ANSWER FINAL SUMMONS

Albert Seefeldt, pioneer resident of the town of Kewaskum, passed to his eternal resting place at 11:45 a. m. last Friday, March 26, 1937, on the homestead, 3/4 of a mile northeast of this village at the advanced age of 77 years. Mr. Seefeldt had been ill only a few days with meningitis.

Albert Seefeldt was born in the town of Kewaskum, near his present homestead site, on March 6, 1860, and had spent his entire life there. On Dec. 24, 1896, he was united in marriage to Mary Hartkopf at Appleton, Wis., and came to his present home in 1876.

Those surviving Mr. Seefeldt, besides his widow, are two sons, Alfred H. Seefeldt and Oscar Seefeldt, both residing on the homestead. He is also survived by two brothers and one sister, William and Herman of the town of Kewaskum and Mrs. Albert Buss of the village of Kewaskum.

Mr. Seefeldt was a very quiet and unassuming man, whose only thought was of his home and family. He had toiled faithfully all these years to build up a home which he could enjoy in the presence of his family. He will be greatly missed by his family and numerous friends.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 from the home and at 2 o'clock from the Ev. Luth. St. Lucas church. Rev. G. Kaniess performed the last sad rites and interment took place in the parish cemetery.

Pallbearers were six nephews of the deceased, namely: Louis, Paul and August Seefeldt, Arnold Klug, Emil and Edwin Klumb.

Backhaus, aged 46 years, passed away in death at her home in the town of Kewaskum, just northwest of the village, on Tuesday, March 30, at 4:35 a. m., after an extended illness of three years due to a complication of diseases.

Louisa Johanna Nienow was born in the town of Polk on September 19, 1891. Twenty-two years ago, on October 30, 1915, she was married to Ben Backhaus in the Krohmann church, town of Jackson, following which she came to her present home.

Three children were born to this union, all of whom, along with their father, survive, namely: Irene, 14, Lucille 10, and Lillian 5, all at home. She is also survived by three brothers, Frank, Henry and Edward Nienow, all of the town of Polk; two sisters, Anna (Mrs. Sam Ehlike) of Jackson, and Ella (Mrs. Henry Luebbe) of Kewaskum.

Funeral services are being held today (Friday), April 2, at 2:00 p. m. from Miller's Funeral Home, to St. Lucas Ev. Luth. church. Rev. Gerhard Kaniess will officiate. Burial will take place in the congregation's cemetery.

Sheboygan Man Killed In Crash North of Village ANOTHER PASSENGER IN THE CAR SERIOUSLY INJURED

Two men were injured, one fatally, in a collision between an automobile and a truck between the Washington town of Lac county line and Kohn's curve, two and one-half miles north of this village, on Highway 45-55 late last Thursday afternoon, March 25.

Gilbert Halverson, 30, Sheboygan, a passenger in the car, died at St. Joseph's Community hospital, West Bend, shortly after 2 a. m. Friday, about eight hours after he was injured. His skull was fractured and he sustained other injuries.

Carl Althaus, 44, of West Bend, driver of the car, a Buick coupe, who is a painter, suffered concussions of the brain, a broken left arm, and cuts and bruises. He is confined to the same hospital, where he is recovering satisfactorily.

Halverson and Althaus are reported by Undersheriff Ray W. Breister and County Traffic Officer Robert Shields of Fond du Lac county to have been driving south on Highway 45-55 toward Kewaskum. They were going down grade just north of the bridge at the county line when the driver attempted to pass another car going in the same direction, before he noticed that a truck, coming from the opposite direction, was too near. He applied the brakes and the Buick coupe skidded on the icy pavement directly into the front of the truck which hit their car broadside. The right door of the car was torn off, the body stove in, and the rear wheel broken. Officers said the truck remained on its own side of the road.

The truck was a Chevrolet and was owned and driven by Fred Malugin, 56, livestock dealer of route 3, Ripon, who was returning home from Milwaukee after transporting a load of cattle to that city. He was uninjured, claiming that he wasn't hurt because he braced his feet and hands when he saw the accident coming.

Another car, but a short distance behind the Halverson auto, was the first to arrive at the scene, and the two men who occupied it were the first to come to the assistance of the injured men, both of whom were thrown out of the left door and were unconscious. Arthur Buss, a farmer, who resides just aside of the road, also rushed to the rescue.

The Fond du Lac county ambulance was called to the scene but when it arrived, Dr. R. G. Edwards of this village had already been summoned. The injured men were brought to this village, Halverson by Dr. Edwards, and Althaus by Mr. Buss, for first aid treatment. Halverson was then rushed to the West Bend hospital in Miller's ambulance. Althaus was taken to the hospital in Mr. Miller's automobile. Upon arrival at the hospital both men were still unconscious.

At the hospital Halverson weakened steadily and died at 2 a. m. Friday morning. His body was taken to Sheboygan where he had made his home with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nimmen, at 1206 N. Seventeenth St. Halverson had been employed until recently by the Sheboygan Coal Co. and was taking a two weeks' vacation before re-enlisting in the U. S. Marine corps, in which he formerly served. He enlisted in the marine corps in 1926 and went to China, serving there until 1930. He was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Surviving as his father, a sister and a brother. He was unmarried.

The funeral was held in Sheboygan on Monday at 2 p. m.

Althaus is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Althaus. His injuries are not so serious but that he will recover. The men were returning to West Bend from Fond du Lac.

Dr. A. C. Florin, Fond du Lac county coroner, decided an inquest was not necessary.

Halverson's death was the third fatality resulting from a highway accident in that vicinity recently. On Feb. 18th, Chas. A. Schlueter and Charles Carb, both of Milwaukee, were killed when their auto struck a Northern Transportation Co. truck on the same highway, about a mile and a half north of where last Thursday's collision took place.

DR. EDWARDS LECTURES ON CANCER CONTROL

At a public meeting arranged by the Women's Field Army in the high school auditorium Tuesday evening, Dr. R. G. Edwards, local health officer, presented an interesting lecture on cancer, its diagnosis and control. Following this a general discussion was held.

The Women's Field Army of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, has been organized in Wisconsin under the joint sponsorship of the Cancer Committee of the State Medical Society and the American Society for the Control of Cancer, in an effort to reduce cancer deaths through public education. Members of the Kewaskum Women's club will call on residents of this village later on to join the National Women's Field Army in this great drive to stem the rising tide of cancer deaths.

Dr. Edwards stated many points in detail, one of which was that 140,000 people in the United States, and 4,000 people in Wisconsin died of cancer last year—three times the number killed in automobile accidents. Nearly one-half of this number could have been saved had they been treated in time. One out of every 8 women and 1 out of every 11 men can expect to die of cancer sooner or later if left untreated. The disease is more frequent among women because the female has two more places in which it may develop than men.

The doctor further informed that practically all cancer is curable—but only in the early stages of the disease is this true. Hence the slogan of the great Women's Field Army, "Early Cancer is Curable—Fight Cancer with Knowledge." You must watch for the danger signs of cancer—and when they occur act at once—don't delay. A thorough examination is advised once each year.

Cause of cancer is unknown, however nearly all cancers develop following some form of chronic irritation to that part of the body. That the disease is not catching from one to another has been proven time and again.

Dr. Edwards pointed out that warning signs and symptoms of cancer are: (1) Absence of pain in ailments; (2) Persistent unexplained indigestion—lack of appetite, distaste for meats and unexplained weight loss; (3) Any "lump" that falls to weight in one month; (4) Any abnormal discharge of blood from any body cavity; (5) Any lump or wart or mole on the body anywhere; (6) Any sudden changes in the bowel habit.

The public must realize that to delay securing treatment by using salves and ointment may render later cure impossible. The only three treatments recognized and accepted are surgery, x-ray and radium.

