BEN C. BACKHAUS DIES AT HOSPITAL

One of the saddest and most pitiful incidents that could occur in a family circle which was very happy and contented just a short while ago, happened yesterday, Thursday, April 8, at St. Joseph's Community hospital, West Bend, when Bernhard C. Backhaus, aged 54, better known as Ben, who resided in the town of Kewaskum, on a farm just southwest of the village, quietly passed away in eternal slumber after an illness of 2 1/2 weeks with lobar pneumonia. The pity of it all is realized in that his death came just nine days after that of his beloved wife, whose obituary was published just last week in the Statesman. Her demise came at her home after an illness of three years with a complication of diseases, and now, her husband's sorrowful departure leaves three young children, the oldest 14 years, to struggle by themselves in this world, against the cruel blow which providence dealt them.

Mr. Backhaus was taken sick about 2 1/2 weeks ago and, being seriously ill, he was removed to the hospital. There he was confined all during the time of his wife's death and burial, fighting against greater odds. For a time he rallied and it was believed he could recover, but during the past few days he steadily sank and each second drew the time closer for death to take its toll, until finally he died at 12:30 a. m. Thursday.

The deceased was born on October 31, 1883, in the town of Kewaskum. He came to his present home in the same township 22 years ago, following his marriage to Louisa Johanna Nienow on Oct. 30, 1915, which took place in the Kirchayn church, town of Jackson.

As previously mentioned his deceased wife died nine days ago, on Mar. 30, and was buried on April 2. The three surviving daughters who mourn the loss of their father and mother are Irene 14, Lucille 10, and Lillian 5. Mr. Backhaus also leaves one brother, Christian, of the town of Kewaskum, and two sisters, Emma (Mrs. Louis Schaefer) of this village, and Adela (Mrs. Albert Fischer) of Woodland, Wis.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday, April 11, at 2:00 p. m. from Miller's Funeral Home to the St. Lucas Ev. Luth. church. Rev. Gerhard Kanless will officiate. Burial will take place in the congregation's cemetery.

Ben, as he was intimately known, was a quiet, uncomplaining, home-loving christian man. Work filled his life and the care and love of those who depended on him was uppermost in his mind. His unassuming nature, unlike our complaining fellowmen, made him admired and free from an enemy. His memory will be long cherished by his children and other bereaved survivors to whom we extend our sincerest condolences.

The pupils of the lower grades were excused from their classes on Monday and Tuesday because of the illness of their teacher, Sister Generosa.

The Christian Mothers will sponsor a card party on Tuesday evening, April 13. All popular games will be played and cash prizes awarded. Lunch will be served.

Albion, Genevieve and Joan Lehnner accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Joe Areutz of Barton to Milwaukee on Sunday where they spent the day with the Louis Eschweiler family.

BASKETBALL BANQUET AND DANCE AT SCHWARTZ

The Land o' Lakes and Land o' Rivers basketball leagues, the Kewaskum team a member of the former, will wind up a very successful season with mammoth banquet and dance at the Schwartz Ballroom, Hartford, next Tuesday evening, April 13.

The banquet will start at 7 p. m. and all the trophies and awards of the season will be given out to the winners of the four divisions of the two leagues. Kewaskum will receive a trophy and each player will get a silver medal for winning second place. Lyle Gibson of the local team and Bill Ritter of Cedarburg will receive trophies for being the highest scorers in the northern division of the Land o' Lakes league.

ENTERTAINMENT FOR LADIES
The banquet will be for the men only, including the many players, managers, team officers and directors. During the banquet high class entertainment will be provided for the wives and lady friends separately in another department of the Schwartz, which is sure to be greatly enjoyed.

FAMOUS GUESTS TO BE PRESENT
Director of the leagues, Martin C. Weber of Merton was very fortunate in getting George Downer of the University of Wisconsin as guest speaker at the banquet. Other notable to be present are "Zip" Morgan, athletic director for the city of Milwaukee, Coach Earl Lampe and Art. Bucke, the highest football scorer in the United States for 1936, of Carroll college.

PUBLIC INVITED TO DANCE
Then, at 9 o'clock, the dancing will start, to which the public is cordially invited. Two popular orchestras will play. Freddy Jones and his famous orchestra will furnish the modern music and Skipper Leone and her Deck Hands old time music. Tickets are being sold for the dance by all the basketball boys for 30c in advance. Buy two and enjoy a real evening of entertainment with all your friends. The basketball players and fans from over 25 teams will be present along with many other dancers. It will be one of the largest athletic get-togethers ever held in the state. Each team will share in the profits. Remember, the Schwartz, next Tuesday evening.

Home That the Duke of Windsor May Lease

There are reports in Baltimore that the Duke of Windsor is negotiating a lease on this home of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner A. Parker on the Falls road, in the picturesque Green Spring valley where Wallis Warfield Simpson spent many happy days during her childhood.

BEAT ME STUPID by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER RABBIT had been very much excited when he had seen poor, helpless Mrs. Grouse carried away by Farmer Brown's boy.

