Arlette "Apple Pie" Laan enjoys the view from Lapham Peak tower in the Kettle Moraine State Forest (Waukesha County section). Laan, a Dutch-born Massachusetts resident, walked the entire Ice Age National Scenic Trail (roughly 1,200 miles) from May 5 to July 11. Upon completing the trek, Laan believed she was the first woman (and sixth person ever) to walk all 11 National Scenic Trails in the United States. SUBMITTED

1,200 Miles and Counting, Arlette Laan Walks the Ice Age Trail

The Netherlands native walked the entire Ice Age Trail from May to July, and she believes she is the first woman to finish all 11 National Scenic Trails

MITCHELL BRADLEY KELLER
ACTING EDITOR

"If you want to do it: Do it," said Arlette Laan, a 50-year-old Dutch-born Massachusetts resident from a section of this state's Ice Age National Scenic Trail, just hours before completing the entire 1,200-mile journey from Polk to Door County.

It was a quest that began on May 5 in Western Wisconsin, and it came to a spirited end – with loved ones and members of the Ice Age Trail Alliance waiting for her at the conclusion – on the peninsula on Monday, July 11.

Perhaps, readers could deem it "easy for her to say" but, for Laan, it was a combination of small consecutive accomplishments (not just one big one) that makes her a viable source of inspiration.

"You can have a big goal, but take it in small steps so it doesn't seem so intimidating," said Laan, taking deep breaths over the phone just three short miles from the terminus of her months-long excursion. "If you take it one section at a time, one day at a time, and you just take that first step... You'll eventually get there."

Of course, this is the mindset of someone who has made a career out of hiking and, since 2003, has made it her mission to walk as many trails across the globe as she can. Laan works for Redline Guiding, a service group offering guided hikes across the country. Redline also provides portering services and gear rescue/recovering options for larger or more sophisticated expeditions.

Completing the Ice Age National Scenic Trail had increased significance for Laan, because it was the last of 11 National Scenic Trails she's hiked in her lifetime. By her count, she is the sixth person in history to walk all 11 NSTs and the first woman.

Of the hikers that finished the feat before her – Bart Smith, Meredith J. Eberhart (known as "Nimblewill Nomad"), Al Learned, Brian Tanzman, Ryan Bunting – none were women, which led Laan to research if she was, in fact, one-of-a-kind.

Tanzman, who Laan referred to as being a

A Modest Question or Two

Dear Reader,

Does everyone agree that we should not be able to build a nuclear bomb in our basement?

Yes.

Does everyone agree that we should not be able to have missiles ready in our backyards to fire at will?

Yes.

Does everyone agree that we should not be able to drive around town in tanks fully armed and ready for action?

Yes.

Where do we draw our line on firearms? For some, the line should not be drawn at all, people have the right to bear arms, period.

Maybe.

And yet, the most severe mass killings have uniformly involved semi-automatic assault rifles. Is there a way to have these available in our society without risking mass murder?

Where do we draw the line on background checks? For some, there should be no background checks, period.

Maybe.

And yet, some (though not all) mass murders have involved people who would have failed a background check.

Is a background check that might prevent guns from getting into some hands that should not possess them too great an infringement on civil liberty?

I admit freely that I don't have the answers. But I do think we need to discuss these questions and find the answers. The horrific cost in human lives is just too great.

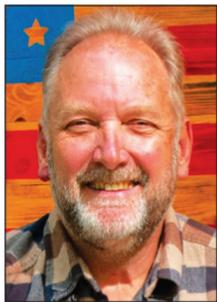

We Americans are known for our ingenuity and commonsense approach to life. How can we apply our skill-sets to address this consistently pervasive problem in America? Yes, given all the different perspectives on this issue, it won't be easy. But don't we all owe it to ourselves, our families, and those that we love to try?

Rep. Ramthun: Affirmed

State Representative Timothy Ramthun (R-Campbellsport) issued the following statement in response to the July 8 Supreme Court ruling on absentee ballot dropboxes:

Tim Ramthun

Today, the Wisconsin Supreme Court ruled 4-3 affirming that the use of absentee ballot dropboxes in Wisconsin is illegal.

I enthusiastically concur with the Wisconsin Supreme Court's historic decision today to follow and enforce existing Wisconsin election law involving ballot dropboxes.

This decision is necessary to ensure the safety and security of all Wisconsin elections, and provides justification for why my office embraced the responsibility for the back look of how the November 2020 election was adversely affected.

Probably no other holiday calls former Campbellsport residents back to their hometown more than the Fourth of July. Something about the lure of its annual Firemen's Picnic is irresistible. Could be we realize just how dedicated to the safety of their community these volunteers really are. And, in a unanimous show of support, we reciprocate.

Or it's just the wide and varied slate of events that peaks our interest. Whether the water barrel fights, with their cooling spray of bystanders on a warm summer evening or the blare of speakers pumping out tunes from a cover band. If polka is your thing, it too can be heard from a stage farther down in the firemen's park.

Whatever our reasons for attending, July 3rd saw a tremendous fireworks show. The high school parking lot filled early as we gathered in cars, lawn chairs and on pickup tailgates. Plenty of oohs and ahs as the firmament was colored by red, blue and green sparks with lots of gold thrown in like glitter. The air quickly filled with the scent of cordite from spent shells.

Followed on the Fourth by a great parade, touting the local and surrounding area fire departments – Eden, Lomira, Mount Calvary, Beechwood, Boltonville, Kewaskum all put in an appearance.

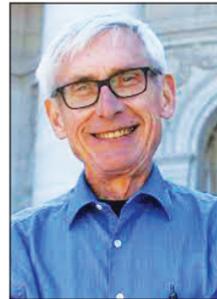

And eats were plentiful. More than just burgers and brats too. Polish sausages, pulled pork sandwiches, the aroma of fresh from the grill entrees spelled long lines of hungry patrons.

Afterwards, a trip down memory lane while ogling vintage automobiles; from Model A's to more recent iron; 70s era; Mustang, Challenger and Barracuda. With an occasional earlier range model; a Studebaker and Chevy Nomad wagon among them.

Does it really matter why we former denizens gravitate back to Campbellsport on the Fourth of July? The village may have grown and changed since we left. But some things never will.