Join the Women's Field Army and help in this fight against cancer.

Top Hats Go With Rifles Among the Eton Boys

Not even so important an event as the first issue of rifles could impel these boys in the famous English school at Eton, recruits in the officers' training corps, to flout tradition. So they turned out for their first drill wearing their top hats and swallowtail coats.

Bedtime Story for Children

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

WHERE MRS. GROUSE WAS

SAMMY Jay had spread a false report all through the snow-covered Green Forest and over the glistening Green Meadows. He had told every one he met that Farmer Brown's boy had killed poor Mrs. Grouse and taken her home for his dinner. Now, it was true that he had taken her home, but it wasn't true that he had killed her. You see, he had found her very weak and helpless under the hard,

Some of Them Peter Rabbit Saw, and He Told Them Sammy Jay's Story Was Not True.

With trust that Jack Frost had made while she was asleep down under the snow, and which she couldn't break. Sammy Jay and Peter Rabbit had both seen her carried away and both knew that she hadn't been killed. But it made a bigger story, a more dreadful story, to say that she had been killed, and Sammy Jay dearly loves to tell bad news. Besides, he is always ready to think evil of others.

"If he didn't kill her, then he will kill her when he gets her home," said Sammy to himself, "and so it's all right to say that he has killed her." So he flew about spreading that dreadful false story and actually enjoyed telling the friends news.

Of course, all of the friends of Mrs. Grouse felt terrible. Some of them Peter Rabbit saw and he told them Sammy Jay's story was not true—that Mrs. Grouse had not been killed. But he had to admit that she had been carried away by Farmer Brown's boy, and to her friends

GRAPHIC GOLF

CURE FOR PULLING AWAY FROM BALL

PULLING the left foot away from the ball as the clubhead makes impact is too close to the body on the downswing. The fault is not un-inside, where it was as warm as in summer and where Farmer Brown's boy's mother stroked her with such gentle hands and said, "You poor, poor little bird." And then when she was warm she was taken out to the henhouse and put in a box with plenty of nice warm hay and there she was left with all the corn and oats and barley that she could eat. This was what she needed most, for you know it was because she had had nothing to eat for so long, while she was a prisoner under that dreadful icy crust, that Mrs. was too weak to fly when the crust was broken.

So she ate and ate until she could eat no more and then nestled down in the soft, warm hay and slept, for she was tired, so very, very tired. And as she closed her eyes it seemed to her that she couldn't remember when she had been so comfortable—Certainly not for days and days. And she could sleep without fear of Reddy Fox or Hooty the Owl or any other danger. To be sure, she was a prisoner, but somehow she didn't mind. Not then, anyway. And—and—well, Farmer Brown's boy wasn't dreadful at all; he was rather nice.

It is surprising how clearly well-balanced initiative or the lack of it shows in the conformation and shape of the forefinger. Other compensating influences within the hand may, of course, offset this element which so unerringly indicates the trained analyst of the individual's trends in power and purpose. The importance of a careful study of the forefinger as an aid to complete and correct interpretation of the inner self cannot be too strongly emphasized.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

LOOK BEFORE YOU BUY TWO years ago a friend of mine bought a suburban house. The design of the house suited him and he was greatly pleased with the location of the property, which was at the foot of a gradual slope heavily covered with trees. As soon as he was installed he laid out a garden behind the house, and looked forward to the pleasure that he would have with it. Three months later a heavy storm blew up one night. The next morning, to his dismay, he found that a rush of water down the hillside had washed away part of his garden and cut gashes and furrows in the rest. On talking it over, he realized that his many visits to the house before buying were all made on pleasant days; that it had not occurred to him to find out what the place would be like in bad weather.

I have known of many similar instances; the development of unpleasant qualities that could have been foreseen if the buyer had looked the place over under all conditions. My advice to a prospective buyer is to visit the property in bad weather as well as in clear; late at night as well as in the daytime; on Sundays and holidays as well as in the middle of a week. Here are some examples of failures to do this:

One district that I know is charming in dry weather, but as the sewers are too small to take care of a heavy rainfall, the street may be flooded for hours at a time. A street that I know connects with an avenue leading to a public beach and amusement park some miles distant. On summer weekdays it carries but little traffic, but on weekends and holidays it is jammed with cars; traffic is heavy and noisy until late at night. A family bought a country property that answered all of their desires in house and garden. The section was isolated, the only near neighbor being a similar house a few hundred feet away. On their first night a dance band started up in the neighboring house, and many cars collected there. The family then realized that the house, quiet in the daytime, was actually a road-house and responsible for music, shouting and whoopee that lasted into early morning.

No buyer can know what he is buying and the conditions surrounding a property until he has visited it under all conditions of weather and time.

KNOW THYSELF

by Dr. George D. Greer

WHEN any one ridicules something which has been denied him, it usually means that this person is putting up a "defense mechanism"—that is, he is trying to raise himself by lowering the thing which makes him seem small. Most people who have not been to college greatly overestimate the value and importance of college training and imagine that they lack something drives them to ridicule the education they do not have and which they envy in others. There are some self-missed men who realize that they missed something in the line of education and try to compensate for it by reading and becoming well informed. This is much better than ridiculing education and is a mark of superior intelligence.

The Things Delayed

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

ONLY a little month ago We faced the Allegheny snow And thought the spring would never come; But spring, at worst, is only slow, And winter only wearisome.

Some joys are oftentimes delayed, And hearts grow oftentimes afraid. Some joy desired will never be; And yet the snowy blanket made. But greener grass and fairer tree.

The things delayed will yet appear; We need not worry, need not fear. Need only pray, and wait, and pray.

There is a springtime every year, Though mountains have their snow in May.

Far better have the flow'rs of June To come too late than come too soon. While yet the winter lingers nigh. So I'll await tomorrow's sky. If clouds today obscure the sun.

Records Help in Improving Sheep

Systematic Check Is Urged to Produce Better Wool and Mutton.

By L. K. Bear, Animal Husbandry Specialist, Ohio State University.—WNU Service. One line of pencil work a year for each ewe in the farm flock may help materially in improving the returns from wool and mutton, as a written record is a great aid in culling inferior animals. Profits from sheep depend a great deal upon producing lambs and wool which will bring top market prices and that is impossible if the breeding flock lacks uniformity. Fine wool ewes should shear from 10 to 14 pounds of wool which will grade Delaine or fine combing, and coarse wools should shear 8 to 11 pounds that will grade as combing wool.

Records kept at shearing time will furnish a basis for taking out of the flock those ewes which have light fleeces or which produce wool of a poorer grade than the flock average. The owner of the flock knows at shearing time which ewes should be discarded but it is doubtful if he can remember the fleece weights unless a written record is kept or the culls are marked.

Many of the light lambs that are not ready for market when the others are ready for sale are late lambs caused by dry breeding ewes or they are unthrifty lambs from ewes which are poor milkers. Ewes in either of these classifications should be discarded, and, again, a written record will help in identifying the culls.

Simple records that provide means for keeping a check on each ewe in the flock have been prepared by the departments of animal husbandry and rural economics. One line across the sheet provides a space for all the records needed on a ewe for a year. County agricultural agents can supply these flock record forms upon request.

Seeds Should Be Kept Dry

Should Be Kept in Storage

Crop seeds protected from dampness in storage will have a better chance of germinating and producing strong plants even when handicapped by unfavorable weather. Dampness in storage has a tendency to start the germinating process, and this weakens the seed, explained Dr. R. F. Poole, plant pathologist with the North Carolina Agricultural Experiment station.

Irish potatoes stored in banks should be aired frequently to prevent decay. Corn, small grain, and other seed should be kept in lead-proof buildings with adequate ventilation to prevent the accumulation of too much moisture.