"What Did I Tell You?" Said Sammy With a Wicked Chuckle.

had been picked up and carried off Peter hadn't known what to think. Somehow he felt quite sure that no harm would come to her, for ever since he had seen Tommy Tit the Chickadee eat from the hand of Farmer Brown's boy, Peter had thought more kindly of him.

Black and pink are effectively combined in this tiny felt breton. It is black on top with a fillet and facing of pink. The suit is sheer black woolen made with a knife pleated skirt and having a blouse of pink crepe. Pink suede gloves are worn with it.

KNOW THYSELF by Dr. George D. Greer

SOME women seem to "feel bad" all the time, and popular opinion has it that women, in general, feel this way more than do men; but the findings of scientists show just the opposite. A study of 413

No, he couldn't believe that any harm was going to come to Mrs. Grouse and he said as much to every one who repeated to him the dreadful, false story Sammy Jay had told of how Mrs. Grouse had been killed and taken home by Farmer Brown's boy for his dinner.

Every day Sammy Jay hunted up Peter, and said unpleasant things. "What did I tell you?" said Sammy with a wicked chuckle. "What did I tell you, Peter Rabbit? If Mrs. Grouse hasn't been killed and eaten, where is she? What has become of her? Tell me that!"

Of course Peter couldn't. It was what he wanted to know himself. All he could say was "I don't believe it, and you haven't any business to tell such dreadful stories when you don't know any more about it than I do; so there, Sammy Jay!"

RENOVATING OLD FLOORS

A WELL made floor, properly finished and kept in good condition, is an asset to a house, and contributes greatly to its appearance. On the other hand, floors that are in poor condition, rough and worn, give an air of shabbiness to a house and its furnishings.

a harsh, unpleasant laugh. It always tickles him to tease Peter and make him feel uncomfortable. And Peter did feel uncomfortable. You see, in spite of himself, that little doubt kept growing and growing. He just couldn't help it. Peter wouldn't harm anybody for the world, and he wouldn't bring harm to anybody, not even to Reddy or Old Granny Fox unless it was to save his own life and yet he has reason enough to wish them harm, for they had given him enough terrible frights to have made any kind of bad wish excusable.

BY NOW, if you have been reading the preceding lessons attentively, and have made practical application of the principles outlined, you will have found the foregoing uncanny in its disclosures of power and purpose. For these two qualities of the personality are here, perhaps, more definitely indicated than in any other major element of the hand.

THE PAINSTAKING FINGER OF JUPITER. Until one has learned to differentiate the characteristics found in this element of hand-study, there is a tendency to confuse this type with the Overcautious Finger of Jupiter described in Lesson 25. In both these types the outstanding feature is the irregularity of the finger itself and its decided bend toward the second finger.

The painstaking type, however, is indicated by length that is far greater than that of the overcautious forefinger. Also its inclination toward the second finger is much less angular. The joints are knotty, which gives the finger its irregular contour, and the space between the nail joint and the nail tip is often of quite unusual length.

A forefinger of this type often has the thumb lying close to it, even when the hand is widely extended, a characteristic which emphasizes the indications of slow but sure thoroughness.

The man or woman with this type of forefinger is sure to be scrupulously exact in all matters intrusted to his or her care. And while initiative may seem to be lacking, perseverance and clear thinking may be counted upon to compensate for what otherwise would be a real deficiency in the personality.

undergraduates recently showed that the "euphoria" (feeling of well-being) among the women was considerably above that of the man. It was also found that the women got about an hour more sleep daily than the men and that the men who got eight hours or more sleep daily had a much higher average of feeling well than those who got less than eight hours' sleep.

SOMEWHERE THE ROSES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE woods will soon be full of flowers. Blossoms that never will be ours. Chained to the city by some duty. But I am glad that there is beauty in this old world, however far From all things beautiful we are.

And I have never been so sad That one thought has not made me glad: That in the world were fairer places, And in the world were happier faces, Whatever griefs may overcome Myself, it is not so with some. Somewhere the woods are full of roses, Someone at night in peace reposes, Somewhere the world is very best, If not for me, then for the rest.

More than 2,000,000 babies graduate to a bottle diet of cow's milk every year. Every day nearly 6,000 youngsters enter the ranks of consumers. Will they use dairy products for only a few years, or for a lifetime? That depends upon how good milk seems to them, and how thoroughly it is sold to them. Aided by progressive dairy producers, Borden's service and research have developed methods for keeping in the final products all the goodness of the original milk. Every dairy farmer can be proud of his part in this achievement. At the same time, Borden's salesmanship has kept before consumers of all ages, the story of the benefits of milk. All of this joint effort has contributed much to making milk and dairy products America's most important foods.

