is the time when those satisfactions are available to everybody everywhere.

GRADE THE EGGS

A list of six suggestions to egg producers who wish to have their eggs meet the new Wisconsin Grade A requirements as to quality has just been issued by C. Howard King in charge of poultry and egg marketing for the department of agriculture and markets.

"It is of the utmost importance to egg producers in securing top price for eggs and maximum consumption of eggs, that the best possible care be given all market eggs while still on the farm," says Mr. King.

He lists the following methods:

1.—Produce correct size eggs by raising chicks from breeding stock correctly selected for egg size and by developing pullets with good body weight.

2.—Produce clean eggs by keeping clean shavings or chaff in nests, keeping clean litter on the floor, using wire netting to prevent chickens from walking on night droppings, and by confining birds at least until noon during muddy weather.

3.—Produce infertile market eggs.

4.—Gather eggs several times a day, especially during hot weather.

5.—Keep eggs in a cool place and cool the eggs before placing in cases by gathering in wire baskets and placing in a cool place, or by placing the eggs on a wire tray in a cool place.

6.—Eggs should be marketed frequently, at least twice a week. "Eggs are a perishable product," says Mr. King. "Due to the shell being porous, the contents evaporate quickly in dry warm air and unless care is used, many eggs have badly deteriorated before they leave the farm for market."

"If the retailer will do his share by keeping eggs under refrigeration, consumers will be assured of obtaining Grade A eggs."

Economic Highlights

Happenings That Affect the Dinner Pails, Dividend Checks and Tax Bills of Every Individual, National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare.

The Federal government has started a planned and aggressive drive for credit expansion. The drive takes many forms. One is renewed efforts to open banking moratorium. Another is to make possible greater credit freedom in banks which are open but still operating under restrictions. Another is to increase potential bank credit through open market purchases by the Federal Reserve. The public works program enters into it, as does the proposal to bolster basic industries with government loans. This last has already been done in the case of the railroads; it will very likely be extended to other industries in the future.

During the last half-year business production has shown steady and sharp rises. Between March and September, according to a New York Times graph, the general barometer went from 60 to 79, the high of 87 being reached in mid-July. On the other hand, the amount of credit available for financing this production has changed very little. In March it stood at 16 billions of dollars, and in September at 16½ billions. Where production has jumped a third, credit facilities have risen only about three per cent. The importance of credit is well illustrated by the fact that in this country, in these days, the normal amount of bank credit outstanding is $50,000,000,000 while the total money in circulation is but $5,500,000,000.

While this credit drive faces many problems, there is strong belief in many centers that it will be able to loosen credit to the point where any other means of inflation will be unnecessary.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, the personnel of the A.A.A. (Agricultural Adjustment Administration), and everyone else in a responsible position in one or another of the departments whose mission in life is to find a place for the farmer in the recovery parade, are in a tough spot. Today it costs the consumer—farmer or city dweller—about 13 per cent more to buy most necessities of life than it did in June, when the recovery program was still largely in the planning stage. In the face of this, the farmer has watched his income drop steadily. When city prices touched 16 per cent above the 1913 level, farm prices declined to 30 per cent below.

As a result, the A.A.A. came out the other day with an announcement to the effect that it opposed over rapid rises in the cost of manufactured goods. The A.A.A. is likewise studying a proposed food code which embodies a new approach to the farm problem. Under the code, minimum prices for foodstuffs would be fixed. Distributors of foodstuffs—a business with a $10,000,000,000 annual turnover—would agree to pay more to farmers in return for a farm promise to reduce output. Consumers' counsel of the A.A.A. is afraid the code would result in higher prices to the public than it can now afford, and this is the main bone of contention.

It is the duty of the Secretary of Agriculture to keep farm prices on a level with city prices. Mr. Wallace is as keen as any farmer to do that. But it's slow going. One great problem is that too many farmers are still disorganized, and it takes much longer to get them together than it does to prepare a plan of attack for industry.

From the retailer's standpoint, September opened fairly well and closed better according to Dun & Bradstreet. The upward trend has become better established and consumer buying, long lagging, is more vigorous. Consumer resistance to increase prices is not especially noticeable. It is an interesting fact that the market for high-grade furs and silks is expected to be the best in some years.

Other retail fields where the experience is favorable, include shoes, millinery, jewelry and men's clothing. A number of woolen mills have booked orders that will keep them busy to the end of the year. In the women's wear field, the increase in demand for sports outfits is rising in direct ratio to the decrease in working hours.

Steel—Iron Age says that the industry is just beginning to work smoothly under code; main trouble is labor problems.

Electric Power—Report for last week shows 10 per cent rise over same week last year.

Railroads—Rumor grows that every firm of transportation—rails, buses, trucks, waterways, aviation—will be brought under one federal agency. Freight car-loadings in the fourth quarter of 1933 are forecast as being 14 per cent above a year ago.

Dividend Payments—Ratio of favorable to unfavorable dividend actions by American companies sharply increased. Two-thirds of all changes in August were favorable.

Copper—Producers and smelters said to be reaching agreement on code.

The pledged wheat acreage reduction for 1934 totaled 6,599,000 acres for the U. S. on October 4, according to an announcement of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. The total acreage signed so far represents about 70 per cent of the nation's total wheat acreage. Many Wisconsin farmers who have any considerable acreage signed up in the campaign.