However, this does not mean that the seed should be openly exposed to infestation by insect pests, Dr. Poole cautioned.

Goats for Food

In some sections of the United States many goats of the milk type, especially kids, are annually consumed, states a writer in the Missouri Farmer. In some parts of the South kids are considered as a delicacy and are in demand. They are sold for slaughter when from 8 to 12 weeks of age. The flesh of young goats, or kids, is palatable and has a flavor suggesting lamb. If properly cooked, the meat from a mature milk goat is also good eating, provided the animal has been properly fed and is in good condition. The prices of goats sold on the market for slaughter are always considerably less than those received for sheep. Goats do not fatten and carry flesh like sheep.

Salt for Asparagus

At one time gardeners felt that unless salt was applied to asparagus beds they could not look for best results, but it has been demonstrated beyond question that it is not necessary. Its application, however, will do no harm and it will certainly keep ordinary weeds from growing. As much as 500 pounds to the acre may be used, but whether this will kill couch grass I cannot say, says a grower in the Montreal Herald. Apply in spring. If rhubarb plants are stalked and divided in spring, no salts should be picked from them during that summer.

Plant Artichoke Industry

A plant for the processing of Jerusalem artichokes (it is food) into power alcohol is being erected at Gering, Nebraska. Farmers and businessmen of the region are reported to be interested in the possibilities of the crop because of its ability to withstand drought.—Country Home Magazine.

Balanced Ration Pays

A comparison of a herd feeding a balanced ration and one feeding a corn alone was made with the following results in the Linn No. 3, Iowa, C. T. A., writes Otto Bruns, tester, in Hoard's Dairyman. A herd that was fed a balanced ration was also fed according to individual production, and produced butterfat at a cost of 11.5 cents per pound. The herd that was fed corn alone had a production cost of 29.4 cents per pound, a difference of 13.4 cents per pound.

Drinking Utensils for Stock

Keeping the drinking utensils and feeding troughs clean is of primary importance. Animals should not be allowed to feed from the ground. Concrete or other nonporous material should be used in constructing the feeding floors or platforms. They frequently should be carefully cleaned and disinfected. Thorough cleaning is essential. Disinfection of premises should follow outbreaks of contagious diseases.

HOW TO BE SURE ABOUT SOUFFLE

Two Methods Reduce Process to an Exact Science.

By EDITH M. BARBER

A SOUFFLE has been one of the dishes which the cook undertook with prayer. Sometimes it fell and sometimes it didn't. If the family was late to dinner, it was fatal. Even today, when there are several almost fool-proof recipes for this delicacy, it is still one of the dishes which is approached with fear and trembling.

I can, however, recommend two methods, either of which will be successful. The resulting products are quite different. If you like your souffle crisp around the edges and soft in the center, you will like the French recipe. If you prefer it soft, but firm throughout you will like the other, with a tapioca base. For the first, you will use a hot oven; for the second you will use a moderate oven and will place your baking dish in a pan of water.

When I make a sweet souffle by the French method, I grease my baking dish with soft, not melted butter and sprinkle the butter coating with granulated sugar. And remember when you are using these recipes that while they are almost "fall-proof" they should be put into the oven so that they may be served as soon as they are ready to come out.

Chocolate Souffle.

- 1/4 cup flour
1/4 cup granulated tapioca
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups cheese, shredded
1 teaspoon dry mustard
4 eggs

Heat milk in double boiler, add tapioca and salt and cook until clear, stirring occasionally. Add cheese and mustard and stir until thickened from fire. Stir in beaten egg yolks. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into greased baking dish three-quarters full and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) about fifty minutes, until light brown.

Caramel Souffle.

- 1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
4 eggs
2 squares melted chocolate
1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix flour with one-half cup of cold milk, and stir this mixture into one half cup of hot milk. Stir over fire until mixture thickens and boils. Remove from fire, beat in egg yolks one at a time. Fold in beaten egg whites. Pour mixture into greased baking dish three-quarters full and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit).

Chocolate Souffle.

- 1/2 cup flour
1 cup milk
1/2 cup sugar
4 eggs
2 squares melted chocolate
1/2 teaspoon salt

Mix flour with half a cup of cold milk and stir this mixture into one half cup hot milk. Add half of the sugar, stir over fire until mixture thickens and boils. Remove from fire, beat in egg yolks one at a time. Add remaining sugar, melted chocolate and salt. Fold in beaten egg whites. Fill baking dish, greased with softened butter and sprinkle with sugar, three-quarters full and bake twenty minutes in a hot oven. (425 degrees Fahrenheit).

Caramel Bread Pudding.

- 3 eggs
1/2 cup caramelized sugar
Salt
3 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Nutmeg

Beat the eggs enough to mix the yolks and the whites, add sugar, salt, milk and flavoring and stir until caramel is dissolved. Pour pudding dish with bread, pine in custard mixture and set in a pan of hot water. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until the custard is set, about fifty minutes. To caramelize sugar, stir the sugar in a heavy frying pan over a low heat until melted and light brown.

Vanilla Parfait.

- 2 teaspoons gelatin
1 cup milk
1/2 cup powdered sugar
Salt
1 cup cream
1 1/2 teaspoons vanilla
2 egg whites

Soak gelatin in a little milk and let stand five minutes. Heat remainder of milk and pour over the gelatin. Add sugar, salt and stir until dissolved and set aside to chill. Whip cream and add vanilla. When gelatin mixture has thickened slightly, fold in the whipped cream and beaten egg whites. Turn into automatic refrigerator trays and freeze from two to three hours.

Coffee Jelly.

- 2 tablespoons gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
3 cups clear, strong coffee
1/4 cup sugar
Salt

Soak the gelatin in the cold water five minutes and dissolve in the hot coffee; add sugar and salt; stir until dissolved. Turn into a mold; chill until set. Serve with whipped cream.

Blue and Gold Bedroom

With a warm golden brown carpet it is possible to use a blue and gold color scheme for either a cool or a warm atmosphere. The ceiling is finished in ivory flat paint and the walls are painted a light sky blue.

Bathroom Color

When planning the color scheme for your bathroom, first shop for a shower curtain that appeals to you. Then let the color you select for the curtain become the keynote of your color scheme.

To keep the crease in mats, soap down the crease with a brush of dry soap, then turn back to the right side and press, using a damp cloth. The crease will remain a long time.

Filling for a sponge cake made by creaming three cups of fresh butter and six ounces of sifted icing sugar, adding the ounces of chopped pineapple.

If a hot cinder falls on the carpet and damages it; repair with wool. Buy skeins of wool that match the colors in your carpet. Fill in the damaged part with loops of the various wools, following the pattern as nearly as possible. The loops should be tightly packed together and made slightly higher than the pile of your carpet.

When the frying pan becomes slightly burnt, drop a raw potato into the pan for a few minutes. Then remove it, and traces of burning will have disappeared.

Date Kisses—Thirty stages, one cup almonds, white sugar, one cup powdered sugar, Chop dates; blanch almonds; cut into long strips. Beat eggs stiff, add sugar, dates and almonds. Drop in buttered tins; teaspoon and bake in quick oven.

Stockings can become a expensive item for the mother of school-children—who are always falling down and tearing big holes in the knees. Try this way of pairing an outside hole: Take a piece of strong net to match the stocking and place over the hole on the inside of the stocking. The darn the hole with wool that exactly matches the stocking on the right side of the stocking, you will find it will be scarcely visible.

Spanish War Bringing Italy, France and Great Britain Into Conflict—Lewis Ends Chrysler Sidown Strike—Martin Warns Henry Ford.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD © Western Newspaper Union.