Gov. Evers Releases Statement Regarding Decision Restricting Access to the Ballot Box

Gov. Tony Evers recently released the following statement regarding the Supreme Court of Wisconsin's decision ruling that absentee ballot drop boxes are illegal in Wisconsin:

Gov. Tony Evers

A basic but defining feature of our state and our country is the notion that politicians should not be able to abuse their power to prevent eligible voters from casting their ballots or cheat by changing the rules just because they didn't like the outcome of the last election.

At the very heart of our democracy is the fundamental right for every eligible voter to be able to cast their ballot — a right that's far too important to be left to the whims of any politician or political party. We should be working every day to protect that fundamental right by making it as easy as possible for every eligible voter to vote in Wisconsin.

Today's decision is another in a long line of Wisconsin Republicans' successes to make it harder for Wisconsinites to exercise their right to vote, to undermine our free, fair, and secure elections, and to threaten our democracy.

Sellers' Peace-of-Mind

AL WISNEFSKE
BROKER/OWNER, LAND & LEGACY GROUP LLC

Having the right mindset is an important aspect to a real estate deal.

As a seller, you're concerned with timeframes, showings, representation and netting the most amount of money.

You could be in a time crunch and need to "sell yesterday."

Or, you could be in a position where if the property sells, great, if not, you'll live to see another day.

You don't have to sell, which is the perfect time to sell.

Here's why: There's little to no pressure.

You can afford to wait for the right buyer. If a deal falls through, you have time to find a new one.

When you have to sell, you may make quick decisions that cost you money. You may even have to take a low offer because, if you don't sell, it'll cost you more down the line.

Don't wait until your back is up against the wall and have to sell.

If your lifestyle is changing, and you know you'll have to sell, that's the best time to start putting a plan in place. You'll be in the best position possible to make rational decisions that will affect your future.

If you're ready to start mapping out your plan, send me an email at: al@landandlegacygroup.com.

The Trick to Treats

ROY SMALLEY

The numbers don't lie: Snacking is serious business.

In the U.S., where polls show half of adults often snack instead of eating actual meals, snack food sales are estimated to bring in more than $100 billion this year – outselling breakfast cereals by nearly five to one.

All this noshing is affecting our health, and not always for the better: While sensible snacking can be part of a healthy lifestyle, it more frequently results in weight gain and health problems from overeating foods with poor nutrition.

The difference between snacking being a "health booster" or a "health buster" usually comes down to something I talk about frequently in my columns: habit.

What you regularly snack on is important, as is how often you're snacking and where those calories and nutrients fit in your overall diet. But more important than any of these is your motivation: Why are you snacking?

When asked their reasons for snacking, adults most frequently cited "comfort." Snackers also said they often indulged out of boredom or to relax, as a mood-booster, as a reward or just because the snacks were "right there."

While there's nothing wrong with eating socially at certain holidays or special events, significant help to her accomplishments, scoured archives for the North Country National Scenic Trail to determine, first, how many women had completed that trek.

The North Country trail – which connects Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota – is (by a significant margin) the longest of the NST runs at 4,600 miles. The next longest is the Continental Divide trail, which is 3,200 miles.

Laan estimated that she hiked 300 consecutive days to finish the North Country Trail (“at that point, you’re so caught up in the moment, you don’t realize it’s kind of insane.”).

“It’s too much,” quipped Laan about North Country, noting that so few hikers finish that single trail let alone the 10 others. “[Tanzman] did some digging to see [what women] finished the North Country trail. If they had done [North Country], had they done another one?”

The research did not produce another female with the credentials of Laan and, as such, she will take the honor of sixth ever to complete all NST trails and the first woman, though, she acknowledged that it is quite possible others have done so without much fanfare.

“There’s no registry,” she explained, adding that hikers also aren’t the most extroverted of people. “The NST hikers are not that big on social media.”

Looking back at her 11-trail excursion, Laan said it is not likely her accomplishment will sink in immediately or anytime soon. Speaking to this journalist from the trail, Laan said she was looking forward to seeing her friends and family at the finish line, as well as a much-needed day of rest.

“We’re just going to chill at the campground,” she said. “It’s a little weird, because people keep saying it’s a big thing, but it’s just a hike. For now, it just feels like I’m finishing a hike.”

On her time in Wisconsin, Laan said she was surprised by the geographical variance.

“The [Kettle Moraine Northern Unit] was actually pretty hard,” said Laan of the local leg of the Ice Age Trail. “You think, ‘Wisconsin is not that hilly!’ and you hit those little ups and little downs all day.”

Laan enjoyed the glacial rocks and boulders found throughout the Kettle Moraine area, and she said the ample recreational lakes along the way were a perfect reprieve on some of July’s muggy and sweltering evenings.

In addition to the trails, Laan said – when there was time and energy – she also climbed lookout towers, did additional non-Ice Age Trail legs and even walked into Algoma for a small taste of civilization (“we walked to the beach and then turned around”).

In all, Laan’s wanderlust is personal. While she’s managed to make a living doing something she enjoys, she said she never sought out attention for her actions; it’s simply something she loves to do, and if more people pick up the hobby because of her, that’s just a cherry-on-top.

“I like to talk about hiking and inspire others to get out there,” she said, adding that folks should not feel intimidated by younger and fitter “influencers” on social media. “You can do cool stuff even if you are a little older and not [thin].”

Hiking, in Laan’s eyes, is really about community, and she said to anyone looking to get involved, they are likely to find a host of supportive allies in the woods and fields across the country. She said the camaraderie, even from a distance, was imperative in lifting her to the last day.

“I’m very grateful for all the ‘trail angels’ that have helped me,” she said. “Everyone that has been cheering me on at home; it means a lot. Some days are hard, and you might get a message that says: ‘I’m thinking of you!’ Seems like a little thing but it makes a difference.”

While Laan was hesitant to rank the Ice Age Trail against the others (“I really like more of a wilderness experience. I like the big mountain regions and the herds of elk”), she was quick to note that “different” is a positive descriptor when analyzing trails.

“Ice Age Trail doesn’t have the epic mountain views, but it has some different cultural [features], and the beauty is in the little things,” she said, adding that the Ice Age Trail’s proximity to urban environments meant she had more person-to-person interaction throughout the months. “I really enjoyed hiking in the spring with the wildflowers and meeting the people.”