Franco Combating Revolt in Spanish Fascist Army— Developments in Labor Situation—President's Farm Purchase Plan Opposed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

GENERAL FRANCO'S revolution in Spain, already checked by serious defeats on both the northern and the southern fronts, was further embarrassed by spreading revolt among the Fascist troops. His agents uncovered the plot and numerous arrests were speedily followed by numerous executions by firing squads. The mutiny first broke out in Spanish Morocco, and Franco himself hurried there by plane. There were persistent reports that 1,000 Italian soldiers had landed at Ceuta and were being used to crush the mutiny. This was denied by the Fascist high commissioner of Morocco.

More than 100 high-ranking officers, most of them belonging to the air force, were said to have been implicated in the plot which was seemingly well laid in all parts of Spanish Morocco and the southern tip of European Spain. Government troops were said to be pushing back toward Cordoba the Fascist forces which were trying to break through for capture of the rich coal and mineral territory about Pozoblanco. The insurgent army there, alleged to include 10,000 Italians and Germans, was in danger of being surrounded and annihilated.

Great Britain and France officially warned Franco that they would no longer tolerate the stopping and searching of British and French merchant vessels by his warships. DEADLOCK over a new wage agreement brought about a walkout of soft coal miners in the Pennsylvania and West Virginia fields and its spread to other fields was certain unless the controversy was settled. The mine operators and officials of the United Mine Workers of America have been long in negotiation, with John L. Lewis dictating the stand taken by the latter. Edward F. McGrady, assistant secretary of labor, was trying hard to help bring about a settlement and kept the White House informed of developments. Maintenance men were ordered to stand by in the mines, but about 400,000 men quit work.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT discussed the labor situation with Secretary Perkins and Sidney Hillman, chief organizer of the C. I. O. drive to unionize the textile workers. Hillman told him he was hopeful the problems of the textile industry could be settled by co-operation and arbitration, and it was reported that he promised the textile workers would not attempt to use the sit-down strike. Senator Wagner of New York delivered an address in the senate on the sit-down strike situation, charging that the blame of it rested on a few giant corporations which, he said, have "hamstrung" the labor relations board by invoking injunctions in the courts and "who have openly banded together to defy" the labor relations law.

Deriding the call for new federal legislation to meet the crisis, Senator Wagner declared that "the lack of power in the federal government to enforce the labor relations act and not any weakness in existing law is the root cause for the present economic warfare." Representative Martin Dies of Texas appeared before the house rules committee and urged action on his resolution for a congressional investigation of the strike situation. He again called upon the President to intervene and pointed to section 829 of the revised United States statutes as giving the chief executive authority to take action in the event of such an occurrence as the Chrysler strike. The continued silence of the President on the issue is "ominous," Representative Charles L. Gifford of Massachusetts told the house. He warned the President against the rise to power of John L. Lewis. Negotiations for settlement of the General Motors strike were progressing slowly, and officials of the corporation said that 10,000 employees were idle in four plants because of strikes in Pontiac and Flint, Mich.

UNDER pressure from his advisers to take a public stand concerning the sit-down strike, President Roosevelt immediately after his return from Warm Springs held a conference with Vice President Garner, Senate Majority Leader Joe Robinson, Speaker Bankhead and House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn. At its close Senator Robinson, presumably voicing Mr. Roosevelt's views, said: "The government cannot initiate action under the circumstances thus far presented. It is felt that the sit-down strike situation in a general sense is improving.

How Puritans, Pilgrims Differed in Early Days During the sixteenth century the name Puritan was applied in England to all persons who urged a reform in the ritual of the established church. They were so-called because, as they expressed it, they wanted to "purify" the church, says a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. The Pilgrims, as they styled themselves, were named Separatists, so called because they had separated themselves from the Church of England and wished to maintain a distinct organization. These formed the Plymouth colony, which settled in New England in 1620. In 1623 another company of Puritans came out and formed the Massachusetts Bay colony. These claimed to be members of the Church of England, and to have no desire to separate from that body, but to be unable conscientiously to conform to the established ritual.

"There are two conditions under which federal action may be invoked in case of acute strike conditions; namely where federal laws have been violated or where federal property, including the mails, is interfered with. "Unless one of these conditions exists, federal intervention or action, under the Constitution and decision of the courts, is not warranted. "The second condition is cases where state authorities, under the federal law, ask the services of federal agencies in the preservation of law and order and in the prevention of violence. "Neither condition has so far arisen. Except in instances where interstate commerce is interfered with, where a federal law is disregarded, the federal government does not, and cannot under the Constitution, initiate action."

SEVEN Democrats joined the six Republicans on the house agriculture committee and disapproved the President's proposal to allot $50,000,000 to assist farm tenants to buy farms on easy credit terms. This majority of the committee objected to the program because it would put the government into the real estate business. The proposition is contained in one section of the farm tenant bill and would authorize the secretary of agriculture to buy farms for resale to tenants on terms that would give them as long as 45 years to pay. The interest rate would be 3 per cent. Sponsors of the measure probably will try to get it through the senate, and after house refusal to agree it would then go to conference.