SPAIN'S civil war is becoming to a great extent a war between Italy and France fought on Spanish soil, and both those nations are expected to enter the conflict. Great Britain anxiously strives to avert an open breach. Italy, too, is now furious against the British because English newspapers have been so full of the fact that Italian volunteers were defeated by French volunteers in recent victories won by the loyalists northeast of Madrid. Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador to London, told the subcommittee of the international committee on non-intervention that he would not discuss the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain and that not a single Italian fighting in the Spanish war would be ordered home until the conflict ended.

France's response was quick and startling. Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos proposed to British Ambassador Sir George Clerk that France and Britain assume a naval blockade of Spain to keep Italian troops from landing to join the fascists. The British and French governments thereupon agreed, with full knowledge of other European powers within the non-intervention committee, on "all points" of a program to make non-intervention completely effective and decided it was imperative to prevent, even by force, any further Italian landings. No decision was reached to send warships at once for this purpose.

In Rome the belief was expressed that if France appealed to the League of Nations against alleged dispatch of Italian troops to Spain, Europe would come near to war. A spokesman for the government angrily repeated the official denial that Italy had sent any volunteers to Spain since February 20, when the international agreement for non-intervention was reached.

The indignation of Grandi followed closely on a speech which Premier Mussolini delivered in Rome. Alluding to the League of Nations' sanctions against Italy during the Ethiopian war, of which England was the chief promoter, Il Duce shouted:

"It has been said that the Italian people have been easily misled. Error! Error! On the contrary, the Italian people have a tenacious memory and know how to bide their time. We waited 40 years to avenge Adowa, but we succeeded."

Mussolini had just returned from a visit to Libya, Italy's North Africa colony, and on that trip he made a patent bid for Italian leadership of the Moslem world. This, and his intention to build a naval base on the Red sea which would challenge British control of the Indian ocean are irritating Great Britain, which is not yet ready to check Mussolini by a display of armed force. She will be ready, however, before very long, for she is expending vast sums on her fleets and naval establishments.

Germany is not taking active part in these international spats just now, but is awaiting developments. Hitler is absorbed in his domestic difficulties and the threatened break with the Vatican.

DR. HANS LUTHER is soon to be replaced as German ambassador to Washington by Dr. Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, a veteran diplomat who is now secretary of state for foreign affairs. He was counselor of the embassy in Washington from 1922 to 1926 and has been a staunch friend of Americans. Dieckhoff is described as belonging to the "Ribbentrop group" in German affairs, and is a brother-in-law of Joachim von Ribbentrop, German ambassador to London.

UNDER the persuasion of Gov. Frank Murphy of Michigan, John L. Lewis, head of the C. I. O., and Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the Chrysler motor corporation, were brought together in more or less peaceful conference at the state capital in Lansing. The immediate result was an agreement that the sit-down strikers should evacuate the eight Chrysler plants in Detroit, and that the corporation should not resume production during the period of negotiations. Six thousand strikers had held possession of the plants since March 8 in defiance of court orders and the governor, as in the case of the General Motors strike, had been extremely reluctant to authorize forceful methods of enforcing the law. He had, however, insisted that the men must obey the law and court orders, and the concession by Lewis was a victory for the governor, as well as for the corporation which had declared it would not negotiate while the men held its plants. Mr. Chrysler also has asserted the company would not enter into any agreement recognizing any one group as sole bargaining agency for all employees.

It seems likely that this Michigan case will put an end to the epidemic of sit-down strikes. Most of the smaller strikes in the Detroit area have been settled, and in Chicago and elsewhere vigorous action by the authorities has brought sit-downers to their senses.

President Roosevelt had steadily refused to take a public stand concerning this new weapon adopted especially by the Lewis labor group, but finally yielded to the pleas of his lieutenants so far as to agree to hold a conference on the matter on his return to Washington from Warm Springs. Secretary of Labor Perkins has shown a partiality for the sit-down strike, and various New Dealers have defended it; but others in the administration, like Secretary of Commerce Roper, have condemned it. And in the senate and the house it has been attacked by Democrats and Republicans alike.

IN THE big mass meeting of workers held in Detroit, Homer Martin, president of the United Automobile Workers, addressed himself to Henry Ford, saying: "Henry, you can't stop the labor movement. You can't keep your workers from joining the labor movement even if you have a 'fink' (company sympathizer) at every other post in your factory. The best thing for you to do, Henry, is to get ready to do business with your organized workers."

Mr. Ford is on record as saying that his company will continue to make cars as long as a single man will continue to work for it; and in reply to Martin's threat, Harry Bennett, Ford chief of personnel, says: "What Martin calls 'organized labor' is not going to run the Ford Motor company. For every man in this (the Ford Rouge plant) that might decide he wants to follow Martin and take part in a sit-down strike there are at least five who want their job and don't want a strike."

The Rouge plant employs 87,000 men. The minimum wage is $6 a day, or 75 cents an hour for the eight hour working day. The plant operates five days a week, with the exception of the blast furnaces which must be kept going seven days a week.

AMELIA EARHART'S globe-circling flight ended, for the present, at Honolulu when she cracked up her $80,000 "laboratory factory" at the take-off for Howland island. By quick thinking and action she saved her life and those of Capt. Harry Manning and Fred J. Noonan, her navigators, but the plane was so badly damaged that it had to be shipped back to the Los Angeles factory for repairs.

The daring aviatrix sailed immediately for San Francisco, asserting that she would resume the flight as soon as possible.

As the big plane rushed down the runway for the take-off it swayed badly, the right tire burst and the ship went out of control. The left undercarriage buckled and the left wing slashed into the ground. The ship then spun to the right, crashed down on its right wing, and the right motor snapped off the right wheel. Miss Earhart quickly cut the ignition switches, so there was no fire, and no one was injured.

TEN passengers, two pilots and a stewardess were killed when a big Transcontinental and Western airliner crashed near Pittsburgh. No one survived the disaster. The plane, from New York for Chicago, had been awaiting a chance to land at the Pittsburgh airport, circling around, and suddenly fell from a height of only about 200 feet. Presumably the motor failed.

CONGRESSMAN RALPH E. CHURCH of Illinois raised a storm in the house by making a fierce attack on Adolph J. Sabath, also of Illinois and dean of the house. Sabath is chairman of the committee to investigate real estate bondholders' reorganizations, and Church accused him of "questionable practices," demanding in particular an explanation concerning benefits reaped by the Chicago law firm of Sabath, Perlmutter, Goodman & Rein as a result of Sabath's activities.

Democratic leaders rushed to the defense of Sabath, and finally stopped Church's attack by forcing adjournment. Sabath was furious and promised a reply at length.

Dr. Wedel believes the "flying drouth" forced the Indians to abandon their homes to seek a living elsewhere.

Students of the major drouths of recent years say farmers in the affected regions may have to adopt a similar course. The only solution to the problem, they say, is to restore much of the region to sand-restraining grasses.

But the government's program of dam and reservoir construction may go far to eliminate drouths.

Sand Storms Are Traced Back to 250 Years Ago

The destructive sandstorms that have swept over the Great Plains during the last five years had their counterpart 250 years ago, according to the discoveries of Dr. Waldo H. Wedel, Smithsonian Institution archeologist.

He has found that remains of old Indian villages in Kansas, Nebraska and Colorado were covered with masses of wind-blown sand.

JOHN DRINKWATER, distinguished British poet, novelist and playwright, died suddenly of a heart attack in his sleep at his home in London. He was only fifty-four years old and seemed in normal health.

Drinkwater's historical plays were widely known in the United States, particularly "Abraham Lincoln," and "Robert E. Lee." He had just completed a motion picture for the coronation of King George VI of which he was both author and producer. The film deals with "the king and his people" from the time of Queen Victoria to the present.