Up next for Laan is – you guessed it – more hiking, though, she will certainly be taking a small break to reflect on her impressive accomplishment.

She thanked her husband, Rich Gambale, and

Laan said walking among wildflowers in the spring was one of her favorite parts of the Kettle Moraine State Forest. SUBMITTED

Storm Damage at St. Kilian Church

KARL MCCARTY
CONTRIBUTOR

In early March, a severe storm damaged St. Kilian Church. It technically was not labeled a tornado and instead considered a micro-burst of wind, likely in excess of 80 miles per hour. Witnesses suggested the force ushered through the valley north of St. Kilian

Drive and started west of the church. It then hit the church grounds. Multiple sources east of St. Kilian noted a loud noise similar to a freight train. Others noticed a strange suction of pressure out of their house, but by the time they could get to the basement the threat subsided.

In the end, the worst effects was damage to St. Kilian Church's property. Most pressing was that the church's southwest corner of the roof blew off. There was also damage to the old school hall's siding, roof, and glass block windows.

Furthermore, two sides of the convent house's hip roof was damaged. Lastly, slight harm to the bingo stand's roof also occurred.

Although the church roof was insured, the collective damage and necessary repairs to other buildings are not all covered. Insurance is covering all of the church's roof repair.

However, help is needed for the convent house. On the topic of the convent house, insurance will only cover the portions of the roof damaged by the storm.

However, the roof was old and it is prudent to put a new roof and shingles on the entirety of the hip roof.

There are many ways you can help. Your support at the St. Kilian Picnic on July 17 is always appreciated.

If you would like to help out with the costs related to the storm, contact the church at 920-533-4441.

While Laan continues to put one foot in front of the other, she acknowledged that - while it was never her original intent - she does hope that she will inspire others to follow their passions and desires.

At the end of the trail, it was not fame, fortunate or even consideration that Laan sought, and she encouraged others to do what they want to do, because they want to do it.

In her own words, in the simplest order, Laan wrapped up by saying:

"I was hiking because I wanted to hike."

Guitars for Veterans Event

Do you want to help American Veterans with PTSD or related depression while having fun with music in the process?

The Bend theater in Downtown West Bend will be hosting a "fund and friend" raising event to put guitars into veterans' hands along with a lesson package on Saturday, July 23, from 5:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Fuzz Martin of Epic Creative will be the emcee for the evening and the whole community is invited to attend.

Come on down and enjoy the bands, Kharma Shotgun, Tangled Lines and The Listening Party, as the theatre leads an effort to donate guitars to veterans who need help.

The donated guitars will come with lessons from a musicians' group called "Guitars 4 Vets." There will also be a pass-the-hat ask for donations to the Guitars 4 Vets organization.

The Guitars organization website states: "800,000 U.S. veterans struggle with physical injuries, post-traumatic stress disorder and other forms of emotional distress. We believe playing a guitar can help veterans safely connect with their surroundings and other people."

Nic Novaczyk, president of Historic West Bend Theater Inc., said, "We already have 10 donated guitars, and we expect to gather many more over the next month."

The event is free. The Bend asks people who plan on attending to reserve a spot by going to their website: thebendwi.org/event/guitars-4-vets-experience-the-bend.

Campbellsport residents have a new place to go for their coffee cravings. Blue Door Coffee Co. officially opened its doors on Main Street July 1, although customers have been served if they had stopped in since the First Sip event on May 31. The business is part of Drexel Building Supply. Todd Flitter, Drexel's store leader, pointed out the original location of Drexel was a lumberyard started in 1842 in Campbellsport. Wanting to keep things local, Drexel hired local architect Chet Wesenberg. To keep the Campbellsport community roots, the coffee shop is headed by Campbellsport native Raina Jeffery, and Blue Door will help community organizations with the profits.

| KEWASKUM'S DAYS GONE BY |

5 Years Ago
July 20, 2017

It's a tale as old as time. And the Kewaskum Theatre Company will bring Beauty And The Beast to life over the next two weeks. This is the seventh show the Kewaskum Theatre Company has presented since it was formed.

The population in Kewaskum grew last week when 286 teens and chaperones converged in the village as part of a mission trip. The youth could be spotted throughout the area as they did various community service projects. They volunteered at nursing homes, day care centers, churches, and state parks.

A community member informed the Kewaskum Police Department that a phone call was received from a number that caller I.D. identified as "Village of Kewaskum." The caller stated they were selling a well-being kit and was marketing it to senior citizens. This is a scam. The Village of Kewaskum does not engage in soliciting products for sale.

Pleas have been reached with two of eight people arrested in a drug ring bust in Campbellsport on March 31. 'The Verdict' Returns to Music in The Park

The "Music In The Park" free music series continues, with The Verdict performing at River Hill Park in Kewaskum this coming Tuesday, July 19, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The Verdict is a three-man band out of Grafton made up of Ralph Lechner on drums, Eric Zaeske on bass/vocals and Bradley Stern on guitar/vocals. The group gets its name from the fact that two of the members are lawyers and the third is married to one.

Describing their music as "classic rock," the members list a wide range of influences including Jimi Hendrix, Eric Clapton, ZZ Top, The Beatles, Johnny Rivers, The Clash, Johnny Cash, Deep Purple, Van Morrison, Bob Dylan and Roy Orbison.

The Verdict has played throughout the Midwest, including stops in Chicago and Davenport, Iowa, and has performed at venues such as Miller Park and the Alliant Energy Center in Madison. The band is also a regular on the local fair and festival circuit, and has played at the Washington County, Ozaukee County and Sheboygan County fairs (to name a few), and has entertained crowds at the Milwaukee Rally for Harley Davidson.

The band was scheduled to play last year, however, the concert was rained out.

"It was the first time in 14 years we canceled for weather," said Music In The Park Organizer Cheryl Ammel, noting that folks will not want to miss this opportunity to see the trio in action.

The Music In The Park concert is free and takes place in the large shelter in River Hill Park in Kewaskum. Food and beverage is available for purchase from the concessions at 5:30 p.m. and the music begins at 6:30 p.m.

Seating is available, but lawn chairs are encouraged.

New 'Planning AHEAD' Program Offered in Washington County

Many people wish to arrange their affairs to live well in their later years, and ensure that their end-of-life plans follow their wishes. Still, it is something that many people find challenging.