Only the day before the President had given out his farm tenancy program as follows: 1. Continuation of rehabilitation loans, most of which would go to people living on land which the government believes can be made to pay. 2. Purchase of submarginal land so that it can be taken out of cultivation and put into timber or grasses. 3. Federal purchase of land for resettlement of families taken off submarginal land and purchase of tenant farms to give tenants a chance to own the land they are tilling.

SENATOR GEORGE NORRIS of Nebraska is intent on his plan for the creation of a national power authority similar to the Tennessee Valley authority, and he intends to introduce a bill for this during the present session of congress. This he announced after conferring with the President, and he intimated the idea was approved by Mr. Roosevelt. He has experts at work investigating its feasibility and mapping out the details. "All rivers of the United States should be controlled by the nation if their nature is subject to it by national flood control policy," the senator said. "Whenever the river will develop power, we should take advantage of it. I've always regarded power as a subsidiary or by-product of flood control."

A LINK with a past era was broken by the death in Washington of Mrs. Robert Todd Lincoln at the age of ninety years. She was the daughter-in-law of President Lincoln and the mother and grandmother of his only living descendants, Mrs. Charles Isham, Mrs. Jessie Randolph and their three children. Mrs. Lincoln was the daughter of James Harlan, who was a senator from Iowa and later secretary of the interior. In 1868 she married Robert Todd Lincoln, the martyred President's son. In the administrations of Presidents Garfield and Arthur her husband served as secretary of war, and under President Benjamin Harrison, he served as minister to England. Afterward he was general counsel and then president of the Pullman company.

DICTATOR JOSEPH STALIN of Russia, in his official capacity as secretary of the central committee of the Communist party, demands a new purge of the party, so we probably will read soon of another mass execution of hundreds under arrest. "I think it is clear," said Stalin, "that the present wreckers and diversionists—no matter whether they have masked themselves under the flag of Trotskyism or Bukharinism—have lost their influence in the worker's movement and have become simply an unprincipled and idealless band of professional wreckers, diversionists, spies and murderers. "It is quite clear these gentlemen should be destroyed, exterminated mercilessly as enemies of the working class and enemies of our country."

Book Affected People "Robinson Crusoe," when first published, had the effect of inspiring manliness in solitude and of pouring healing on the artificialities of the bewigged and powdered social life of that day. There was a regular factory of "Robinsonaden" in Germany. It is prototype, the "Swiss Family Robinson" almost rivaled its popularity, and an edition of "Robinson Crusoe" for juvenile consumption passed through 120 editions in 20 years.

ACCORDING to a survey made for the Corn Belt Farm Dairies, an increasing share of domestic meat requirements is coming from European countries and Canada, at the expense of American live stock producers. Imports of pork from Poland early in March were running at record high levels, while increased shipments were unloaded at New York from Denmark, Lithuania, Italy, Hungary, Holland, Germany, Estonia, Czechoslovakia, Canada, and Argentina. The United States in normal times supplies Europe with meat, the farm papers pointed out. "It must be obvious that through restricted production and reciprocal tariff agreements we have adopted policies in this country that have opened our doors to the importation of meats in substantial volume," the survey commented.

THREE famous Americans, with their aides, will represent the United States at the coronation of King George VI of Great Britain in Westminster Abbey May 12. They were selected by President Roosevelt and are: James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany; special ambassador; Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the A. E. F. in the war, and Admiral Hugh Rodman, U. S. N. retired, special representatives. Curtis Bok of Philadelphia will be secretary of mission. Col. James L. Collins will be aid to Gen. Pershing, and Commander Frank E. Beatty will be aid to Admiral Rodman.

The battleship New York, flagship of the Sixth battle squadron with the grand fleet in British waters during the World war, will participate in the international naval review off Spithead on May 20. THREE New Deal acts of legislation were upheld by the Supreme court in decisions that indicated that tribunal was becoming almost liberal enough to suit the administration. Two of them were unanimous. The third and most significant was rendered by five of the justices, with four dissenting. This last opinion was given in the case of the Washington state law establishing a minimum wage for women and the court reversed its position taken a year ago in upsetting similar legislation passed by the New York legislature. Justice Owen J. Roberts had swung over to the other side, and Justices Sutherland, Butler, McReynolds and Van Devanter dissented from the present judgment, declaring that "the meaning of the Constitution does not change with the ebb and flow of economic events." This was a slap at the majority opinion, which was read by Chief Justice Hughes.

The court unanimously upheld the provisions of the railway labor act requiring railroads to engage in collective bargaining with their employees for the purpose of settling labor disputes. The opinion was read by Justice Stone and was closely studied by leaders of the administration who hoped to glean from it an indication of what the court might decide concerning the Wagner labor relations act, now in litigation. The Wagner act does not apply to railway workers. The decision was handed down in the case of the Virginian Railway company and upheld a ruling by the Fourth circuit court of appeals directing the company to engage in collective bargaining. The Supreme court also upheld the constitutionality of the new Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act. The decision, read by Justice Louis D. Brandeis, whose opinion condemned the earlier Frazier-Lemke act, was unanimous. The law was passed to replace a similar statute which the court held unconstitutional in the spring of 1935.

