

NATIVE OF TOWN OF KEWASKUM IS DEAD

Lorenz L. Guth, 79, of 125 Fifteenth street, Fond du Lac, who has two sisters in this village, and who himself was a native of the town of Kewaskum, died at St. Agnes hospital, Fond du Lac, at 9:03 p. m. Sunday, Aug. 1. Mr. Guth was born on June 27, 1858, in the town of Kewaskum. He was married Sept. 28, 1880, to Miss Apollonia Fleischmann of the town of Kewaskum. She predeceased him on July 6, 1935. Following his marriage Mr. Guth was in business in this village, until Sept. 18, 1899, when he moved to Lomira. There he conducted a general store and implement business until the spring of 1907, when he retired. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Alfred Kletti of Fond du Lac, with whom he resided, Mrs. Peter Hassmer of Jackson, Mrs. Hedwig Schwablander of Delafield, and Mrs. Leo Brester of Fond du Lac; three brothers, Nick of Mayville, Louis of Milwaukee, and Charles of West Allis; four sisters, Mrs. Barbara Bilgo and Mrs. Hannah Burrow of this village, Mrs. Charles Peters of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Albert Koepke of California, and five grandchildren, Anita Schwablander of Milwaukee, Elizabeth and Katherine Haasmer of Jackson, and Carl and Esther Lee Breister of Fond du Lac. Funeral services were held at the Kletti residence at 2 p. m. Wednesday, Aug. 4, with the Rev. A. W. Raabe officiating. Interment took place in Graceland cemetery at Mayville. Mr. Guth left many acquaintances in this vicinity and returned frequently to renew old time friendships. The venerable man was widely known and of the kind one is always glad to meet. His fellow citizens and family, to whom he was so closely attached, will find his demise a harsh blow and his memory will linger as a loving one. We join in expressing our sincere condolences.

COUNTY HAS FOUR TRAFFIC DEATHS

Washington county has a total of four traffic deaths for the first half of the year, it was reported at a meeting of the Washington County Safety Council at Schneider's hall, Jackson, Monday evening, Aug. 2. Last year the county had a total of seven fatal accidents for the year, none of which occurred during the first half of the year.

A discussion ensued on ways and means of cutting down the fatality list for the county. It was the opinion that the public must be continually reminded of traffic hazards through all available methods of publicity.

E. C. Grissman, Hartford, chairman of the county's education committee, reported that his committee has obtained a supply of traffic safety posters appealing particularly to children and that at least one of these will be placed in all schools of the county at the opening of classes next fall.

It was suggested that the council go on record requesting police departments and other law officials to enforce the state law regarding the proper lighting of all vehicles and pertaining to the dimming or tilting of vehicle headlights to prevent accidents. A resolution passed by the state legislature shortly before the close of its 1937 session forcefully called the attention of the public to the law, together with a request to authorities that it be enforced to the letter.

Sheriff Leo Burg reported that all law enforcing agencies in Washington county will begin a check on vehicle lights next week. He said that all the authorities have been instructed to cooperate fully in this fine safety movement.

"The Devil Is Driving," a film starring Richard Dix, will be shown at the West Bend theatre on Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 23 and 24. August C. Berkholtz, owner of the theatre, revealed in a note sent to the safety council. Advance publicity describes this picture as a film every citizen of the nation should see. It shows Dix at his best in the role of a district attorney concentrating his efforts in a county-wide campaign to decrease casualties and accidents caused by reckless driving. It is a picture packed with thrills, and at the same time it teaches a fine safety lesson.

The council went on record commending Mr. Berkholtz for obtaining this picture and decided unofficially to back it and to aid in calling the attention of the public to it. A discussion of similar films available to safety councils was held, and there is a possibility that more of these will be shown in different communities throughout the county.

A discussion of a billboard in a bad location at the intersection of Highways 45-55 and 60, a mile west of Jackson, followed, and it was indicated that action is being taken to dispose of this hazard to traffic. Several other traffic hazards also came up for discussion.

The council then adjourned until 8 p. m. on Monday, Sept. 13. The next meeting will be held in the county highway commission's offices at West Bend.

LOCAL PLAYERS IN ALL-STAR GAME

The Land of Valleys baseball league, of which the Kewaskum Indians are a member in the Washington County division, will play an all-star game at Armory field in Oconomowoc Sunday, Aug. 15. The stars of the Washington County division will meet the all-stars of the Ozaukee-Waukesha County division.

The game will be played as a preliminary to the 4th annual Land of Lakes league all-star contest. There will be an all day program with three games being scheduled. At 10 a. m. the managers of the Lakes teams will battle the umpires of the league. Then, at 12 o'clock the Vallseys game will get under way featuring the cream of the players from 16 teams, to be followed by the Lakes contest at 2:30 p. m. The managers of the two leading teams in each division will be co-managers of the all-stars in the games.

Albert Hron, Jr., manager of the Kewaskum team, which holds first place will help manage the Washington County division all-stars.

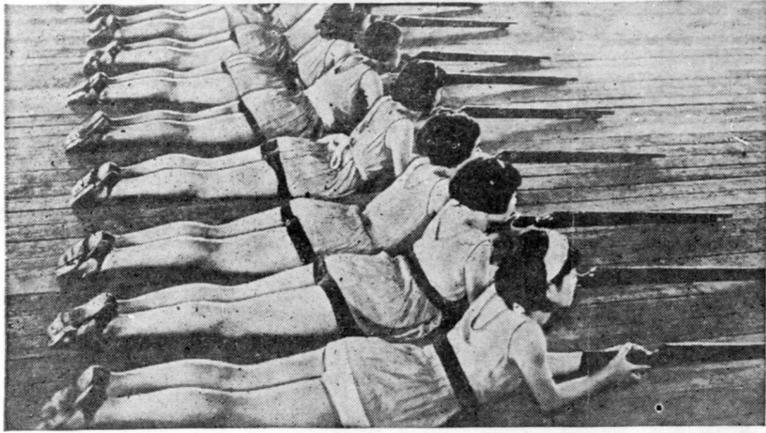

Three players were picked from the two first place teams and two players from the remaining teams in this division of the Valleys league. The players picked from the Kewaskum Indians to represent their team were Kilian Honeck, Jr., pitcher; Paul Kral, catcher, and Willard Prost, infielder.

MISS LEAH MARTIN WEDS

The news has been received here of the wedding of Miss Leah Martin of Milwaukee, a sister of Mrs. George Koerble of this village, to Charles D. Lins, of the same city. Both are residents of North 16th street, he at 713 and she at 737. They were married on July 24th at Crown Point, Indiana. The bride is well known in Kewaskum, having visited here many times. Her mother resides at Campbellsport.

Entomologists estimate that there are at least 625,000 kinds of insects.

SAMMY JAY TOO EXCITED TO TALK STRAIGHT

SAMMY JAY was excited. Everybody who heard him knew that, and everybody who was anywhere near heard him. They would have had to be stone deaf not to have heard him. He was just like some people—when he gets just a little excited he begins to talk in a loud voice. The more excited he gets the louder he talks. By and by, when he gets very much excited, he screams. That is what he was doing this beautiful spring morning, screaming as no one ever had heard him scream before. Indeed, he was so excited that his tongue couldn't go fast enough and tripped over his words and mixed things up so that no one could make out what he was trying to say.

"What's Got Into You, Sammy Jay?" Demanded Peter.

He came flying out of the Green Forest, flying as fast as he could make his wings go, and screaming at the top of his lungs. He saw Jimmy Skunk coming down the Lone Little Path and flew to meet him.

"He's a stranger and he's black!" screamed Sammy.