Planning AHEAD is a new in-person class from UW-Madison Division of Extension, created to address most aspects of end-of-life planning. In one-hour classes, extension educators guide participants through examining health care wishes, financial responsibilities, legal requirements and documentation, distribution of personal property, end-of-life decisions, dealing with grief, and the emotional ramifications of all of the above.

The program is designed both for those who want to prepare for their own passing, to make things easier for family members, and for those who have, or are in the process of, losing a loved one and are dealing with the transition. This course features an online planning workbook to help organize the tasks and documents associated with end-of-life decisions. By working through these sessions, participants find that the financial, healthcare, and other decisions don't feel so overwhelming.

Washington County residents are invited to join Planning AHEAD, a free in-person course facilitated by UW Madison, Division of Extension Human Development & Relationships Educator Carol Bralich and Jennifer Fechter, Washington County ADRC Elder Benefits Specialist. KEWASKUM LIBARIAN

I feel that hot summer days and longer nights should involve reading. When I was a child, I would find a comfy spot outdoors. My favorites were either in a crook of a tree branch or snug between our overgrown lilac bushes and a wall of the house. I would have one or two books with me and usually a sandwich and a peach and read to my heart's content.

I no longer climb trees or sit in dark, damp dirt to read but I do have a favorite spot at home. Unfortunately, I do not have as much time during the summer as I had as a youth to spend the entire day reading, but I get it in when I can. I am on a state committee to choose award winners in literature and must read between three to four dozen novels, books of poetry and non-fiction in a few months. Many of these are not in my favorite genres. Being able to check out and devour a book of my choosing has been a rare treat this summer. Here a couple of reviews of my top picks so far.

Geraldine Brooks is the author of one of my favorite books, so I was happy when her new book, Horse was released. She is connoisseur of historical fiction, and this book does not disappoint. It follows the path of a famous race-horse beginning at birth and the boy who grew up alongside the horse. As with most of Brooks' works, two worlds, past and present are intertwined. We have Jarret and horse Lexington in a time of slavery and modern-day researchers in different areas of expertise, Jess and Theo. Besides the racing history in this novel, there is a major theme of civil rights, historical and current. What I like most about Brooks' writing is the relationship she fosters between past and present and the extensive research you can see she puts into her novels. I tend to investigate after reading historical topics and am pleased when the author's facts are true, as Geraldine Brooks does in Horse.

With my lack of time to sit and read, I am a big user of audiobooks, either on disc or in the Libby app. I checked out the e-audiobook Eleanor Oliphant is Completely Fine by Gail Honeyman last week and finished it in a few days. This is an older novel and if you have not read it, I highly recommend it. The audio was a treat, with Scottish and British accents. I laughed and cried and reprimanded myself for not reading it sooner. I thought it was light chick lit but was very wrong. Eleanor is a social misfit with a past that you discover was very traumatic. She begins to reinvent herself after falling for a singer in a band. Along the way, she discovers friendship and her true self. A book I will remember long after finishing it.

Where is your favorite spot for your summer reads?

SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care Unveils $8.5 Million Expansion Project

Supported by a $3 million gift from the Michels family, SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care is set to begin an $8.5 million expansion project to address increasing space needs as the number of cardiac physicians and life-saving procedures continues to grow.

The Dale Michels family continues to honor the legacy of their late father, Dale Michels - owner and president of Michels Pipeline Construction, Inc. - who died at age 65 following a heart attack in 1998.

This is the second large donation supporting heart care made by the Michels family, first in 2006 when the family gifted $1.5 million to help launch the Dale Michels Center for Heart Care, now SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care.

“At that time, our family contributed financial support through the Agnesian HealthCare Foundation with several goals in mind,” according to Pat Michels. “With heart disease a major health concern, we wanted to educate our community on good heart health and support a necessary facility of cardiac excellence and critical care. It was important to recruit and retain expert physicians, nurses and staff, assuring they have the best available technology and resources to care for our community’s cardiac needs. Now, 16 years later, the advancement in local heart care has surpassed our expectations, and we’re grateful to be able to support both continued innovation and this vital expansion.”

Since 2006, SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care has grown immensely, becoming a destination for cardiovascular excellence, performing both vascular and structural heart care. It has become the fastest growing and third largest WATCHMAN program in Wisconsin, performs more than 500 electrophysiology procedures per year, and now performs all structural heart procedures, beside heart transplant.

Additionally, the team has performed nearly 15,000 catheterizations and added advanced procedures, such as cardiac ablations, TAVR, WATCHMAN, and more. In May 2022, the team introduced the minimally invasive MitraClip procedure.

“We are proud that our father’s name is associated with this technologically advanced facility and high-quality professionals,” Michels says. “We are honored that we can continue to help play a part in helping area residents receive their heart care right here in Fond du Lac.”

Construction within SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care at St. Agnes Hospital will help reduce wait times for heart procedures, maintain a continuum of care where patients can receive comprehensive heart care in one location, create semi-private waiting spaces for families, and much more.

To minimally disrupt patient care, this vital expansion will take approximately one year to complete. Once the project is completed, SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care will feature the addition of a Cardiac Electrophysiology (EP) Lab, addition of three additional prep/recovery rooms, renovated reception area, new private consultation room, expanded employee spaces to better accommodate increased staff sizes, aesthetic improvements to Intensive Care Unit and a new, semi-private family waiting area.

The American Heart Association reports that cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death of men and women in the United States. In Wisconsin, one in three deaths are caused by heart attack or stroke. When cardiac emergencies occur, having quality care close to home is critically important to positive and long-lasting outcomes by providing immediate and lifesaving intervention.

“Cardiovascular disease will play a major factor in many lives for years to come with an ever-increasing aging population,” says Shawn Fisher, Agnesian HealthCare Foundation executive director. “The demand for quality heart care in Fond du Lac has outgrown original resources. We have added expert providers, innovative and advanced technologies, and now much needed additional space. The Michels’ family generous, philanthropic gift, will make a direct impact on the Fond du Lac community, and will contribute to saving the lives of our friends, family, neighbors and colleagues.”

Construction began June 6 on a new enhanced family waiting space. The area will feature five semi-private spaces for families to utilize while a loved one is a patient in the ICU or undergoing a cath lab procedure.