SENATORS, some fifteen in number, who have not committed themselves on the President's bill to enlarge the Supreme court, are earnestly trying to bring about a compromise that would enable them to go along with Mr. Roosevelt without laying themselves open to charges of supporting a plan to pack the court. Several compromise measures have been devised, one of which is that of Senator Carl Hatch of New Mexico, a Democrat and a member of the judiciary committee that is holding hearings on the administration bill. Mr. Hatch proposes to modify the President's bill so that no more than two additional justices could be appointed in any one year. Furthermore, it would provide for a flexible court with a membership varying between fifteen and nine judges. The additional appointments, made upon the failure of justices past 70 to retire, would not become permanent increases. They would be offset by failure to fill an equal number of vacancies caused by subsequent retirements. Further witnesses for the opposition, appearing before the judiciary committee, included Dr. Irving Griswold, professor of constitutional law at Harvard; Dorothy Thompson, prominent journalist; Walter F. Dods of Chicago, constitutional authority, and Dean Henry M. Bates of the Michigan university law school.

MILWAUKEE—County boards of 18 counties have rejected proposals to make use of the state's $1,000,000 drought relief fund. Those of three others have approved the program. Forty-one counties are eligible to loans under the plan. The drought relief fund law provides that the state lend funds through relief committees to the counties, which in turn would lend to individual farmers. Should farmers fail to repay, the state would secure itself by deducting the sum in default from the liquor tax due cities, villages and towns in the county. Thus, the county would be responsible for the loan.

MADISON—The present average price of milk cows—$73 a head—is the highest reported for Wisconsin since December, 1930, the state and federal crop reporting service announced. The present price, the service said, averages $4 above that of a year ago and $25 more than that paid following the 1934 drought.

TWIN SECRETS OF FINE PASTRY

Light Hand and Good Oven Are of First Importance.

By EDITH M. BARBER

ALTHOUGH we do not make our pies by the dozen, it is time saving to make pastry enough for several at one time. Pastry which has been allowed to stand in the refrigerator is easier to roll than when it is freshly mixed. You can easily handle two or three times the standard recipe when you cut or rub in the shortening. If you have cold hands you may use the latter easier method. If your hands are warm, results if you cut the shortening in with two knives or chop it in a wooden bowl with a double-bladed chopping knife. The shortening, by the way, must be cold, and so must the water which is added later.

The addition of water is one of the most important points in pastry making. Make a hole at one side of the bowl, pour in a tablespoonful of water and draw in as much flour with a stiff knife as it will absorb. Repeat this process until you have several balls of dough. Then take your fingers and form into one mass using the unminced flour and fat also. If necessary you may add a few more drops of water. Be careful not to get your pastry too wet, because additional flour does not blend well and is likely to produce tough pastry.

When you are ready to roll your pastry use a lightly floured board or an unglazed enamel table top or marble slab. Pastry should be rolled lightly from the center in each direction. It should be lifted after each rolling. When you have a thin sheet a little larger than the pan it should be lifted carefully into the pan if you are planning to make a two-crust pie. It should be pressed close to the edges. Before filling with fruit sprinkle with a mixture of one tablespoon of flour and one tablespoon of sugar. The fruit should be piled high on the lower crust, the edge of which should be moistened before it is covered with the top crust. The two crusts should be pressed together firmly and then cut neatly with the scissors. They may then be pressed with the tines of a fork or may be bound with an extra strip of crust. There should be several slits in the top crust to allow the steam of the cooking fruit to escape.

In days when housewife qualities were judged severely one of the greatest compliments which could be paid a woman was to state that she had a light hand with pastry.

Pastry. 1 1/2 cups flour 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 cup fat Cold water Sift together the flour and salt. Cut in the fat with two case knives. For a large quantity a wooden bowl and a chopping knife may be used. When fine, add at one side of the bowl one tablespoon of cold water and stir in as much of the flour and fat as the water will take up. Continue this until you have four or five balls of dough and some dry flour left in the bowl. Press together with your fingers. If all the dry flour is not taken up add a little more water. Chill and roll.

Apple Pie. 5 or 6 apples 1/2 cup sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon 1 tablespoon butter Pare, core and slice the apples. Mix the sugar, salt and cinnamon. Line a pan with pastry, sprinkle with a tablespoon of sugar mixed with 1 tablespoon of flour and add the apples and sugar in layers. Dot with butter, cover with an upper crust, and bake in hot oven, 450 degrees Fahrenheit, for ten minutes, then lower the temperature to 375 degrees Fahrenheit and bake until the apples are soft. This way of arranging the filling may be used for all fruit pies.