NEAR Salem, Ill., a chartered bus carrying a roller skating troupe from St. Louis to Cincinnati crashed into a bridge abutment, overturned and burned. Of the 23 occupants, 19 were killed outright and another died in a hospital. The accident, listed as one of the worst ever occurring on an Illinois highway, was caused by the explosion of a tire.

CHIEF JUSTICE CHARLES E. HUGHES created something of a sensation by sending to the senate judiciary committee a letter declaring that an increase in the number of supreme court justices, as proposed by President Roosevelt, "would not promote the efficiency of the court." He added:

"It is believed that it would impair that efficiency so long as the court acts as a unit. 'There would be more judges to hear, more judges to confer, more judges to discuss, more judges to be convinced and to decide. The present number of justices is thought to be large enough so far as the prompt, adequate and efficient conduct of the work of the court is concerned.'"

Mr. Hughes said his letter was approved by Justices Van Devanter and Brandeis. He made it clear that he was commenting on an increase from the standpoint of efficiency and "apart from any question of policy," which he said, "I do not discuss."

Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, Democrat, was the first opposition witness called before the committee, and he started in by reading Mr. Hughes' letter. Before entering the committee room he said he believed the administration would eventually accept a compromise plan. He advocates a constitutional amendment, permitting congress, by two-thirds majority, to override Supreme court invalidation of acts of congress, provided a national election had intervened between invalidation and overriding.

"The administration will compromise, don't worry," Wheeler said. "They can't get more than thirty-five senate votes for the President's plan. Public opinion, which swerved toward them for a while, is now swinging heavily against them."

Prominent among the witnesses for the opposition to the President's plan was Raymond Moley, former head of the "brain trust" and now professor of public law at Columbia university. He was outspoken in denouncing some of the Supreme court's decisions and favored the amendment method. He told the committee he met as well as not have a constitution at all as to pack the Supreme court for the purpose of securing favorable judicial construction. Carried to its logical conclusion, he said, the President's proposal will mean "destruction of the Constitution."

President H. W. Dodds of Princeton; Dr. Theodore Graebner of St. Louis, prominent Lutheran leader, and representatives of the National Grange, oldest nonpartisan organization of farmers, also appeared before the committee to argue against the bill.

SEVERAL investigations into the terrible explosion that destroyed the fine London Community school in east Texas and killed nearly 500 pupils and teachers were under way, but at this writing the cause of the disaster has not been determined. The most plausible theory was formed when D. L. Clark, field foreman for the near-by Parade Oil company, testified that the school had been using "wet" gas from the pipe lines of the company. This is a residue gas rich in butane, a highly explosive compound of carbon and hydrogen, and it is considered too dangerous for home use. Clark said he first learned the school was using the gas when he was notified that Superintendent W. C. Shaw of the school wanted it shut off. School employees said the change from "dry" to "wet" gas was made only a month ago on order of the school board chairman. That gentleman said the company knew of the use of the gas.

SPANISH government forces were victorious in some heavy fighting on the Guadalejara front north-east of Madrid, their chief gain being the capture of Brihuega, headquarters of the insurgents. The latter, however, scored in the University City quarter of the capital, and on the southern front were preparing to attack Pozoblanco, the key to mercury, lead, sulphur and coal mining territory.

Paris claimed to have information that Germans had supervised and manned a line of fortifications along the Spanish Moroccan coast that threatens British control of the Strait of Gibraltar.

He purchased 25 Jerseys, Guernseys, Brown Swiss and Holsteins ranging from 2 months to a year old.

Elkhorn—A half interest in a Holstein herd sire owned by Alfred Godfrey, Elkhorn, was sold for $3,500, reputedly the highest price for such a purchase since before the depression. J. Madison—The Wisconsin senate voted, 17 to 13, to outlaw all advertising intending to induce purchase of liquor by means of price appeal. Department stores, retail liquor dealers, druggists and others selling liquor would be forbidden to advertise prices in the newspapers or on posters, and even taverns could not have signs on their windows giving prices of drinks.

Burnett—An attempted robbery at the Burnett State bank apparently was thwarted after two hours had been burned in the vault door. Burnett, a community of 250 population, is in Dodge county.

Washington—Immediately after the armistice in 1918, the country was suddenly awakened to the fact that living costs were extraordinarily high. It was a condition that developed an unequally emotion. There followed, naturally, a wave that engulfed hundreds of thousands of people who felt that they were being subjected to high prices that were unjustified.

Most people will remember how "H. C. L." became an expression as common and one that figured in as many puns and jokes and wise cracks as the alphabetical agencies common now to the New Deal. It was a type of propaganda that came along spontaneously because the condition affected so many people.

The reason I have recalled that circumstance is because we are again headed straight into another era of "H. C. L." We have not reached the top of living costs by any means. It takes more than a fortune teller and a crystal gazer to predict what is going to happen in the way of increased commodity prices. Suffice it to say, however, that a "vicious cycle" has started whirling and in the midst of the situation stands a very confused consumer, representative of all of the people in the United States.

There undoubtedly will be an increase in the propaganda concerning living costs again. Indeed, there already is a rather far-flung propaganda which results from the increased cost of living but it is directed rather on a slant and not pointed accurately into the heart of the condition now confronting us.

Undoubtedly a great many people have not thought of the frequent and recurring attacks of business and business practices as having anything to do with the increased living costs. But the truth is that this type of propaganda springs directly from the sporadic cries that are coming from many localities about the higher prices—complaints that the dollar does not go very far in buying food across the grocery counter.

It seems to me that it is time for some calm thinking about this situation. It seems to me further that public officials everywhere ought to be honest enough to analyze the situation and tell the public what the real causes are. If this is not done, there again will be undoubtedly a perfect deluge of propaganda in protest against high living costs and the bulk of the people who suffer from these increased costs will not know the reason any more than they understood the reasons that brought about a counterpart of the present outlook back in 1918 and 1919.

In any examination of an economic condition, one must dig considerably below the surface to find the factors that have operated to bring about the results visible to the eye. Such is certainly the case in the present situation. One does not fairly say that the present high prices in food have just happened. In truth, things never happen; they are brought about. They have been brought about in the present circumstance by factors that date back to 1933 and include numerous governmental policies that have been initiated since that time.

The trained economist will describe present conditions as due to inflation—which indeed they are. But inflation is such an all-inclusive term that the real story lies hidden. So, let us review the things that have happened and trace the present increasing price levels to their real source.

Washington—Immediately after the armistice in 1918, the country was suddenly awakened to the fact that living costs were extraordinarily high. It was a condition that developed an unequally emotion. There followed, naturally, a wave that engulfed hundreds of thousands of people who felt that they were being subjected to high prices that were unjustified.

Most people will remember how "H. C. L." became an expression as common and one that figured in as many puns and jokes and wise cracks as the alphabetical agencies common now to the New Deal. It was a type of propaganda that came along spontaneously because the condition affected so many people.

The reason I have recalled that circumstance is because we are again headed straight into another era of "H. C. L." We have not reached the top of living costs by any means. It takes more than a fortune teller and a crystal gazer to predict what is going to happen in the way of increased commodity prices. Suffice it to say, however, that a "vicious cycle" has started whirling and in the midst of the situation stands a very confused consumer, representative of all of the people in the United States.

There undoubtedly will be an increase in the propaganda concerning living costs again. Indeed, there already is a rather far-flung propaganda which results from the increased cost of living but it is directed rather on a slant and not pointed accurately into the heart of the condition now confronting us.

Undoubtedly a great many people have not thought of the frequent and recurring attacks of business and business practices as having anything to do with the increased living costs. But the truth is that this type of propaganda springs directly from the sporadic cries that are coming from many localities about the higher prices—complaints that the dollar does not go very far in buying food across the grocery counter.