“The need for ICU and heart care procedures continues to grow, especially as we add new physicians and advanced services that help provide critical care at the local level,” says Tadeo Diaz Balderrama, MD, SSM Health Fond du Lac Regional Clinic cardiologist. “It is unusual for a city the size of Fond du Lac to have such a vast and ever-growing cardiovascular program, inclusive of big city offerings, that address the needs of our patients in real-time. I am proud to serve as a physician within SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care.”

How It Started

Pat Michels, Michels Corporation president, shares what started the legacy of his father, Dale Michels, with heart care services at the SSM Health Dale Michels Heart & Vascular Care in 2006.

“I remember the night that my father called me. We drove up to the St. Agnes Hospital Emergency Department. After examining my father and running tests, the doctor confirmed he was having a heart attack. At the time, the hospital was unable to provide the level of care that my father needed and started preparing him to transfer to a Milwaukee heart center. Flight for Life was called. It was a very cold night when the helicopter landed. They got my father into the helicopter but then couldn’t get one of the engines started. There was a long period of time to give transport lined up and open-heart surgery would be needed almost immediately upon his arrival. My father suffered a stroke and died about 30 days later from stroke complications.

“Several years later, leaders at then Agnesian HealthCare came to me and asked if we would be interested in supporting a heart center here at St. Agnes Hospital, which was ripe for needing this type of service. This fact really helped us to know this decision was the right thing to do. You always want to give back to the community and we knew this was a great way of doing it.”

“earning” an occasional treat or just splurging for fun from time to time, making a habit of mindlessly munching can be detrimental, not only to your health, but also to your waistline.

If you regularly reach for snacks out of boredom or “just because they’re right there,” consider re-organizing your cabinets so snacks are out of sight and harder to reach.

For example, when I’m gifted a plate of treats, I often store separately bagged pieces in an out-of-the-way cabinet or in the basement freezer; reducing my chance of binge eating them out of boredom, stress or convenience.

If you’re snacking as a mood-booster or stress-buster, consider what daily exercise can do for your mindset!

Twenty minutes of exercise lowers your body’s stress hormones while increasing endorphins, which reduces pain, fights depression, increases energy levels and makes you feel calmer and happier.

Healthy nutrition, too, helps your body stave off the effects of daily stress, fight illness and disease and feel more energized.

So what makes a healthy snack?

First and foremost, good snacks leave you feeling full.

Snack foods that leave you feeling hungry a short while later often lack essential nutrients, or have too many of the highly processed ingredients that can increase inflammation and lead to chronic health problems.

Filling snacks are high in protein and fiber, which digest slowly and make you feel full longer. Like a heavy, slow-burning log in your fireplace, foods high in both protein and fiber help keep your energy levels steady and sustained for a long time.

Additionally, protein supports healthy skin, hair, and nails, and a robust immune system; even as it helps maintain or improve your muscle tone. It also acts to turn off the “hunger hormone,” reducing food cravings.

Fiber helps control your cholesterol and blood sugar, supports gut and bowel health and reduces your risk of cardiovascular disease and all types of cancer.

High-protein, high-fiber snacks include things like hummus and veggies, jerky and whole-grain crackers, apple slices and nut butter, and cottage cheese or Greek yogurt topped with berries.

A nut-filled trail mix also makes a great protein- and fiber-rich snack! Mind your portion size, though, as trail mix can be high in calories.

Which brings us to another quality of good, healthy snacks: They not only fill you up, but they do it without “breaking the calorie bank.”

High-calorie foods often make it easy to eat a lot in a short period of time, without giving you much nutritional content; things like pastries, candy bars, or anything deep fried.

Those high-sugar, high-fat items are easy to binge, because they’re engineered to make you want more without ever really being satisfied. Your brain is wired to crave carbs and fat, which is why potato chip companies are right when they “bet you can’t eat just one” or say “once you pop you can’t stop.”

If you’re looking for healthy snacks that are easy to make at home with just a few ingredients, I’ve uploaded my own recipes for energy balls, snack pudding and soaked oats to my website – www.roysmalley.us – along with a printable sheet of nutrition information that includes quick snack ideas and how to read a label.

Jump online and download a copy!

Healthy snacking habits might require a little planning, but the health benefits are well worth it. Remember: We don’t decide our future; we decide our habits, and our habits determine our future.

Vaccine Equity Group Launches COVID-19 Vaccine Ambassador Program

The Fond du Lac Vaccine Equity Team works to advance health equity by promoting a better understanding of the COVID-19 vaccine, debunking misinformation, and helping the Fond du Lac County Public Health Department reach out to communities historically underserved by access to healthcare that included people of color, elderly, LBGTQ+, and rural residents.

"In 2021, nine vaccine pop-up tents were set up around the FDL community and nearly 300 adults received COVID-19 vaccinations," said Tina Potter, FDL United Way Grant coordinator.

Vaccination continues to be an important strategy for preventing serious illness and death from COVID-19. Now that children ages five to 11 are eligible to receive the COVID-19 vaccine we know many parents, guardians, and caregivers have questions and we want to respond.

The Health Department and United Way are taking the lead to implement a vaccine ambassador program in our community. The training for vaccine ambassadors includes two parts: the first is an online self-paced course called Vaccine Ambassador Training; How to Talk to Parents. The program was developed by John Hopkins University and Medicine International Vaccine Access Center. The second part of the training is in-person, providing the opportunity to practice what was learned in the online course as well as time to ask an SSM Health Fond du Lac Regional Clinic Family Medicine Physician questions.

The training will be launched in July and we are seeking participation from parents, guardians, caregivers, and others who volunteer with children that support the immunization needs of children and families in our communities. No specific background, knowledge, or profession is required for this training.

The training is four hours and will be split into two sessions; two hours online and two hours in person. The course prepares individuals to be Vaccine Ambassadors by providing them with the latest knowledge about COVID-19 vaccines, how to engage others in conversation about their hesitancy in a respectful and empathetic way, and how to promote vaccine acceptance. Vaccine Ambassadors will also be able to direct others to credible sources for further information about vaccines and recognize and respond to misinformation.

Individuals can call FDL County Health Department at 920-929-3085 with questions and register at <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/ZX98T99>.

With a 30-yard head start and an order for Star and Pearl to stay, I started running with my sled following 10-feet behind me.

All went well.

I then told Star and Pearl to come, and they also made it across.

The next two miles or three hours we were jumping lead after lead.