Lemon Filling. 3 egg yolks 1 can condensed milk (sweetened). Juice of 3 lemons Grated rind of 1 1/2 lemons 3 egg whites 6 tablespoons sugar Beat egg yolks, add milk, lemon juice and rind and mix well. Pour in filling on baked pastry shell. Cover with a meringue made by beating the egg whites and adding the sugar. Bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, just until the meringue is delicately brown. Chill two to three hours in the refrigerator.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKGART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington—Throughout history, economic policies have had a way of demonstrating their unsoundness by the results that eventually become understandable to the layman. Like a man who has learned the lesson of his fingers a second time, the fingers were not burned until a new generation came along and refused to take account of the lessons of experience.

To get back then to the bond market it seems to me there is a closely knit skein of conditions that prove where our government has a gone into unsound ground. It can be pointed out how the tinkering with the currency has carried through to the ultimate consumer and the wage worker. It can be shown how the national government has disregarded the rights of part of the population and in doing so has created a class hatred which is liable to cause trouble in the nation for the next fifty years.

Notwithstanding these lessons to be learned from these experiences we observe how the same mistake is being made in another way. I refer now to the attitude of administration leaders who are supporting President Roosevelt's program to add six justices to the Supreme court of the United States. Throughout the argument that has come from proponents of the President's packing plan there runs a constant and recurring appeal that if we can only have six new justices in the Supreme court we will do it of the things that are necessary to bring about labor peace and complete business recovery.

Disregarding the merit or demerit of this argument, it seems to me one cannot help looking somewhat into the future and determining on the basis of experience of the past what may happen if the Supreme court is emasculated as the President proposes.

I said earlier in this article that there has grown up a tremendous disrespect for law. The continued prattle about the necessity for "new blood" in the Supreme court is simply and frankly another step in the direction of a government by men and not a government by law.

It is to be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt was given by his rubber stamp congress more power than any President of the United States ever has exercised before. I do not make the charge that the difficulties that I have attempted to analyze above resulted directly from according the Chief Executive so much power. But history surely teaches the lesson that where one man has so much power available he always makes more mistakes than where that power is exercised by the properly appointed or elected representatives of the masses of the people. I recall a homely saying, often heard in my youth, that two heads are better than one even though one may be a cabbage head. I am quite convinced that the 435 members of the house of representatives and the 96 members of the senate have more wisdom collectively than one man.

PREVIEWING BRITAIN'S BIG PARADE

5,000,000 Persons Will See George VI's Coronation Procession; Rooms Rent Up to $2,500 for Day; Seats Scaled From $25 to $255.

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

WITH the five million stiff necks probably to be found in London on the morning of May 13, the horse liniment and arnica manufacturers should be getting ready for a real boom. All the rest of London is, for with the coronation of King George VI on May 12, England puts on the world's greatest pageant, a pageant all the greater in world-wide interest this time because the Britains will not be crowning the king they thought, a few months ago, they were going to crown.

Already grandstand seats have begun to spring up in the Mall, on the roofs of a few hotels and at other points along the route of the coronation march. With more than a million visitors expected from outside the London area, the grand scramble is on to make housing room for them—at a price.

The old American "human interest" spectacles in the days of Tex Rickard and the million-dollar gates got forty dollars for a ringside seat from which you could not follow a left hook without the aid of the Yerkes observatory telescope, but they were piers. Seats in the first couple of tiers to watch the coronation pageant scale up to $255 each, with the bleachers going for $25 a head.

West End flats which once rented for $50 a week will get not less than $100 a week from coronation visitors. Some flats on the procession route are asking $2,500 per day, and there is little doubt that they will get it. Small houses are going for $3,000 a week, while a town house complete with car and chauffeur brings $7,500. London's hotels can care for only about 260,000 visitors, and they have been sold out since last summer. Boarding houses, capable of taking care of another 250,000, are fast completing their reservations.

Thousands seeking free standing room will have to camp out all night, like the bleachers fans for a world's series opener. The capacity of Westminster Abbey itself, which normally seats about 2,500, is being increased to 9,000.

Meanwhile busiest of all perhaps are the manufacturers of novelties, striking off the many hundreds of thousands of medals, plaques and other souvenirs the visitors will demand. They were given quite a setback when King Edward VIII abdicated, for his head had already been reproduced on a large share of their wares in the expectation that he and not his brother would be the central figure of the coronation.

But the publicity given the Simpson case has undoubtedly paved the way for a larger influx of visitors and a larger sale of souvenirs to persons unable to attend, so things may even themselves up, anyway.

What will these five million neckcraners expect to see on May 12? Specifically, of course, it is the coronation. But that is a slow, solemn and dignified affair, though it is not lacking in color for all that. The real attraction is the pomp and splendor of the titled folks in their jewels and ermine, and the general spirit of gaiety normally hovering over any gathering of millions of persons to watch any spectacle.

The ceremony itself will be perfectly rehearsed, so that it should go off without a slip. George VI has attended two former coronations and with the benefit of this experience should play his role well.

Queen Mother to Attend.
The ceremonies begin as George VI and his Queen board the ornate gold coach which will carry them from Buckingham palace. The coach, built 175 years ago, and a tradition at coronations will bear them down the Mall to the Abbey, where the most solemn of the ceremonies will continue for about four hours.