"Who's a stranger and who's black?" asked Jimmy.

"And he's got great, big claws in his mouth!" continued Sammy. Jimmy Skunk stopped short and stared very hard at Sammy Jay.

"Say that again," said he.

But just then Sammy caught sight of Peter Rabbit down by his dear Old Briar Patch. "Oh, I must tell Peter!" he screamed. "Peter! Peter Rabbit! He's there! He's bigger than Farmer Brown's boy and he walks!" And all the time he was

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

By JEAN

PURISTS are all very well in an English class. But when they come to tea parties, we usually wish we hadn't. It's not much fun having your pronunciation corrected during a clever conversation. Some of these little prigs have a way of butting right into the middle of a sentence and saying, "Tut, tut. Don't you know that's the wrong way to pronounce 'sacriligious'?" No doubt we should be grateful to them for pointing out to us the vulgarities in our speech. But tea party corrections of our choice of penultimate make us fighting mad, and we present such good arguments for using the wrong pronunciation that we usually convince ourselves.

If these purists were really interested in improving the language they'd go at it more tactfully. They'd start an impersonal argument about his haid, Peter. He's foolish in his haid.

"Oh!" cried Peter. "Do you really think so, Unc' Billy? I thought he was just terribly excited."

Unc' Billy winked at Jimmy Skunk as he said: "Ah don't know, about the excitement, Br'er Rabbit, but when people talk about great big claws in somebody's mouth, Ah cert'nly think there is something the matter. If you ask me, Ah think Br'er Jay done gone crazy."

"Poor Sammy Jay," said Peter to himself, as he hopped away to find out what other people thought. "Poor Sammy Jay! I guess Unc' Billy must be right and he really is crazy. He can't talk straight, so he must be crazy." And all the rest of that day Peter told everyone he met that Sammy Jay had gone crazy.

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

PROTECTION AGAINST TERMITES

I AM hearing more and more of damage to houses by termites, and from practically all sections of the country. Termites are now known to be the real cause of a destruction of wood that was formerly blamed on dry rot. It is a matter of fact that nature provides termites for the reduction of dead wood to mold. They are part of the scheme of things. They are pests only when they attack wood that mankind wants to preserve. We cannot hope to exterminate termites. Our protection against them is to build our houses in such a way that they cannot be invaded.

Termite nests are always in the ground. In attacking a house, they do not set up nests in the woodwork, but travel back and forth between the wood and the home nest. Considering the damage that they can do, it seems only rational to build a house in such a way and of such materials that an attack will not be possible.

Foundations should be poured concrete, reinforced with steel bars to prevent cracking. In modern house designs, the first floor is on a level with the ground—or nearly so. This brings the floor beams within easy reach of termites. These beams should therefore be of steel instead of wood. Sills, studs, sheathing and other wood parts are also exposed. For protection, these wood parts should be impregnated with any one of several chemicals that will make them termite-proof. Treated wood can be had through any lumber yard. The price will be somewhat increased, but considering the damage that is avoided, the extra cost can be regarded as insurance, and is certainly a small price to pay.

Termites are of three classes or castes. The largest caste is made up of the "workers" which do the damage. A second class, known as "soldiers," protect the workers against the attacks of ants and other enemies. Both of these castes are white; they are blind and never come to the surface. The third class is made up of winged black "reproductives." Once a year in the spring, occasionally also in the fall, they flutter about for a brief time, drop their wings, and disappear. A swarm of these insects is a danger signal that no home owner should disregard. He should at once find out whether his house has been attacked. There will be no outward sign on the woodwork; the destruction will all be within and can be learned only by drilling small holes, by pounding, or in some other way that will indicate hollowness of the timber. He may find slender tunnels of clay over the surface of masonry, these being the paths by which the termites circulate from the nest in the group. Information on how to proceed can be had from a pamphlet issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. The departments of agriculture of many states also have information.

With Equal Weight

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

NOT only Atlas bore the earth Upon his shoulders. Also we Have some small world of some small worth

For our responsibility. Not burdened only are the great. For others have them, each and all;

Yes, problems press with equal weight Upon the mighty and the small. Our own small world our own small way

Each on his aching shoulder bears. They little understand it, they Concerned alone with large affairs.

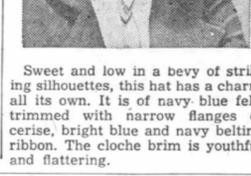

Some little duty takes our time. Some little worry takes our sleep. Some little slope we have to climb. Some little family to keep.

I have my world, and you have yours, The little often larger than Some other at his ease endures. And quite forgets the little man. The little burden may be great. The great be little after all. At least they bear with equal weight Upon the mighty and the small.

GRAPHIC GOLF

By BEST BALL

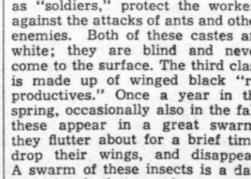

POSITION OF RIGHT ARM

KEEP your eye on the golfer who is overanxious to kill the ball and you no doubt will see him flap the right arm around so that at the top of the stroke it is almost straight out from the trunk of the body. From such a position it is very easy to make the mistake of coming onto the ball from the outside in, i.e., cutting across the ball and adding a slice. Furthermore such an extreme movement adds an unnecessary tension to this arm which it could very well do without. The proper method is to keep the right arm comfortably close to the right side. Tommy Armour for example keeps his right elbow tucked in close but possesses freedom of action nevertheless. Armour's is more or less of an extreme position; most of the players allow the right arm a trifle more freedom after the manner of Bobby Jones above. On the longer shots the Atlanta wizard's elbow is raised moderately and on the first stages of the downstroke, drops abruptly nearer the side. The cock of the wrists is in no manner disturbed by this motion and their power is saved to be utilized later on. The abrupt dropping of the right arm insures a swinging path from the inside, close to the body and brings the clubhead onto the ball straight along the line of flight.

CHAPTER XVII—Continued

Warren looked at Warren. "What's your game, Warren?"

Warren stood up, reached out his hand. "I'll do it. You're making no mistake, Tarlton."

Craig cut him short. "Warren, don't imagine you're pulling any wool over my eyes. I know and you know that you've got a joker up your sleeve. Now listen—"

Two days later, at noon, Craig received a wireless from the Winnebago bank which he had named. The message stated that the quarter-million had been deposited there for him.

He took no chances that the message might be a fake. With the infinite caution which had marked every step of his negotiations with Warren, he wireless the bank directly for confirmation, and also wireless instructions to an old Winnebago lawyer who had been his friend and his father's friend.

Within three hours the bank's reply came. DEPOSIT AUTHENTIC STOP MONEY YOURS WITHOUT RESTRICTION STOP DEPOSIT MADE BY DRAFT NOT BY CHECK THEREFORE NO POSSIBILITY OF PAYMENT BEING STOPPED rible blackness that was engulfing him. Out of the flickering shadows at the far side of his cabin, four other figures came lunging at him like wolves springing upon a kill, and among them were Lupe Chiwaughmi—and Teeste.

With his last gasp of strength Craig lifted the automatic, to shoot at those lunging figures; but the man with the ski staff swung again and struck his arm; and the gun went clattering halfway across the cabin.

CHAPTER XVII On the morning after the Chiwaughmi's trapped Craig, a prospector came past Patricia's cabin. "Have you heard the news, Miss Pat? They've a plane down, atween here and Smith. It left Smith yesterday 'round ten and should've got here in the afternoon, but it ain't showed up yet."

"Who was flying it?" Patricia asked. Most of the northern pilots were good friends of hers and dropped in at her cabin for a sociable cup of tea whenever they made the Bay.