It seems to me that it is time for some calm thinking about this situation. It seems to me further that public officials everywhere ought to be honest enough to analyze the situation and tell the public what the real causes are. If this is not done, there again will be undoubtedly a perfect deluge of propaganda in protest against high living costs and the bulk of the people who suffer from these increased costs will not know the reason any more than they understood the reasons that brought about a counterpart of the present outlook back in 1918 and 1919.

In any examination of an economic condition, one must dig considerably below the surface to find the factors that have operated to bring about the results visible to the eye. Such is certainly the case in the present situation. One does not fairly say that the present high prices in food have just happened. In truth, things never happen; they are brought about. They have been brought about in the present circumstance by factors that date back to 1933 and include numerous governmental policies that have been initiated since that time.

The trained economist will describe present conditions as due to inflation—which indeed they are. But inflation is such an all-inclusive term that the real story lies hidden. So, let us review the things that have happened and trace the present increasing price levels to their real source.

In an effort to spur and encourage production and aid recovery, President Roosevelt devalued the dollar. He reduced its gold value. During 1933 and 1934 there came numerous pieces of legislation including the NRA and the AAA, each designed to foster increased prices and to build up the level of wages for industrial workers.

Subsequently, President Roosevelt sponsored legislation which had as its end an aim federal control of wages for workers. This legislation sought to give the federal government power to force business interests to recognize labor unions and to accept labor union scales of pay—all to the end that labor should be paid a greater percentage of the returns received by business.

There came also legislation designed to increase the price of silver and the United States Treasury was directed by this law to buy millions of ounces of silver and to use that silver in our currency. In the meantime and recurring almost constantly the New Deal administration, maintaining a barrage of attacks on business interests seeking wider employment of labor at increased wages. Coupled with these attacks was violent criticism of banks and bankers. They were charged with being an obstacle to recovery because they were not lending money. It did not matter to the critics that no one wanted to borrow money; the criticisms were continued because loans simply were not being made and no examination of the reason why loans were not being made ever was undertaken.

Next in the chain of events and still continuing came labor troubles. The New Deal avowedly was on the side of labor and against employers. Strikes followed in increasing numbers.

The results of this economic policy are showing. Considered from any angle, one can not fail to see that they constitute a cycle of devaluation, more dollars required to feed a family, more dollars required to buy a house, more dollars in pay for their services, more dollars from the New Deal, more dollars together with labor on the strike weapon forces to pay higher wages.

But business must live, not live unless it gets back to production. Agriculture subsists unless it receives a price for its products that goes ahead unless there is in the shape of a profit, neither agriculture nor industry is going to absorb increased costs alone. The only way it has to meet these expenditures is by higher prices to the buyers of products. Thus, we have a vicious cycle—and the usual, is the goat. The pays and if that consumer in a position to enforce return for the services he he is caught between and nether millionaires. The consumer is fastening himself into the grip of the

In connection with this price level, and the danger of it in the situation credit given to Eccles, of the Federal board of governors, for statement he made a few Mr. Eccles warned the country frankly that the dangers situation where labor clamor for a greater share profits of commerce and and where labor's leaders to take advantage of the employers to protect them.

The Eccles statement is to link labor's position general money market affect labor's position is the country as a whole, referred to the demands of labor leaders for a working 30 hours and while not discarding that theory, he gave very definite impression that hours do not constitute a for our present problem.

"Increased wages and hours," said Mr. Eccles, "will limit or actually reduce production. The public in general is not interested of the workers themselves. When wage increased along to the public, particularly when industries increase prices for increased labor costs, such shortsighted and an index policy from every standpoint."

"Wage increases and hours are justified and desirable when they result in increasing production per hour represent a better distribution of the profits of industry. We retard and restrict production cause price inflation, they throwing the buying power various groups in the economy out of balance, working particular hardship upon the unorganized workers, the rents of fixed incomes and consumers."

"The upward spiral of prices at this time in the world is as disastrous as the downward spiral of deflation. Conditions develop, the great should intervene in the present by taking such action as necessary to correct the abuses."

"The remedy for a price when the country has unemployment, natural resources are, is through more, not production, through an ordered use of these three mental factors and not by a needless, artificial shortage of them."

Thus we have brought relief a criticism of the entering into the present price level. I refer to the shortage in food products resulted from the ridiculous control program that was through AAA. We are now the price for the destruction of 6,000,000 little pigs.

I said at the beginning discussion that a calm examination of the factors involved were in history.

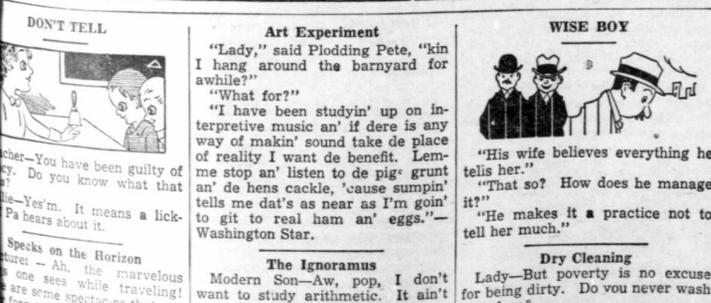

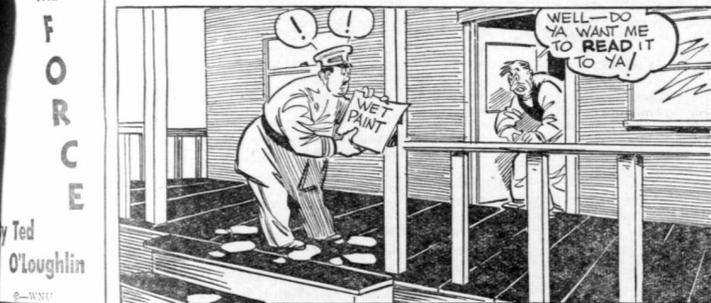

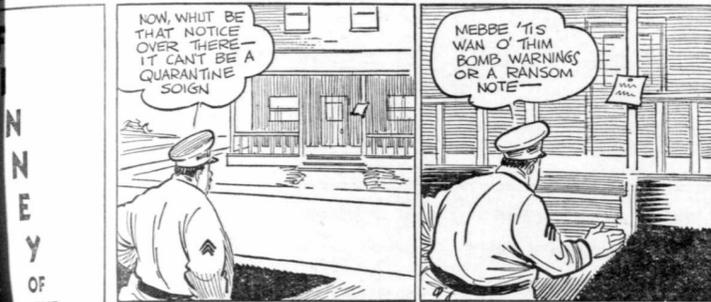

There can be no doubt, the general picture, that the New Deal policies were designed to give the federal government greater control over individual man or woman and that these practices have been beautiful, but quite untheoretical. They were born of a brain trust, of President Roosevelt, and of those who brain trust members for the lack of business acumen. In other words, they were things ought to be done, but consideration natural and the characteristics of human beings.

'AMERICA'S MOST-KISSED MAN' DIES

Richmond Pearson Hobson, the "Man Who Sank the Merrimac," Was Strange Paradox of Hero and Public Heckler.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

REAR ADMIRAL RICHMOND PEARSON HOBSON probably was kissed by more women than any other man who ever lived, and now he is dead.

Admiral Hobson, from the time of his youth, was a paradoxical combination of Frank Merriwell and Sissy Bly. He was to one generation the perpetrator of what may be the most romantic, adventurous and heroic deed ever performed in the service of the American flag. Yet he was to be remembered by the last American generation that knew him as a blue-nosed reformer, a trite flag-waver who nursed a penchant for frightening little children with staggering accounts of foul oriental evils lurking in wait for them at every school corner.