Before the actual coronation oath, the King will be anointed as leader of the church and "Defender of the Faith." Then he will be given the ring and sceptre of regal power, and the dove.

Then the climax. As the crown of St. Edward is placed for a fleeting moment upon the head of the monarch, the trumpets will declare the news to the world. Drums will roll, and in Hyde Park guns will fire salute. And as the five millions gathered along London's streets give up the cry, "God Save the King!," George VI will be confirmed.

In the Abbey the ladies and gentlemen of the peerage will put on their caps and coronets. In a short ceremony Queen Elizabeth will be crowned, taking her place on the left of the King. There will be another brief communion, and then, as the notes of the choir peal joyously, the King will step down from the throne and walk into St. Edward's chapel, on the south side of the altar. Removing the crimson robe of state, he will put on the royal robe of purple velvet. He will don the imperial crown of India, made for George V in 1912 and used to crown him Emperor of India in 1912. When this is done he will be a full-fledged King.

As George VI reaches the west door of the Abbey he will be joined by his Queen, and together they will climb once more into the ancient coach, to rumble their way back to Buckingham palace, some eight hours after they left it.

Velvet $100 a Yard.
The whole coronation program is bound to be something of an ordeal for its principal participants. But it is a splendid, colorful celebration that comes once in two or three decades, or even less frequently.

London is taking full advantage of it. Manufacturers of flags and bunting are busy with their gay tasks. Dressmakers are having a hey-day designing the brilliant and expensive costumes to be worn by the peers and peeresses. Some of the woven purple and crimson velvet will cost as much as $100 a yard. Furrers are scouring the ends of the earth for weasel skins, ermine and miniver fit to adorn the robes and coronets of royalty.

Ermine will trim the King's crimson robe as he enters the Abbey. Underneath he will wear a doublet of red velvet, white satin breeches and white silk stockings. White satin in embroidered with gold will clothe the gracious Elizabeth. Her train of velvet trimmed with ermine will be six yards long.

The clothes worn by the nobility leave little to choose, for tradition has laid down rules for them. Here are a few:

Duchesses—Robes of velvet, trimmed with four rows of ermine.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will ride in this splendid coach at the coronation May 12. The vehicle was completed in 1761 and weighs four tons.

The Archbishop of Canterbury will be waiting at the chair of repose, to the right of the dais, to receive the King. The religious ceremonies begin with the litany, then communion service and the archbishop's sermon. The latter, in view of events of recent months, should be worth waiting for.

Before the actual coronation oath, the King will be anointed as leader of the church and "Defender of the Faith." Then he will be given the ring and sceptre of regal power, and the dove.

Then the climax. As the crown of St. Edward is placed for a fleeting moment upon the head of the monarch, the trumpets will declare the news to the world. ## Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

JIM TOWNE always says he reaches for his wallet when he sees his lady-love around the house with a yardstick, a pencil and an abstract look. Because that means some kind of an investment in new curtains or bedspreads or chair covers or something. Maybe not expensive, but anyway you know how men are—they love to crab, but adore the effect of your spending.

But Molly does get more gayety out of a few yards of cretonne than anybody we know. Now she's busy thinking about their dining room which has been the gathering place for the crippled chairs and hand-me-down rugs ever since they got married. But last fall they got around to buying new dining room furniture, walnut and rather modern, and for Christmas they got a new rug in a dull dusty apricot color. This spring they're having the walls painted in a very pale version of this same dull apricot, and Molly is thinking about curtains.

When Molly gets a yardstick in one hand, a pencil in the other and an abstract look on her pretty face, that means new draperies somewhere around the house.

She has in mind a lovely chintz that's mostly aquamarine with white, and she plans plain white glass curtains hung straight and tailored. The chair seats are a white leather, and she's considering putting a small love seat in the dining room with a slip cover of the aquamarine chintz. Won't that be sweet?

But it will be the accessories that will give this room its final distinction. Molly has Japanese prints with mirror frames, and a fine mirror plaque for the table centerpiece. Crystal in modern design stands on the buffet and above it at either side Molly is having brackets of mirror to hold small crystal vases in nosegays of flowers of greenery.

Lucy's Living Room.
"I feel like spring," announced Lucy. "But my living room doesn't. Oh, I do long for a really pretty room and I can't spend much. So what?"

We looked the room over—small, not very bright, with two windows placed together at one end. No fire place, no interesting wall treatment to help—just plain cream walls and woodwork. The furniture was hodgepodge. An oak bookcase with a fancy top, a straight uncompromising sofa with a mahogany frame and a brown velvet cover, a domestic rug worn and faded, a rocking chair covered in black leather, old but not old enough lamps. The only nice piece was the mahogany desk.