"Pilot Odron was a-flying it. Him and Mechanic Straus. They jest had one passenger. She was this woman that, uh, they say is Craig's wife."

"Rosalie?" "Yeh. Anyhow, that's what I heard."

Patricia ran up to the Mounted Police building to find out the truth from Dennis Northrup. "It's so," Northrup informed her. "Rosalie is with that ship. Four planes out of Smith and two out of Rae are hunting for it. Odron must've run into that snowstorm yesterday. He had wireless reports on it and was afraid of it when he left Smith."

"Why on earth did an experienced pilot like him ever head into so bad a snowstorm?" "Lovett ordered him to, that's why!" Northrup snapped angrily. "Maybe Odron managed to get down safe when he hit the storm, Dennis. He's an awfully good flyer."

"Yes, it's probably just a forced landing. They'll likely find him somewhere along the route, with a broken ski or something like that." They talked for a few minutes about the search. Presently Northrup asked, "By the way, Patricia, where's Craig?"

"Flying blind in the snowstorm he hit square into the pines, broke off a wing, smashed the fuselage and then crashed head-on against a little rock wall. I found Straus and Rosalie down under those pines where he first hit, but Bing—Odron was still in the ship when it cracked; and—the gas tanks caught, and . . . God, there wasn't anything left but the black twisted metal-work!"

Odron dead, Rosalie dead—Patricia could hardly realize it. She could feel no joy in being freed from that hateful injunction. Not when the freedom had cost Rosalie and Straus and Odron their lives.

Near four o'clock that afternoon the sled party which Corporal Northrup had dispatched to the wooded island got back to Resurrection, bringing their tarpaulin-wrapped burdens.

After the sensation-seekers had cleared away from the Mounted Police building, Patricia forced herself to go up there. She felt that she had to go, out of a woman's respect for another woman, out of atonement for the bitter feelings which she had harbored toward the girl who had been Craig's wife.

Dennis Northrup took her into the room and pointed at the smaller of the two biers and silently led her. Patricia moved over to the bier and looked down at the white-shrouded figure.

With a strange sadness inside of her, Patricia bent down and lifted the sheet away from Rosalie's face. The girl had been spared disfigurement in the tragedy. She appeared to be lying in a calm peaceful sleep from which she might wake at any moment and open her dreamy-lidded eyes and look up. With the sunshaft just touching her golden hair and throwing a warm light across her features, she was hauntingly beautiful—as lovely as the picture of the living girl beside the sundial at her Vancouver home.

Before turning away she bent down, out of a great pity for Rosalie, and touched her lips to the girl's forehead . . .

As she worked in her office that evening, the prospectors kept coming to the doorway and inquiring whether she had heard anything from Craig. The question jarred on Patricia every time a man asked it. All that day, as the hours passed and Craig's strange absence lengthened, her uneasiness had grown, and vague suspicions had begun creeping on her.

FARM TOPICS

PLAN WINDBREAKS FOR NEXT SPRING

Scheme May Be Worked Out During Summer.

By J. F. Davis, Extension Forester, University of Illinois—WNU Service. Although it is too late in the year to make windbreak plantings of trees on farms, it is not too late to start making plans for plantings to be made next spring. Preparations which can be made during spare time this summer for a protection planting next spring include marking out the area, digging a diversion ditch to drain barnyard water around the windbreak planting, fencing the area to be planted and plowing the ground in the fall.

"Trees are best ordered early to assure getting the desired varieties before supplies run out," Davis states in his new circular, No. 27, "Windbreaks for Illinois Farmsteads," which has just been published by the Natural History Survey in co-operation with the agricultural college.

Detailed information on planning, planting and caring for a windbreak are contained in the circular along with a description of the kind of trees available, their advantages and disadvantages. Copies of the circular may be obtained by writing the agricultural college at Urbana.

Illinois farmers are taking a renewed interest in windbreaks," Davis said. "Demonstration plantings showing the best practices for establishing and maintaining windbreaks have been made on farms in 12 Illinois counties this spring. More are being planned for next year.

"Most ornamental nurseries grow the types of trees satisfactory for windbreaks and some of the larger nurseries specialize in producing windbreak trees."

Information on sources and prices of windbreak planting stock may be obtained by writing Davis at the agricultural college.

Eggs Require Special Care During Warm Days

The warm days of summer are the danger days in the high-quality egg trade. Unless poultrymen maintain a watchful eye and exercise the greatest care, many factors that easily escape attention, may result in the loss of customers, says a writer in the Rural New-Yorker.

Egg quality deteriorates rapidly at temperatures over 70 degrees. Hot days, high temperatures in the poultry house, broody birds remaining on the nests, are often the cause of a lack of freshness in the product. Eggs should be gathered three or four times daily in clean, well-cushioned containers. Leaky, cracked or soft-shelled eggs should be placed in separate containers when collecting to prevent soiling of the eggs and possible contamination from odors of oil, or other pungent material.

As soon as the eggs have been gathered, they should be placed in a cool, dry room, free from odors and where the temperature is not over 50 degrees.

Some Insects Have Ears in Forelegs or Thorax

Unlike most insects, which hear by picking up sound vibrations through specialized nerve-endings in their feelers or antennae, the orthoptera, comprising the grasshoppers, walking sticks, locusts, crickets and roaches, have definite auditory organs to which the term can be applied without hesitancy, asserts a writer in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Those which are able to produce chirping and other sounds, notably the crickets and grasshoppers, have well-formed organs of hearing in the forelegs or in the thorax. In locusts and ordinary grasshoppers, a large ear is on each side of the thorax. A tense, round membrane, surrounded by a firm ring, can be seen on either side of the lower part of the body. This tympanic membrane, or eardrum, covers a sac or depression lined with sense cells from which a large nerve runs to one of the centers of the nervous system.

The bush cricket of New Guinea, a long-horned grasshopper, and the common katydid, both have ears on the shin of each foreleg. Near the knee is a slightly recessed membrane in the shape of a longish oval, which represents the eardrum. In some cases, the ear is farther inside, protected by rolls of horny substance, so that a mere slit is left open.

PEDESTRIAN DEATHS—Pedestrian deaths account for one-third of Wisconsin's traffic fatalities every month. The majority of those killed were walking on the wrong side of rural highways, or crossing city streets in mid-block, state highway commission records show.

Creamery butter in cold storage on June 1 was below the 5-year average for that date while cold storage holdings of all cheese, frozen poultry, and eggs were higher.

County Agent Notes

TRAINING SCHOOL FOR AAA SUPERVISORS
Washington county farmers, who will inspect local farms during the next few weeks under the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program, will attend a one-day training school on Tuesday, August 17th, at West Bend. Similar schools, to give instructions in these duties are scheduled for every county in the state.
County Agent Skallskey states that approximately 2500 county farmers are expected to ask for inspection, according to the number of request cards that are being returned to the county office. He points out that it is important to get these requests for inspection on cards back early in order to reduce the rush work at the office and to reduce the county administrative expenses.

HARRY BROWN WILL SPEAK AT COLUMBUS
Farmers of Washington and surrounding counties are being invited to attend a southern Wisconsin agricultural conservation meeting to be held at Columbus on Monday, August 16.
Harry L. Brown, assistant secretary of agriculture and former director of the Georgia state extension service, will be one of the principal speakers at the gathering which is being sponsored by the state agricultural conservation committee, the agricultural extension service and a Columbia county committee.

H. O. Wells, chairman of the state committee and W. W. Clark, state extension director are assisting in making arrangements to entertain a large number of visitors from southern Wisconsin counties. A similar gathering is being held at Chippewa Falls on Friday, August 13. The purpose of these gatherings is to acquaint farmers with the proposed 1938 agricultural conservation program.
It is expected that Claude R. Wickard, director of the North Central division will be present to report upon the recommendation made by state and county committees in the ten midwestern states which comprise the North Central division.