When we finally made it to Raspberry Point, we were on a shoreline protected from the west wind, and we came across much better ice.

I put another three miles behind me and stopped for the night on a sand beach in Frog Bay.

Completely blocked from the wind, I made a tarp shelter and cooked a pot of tea. After dark, there was moose steak to eat and Northern Lights to watch.

My day went from near panic to perfection.

I have not been as scared as I was today since last fall when I fell from a tree while bowhunting.

MONDAY, MARCH 7 HIGH 34, LOW 12

Yesterday's strong west winds picked up more strength today and made hiking tough.

There were times when I had to get as low to the ice as possible to really concentrate on every step just to go forward.

There is no snow on the ice, so my ice spikes are the most valuable tool I have.

When the wind is at our backs, it blows our sleds ahead of us. When it is in our face, every step is bullwork.

Star did an excellent job of pulling her 80 pounds without a complaint.

I made camp just south of Red Cliff. I found a deep snow drift and dug an 8x10-foot hole down to the ice.

Thursday, March 10

High 36, low 18

Our night hike went well until I came to an expansion crack that appeared to go all the way across the Chequamegon Bay. It had open water in the middle about a foot wide and bad ice for about five feet on each side of the water.

With my flashlight, I figured out my newest challenge. A slight panic came back, just like Sunday.

All went well for man and beast.

I decided I had enough fun for one day and headed toward shore.

Right away, I found an excellent rock wall with huge icicles hanging down from it. Then, I found two rocks each about the size of a pickup and flat on top. One would be my bed and one would be my kitchen.

High and dry on Lake Superior!

It's a good life!

Eye black, yes or no?

Yes.

Talk about a challenge you have had to overcome:

I have always struggled with having confidence in myself. My past coaches never really believed in me, so it was hard to believe in myself.

Best high school memory:

My best high school memory was going to watch the varsity softball team play at state and play in the championship game. I was not a part of playing the game, but knowing that it could happen again and I could be a part of it made me push harder.

What is one thing most people do not know about you?

I have played every position at least one time in my softball career.

What are your college aspirations?

I want to major in elementary education and get certified in special needs education. I also want to continue with my softball career.

What is your dream job?

4K, kindergarten, or first grade teacher.

Cake or pie?

This is the hardest decision of my life because I love both.

Who is your role model?

My mom. She has always believed in me and she is always there when I need her. I want to be just like her when I grow up.

What is one of your dreams?

I want to move down south because I am not a fan of Wisconsin weather.

Favorite team and athlete:

My favorite team is the Wisconsin Badgers. My favorite athlete is Kaitlyn Menz who was a pitcher for the Wisconsin Badgers' softball team.

MARK WALTERS
COLUMNIST

I am trying to do my best to deal with the loss of a beautiful person – Michelle Chiaro – who was my partner in life.

This week's column is one that I wrote almost 30 years ago after a 180-mile ice hike on Lake Superior.

Thanks for your patience!

From 1993

This is the third of a four-part series.

I am writing on the experiences that happen with myself along with two golden retrievers, Star and Pearl, as we hike the Wisconsin shoreline of Lake Superior. Both Star and I are pulling sleds.

When completed, this will be roughly a 180-mile trip. Our starting point was Superior and our ending destination is Saxon Harbor near Hurley.

SUNDAY, MARCH 6

HOW 40 LOW 18

I made camp last night on York Island.

Islands and is about two miles off the mainland.

My plan for the day was to take the day off and rest my body. The weather changed that plan this afternoon.

About noon I was down at the lake getting some water from one of the many puddles on the top of the ice when I noticed open water where there wasn't open water an hour earlier.

A strong west wind had been blowing since last night. The wind was, along with the warm air, taking out the ice at this part of the lake real fast.

A mild panic took over.

I took a quick look around and realized: If I was going to get off this island without help, I was going to have to do it soon.

I broke camp and packed the sleds in record time. The mutts and I were about 100 yards off the island when we came to more open water.

My mild panic was getting stronger, as I thought of sitting on the island for days before help came or, even worse, falling through the ice.

I'm proud of the fact that I'm a brave man, but suddenly I feel very vulnerable, very alone.

With the mutts following, I kept searching for a way out. I finally realized I was going to have to take a two-foot jump across the open water while pulling my sled. My main concern was that the ice may break when I landed on the other side.

flag of the event appeared for a five-car incident in turn one involving Tyler Brabant of Waupun, Doug Wondra of Oakfield, Tommy Colburn of New Berlin, Tony Wondra of Campbellsport and Mike Yurmanovich of Cascade. The incident knocked Colburn and Yurmanovich out of the remainder of the race, while Doug Wondra, Tony Wondra and Brabant were able to continue.

On the restart, Ben Schmidt, who started fourth, worked the high line to move past Erickson into second and quickly close in on Wenninger for the lead. Three laps later, Schmidt moved within striking distance, while 2021 PDTR 360 Sprint Car champion and current points leader Travis Arenz, who started sixth, moved into third.

On lap 9, Schmidt maneuvered his way past Wenninger in turn two to take the lead, while Arenz followed suit by moving around Wenninger into second on the following lap.

Over the final 16 laps, the leaders had their hands full as they sliced their way through heavy lapped traffic. As the laps wound down, Arenz worked primarily the low line to reel in the high-riding Schmidt, while two-time PDTR 360 Sprint Car champion Brandon McMullen, who started seventh, moved into third to join in a spirited three-car duel at the front of the field.

With Arenz and McMullen hot on his heels, Schmidt stayed smooth and consistent to successfully negotiate a dense gaggle of slower traffic in the closing laps en route to his 14th career PDTR 360 Sprint Car A-main victory and 31st career Midwest Sprint Car Association main event triumph.

Arenz had to settle for second, McMullen finished third, Wenninger placed fourth and Erickson wound up fifth.

Polesitter Joe Bongiorno of Milwaukee took the lead at the drop of the green flag of the 25-lap Late Model main event.

On lap 2, outside front row starter Turk Letizia of Milwaukee used the low line to pressure the cushion-running Bongiorno for the top spot. As Bongiorno and Letizia continued to wage an early duel at the front of the pack, Taylor Scheffler, who started fourth, dove low to move past Letizia into second on lap 5.