"Yes, you guessed it! We took over Fred's sister's house when they were transferred. We got the furniture for a song as they didn't think it was worth moving. A friend of mine suggested taking the doors and fancy woodwork off of the bookcase and painting it warm mulberry color, on the outside and eggshell on the inside. Yellow and blue pottery bowls replaced books on the top shelf. The sofa did look pretty hopeless until a well-fitted slip cover with box pleats around the bottom covered it—a glazed chintz with egg-shell background and large blue and yellow flowers. The rug had to stay as it was for the present and so the trick was to center attention elsewhere. One or two good reproductions of really fine pictures would help a lot, too. The rocking chair had good lines and a nice mahogany frame so this was redone in the same material as the sofa. A foot stool that had been hiding under a carpet covering was re-covered in the same fabric and the rocking chair and stool became a unit and a very attractive one, too. We just threw away all the lamps and bought new but inexpensive ones. A pair of blue pottery ones for end tables on either side of the sofa, and an ivory pottery lamp with a blue linen shade for the desk. Draperies of blue glazed chintz with mulberry ball fringe over simple white point d'esprit tie-backs made all the difference.

Stair Carpet
When buying a new stair carpet always buy a half-yard more than is needed and fold it at top and bottom of stairs. As carpet wears on edges of stairs, move it. It will last longer and wear more evenly.

Stripping Furniture
The appearance of painted furniture can frequently be improved by using contrasting colors on mouldings, grooves, knobs, handles and edges. Use a small, soft-hair, pencil-like brush for this stripping work.

Cooking Vegetables—A small piece of butter added to the water in which vegetables are to be cooked will prevent them from boiling over.

Flavoring Gravy—Half milk and half water makes the best colored and best flavored gravy.

Boiling Cabbage—When you cook cabbage put a small handful of bread crumbs tied in muslin into the pan. The bread absorbs all the bitter juices and makes the vegetable more digestible.

Washing Embroidery—Do not wring embroidery after washing. Press out as much moisture as possible between the folds of a towel, then spread on a towel or blotter to dry, face up.

Ironing Shirts—Soft collars attached to shirts should be ironed on the right side first, then on the wrong side. This prevents wrinkling the collar.

Suede Shoes—Rain spots can be removed from suede shoes by rubbing with fine emery board.

Baking Potatoes—Before putting potatoes in the baking-tin, stand them in boiling water for a few minutes, then drain on a clean cloth. They will cook more quickly and taste better.

Making a Footstool—Do you know that you can make unique footstools out of the single spring seats of an old automobile? Cover the old seat with upholstery and attach castors at the four corners. This will give you a comfortable seat or footstool for your summer cottage.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adlerika. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I feel fine and never feel better."
—Mrs. Jas. Miller.
ASUQUIN acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adlerika gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.
Dr. H. L. Shook, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adlerika greatly relieves bacteria and can be used to give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adlerika and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Drugstores."

EDITORIAL

Does honesty pay? This is a question that many people are interested in. Do people succeed better if they are honest in word and act, or do they get along more successfully if they ignore the rules of dependability?

The argument is frequently made that it does pay. As evidences, instances were given to show that people have become wealthy through shady practices. But the people who gathered this evidence have overlooked the fact that many numbers of men and women have failed because they could not be depended upon. Many businessmen have failed because their customers could not rely upon them. For one person who succeeds through the practice of dishonesty, there are probably hundreds who failed because of that practice.

Honesty is the best surety toward guaranteeing your future.

GRADE SCHOOL NOTES

Gudys Holmann has entered first grade.

Barbara Schaefer has returned to school after being absent for three months because of illness.

The fifth grade geography class is beginning to study the Central States.

The sixth grade reading class is reading "Stories of Outdoor Science".

The art class has started to design imitation stained glass windows.

The enrollment of the grammar room is now 28. Alfred and Gertrude Holmann have joined the eighth and sixth grades respectively.

In an eighth grade spelling contest, Lorraine Honeck received first place.

IN THE CLASSROOMS

The physics class has now started the study of magnetism. We have learned the different methods of making magnets and how the earth acts as a magnet. Then we have also studied electromagnetism which means that every electric current is surrounded by magnetic lines of force.

In economics we have studied how prices of things affect our choices; why people buy, and the elasticity of demand. We have now started the chapter on "Cost of Production" which deals with competition, how cost of production determines supply, and how production of wealth is carried on under conditions of increasing costs.

The geography class has been studying the chapter on the British Empire. They learned that it is the largest empire in the world; in area and population it is four times the size of the U. S. Then also, it is the richest, most powerful and influential of all European nations; yet England, the nucleus of the empire, is no larger than Alabama. The factors which have combined to favor growth in power and influence of the British nation are these: mild climate, suitable coast line, natural resources, liberal and adaptable government, and the character of its people.

The biology class is studying plant life, kinds, functions, adaptations and structure of roots.

The general science class is studying "Simple Machines." This is the simple function of the machine before going on to complex machines.

Russell Belger typed 41 words per minute with 8 errors, Dolores Backhaus typed 39 words per minute with 2 errors and Eleanor Bartelt typed 38 words per minute with 3 errors in the beginning typing test on April 2.