When, in 1889, Hobson was graduated first in his class from the United States Naval academy at Annapolis he was cheered enthusiastically. He was leaving. Most of his classmates hadn't spoken to him for two years. It was one of his duties as a cadet to report the misdemeanors of other cadets; this he had done so expertly and consistently that he was easily the most unpopular cadet in the academy.

He was a crusader from the start. In his post-academy days he attempted to convince the country, through scientific journals, that there was inevitably to be a World war, but he failed to arouse America enough to begin arming for it. The outbreak of the Spanish-American war found him a naval constructor with the rank of Lieutenant, aboard Rear Admiral William Thomas Sampson's flagship, the New York.

Hobson Volunteers. Aboard the New York, young Hobson was crusading for the construction of five unsinkable vessels, and told Admiral Sampson they could be used to sweep the mines from the entrance to Havana harbor. When Sampson told him that he was far more interested in sinking one American ship than building five unsinkable ones, the lieutenant was astounded but offered to do the job anyway. It was in the line of duty.

Sampson had ordered Admiral Schley, who was off Santiago de Cuba, to sink a collier in the narrow channel at the harbor entrance and thus bottle up the Spanish fleet inside. Schley, not believing in the wisdom of the act, ignored the order.

Sampson still favored the idea and, on their way to Santiago, he and Hobson discussed plans for sinking the collier Merrimac on a night in early June when there would be sufficient moonlight for the navigator to place the ship in position, yet there would be an hour or so of darkness between moonset and daybreak. Torpedoes abreast the bulkheads and cargo hatches were to be fired by an electric primer to sink the craft.

The entire American fleet received the call for volunteers to accompany Hobson. This was no child's play. With the exception of Admiral Sampson, there was hardly a soul aboard the New York who believed the emergency crew would return alive. Yet hundreds offered to go.

Seven were taken: Francis Charrette, Daniel Montague, Francis Kelly, Randolph Clausen, Osborn W. Deignan, J. E. Murphy and George F. Phillips. Hobson also took along an American flag, to be unfurled at the proper moment, just as the Merrimac was starting her dive toward Davy Jones' locker.

A Motley Crew. The flag was never unfurled, for just about the time for the unfurling, there were shot and shell popping all around our hero's ears and there was little room for tradition. Even at the outset, the odds were perhaps against the Merrimac's ever getting to the narrow part of the channel. She had to steam right under the nose of the Morro Castle fortification and the great battery behind it. The Spanish gunners' aim was notoriously rotten, but at such close range!

A weird looking crew they were as the collier got under way at 1:30 a. m., June 4, 1898. Their apparel consisted of long underwear, two pairs of socks each, life preservers, cartridge belts and revolvers. Just as if a Hollywood scenarist had written it, there popped from nowhere the inevitable stowaway. It was Clausen, who had not been chosen, but came of his own accord. It was a brave gesture and Hobson, after reprimanding him, permitted him to continue.

Hobson's plan was to cruise to within 2,000 yards of the channel, then order full speed ahead (for here they were almost certain to be discovered and fired upon) until there were only 200 yards left to go. Here the engines would be shut off and the Merrimac allowed to coast into the channel, where it would be sunk. Any of the crew who survived the sinking were to swim to a life boat astern or to a catamaran (raft) brought along as a last resort.

At the outset Hobson, speaking in the dime novel hero fashion which was to characterize his countless public orations in later life, exclaimed, "Charette, lad, we're going to make it tonight! There is no power under heaven that can keep us out the channel!"

He was talking through his hat. The Merrimac proceeded, apparently without the Spaniards' notice, to 300 yards from the channel, when a Spanish picket boat began firing at its rudder without success. Then the first of the land batteries opened and as the collier neared its objective more batteries joined the firing.

Aid from the Enemy.

One projectile tore the pilothouse completely off the Merrimac. By some miracle, no one was injured, although Hobson and Deignan were inside it at the time. But the steering gear was gone and they could no longer control the ship. Exploding shells destroyed the connections with the torpedoes and they were unable to sink it where they wanted to.

They began to realize that the Spanish gunners might accomplish their purpose for them, and sure enough, after a few direct hits and after striking a few mines, the Merrimac began to settle to the bottom. But it was not sinking fast enough to go down before it had drifted past the narrow channel where it would have trapped the Spanish fleet.

Unable to pursue his plans for the flag, young Hobson decided to amuse himself by feeling his pulse, and despite the shot and shell he found it normal. "If anything, more phlegmatic than usual," he later wrote.

In another few minutes the Spanish cruiser Reina Mercedes and the destroyer Pluton let fly with two torpedoes at such close range that even Spaniards couldn't miss, and down went the Merrimac to her watery grave. The eight men, two of them wounded, went down, too—and came right back up again.

Rescued by Spanish Admiral.

His lifeboat had been shattered, so they swam to the catamaran, hanging on with only their heads above water so they were less likely to be spotted. But they were, after an hour and a half in the cold water, found by a launch containing no less a person than Admiral Cervera of the Spanish fleet.

They were treated gently. Cervera himself helped Hobson aboard. The latter and his men were given hot coffee and dry clothes. Hobson was even then melodramatic in speech. "Oh, God," he exclaimed, perhaps twirling his mustachios which curled romantically two inches from either side of his lip, "has life ever gone through such a fire and never a man lost!"

The Spaniards, hearing that not a man was lost, and having rescued only eight, were dumfounded and were doubly dumfounded when Hobson told them that he had been trying harder than they had to sink the Merrimac. Hobson and his men became heroes, even to the Spaniards, and were treated with every courtesy, although they were imprisoned in Morro Castle. When Cervera visited him in his cell, decked out in an admiral's full dress splendor, Hobson struck an attitude and declared, "All chivalry is not yet dead!"

After a few weeks Hobson and all of his men were traded back to the American navy for the release of an equal number of Spanish prisoners. Their welcome was one which befitted them as heroes, and from that moment until his death, Richmond Pearson Hobson was to bask in the reflected glory of his adventure with the Merrimac. His seven aides were soon given the congressional medal of honor, but Hobson, being an officer, could not receive it. He was finally presented with it by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933.

Arriving back in New York, Hobson was mobbed by hero-worshippers. Wherever he went, they sang after him:

"Mr. Hobson, Mr. Hobson, You're a dandy, you're a peach, And the brightest blooming pebble That is shining on the beach."

One woman threw her arms about him and kissed him. This started a craze which greeted him wherever he went, for he was a handsome devil and a hero. One newspaper reported that in Kansas City alone 417 women kissed him at the railroad station. At Topeka it was reported that at least 200 women kissed him, indicating that perhaps the prairies are not so dry, after all. He didn't object much.

Hobson Becomes Reformer.

But women soon began forgetting to kiss him, and the newspapers began to forget he existed. After rising rapidly in the ranks of the navy, his eyes went bad while he was serving in China. He applied for retirement on a pension, but did not get it, so resigned from the service.

Here began the second phase of his life. He became a crusader in earnest, first to make America mistress of the seas by getting congress to appropriate funds for a navy equal to the combined total of all the other navies in the world. He used as his principal excuse the charge that Japan was preparing to attack us, and was one of the first to bring up the Japanese war scare, trying to get both political parties to acknowledge it in their platforms in 1912. He was exquisitely vague in the evidence he presented, and prone to exaggeration as he was in later campaigns against the demon rum and the drug evil. He made over 1,000 speeches in behalf of his naval building program.

He was continually worrying congress for legislation prohibiting the sale of alcohol, and as a representative from Alabama, he was the first to introduce a prohibition amendment into congress. He soon became the most prominent figure in the prohibition drive. He told congress, "I cannot look upon the saloon otherwise than as an assassin" and "the result of all averages and estimates known showed it (alcohol) to be the greatest single cause of death."

Congress Turns Him Down.