Scheffler then bolted past Bongiorno to assume the lead in turn one on lap six. The first of two caution flags appeared later on lap 6 for the slowing car of Charlie Schmidt Oostburg along the backstretch.

On the restart, Scheffler worked the preferred outside groove to open up a full straightaway cushion over Bongiorno. The second and final caution flag was displayed on lap 16 when Sawyer Specht of Sheboygan Falls spun in turn two.

Late Model rookie Bill Edler of Howards Grove charged up to briefly take second in the running order on the restart before four-time defending PDTR Late Model champion and current point leader Justin Schmidt of Cleveland, who started 10th, used a low move to take second from Edler on lap 17.

Schmidt cut into Scheffler's lead over the final eight circuits, but he was not able to mount a serious challenge as Scheffler went on to notch his sixth career PDTR Late Model A-main victory in his second appearance of the 2022 season at The Plymouth Dirt Track.

Outside front row starter Steven Weber of Plymouth grabbed the lead on the opening lap of the 25-lap Grand National A main. On lap 3, fourth starter Tyler Kulow moved into second with current PDTR Grand National point leader Luke Scholten of Oostburg moving into third from his sixth starting position.

The first of three caution flags was displayed on lap 5 for debris in turn four. On lap restart, Scholten used the high line to move around Kulow and pressure Weber for the top spot. Weber and Scholten battled side by side over the next several circuits as 2010 PDTR Grand National champion Brian Gilles of Plymouth, who started fifth, moved the Bender Racing No. 89 car into third on lap 9.

The second caution flag appeared on lap 10 when Scott Kafka of Kiel spun along the backstretch. On the restart, Kulow worked his way past Scholten into second as Weber built up a solid half-straightaway lead at the front of the field.

With three laps remaining, Weber's machine began to slow, which allowed Kulow close the gap significantly. After slight contact with Kulow and the third-place car of Gilles on lap 23, the third and final caution flag of the race flew when Weber stopped along the backstretch and Gilles slowed with a flat right front tire.

With Weber out of the race, Kulow inherited the lead and he maintained the top spot over the final two circuits on the way to his 11th career PDTR Grand National A-main victory.

Scholten finished second, 2008 PDTR Grand National champion Matt Yancey of Sheboygan, who started third, finished third, Donny Kulow of Elkhart Lake, who started seventh, placed fourth and Gilles recovered to finish fifth.

After the initial start was aborted for a fourth car incident involving Shane Long of Sheboygan Falls, Jonathan Hitsman of Newton, Rory Welch of Grafton and Spencer Long of Sheboygan Falls, James Rautmann of Howards Grove seized the top spot from the pole position on the opening lap of the 25-lap B Mod A main.

On lap 5, third starter Travis Schmidt of Waldo worked the low line to move into second in turn one. By lap 10, Schmidt pulled up to challenge Rautmann for the top spot as the leaders held tight to the low groove.

The second caution flag was presented on lap 15 when Steve Lorier of Sheboygan spun in turn two. On the restart, Andy Welter made his presence felt as he moved up from his fifth starting spot to pressure Schmidt's slowing car for second on lap 17.

The third and final caution flag appeared on lap 16 for a four car incident in turn three involving Jonathan Hitsman, Spencer Long,

Belles Back in Pennant Race by Beating Kewaskum

CAMPBELLSPORT NEWS
JULY 10, 1947

The following is an article from the July 10, 1947 edition of the Campbellsport News. The article covers a Campbellsport Belles baseball game, and the piece is largely unedited and displays the style and convention used "back in the day."

The Belles were hotter than firecrackers on the Fourth of July as they easily defeated their old rivals Kewaskum by a score of 14 to 3, on the local diamond.

The defeat was the first of the season for the Utensils and put the locals back in the pennant race.

A total of eighteen hits good for twenty-one bases boomed off the Belle bats as three Kewaskum pitchers attempted to halt the barrage.

The locals also sparkled in the field as Ken Wilderman, Don Hodge and Spitz Jaeger turned in fielding gems.

Not to be outdone by his teammates, Chuck Schramm hurled his best game of the year as he allowed but nine scattered hits, walked no one, and struck out four.

Stan Hodge and Jaeger led the attack with four hits each and were closely followed by Glen Lemke and Ben Wirkus who got three base hits each. Ken Wilderman had the longest hit of the day, a triple in the 7th inning.

Way Tessar, the league leading hitter, led the visitors at the plate with two hits.

On Sunday the 6th of July, Stan Hodge, Spitz Jaeger, Ben Wirkus, and Otto Wachs took part in the league's all star game which was won by the southern division by a score of 9 to 8.

Stan had a perfect day at the plate getting three for three and Spitz hit a home run as they led the southerners at the plate.

Way Tessar of Kewaskum and Ralph Dishman of Waucousta also had circuit clouts.

This week the Belles travel to Random Lake to meet the reinvented Lakers who have won their last two games.

Belles Hand Utensils First Loss of Season

KEWASKUM STATESMAN
JULY 11, 1947

The following is an article from the July 11, 1947 edition of the Kewaskum Statesman. The article covers a Kewaskum Utensils baseball game. The piece is largely unedited and displays the style and convention used "back in the day."

After winning six straight without a setback, the first place Kewaskum Utensils had their clean slate broken on the Fourth at Campbellsport by the second place Belles.

And the Belles really did it in a decisive manner, 14 to 3.

The Belles are now only a game behind the Utensils.

After winning 6 in a row the Utensils probably were due for a fail and they really let down and got the badness out of their systems against the Belles. Besides lacking the usual hitting power and pitching they played a loose game unlike their ordinary brand of ball. But even the best teams have days like that and in future games Kewaskum is sure to bounce back and play winning ball again.

The Belles blasted 3 Kewaskum pitchers for 17 hits.

"Mix" Marx, winner of 6 straight, started on the hill although handicapped by an injury. Marx was not in shape and took the mound with his body taped up because of a muscle injury. The Belles went right to work on him, getting 2 runs in the first inning and 4 in the second on 7 hits.

He was replaced on the mound after finishing the third inning and changed places with Honeck at second base.

After an inning at second Marx was removed from the game entirely.

Honeck, who hasn't pitched all season, hurled the next 3 and 2/3 innings. Due to lack of practice, Honeck's control was off and he had to throw slow to get the ball across. He was nicked for 8 runs. Finally, Kewaskum's catcher, Kral, who earlier had been sent to play in left field, came in to finish the last 1 and 1/3 innings and he gave up 2 hits.