MILK COW PRICES ARE HIGHEST SINCE 1930
Madison—Higher prices now being received by Wisconsin farmers for milk cows reflect improvement in the dairy industry, the crop reporting service of the Wisconsin and United States Departments of Agriculture said today.
According to farm price reports received by the crop reporting service, Wisconsin farmers are now receiving an average of $7.00 more per head for milk cows than a year ago. The average price reported for July was $74.00 per head, which is the highest average price for Wisconsin milk cows since November, 1930.

The bureau points out that while milk production during the third quarter of 1937 is expected to be greater than for the same period of 1936, the higher consuming purchasing power this year will tend to offset the effect of the larger production on price. During the last half of the year milk prices to farmers are expected to average about as high as in 1936.

PAPER LINING NEEDED IN SLAT FENCE SILOS
Silage kept as well for short storage periods in slat or snow fence silos, lined with special s-l paper, as in an upright or pit silo, in tests at the National Agricultural Research center, Beltsville, Md. Snow fence silos are inexpensive, can be erected quickly, moved from one spot to another each year, and will last several seasons if the fence is rolled and stored each year as the silo is emptied.

We are a long way from the saturation point when it comes to the use of dairy products by the average person in this country, declares County Agent Skallskey. According to federal statistics the average yearly consumption of butter per person is only 15 pounds, or but 1-21 of a pound a day in the United States. In contrast to this, the average of Australia is 29 pounds a year, of Canada 30 pounds, and of New Zealand 36 pounds.
When it comes to cheese, our showing is even worse for we each annually use on the average a paltry four to five pounds. At the same time, the British consume 9 pounds, the Germans 9.5 pounds, the Danes 13.2 pounds, the French and Dutch 13.5 pounds each, and the Swiss 23 pounds, that consumers have many good food products from which to choose," says Dean Chris. L. Christensen of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture.
"There is daily competition between scores of food products for a place on the family table three times a day. Increasingly, the producers and merchandisers are, through advertising, telling consumers of the nation about their products with a view of inducing housewives to buy their particular product. These advertising efforts are directed toward creating a favorable attitude and preference on the part of consumers for their particular product."

The particular commodity of commodities that win favor among consumers and find a place in the daily purchase of the housewife get a large portion of the consumer's dollar spent for food. Obviously, if the consumer's capacity is satisfied with certain products, his purchase of other things is going to be rather limited, explains Christensen.
Because of their food value, dairy products should be given a very important place on the consumer's table; and a fair share of the consumer's food dollar should be spent for milk and milk products. We must continue to seize every opportunity to acquaint consumers with the high nutritional value of milk and its products. We must continue to adopt those improved methods in producing, assembling, processing, and merchandising dairy products that will insure to the consumers a regular supply of uniformly high quality dairy products.

McCormick-Deering Corn Binders
Save Time Cutting Corn

WHEN your corn is ready to cut, depend on the McCormick-Deering Binder to do this job for you, quickly. It has a long record of successful, reliable performance throughout the belt. It does the work of 5 to 7 men. The McCormick-Deering gets all the corn—even leaning and down stalks. The throat spring shears the corn over the elevator fingers without cutting and carrying to the binding mechanism is positive. The McCormick knot-ter assures binding every bundle. Short corn is bound equally as well as tall corn, because the butt pan, which provides evenly butted bundles, has a wide range of adjustment. Clear, open sides permit easy removal of undergrowth. The shielded gear drive excludes trash and undergrowth and gives long life. A bundle loader can be furnished at additional cost. Let us show you these features that have made the McCormick-Deering the popular binder among corn growers.

Winter grain acreages are considerably larger this year than last. In Wisconsin, much rye was also planted last fall because of the serious feed situation which existed at that time.

SAVINGS.. AND Confidence

It is our privilege to know many savers—young and old, men, women and children. Somehow, it seems that as a group, they have a little more confidence than other people. Perhaps this comes from knowing that they can take advantage of any opportunities that may arise requiring cash. Perhaps they feel less anxiety because they know they are prepared for unforeseen trouble. Or perhaps it's just because they see their way clear to the goal they have set. . . Whatever the reason, wouldn't you like to join them in saving—here?

WAR ON TWO CONTINENTS

Japanese Bomb Tientsin . . . Fearful Battle Rages Near Madrid . . . Congress Wants to Pack Up and Go Home

Japanese soldiers cremate their dead at Fengtai.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

China Skies Rain Fire

THERE was fire in North China whether it had been officially declared or not. Japanese bombers zoomed over the densely-populated city of Tientsin, raining death and destruction, and endangering thousands of citizens of the United States and other foreign countries.

Chinese troops declared that "thousands of non-combatant men, women and children were killed or injured" by the airmen.

The bombers left holo-caust in their wake. Flames engulfed Tientsin's principal buildings, the central railway station, the militia headquarters, the famed Nankai university, and the Chinking international bridge connecting the Chinese city to the foreign concessions.

Three Chinese armies, operating suddenly and swiftly along a 95-mile front between Taku (Tientsin's seaport) and Peiping, conducted the attack which incurred the wrath of the Japanese military command.

Japan immediately responded upon the heavily populated Chinese section of Tientsin. Infantry attacked the Chinese barricades in several parts of the city. Japanese artillery went into action, and drew lusty response from the enemy, which sent shell after shell hurtling into the heart of the Japanese concession.

From Peiping the Chinese Twenty-ninth army was driven back 80 miles to the west, until not a Chinese soldier was left in the city or its environs. Gen. Sung Chieh-yuan, commander, resigned, turning over his post as chairman of the Hopei Chahar political council to Gen. Chang Tsu-chung, a subordinate division commander.

Madrid's Moat of Blood

THE Spanish government was defending Madrid against the insurgent forces in the most terrible battle of the entire civil war and the most important. It couldn't last; it was too furious. The whole loyalist cause apparently rested on resisting this, the most vicious attack the rebels had yet made.

Insurgents stormed loyalist entrenchments directly in the face of point blank machine guns. Losses were so terrible that thousands of wounded lay without food or water among thousands already dead and decaying in the hot sun.

In one salient 250,000 men were fighting, including the cream of both armies. The loyalist position was admittedly the most serious of the whole war, and upon the government's ability to withhold against the attack rested the fate of the best units in its army.

Each side claimed the losses of the other had been greatest. Insurgents reported that the government salient had cost 300 fighting planes and 30,000 casualties. The government declared that Franco had lost at least 100 planes to its 20 or 30, had lost 20,000 to 25,000 men, and had consumed $15,000,000 worth of war materials.

While the Madrid conflict was in full sway, the insurgents sprang a surprise air attack on Barcelona. In the early dawn advance planes dropped flames which lighted up the city. Then came additional planes,

Hawaii Hunts a Moth

Hawaiian entomologists are engaged in an effort to establish whether the semi-mythical Green Sphinx moth actually existed on the islands. Only one is known to have been captured there, and that was half a century ago.

The moth, scientifically known as Dellephila smaragdita, is said to dropping bombs on the easy target and turning machine guns on citizens who attempted to flee. At least 65 persons were killed and 150 injured.

The rebels in the East were reported to have driven across the Teruel-Cuenca border and to have seriously threatened the loyalist "life-line," the highway between Madrid and Valencia.

'Whadd'ya Say We Scram?'

