Cougars Outlast Cards in Flyway Stunner

Campbellsport crawled back from a deficit to hit a game-winning three, which earned the Cougars a huge conference victory, 60-58

MITCHELL BRADLEY KELLER
EDITOR

As far as the Flyway Conference was concerned, last Thursday's match-up between the Campbellsport Cougars and the Mayville Cardinals was of titanic-proportions, as both teams were battling out their few remaining contests this regular season for a top-spot on the league ladder.

Having already bested the Red Birds once this season, a win by the visiting Big Cats would give Campbellsport (13-4, 8-2) a real shot at an outright title by season's end. For Mayville (9-10, 7-3), coming into the contest, knocking off Campbellsport and Springs late in the season could mean the Cards guarantee for themselves at least a share of the championship.

With high stakes on the line, it was Mayville looking like the night's best team throughout the tail end of the first half and opening minutes of the second,

What happens when an unstoppable force meets an immovable object? Campbellsport's Mitch McCarty brings the ball up for the Cougars with Mayville's Blake Schraufnagel in defense. The former has been one of the conference's best offensive players this season, while the latter has been one of the Flyway's best defenders. McCarty and Campbellsport just edged out Schraufnagel and the Cardinals last Thursday, 60-58. MITCHELL B. KELLER PHOTO

Drexel Building Supply Expanding in Kewaskum

Drexel Building Supply is expanding its footprint to Kewaskum after the recent announcement of its acquisition of McMahon and Co, a custom door manufacturer.

Located only six miles from Drexel's headquarters, the facility will continue to manufacture quality products customers have come to expect out of McMahon and Co.

"We saw an opportunity to go direct to our consumers with the acquisition of McMahon and have been elated over the experience we have had working with the McMahon team," said Joel Fleischman, president of Drexel Building Supply. "As we continue with our strategy of growth and vertical integration we became excited about the opportunity to grow with the Village of Kewaskum."

With an initial expected employment of nearly 100 team members, Drexel Building Supply is anticipating breaking ground in 2023 on a plot of land within a new industrial park Drexel and the Village of Kewaskum are dubbing the "Blue Door District." The Blue Door District will be located on the north end of the Village along Hwy 28 approximately one-half mile west of US-45.

Construction will include a 200,000-plus square foot building that can be expanded in the future. In addition, Drexel has ownership of remaining lands within the Blue Door District and will be actively recruiting for quality neighbors. This project is subject to the creation of a Tax Increment Financing District (TID), land annexation and a mutually agreed upon developer's agreement.

In 2022, the Village of Kewaskum and Drexel Building Supply began conversations about the possibility of locating a new facility within village limits.

"Kewaskum has an increased focus on what the future of the Village will look like," said Adam Gitter, village administrator. "Having a distinguished company, such as Drexel, investing in our community is exciting on many levels. Not only will this provide ample job opportunities and have a positive impact on the Village financially, we are also showcasing that Kewaskum is a destination for quality business growth and expansion."

This project is made possible with the help of Economic Development Washington County (EDWC) and the support of Washington County.

Josh Schoemann, county executive said, "I am proud that EDWC, Washington County and the Village of Kewaskum have worked shoulder to shoulder on this catalytic project. Drexel's visionary development will create family-sustaining jobs which are key to a prosperous community for years to come. I welcome Drexel's expansion into Washington County and I congratulate President Spenner, Administrator Gitter and their entire team on the largest one-time economic development project in Kewaskum's history."

Meaning To Our Lives

Dear Reader,

At times, we may think about what gives meaning to our lives. Part of what we come up with are true friendships and religious beliefs. Both of these require personal sacrifices in order to nurture the friendships that come our way and explore the spirituality that surrounds us.

According to Saint Augustine, our love of others is the reflection of our love of God in whose image we are created. Thus they are inextricably intertwined.

A life without friends will feel insignificant and bereft of a higher ethereal calling. Is it worth all the investment when seeking a higher purpose beyond the pedestrian level of life? You decide.