Once the prohibition amendment was passed, Admiral Hobson took up "dope"—that is, he took up the fight against the drug evil. He asserted that there were a million addicts, many of them children. He tried to have congress print and distribute 50,000,000 copies of a pamphlet warning children of the untreatable tortures that might await them if ever they took the invitation of a stranger to "eat, drink or sniff" anything. A federal expert, called in, testified that there were at the very most, 150,000 addicts in the country. Practically none of them children. He testified:

"I think the direct effect of the article would be to create a certain number of cases of severe neurosis and insanity and a certain number of cases of addiction by reason of the psychopath will want this new sensation. . . . Some of the statements about the number of addicts are simply absurd; the opium does not exist to supply them."

Congress refused to print the pamphlet. But Admiral Hobson continued his crusading, and at the time of his death from a heart attack on March 16, 1937, at the age of sixty-six, he was still starting associations to prohibit something or other, or to secure some sort of legislation. Among them were the International Narcotic Education association, the World Conference on Narcotic Education, the World Narcotic Defense association, the Public Welfare association (and American Clearing House), and if that one doesn't stop you, the Constitutional Democracy association.

Don't Sleep When Gas Presses Hard

If you want to really GET RID OF GAS and terrible bloating, don't expect to do it by just doctoring your stomach with harsh, irritating alkalies and "gas tablets". Most GAS is lodged in the stomach and upper intestine and is due to old poisonous matter in the constipated bowels that are loaded with ill-causing bacteria.

If your constipation is of long standing, enormous quantities of dangerous bacteria accumulate. Then your digestion is upset. GAS often presses heart and lungs, making life miserable.

You can't eat or sleep. Your head aches. Your back aches. Your complexion is sallow and pimply. Your breath is foul. You are a sick, grouchy, wretched unhappy person. YOUR SYSTEM IS POISONED.

County Agent Notes

WHO SENT IN THE ORDER FOR APPLE TREES?

An order for apple trees sent recently to the Southeastern Wisconsin Fruit Growers Cooperative, Waukesha, and which was not signed by the person sending the order has been returned to the county agent's office for identification. The party sending in this order obtained the order blank from the county agent's office, and placed the following order for two year old apple trees, namely: two Snow, 2 McIntosh, 2 Talsman Sweet, 2 Jonathans, 2 Winesaps.

Will the person who sent this order please contact the county agent's office so that he may learn whose order it was.

BUY HYBRID SEED CORN NOW
Farmers wishing to purchase hybrid seed corn are advised to do so in the very near future. Because of the unusually heavy demand for it, there is very little unseed seed available. The price ranges from $10.00 per bushel upward.

FARM MANAGEMENT MEETING
The farm management meeting held on Tuesday afternoon was well attended. Professor I. F. Hall of the college of agriculture gave Washington county farmers worthwhile suggestions as to ways of improving their farm income.
These suggestions were based upon the experiences of many farmers from all sections of the state whose farming practices were analyzed by the Farm Management Department of the College of Agriculture.

DAIRY HERD ASSOCIATIONS
All of the Washington County Dairy Herd Improvement associations have memberships of twenty-five or more herds. The northeastern Washington county association recently organized now has 27 herds testing nearly 600 milk cows. The herds belonging to Ed.
Westerman, Kewaskum, Clarence Bin-
gen, Kewaskum, and T. W. Salter, Jackson, were tested for the first time during the month of March.

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEEMEN EX-PLAIN FARM PROGRAM
Township agricultural conservation committeemen of Washington county met at the soil conservation office on Monday, March 29th, to receive instructions from the county committee and county agent E. E. Skalsky relative to the administration of the payments to be received from participation in the agricultural conservation program. Township committeemen will visit farmers in the next few days and explain the program to farmers and assist them in planning their seedings and crops to be grown so that each farm may receive maximum benefits.
Under the present set-up every farm in the county can receive certain payments by participation in the program.

ADAPTED LEGUME SEED
Farmers of Washington county who wish to qualify under the conservation program for seedling payments are cautioned to purchase only such legume seed as is adapted to this latitude. Foreign seed except Canadian seed, and seed from all southern states is considered unadapted and no soil building allowances will be paid for the planting of such unadapted seed. Seed from the following states has been approved as adaptable for Wisconsin: Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois,
Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky,
Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South
Dakota, Utah, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin, Wyoming, and Canada.

Farmers purchasing seed of unknown origin should secure a dealers statement as to the source of origin of the seed.

STATE DAIRYMEN'S CONVENTION
Oshkosh—With attention centering upon the improvement of dairy herds to further distinguish the dairy industry of this state, the Wisconsin Dairymen's association concluded its 65th and perhaps most successful annual convention here last week.

The Dairy Day banquet drew the greatest attendance in the association's history. Exactly 1,108 persons participated in that feast and were served dairy products in which the equivalent of 11,174 pounds of milk was used. It would take well over two years for the average dairy cow to produce that amount of milk.

Following the banquet, Governor La Follette paid tribute to the "intelligent leadership" which launched the successful movement in 1872 to build up dairying to face the future with the same vision and courage that inspired the organization of their association, and that the attention paid to the production of quality products be continually increased.

TEMPERATURE FOR BROODERS
Look to your chicks if you want the proper brooder stove temperature, for a chick can tell best when the brooding temperature is correct.

So suggests J. B. Hayes, extension poultryman of the college of agriculture. He finds that temperature will vary with individual chicks and conditions and for that reason there is no thermometer reading that will meet with approval from all chicks in a lot.

Several things may have an influence upon the temperature needed by a given lot of chicks. Such things as the amount of litter on the floor which serves as insulation; the distance between the location of the thermometer in the brooder house, as well as the vitality,

Notice is hereby given that a Judicial and School Superintendent Election is to be held in the several towns, wards, villages and election precincts in the county of Washington, on the sixth day of April, 1937, at which the officers named below are to be chosen. The names of the candidates for each office to be voted for, whose nominations have been certified to or filed in this office, are given under the title of the office and under the appropriate party or other designation, each in its proper column, in the sample ballot below.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS
The following instructions are given for the information and guidance of voters:

(a) Securing Ballot. A voter upon entering the polling place and giving his name and residence, will receive a ballot from the ballot clerk which must have endorsed thereon the names or initials of both ballot clerks, and no other ballot can be used. Upon receiving his ballot, the voter must retire alone to a booth or compartment and prepare the same for voting. A ballot clerk may inform the voter as to the proper manner of marking a ballot, but he must not advise or indicate in any manner whom to vote for.

(b) Marking Ballot. The voter will make a cross or mark in the square to the right of the name of each candidate he wishes to vote for, or, if he wishes, if it be not there. If a ballot be spoiled, it must be returned to the ballot clerk, who must issue another in its stead, but not more than all shall be issued to any one voter. Five minutes' time is allowed to mark ballots. Unofficial ballots or memorandum to assist in marking his ballot can be taken into the booth, and may be used to the ballot must not be shown so that any person can see how it is marked by the voter.

(c) Voting Ballot. After it is marked the ballot should be folded so the inside cannot be seen, but so that the printed endorsement and name of the ballot clerks on the outside may be seen. Then the voter should out of the booth or compartment, give his name to the inspector in charge of the ballot box, hand him his ballot to be placed in the ballot box out of the voting place.

(d) Disabled Voters. A voter, who declares to the presiding officer he is unable to read, or that by reason of physical disability he is unable to mark his ballot, can have assistance of two election officers in making to be chosen by the voter; and if he declares that he is totally blind he may be assisted by any person chosen by him from among the legal voters of the county. The presiding officer may administer an oath in his discretion as to the person's disability.

Hayes cautions against overheating of attempted kindness, more chicks are actually killed than from chilling inother forms of cannibalism. One may, however, run the brooder stove tem-