WITH Supreme court bill recom-mitted to the senate judiciary committee, a new substitute bill for reform of only the lower courts due to be reported out of the committee, and a new senate majority leader selected to take the late Senator Robinson's place, the overwhelming sentiment of the members of the seventy-fifth congress was to pack up their bags and get as far away from Washington as possible.

Even measures which President Roosevelt had insisted bear the "must" label were being shoved aside with dispatch, as Vice President Garner sought to heal the party wounds inflicted during the bitter court battle and salvage as much of the President's legislation as he could.

The first to be buried was the new AAA and "ever-normal granary" bill; the senate agriculture committee shelved it until the next session. The committee authorized James P. Pope, Idaho Democrat and co-sponsor of the bill, to prepare a senate resolution to lay the plans for regional hearings on a comprehensive farm program during the remainder of the summer and report back in January.

It seemed certain that the President's legislation for governmental reorganization would be left over until next session when the record of three months' hearings by the joint congressional committee was made public. It was revealed that committee members have not even come close to agreement on any of the main points involved.

Majority Leader Barkley said that the White House still wanted the wages and hours bill, the Wagner low-cost housing bill and a judiciary bill passed, as well as legislation to plug tax loopholes. The Wagner bill, meanwhile, was reported out of committee, and it was expected the senate would act upon it quickly.

New Court Bill Drafted

FOUR important provisions were contained in the new court "reform" bill reported out of the senate judiciary committee, but none of them involved any changes in or additions to the personnel of the Supreme court. The new bill provides for:

(a) Direct appeals to the Supreme court from decisions in the district courts involving the constitutionality of federal statutes.

(b) Intervention by the Department of Justice in all suits involving the validity of federal statutes.

(c) Trial of all suits to enjoin the operation of federal statutes by a court of three judges—one judge from the circuit court of appeals and two district judges.

(d) Reassignment of district court judges by the senior circuit judge of each circuit, whenever additional help may be needed to relieve congested dockets. Judges sitting away from home would receive $10 a day additional pay.

It provided that a book be given, at the government's expense, to each naturalized citizen with his citizenship papers. The book, exhibited in the house, is a handsome affair, all done up in blue and gold. The cover contains, in large letters, the inscription: "The Story of the Constitution, by Sol Bloom. Copyright, by Sol Bloom."

have a cigar-shaped body about one and three-quarter inches long. It is golden brown. The outspread wings measure nearly four inches across. Of all the present generation of entomologists on the islands, only one is said to have seen a Green Sphinx moth, and that was on the island of Kaula. An offer by a Boston collector of $100 for a specimen of the Green Sphinx moth has aroused local entomologists. They are divided evenly on whether the moth actually exists on the islands.

U. S. Weighs Embargo

AS THE conflict in North China blazed into open, undeclared warfare, the United States prepared to declare that a state of war existed between China and Japan and to place an embargo upon the shipment of arms to the two countries, under the neutrality act. The President, who has the power to declare that a state of war exists, kept in close touch with affairs in the Far East, assisted by Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Proclamation of an embargo prohibits the sale of arms, ammunition and implements of war to the belligerent countries. It forbids loans or the extension of credit to either of them, and makes it illegal for Americans to travel upon the ships of the belligerents.

Secretary Hull said that conferences had been held among embassy attaches, commanders of foreign troops in Peiping and others, to lay plans for removing Americans and other foreign nationals from the danger zone.

It was reported that there were 223 United States military personnel and dependents and 403 American civilians registered in Tientsin, in addition to 750 American officers and men.

'Pack the White House'

WITH a roll call vote of 260 to 88, the house of representatives voted to give President Roosevelt six new secretaries at $10,000 a year each. The debate on the bill provoked some quaint comment.

Elliott Roosevelt

Democrat Ross Collins of Mississippi offered an amendment that would provide a new secretary for each member of congress.

The President may need additional secretaries," he said. "How about the overworked members of congress? We need extra help also."

If the bill became law, it would raise the total of the President's $10,000-a-year secretaries to nine, for he already has three—James Roosevelt, Stephen Early and Marvin McIntyre.

60 Hurt in Strike Riot

ALTHOUGH the independent steel plants were back at work, there was still plenty of discord along the labor front. Sixty persons were injured in a wild riot among pickets of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee (affiliated with C. I. O.), loyal workers and police at the Corrigan-McKinney plant of the Republic Steel corporation in Cleveland.

A mob of strikers hurled rocks from a hillside upon cars of employees parked in the valley about the plant. Loyal workers attempted to drive the strikers away, and at one time 500 of them rushed out of the plant and set upon the pickets. Police tried to break up the fighting, relying chiefly on their tear gas guns. One striker was killed when a moving automobile, which was being stoned, got out of control and ran berserk through a picket line.

In Buffalo there was a serious food shortage because of a strike of 1,000 wholesale grocery truck drivers and 1,000 butchers at four meat packing plants. As C. I. O. and A. F. of L. unionists co-operated in the demand for closed shops, residents of the city were forced to motor to the country for butter, eggs and vegetables.

A Year of Reclamation

APPLICATIONS for grants under last year's agricultural conservation program covered 283,000,000 acres—two-thirds of the country's crop land—and represented an estimated 4,000,000 farmers. H. R. Tolley, agricultural adjustment administrator, reported that 31,000,000 acres were diverted from crops which deplete the soil; 53,000,000 acres received the benefit of soil-building practices.

Conservation payments for the year totaled $32,323,303.11, benefit and rental payments $23,744,264.42. Total expenditures by AAA during 1936 were $37,338,617.30, including administrative expenditures and liquidation of obligations outstanding when the Supreme court held sections of the original AAA unconstitutional.

Football Couldn't Save It

NOT even the excellence and popularity of Edward Patrick (Slip) Madigan's football teams could save little St. Mary's college at Oakland, Calif., from the auction block. It was "knocked down" to its security holders for $411,150—the only bid—after it had failed to pay interest on its bonded indebtedness of $1,370,500 since 1934. When Madigan came to St. Mary's from Notre Dame in 1921 it had 71 students. His football teams did fame and built the enrollment up to 700. It was indicated he will remain as coach, at a reported salary of $7,000 a year and ten per cent of the gate receipts. Receipts last year were $174,671.

A new name has been added to Great Britain's list of standard weights and measures. Known as the phon it is to represent the British unit of loudness, and it is finding its way into general use in connection with a noise-meter devised by the National Physical Laboratory. The ministry of transport in London has recommended that no noise exceeding ninety phons should be emitted from any motor vehicles for any reason whatever.

Washington Digest National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart National Press Building Washington, D. C.

'Ever-Normal Granary'

Washington.—There are many occasions on record where several important issues have engaged the attention of congress and frequently one of these issues has aroused such bitterness and developed such a controversy that it overshadowed all others.

But the crushing defeat received by the President through refusal of the vast majority of Democrats in congress to support his court reorganization scheme suddenly has directed attention to other major questions. Outstanding among these is Secretary Wallace's farm bill and the so-called wages and hours bill which is claimed to contain complete protection for the laboring classes.

The basis of Secretary Wallace's program is what he calls the "ever-normal granary." There are other provisions included in the bill but the idea of a maintained supply of farm products is the heart of the plan.

Now, it seems that if the words "ever-normal granary" mean anything, they must be accepted as meaning a continuity of supply at a level which government agents arbitrarily determine as the proper rate of accumulation or sale of such supplies.

The house of representatives has been muddling along with the question for several months. It has been under much pressure from Secretary Wallace and his associates and from some of the farm leaders whom the secretary has convinced of the value of his scheme. The farm leaders as a whole are far from unanimous on the proposition despite the fact that Secretary Wallace and the tremendous propaganda machine within the Department of Agriculture have been exceedingly active in an effort to "sell" the plan to the country as a whole and thereby bring additional pressure on congress.