The Utensil's lineup was all mixed up with the pitcher playing infield, the catcher playing outfield and pitching, the left fielder catching, and the second baseman pitching and playing outfield.

Kewaskum touched Schramm for 9 hits with Tessar and C. Stautz getting 2 apiece.

Jaeger was the offensive ace for the Belles with 4 singles in 5 tries at bat.

Lemke, Stan Hodge, and Wirkus each got 3 hits.

against Eden.

Alex started the game off with a double.

Our pitchers were Malachi, Jameson, Xane, and Blake.

In the third inning, Alex was the star with two pop fly catches in center.

Austin had an amazing pop fly catch in foul territory in the fourth. We had Eden three up and three down in the fourth inning.

Final score was a loss, 14-4.

July 5

The Kewaskum Pony League team lost to Farmington 8-11.

The game was full of excitement and was a close game until the last inning.

Zane Kleinke had a nice single to get the game started. There was an exciting defensive play that involved Stuart Scheunemann, Jameson Morgan, and Lewis Williams.

Elijah Mays had an RBI and Alex Bayer did a great job making plays at center field.

Malachi Yttri and Alex Bayer demonstrated great chemistry between pitcher and catcher. Those two have now earned the nickname "Malex Duo."

Later in the game, Zane Kleinke had a double and two RBIs.

Malachi Yttri had a single and Parker Gruen had an RBI in the fourth inning. Jameson Morgan made good contact with the bat, but, unfortunately, got out. Parker Gruen had a nice grab of a ball hit fast to first base.

Stuart Scheunemann had a single in the bottom of the fifth and then Malachi Yttri had a home run with two RBIs. Elijah Mays had another single and Tony Kern had a nice toss from third to first to get a much needed out.

The boys played hard and showed many great things on the field that night.

Rookies

July 5

Another sad loss for the Kewaskum Rookie girls.

We had some great fielding, Pierce pitched the third and fourth innings having an outstanding pop fly out to the pitching mound.

Wagner was our all-star hitter getting two double hits helping us bring in our only run of the game.

Laconia had some great hits and those girls are not afraid to run.

Final score was 11-1, Laconia.

We have two games left this season.

Minors-Green

July 7

Kewaskum got out to a five-run lead in the second inning and held on for an 8-7 victory over Oakfield.

Kewaskum opened up scoring in the first inning. Isla Rabuck singled on a 2-0 count, scoring one run.

Wisconsin Indians Minors tallied three runs in the second inning. The offensive onslaught by Wisconsin Indians Minors was led by Eleanor Korth, Kendal Schnabel, and Daphne Wolff, all driving in runs in the frame.

Ruby McCain led things off in the pitcher's circle. McCain surrendered one run on one hit over two innings, walking one.

Korth, Rabuck, Bryn Schairer, Katelynn Reichert, and Schnabel each collected one hit to lead Wisconsin Indians Minors.

with Mason Droese (2021) and Ryan Prochnow (2019) as my first team All-Conference center fielders."

We are looking to the next group of players to see who will fill those big shoes going forward.

Another player that stood out was Dylan Soyk.

"He was second team All-Conference as a utility player, basically DH-ing and playing some outfield. We are looking forward to him continuing to improve and utilize his skills next year in the field as well," Heisdorf said.

Some returning players that stood out were Hunter Loser and Donovan Zillmer.

"Both are juniors coming back and we are expecting big things out of them. Hunter is two years in a row All-Conference going into his senior year and Zillmer is first team All-Conference and both of them were second team All-District this year, too." Heisdorf said. "We will need a little bit more of that offensively from them."

With losing so many starters it can cause problems when it comes to players knowing their defensive assignments and where to put players in the batting order according to Heisdorf.

"Trying to figure out as a staff who should bat where, who gets on base the most, that is going to be a challenge because we lost a lot of key players in the batting order," he said. "That is going to be the biggest key in the offseason and watching the kids take their swings, their pitching, their work ethic, and see who is going to push each other and who is going to step up. Because right now I know what my returning starters are going to be like but it is wide open for next year, especially in the outfield when you lose all three starters. It has to start somewhere, so we will all be learning from each other next year."

Kewaskum Baseball Season Wrap-up

MICHAEL PROCHNOW
KHS BASEBALL ASSISTANT COACH

The Kewaskum baseball team had a strong showing this season as the Indians finished the season with a record of 19-8 and were second in the East Central Conference.

The season ended in a 3-2 loss to Kettle Moraine Lutheran in the regional round.

Head coach Mike Heisdorf said that overall he felt that the season went really well.

“We were in every ball game that we played this year and I was really happy with how the kids played this year,” he said.

While the season might have ended earlier than they would have liked, Heisdorf said that the returning players can take away the work ethic that it took to get as far as they did this year and the drive to push each other.

“We had eight seniors and it started last year with that group and it carried over to this year and the work ethic that the team had in the offseason to get themselves ready is what helped prepare us to get as far as we did with our record,” he said.

Pitching was a positive for the Indians this year.

“Especially Jacob Brzozowski, he pitched pretty great all season long,” Heisdorf said. “His ERA in conference was 0.57 it doesn’t get much better than that and his overall ERA was 1.89 for the season. He only gave up 29 hits the whole season so it was pretty good. The kids worked hard in pitching, it was what we focused on in the offseason and during the off-season they worked hard at that.”

The Indians have a lot of holes to fill with losing their whole outfield, their starting third baseman, starting first baseman, and their starting second baseman. Heisdorf said that there is going to be a lot to work on this upcoming offseason.

“I don’t know what we are going to look like next year,” he said. “It kind of sounds like a rebuilding year, but I don’t believe in rebuilding, I believe in reloading. So we are going to have to figure things out here as a staff and I am sure there are going to be some young kids playing in there and filling some of the voids. We are going to have to rely on our sophomores and juniors that are coming back to play a huge role for next year.”

There were multiple players that stood out to Heisdorf this season, including Matthew Buechel.

“He played a really good outfield for us this year,” Heisdorf said. “He was first team All-Conference center fielder. I have been very fortunate the last three years (excluding the covid year) having three first team center fielders. Matt had a really good year out in the field and joins the club