I shall not attempt to give all of the details of the Wallace proposal here. It is too complicated for explanation in the limited space available. Indeed, I have found quite a number of members of the house of representatives who are unable to give a complete explanation of how the plan would work—and they admit it. It is a piece of legislation that must be complicated in order to accomplish things its proponents claim.

In the first instance, as I have said, the ever-normal granary idea comprehends a constant level of supplies. At first blush, it would seem that storage of wheat or corn or cotton or other farm products in a big crop year to be sold in years when crops are small should work out to keep prices at a satisfactory level. That is the theory. On the other hand, in times past this same sort of scheme has worked out to depress prices instead of maintaining them and the farmers have been the losers.

Included in this legislation are provisions for benefit payments to farmers under certain conditions when the price level falls below parity. This injects into the problem again the influence of the general price level of commodities in the United States whether from the farm or from the factory and it also forces upon the United States additional influence wielded by the level of prices in foreign countries where the law of supply and demand continues to operate without impossible amendment at government's dictation.

No doubt, the Wallace proposal would boost prices at present. This is true because we have had several short crop years and there is a surplus now. But with indications that the current wheat crop, for example, is going to be exceptionally large, it is entirely possible that the nation as a whole will have a surplus of wheat this fall. In addition, there will be wheat crops grown in other countries as usual. Some of our wheat must be sold in foreign markets and compete with what grown in Russia or in South America. It is easy to see, therefore, that the lack of a wheat surplus in this country is exceedingly temporary.

The ever-normal granary, if it works as the theorists claim, would store or keep off a portion of the market that is not needed for current consumption. That sounds fine. Great users of wheat must buy their supplies far ahead. If they do not take this precaution, they stand a chance always of finding their bins empty and are faced with the necessity of closing their mills. It is this feature that causes long range buyers to resort to what is called hedging. That is, they sell on option nearly as much as they buy on contract. They are thus able to offset losses whether the price of wheat goes up or whether it goes down and the losses or the gains are distributed throughout the industry. It is the only way by which the industry can protect itself. Mr. Wallace's scheme proposes going away with that sort of thing, not directly but through the effect of the ever-normal granary. In other words, the net result of the ever-normal granary would be for the government to hold these stocks and feed them into the market as demand for supplies requires. This sounds feasible and it probably would be except for the fact that we have no means of controlling production in the other wheat producing countries, and I repeat that I am using wheat as illustrative of all farm products. In fact, the Wallace plan provides no control of production in this country and that question is vital. As far as I can see, nature is going to operate to give us rain or give us drought in accordance with the judgment of the Higher Power. No human is going to be very influential in that regard.

To get back to the question of the price level, it should be said that while the Wallace plan provides what appears to be an insurance against fluctuation, it is more likely to have the opposite effect. Because of the influence of world prices, great storehouses of wheat in the country will hang over the market like an epidemic. No one can tell when it will strike and since markets are made up of individuals who are human, a portion of the markets is always going to be frightened by the uncertainty of when government wheat will be offered for sale. It is a perfectly human reaction because it involves the pocketbooks and humans naturally want to buy as cheaply as they can and sell as high as they can.

Tried Once and Failed

One of the things that happened in the administration of President Hoover that is to be remembered is the utter failure of his farm policy. That farm policy centered at one time in what was called the Federal Farm board. If you will go back a few years and recall the operations of the Federal Farm board, I think you will agree that the things it undertook to do were exactly comparable to, if not exactly the same as, the scheme set up by Secretary Wallace in his ever-normal granary idea. The only difference that I can see—and I watched the operations of the farm board from close at hand—is a change in the name. It must be admitted that the phrase ever-normal granary has a pretty sound. But when it comes to a question of an attractive expression, one that is soothing and one that should convince us all that every problem is solved, I submit those favorites which Mr. Wallace used to use when Professor Tugwell was with him in the Department of Agriculture. Who does not recall the "more abundant life," and who has forgotten the "doctrine of scarcity to assure plenty?" Each of these, as well as the Federal Farm board, covered up a multitude of bureaucrats and complicated machinery that was forever getting jammed—and the farmer was the loser.

As far as I know, neither the house nor the senate committee on agriculture has held hearings on this ever-normal granary phase of the Wallace legislation. Thus far, the discussion has been largely on questions involving benefits and subsidies and means of marketing. No attention has been given to the ever-normal granary threat, and I regard it as a menace.

If this discussion were devoted to only the consumer phase of our economic life, I think I should be selfish enough to urge enactment of the Wallace plan. I believe I can see where the ever-normal granary idea will make bread cheaper, where it will make cotton textile goods cheaper and when cotton is cheaper other textiles are cheaper, and where other food and necessities of life that have their origin on the farm will be reduced in price by such a legislative policy. But that is not my idea of a sound economic structure. It is just as necessary for the consumer to pay his fair share toward the maintenance of a living agriculture as it is for farmers to pay their fair share to a living commerce and industry of whatever kind it may be.

The senate Democrats have elected a new leader to succeed the late Senator Joe Robinson, of Arkansas. He is Senator Alban Barkley, of Kentucky. In a previous column I mentioned the split among the senate Democrats and suggested that it would be difficult to replace Senator Robinson because of the qualities he had in holding the various factions together in the senate. It was not a forecast; it was a statement of fact.

Great Lakes Naval Agreement

The Convention of 1817, which limited the naval forces on the Great Lakes, was effected through the exchange of letters (April 28 and 29) between Richard Rush, acting Secretary of State and Charles Bagot, British minister at Washington. It did not consist of a treaty in which copies were signed by representatives of both countries, but consisted of the two letters with the one signature on each. The letters stipulated that each country should have one vessel not exceeding one hundred tons, armed with one 18-pounder on Lake Ontario and two ships on the upper lakes and one on Lake Champlain, all of which were to be the same size and carry like armament. Any ships over that number were to be dismantled and no others built or armed. Either country could terminate the agreement by a six months' notice. Orders to conform to this agreement were issued by the British and United States governments.

GOOD TASTE TODAY by EMILY POST World's Foremost Authority on Etiquette

DEAR Mrs. Post: Will you say a word or two about the good, or bad, taste of having photographs hanging in one's house? In my mother's house the chief wall ornaments were pictures of the various relatives on both sides of the family, but today, one sees so few pictures of this type that I wonder if it was no longer considered proper to have any. And if not, what is one supposed to do with all the pictures given by relatives and friends?

Answer. In Victorian days it was the fashion, over here as well as abroad, to fill one's rooms with hanging or marching photograph frames on walls and across all available table spaces. Old-fashioned people still like to have many framed photographs about them. But since the modern liking for emptiness has a great effect on taste, the younger generation keeps most of their photographs in between the leaves of an album. This album, by the way, has also no suggestion of the Victorian one wherein mounted photographs were slipped into paper openings. The modern album is a large book bound either in leather or brocade with plain leaves like any other photograph album. But all people have a few photographs either on the walls or on the tables of their rooms.

Coed School Should Educate in Courtesy

DEAR Mrs. Post: This is a co-educational college and in the dining hall the girls and boys sit together, an equal number at each table. Do you think it would be a good idea for the boys to seat the girls? And what about when the girls turn up for meals late?

Answer: Certainly the men should seat the girls. After all, college should be a training ground for manners as well as for minds. The girls should be on time, but when being late is unavoidable a girl should take her place as quickly as possible so that she will not throw her table into confusion by making it necessary for all the men to rise.

Better Send Flowers.

DEAR Mrs. Post: When my sister died some friends of another sister sent flowers to the funeral. The flowers were very beautiful and were addressed to Mother, but neither she nor I know them at all, and now someone in their family has died. So will you kindly tell me what, if anything, is Mother's obligation to these people?

Answer: I take it for granted that your sister who is your friend will go to see them and send flowers, and unless she is away from a girl there is no "obligation" that you need meet. But it would be kind certainly to send a note of sympathy, or flowers to the funeral from all of you.

Making It Official.

DEAR Mrs. Post: Soon I expect to announce my engagement to a man whom I have been expected to marry for years, so the news can not possibly surprise anyone. Under these circumstances, don't you think it would be silly to invite people without explaining at the time that we are announcing our engagement at this party? Please tell me frankly what you would suggest.

Answer: It would be best, I think, to write or telephone invitations to a party celebrating your engagement, and also notify the papers the evening before the party so that the announcement will appear on that day.

Better Entertain Yourself.

DEAR Mrs. Post: I have received a wedding invitation with reception card included, and notice that the former is taking place late in the afternoon and the latter not until eight o'clock in the evening. If this lapse of time between the two is proper, do you think it is especially if they come from nearby towns?

Answer: The only answer I know is that they are expected either go home or have dinner somewhere and then come back again. Conventionally, of course, wedding receptions follow immediately after the ceremony.

No 'Informal' Ceremony.

DEAR Mrs. Post: I am either going to wear a traveling suit or an afternoon dress at my wedding, but am asking a number of relatives and friends to the church just the same. The number is really sufficient to have wedding invitations engraved but mother seems to think that formally worded engraved invitations would be improper in my case.

Answer: Engraved invitations will be proper, irrespective of the type of clothes chosen by the bride. In other words, it is impossible to have an informal ceremony.

Hay Fever Is No Longer Such a Mystery to Medical Science

Skin Sensitization Test Can Now Find What Allergy Is Troubling You

By WILLIAM C. UTLEY

KA-CHOOO-OO-OO! Ha-ha-ha-WISH-eeeeeee! Sniffle, sniffle, wheeze--gib be a haggichiff, quig! Hey, hey, it's the good old summer time and the hay fever season is open.

"Why, oh, why, do I have to go through this every year?" is the wall of the hay fever sufferer, and well it might be for there is hardly an affliction so relentless in its unwelcome annual visits.

The answer to the victim's cry is that he is allergic to something in the air, probably the pollen from a plant or weed. What particular plant it is determines whether its pollen rides the air waves in May, June, July or September.

Time used to be that hay fever victims, when they began to sneeze, their eyes started to water and their noses to sniffle, simply had to pack up, leave home and make for the North Woods or the resorts at Charlevoix and Mackinac island in Michigan where the air is comparatively free from dust and pollen. While this made an excellent excuse for a vacation it was a considerable expense and often a great inconvenience.

Fortunately today medical science has made such strides that hay fever can now be treated with a pretty fair degree of success right at home. The big task is to find out what type of pollen is causing each individual case. To do this doctors may have to be expert detectives, for many different individuals are allergic to different things.

Results of Allergy.

All of us are allergic to something or other, whether it be a certain type of food, the hair of a certain animal, feathers from pillows, some types of dust, or even smoke. But only about one person in ten is allergic to such a degree that he is uncomfortable.

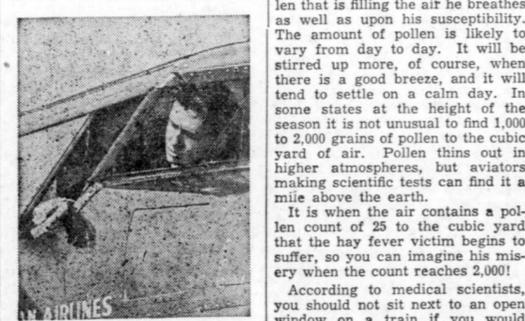

By allergic we mean, in a free sense, that we are unusually sensitive to something. A high degree of allergy to some of the things mentioned in the foregoing paragraph may result in any one or combination of a number of afflictions--eczema, hives, "colds," hay fever, headache, diarrhea and other ailments.

Hay fever symptoms spring from hives which occur in the nose, sinuses and eyes, causing sneezing and itching. If they were to occur in the lungs, causing spasmodic contraction of the bronchial tubes and coughing, they would produce asthma. When hay fever occurs the pollen to which the victim is allergic enters the nasal ducts, inflaming them; the poison passes to the throat and bronchial tubes, and finally to the ends of the bronchial tracts, where swelling occurs.

The hay fever victim need not even be living in the neighborhood of the plants whose pollen are at the bottom of his grief. To follow a hypothetical case, let us say a patch of ragweeds was blossoming in a vacant lot of some city. A high wind came, spiriting away the seeds, lifting them up over the city and carrying them a hundred or even two hundred miles from the place they grew. At last as the wind dies they settle down, unhappily, right before an unfortunate soul who is allergic to ragweed pollen without ever having discovered it. He breathes them into his nose--thousands of them, for it would take 50,000 to cover the head of a pin.

Test Skin With Pollen.

Soon his nasal duct is inflamed and he begins to sneeze. Then the poison passes down through his throat and bronchial tubes and swelling occurs. His eyes redden, his nose itches "where he can't get at it to scratch it," and he begins to sniffle constantly.

Aerial surveys, conducted thousands of feet up, test the air for hay fever pollen.

Perhaps our friend thinks he has a cold. But the doctor says, "Hay fever," and tells him he had better find out what type of pollen is causing the trouble. The customary procedure is for the doctor to begin making skin sensitization tests. Little scratches are made on the arm, and into each of these scratches one drop of pollen solution is placed; a different type of pollen is used on each scratch. The sufferer is allergic to the type of pollen placed in any scratch which reddens and swells.

We'll say our hypothetical victim is allergic to ragweed pollen. His protests to the doctor that he has not been near any ragweed need not confuse us, for we know how the pollen got to him. The doctor explains it to him, too.

Now the doctor orders injections of the proper type of pollen vaccine into the blood. Next year, now that the patient's allergy is known, he will be given minute, but increasing doses of the injection, starting in February and continuing for a few weeks until it is thought he should be immune when the season comes. It does not always work out that way, and sometimes daily injections during the season itself do not help.

Different pollens do their dastardly work at different times of the year in different sections. In the eastern and central states, for instance, June grass causes trouble around the beginning of that month; in early July it is Timothy hay, late across one in the street one day he approached it closely to examine the queer animal at length. He began to choke up and there was a severe excretion of fluid from the lungs. Now he had played with cats at times, and he owned a little wire-haired fox terrier, but none of these had ever affected him so. It just turned out that he was allergic to horse hair.

Actually, now that skin sensitization tests are common, it has been found that many supposed hay fever sufferers did not have hay fever, but were allergic to their own dog or cat. You can even be allergic to cigarette smoke. There is on record the case of a woman who was sensitive to that kind of smoke. Her husband smoked a pipe; when she played bridge at the home of friends who smoked cigarettes she would begin to sniffle and appear to have a cold. The doctor found what was troubling her and treated her for it. Now her companions could smoke their pipe without bothering her.

Seasonal asthma is frequently the following month the giant ragweed and as September starts it is the small or common ragweed.

When Suffering Begins.

How severe a victim's symptoms are depends upon the amount of pollen that is filling the air he breathes as well as upon his susceptibility. The amount of pollen is likely to vary from day to day. It will be stirred up more, of course, when there is a good breeze, and it will tend to settle on a calm day. In some states at the height of the season it is not unusual to find 1,000 to 2,000 grains of pollen to the cubic yard of air. Pollen thins out in higher atmospheres, but aviators making scientific tests can find it a mile above the earth.

It is when the air contains a pollen count of 25 to the cubic yard that the hay fever victim begins to suffer, so you can imagine his misery when the count reaches 2,000!

According to medical scientists, you should not sit next to an open window on a train if you would avoid hay fever, although air-conditioned cars are all right, for the pollen is filtered from the air in them. Nasal sprays will protect the nose in some measure from attack, and a little white vaseline around the opening of the nostrils will keep some of the pollen from getting in. Victims will find themselves more comfortable in a dark room where there are no drafts.

Although ten persons in one hundred suffer to some degree because they are allergic, only one of these, on an average, has hay fever. Various allergy victims suffer in various ways.

Sensitive to Horse Hair.

Take the case of the city child who was accustomed enough to thousands of automobiles in his daily life, but seldom, if ever, laid eyes on a horse. Finally coming caused by house dust which mixes more actively through the air at the time of the year when the radiators are turned on for the first time. June flies cause asthma in the area about the Great Lakes; elsewhere butterflies or other insects could provoke it; so can certain foods, such as berries, asparagus or muskmelon. Almost anyone knows somebody who simply can't eat strawberries without getting the hives.

When a person begins to have regular attacks of asthma at a certain time of day or night, the doctor is likely to examine every article with which the victim regularly comes in contact at that time. If they occur at night, it might be the feathers in the pillow, the hair in the bed mattress or the wool in the blankets.

Boys Hate Haircuts, Anyway.

Sometimes the doctor has to be a mighty clever detective to find them, however. There is the case of a small boy who had an asthmatic attack every few weeks. After much observation it was found that in a general way the attacks corresponded to the time of his periodic visits to the barber. It was eventually found that he was allergic to hair--not to his own hair, but to the hair of anyone in his family, but to the hair of anyone with whom he was not in daily contact!

The Detroit News reports the case of a doctor in that city who suffered from asthma every Sunday. He finally discovered that he was allergic to Sunday newspapers! No kidding. He was sensitive to certain aromas which the various inks gave forth; because of the much larger paper on Sunday, he spent a great deal more time with it. The daily paper did not have enough time to affect him, but the Sunday one did.

Picnic Cake.

- 1 1/2 cups sifted cake flour
- 1 1/2 tsp. double-acting baking powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. cinnamon
- 1/2 cup butter or other shortening
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 egg yolks, well beaten
- 1/2 cup milk
- 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and cinnamon, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Fold in egg whites. Bake in greased 8 by 8 by 2-inch pan in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) 50 minutes. When ready to serve, frost top and sides with chocolate frosting.

BALL TEAM EASILY BEATS FOND DU LAC

The village baseball team gained sweet revenge for a previous setback on the local grounds by easily lacing out a 14 to 6 victory over Fond du Lac at the Lakeside park diamond in that city last Sunday in a regular Badger State league game. This was Kewaskum's second win in the second half, as compared with one defeat. Kohler remains on top with three straight victories.

The boys really found their batting eyes Sunday and pounded two Fond du Lac pitchers for 15 hits. Seven of these came in the big fourth inning when Kewaskum broke a 2-all deadlock with a seven run spurge to send fast ball Spangle to the showers. He was replaced by Gores, who allowed five more runs in the five and one-third innings he hurled. The Fondy twirlers had very poor support, their teammates committing eight errors.

Marx pitched the entire game for the local nine and was never in great danger with the big lead his team possessed after the fourth frame. He allowed eight hits and set down 10 Fond du Lac batters via the strikeout route. Two run rallies in the first, fourth and ninth innings caused Marx his only trouble.

Mucha starred in the big fourth inning with a home run and single in that frame. Jagmin again was the leading hitter with four out of six and Kudek connected for three out of six, including a home run. Malson was the only Fondy batter to get two hits off Marx. Marx struck out every batter on the opposing team once or more except Skinner and Faris. Ohlrich and Spangle did not fan but each only batted once. A very large crowd witnessed the game. The contest by innings proceeded as follows:

FIRST INNING
Kewaskum—Kudek singled to left. Marx sacrificed Kudek to second. Jagmin singled to left, sending Kudek to third. Jagmin stole second. Kudek scored on a passed ball. Jagmin taking third. Mathias hit a long pop fly to Kronforst back of third, Jagmin scoring after the catch. Bixby threw out Mucha. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

SECOND INNING
Kewaskum—Heppie popped to Malson. Harbeck singled to right. Kral singled to right, Harbeck out going to third on the hit. J. Miller fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

THIRD INNING
Kewaskum—Kudek popped to Spangle. Marx filed to Schiller. Jagmin singled to left. Bixby threw out Mathias. No runs, one hit, no errors.

FOURTH INNING
Kewaskum—Mucha hit a home run into the channel in deep right field. Spangle threw out Heppie. Harbeck walked. Kral singled to left, sending Harbeck to second. Claus batted for J. Miller and forced Kral at second, sending Harbeck to third. Ohlrich in trying to complete a double play on Claus' grounder, threw wild to first, scoring Harbeck. Malson then threw wild to second, Claus going to third. Kudek singled through short, scoring Claus. Marx doubled to center, sending Kudek to third. Jagmin singled to left, scoring Kudek and Marx. Mathias singled, sending Jagmin to third and when Ohlrich threw wild to third trying to get Jagmin, he scored and Mathias went to second. Spangle was then taken out of the game and was replaced as pitcher by Gores. Mucha greeted Gores with a single, his second hit of the inning, scoring Mathias. Gores threw out Heppie. Seven runs, seven hits, three errors.

FIFTH INNING
Kewaskum—Faris playing right field for Fond du Lac in place of Skinner, who took Ohlrich's place at second base. Harbeck was safe at first on Malson's error. Kral sacrificed Harbeck to second. Harbeck took third on a wild pitch. Claus walked. Kudek forced Claus at second, Harbeck scoring on the play. Kudek took second on a wild pitch. Gores threw out Marx. One run, no hits, one error.

SIXTH INNING
Kewaskum—Jagmin reached first on Bixby's error. Mathias sacrificed Jagmin to second. Mucha walked. Heppie popped to Gores. Harbeck filed to Schiller. No runs, no hits, one error.

SEVENTH INNING
Kewaskum—Kral filed to Faris. Claus reached first on Malson's error. Kudek hit a home run down the left field foul line, scoring Claus ahead of himself. Bixby threw out Marx. Jagmin filed to Felda. Two runs, one hit, one error.

EIGHTH INNING
Kewaskum—Marx fanned. Jagmin doubled. Mathias fanned. Mucha was safe on second on Kronforst's error, scoring Jagmin. Heppie singled, scoring Mucha, and went to third on a bad throw-in by Felda. Harbeck popped to Bixby. Two runs, two hits, two errors.

NINTH INNING

INDIANS DEFEAT GRANVILLE TEAM

As usual, the Kewaskum Indians easily won another Land of Valleys league baseball game on the home diamond last Sunday from Granville, 11 to 2. This game was one of the most interesting played by the Indians this season due to the fact that the visitors held the locals to five runs up to the eighth inning, something other teams were unable to accomplish. However, a six run rally in the eighth frame made it another runaway game.

The Indians connected for nine hits to Granville's four. K. Honeck, Jr. struck out 15 invading hitters, but at the same time walked seven. H. Lamms of Granville fanned 10 and issued three free passes.

The game was Kewaskum's ninth straight victory against no defeats. Next Sunday the Indians play at Port Washington and if they can win this one the championship is just about theirs. Port is in second place, having lost one game and is the only team right behind the locals.