Love is all you need. Leastwise, according to The Beatles. Valentine's Day is almost here. Big deal, huh? Though it is for kids. We learned about romance early. Come February, our teacher found a box large as an orange crate, then covered it with silky red paper and lacy white hearts. A slot in the top allowed insertion of valentines. Right up until the 14th. When silly crushes often aired. Sometimes outed by your best friend.

Skip ahead to adulthood. You'd think a guy who grew up with five sisters wouldn't have a problem talking with women. Unfortunately, cripplingly shy and introverted. Not that there weren't opportunities. The first was Wendy, a classmate who also attended the same church/catechism courses. But her mother and my father pushed too hard. I backed away. If they hadn't, who knows?

The next was a classmate, Mary who had a crush on me in high school, but her friend Leah didn't tell me till our 35th class reunion. Ah, thanks. To be fair, I did visit Mary a couple times a week after graduation when I found out she was a clerk at Kentron Drugs in Fond du Lac. Just never occurred to me to ask her out.

My last chance came with a waitress, Teri who I worked alongside at IHOP. A tall, leggy blonde, both smart and beautiful. Soft spoken, her voice like crushed velvet in the ear. One year on Valentine's Day, I sent her a single pink rose, for possibility. Followed by a lengthy phone chat. Yet I lacked nerve to take things further.

No regrets now. I wouldn't want any gal to have to deal with my health issues. If loneliness strikes, I venture down to a local watering hole where amidst surrounding commotion, I write these columns. Still, a friend, not necessarily romantic companion, would be ideal for getting out and about.

XYZ Card Results

The XYZ table winners on Wednesday, Feb. 1, were: Gary Straub, Marian Herriges, Darceal Jordan, Janet Jaeger and Kathy Schmitt.

Sheepshead is played on Wednesdays, from 8:15 to 11:15 a.m., at Peace United Church of Christ in Kewaskum. All senior citizens are welcome.

Just A Game

MITCHELL BRADLEY KELLER
EDITOR

While sports fans across the country are clamoring for the advent of "March Madness", communities across Wisconsin have been equally swept up in a faux-affliction called "February Fever".

Every year, the high school winter sports seasons come to a close starting in February. Not taking away anything from fall and spring sports seasons, but I have always enjoyed the winter postseason tournaments the most ever since I was young enough to participate in them. There is something about being couped up for months, the melting snow and cramming people into gyms to watch basketball and wrestling that just feels so right.

Unfortunately, though, with "the Fever" can come some foolishness, and games played during this portion of the year are typically wrought with intensity and drama.

And I'm not talking about the student athletes.

No, it's the fans in the stands that seem to be affected the most, as turnout for games increases and the prospect of postseason success starts to inebriate some's emotions. "Missed calls" by refs that were hardly an issue in December suddenly seem like life and death, and the taunts and derisions sent the referees way are typically done in a volume that everyone near the court can hear.

It's not okay, but I understand why it happens. Sports are fun, exciting and fervid. This is what we love about them, and the professional versions we watch on television often come pre-packaged with this type of language and behavior (for entertainment's sake).

But, at the end of the day, these are teenagers, and it's just a game.

For the benefit of the students, remember that this basketball, hockey or wrestling season (for 99% of performers) is unlikely to be the most defining moment of their lives. Even for me, I cannot say even a state runners-up trophy in football was among the top 10 or even 20 moments of my more than three decades on earth. Perhaps, when I was 18, "making it to state" ranked much higher, but the point is that, now, building off of that unique experience, I've managed to string together far more valuable and unforgettable life moments.

As these seasons end, ask yourself about your student athletes: Did they have fun? Did they learn lessons? Did they build friendships? If the answer is "yes," then it was a great year.

These are the important things when it comes to high school sports; not success, dominating the other team or making folks from a town over feel bad about themselves. Last week, a 60-year-old Vermont man died shortly after his involvement in an on-court fight at a middle school basketball game. It's an utterly tragic result of what was disturbing action by roughly one dozen (supposed) adults.

I don't think I have to state it, but I will: I doubt anyone reading this would ever want this to happen in their community.

Violence at amateur sporting events is always a scary reality, and it can happen in any community. It's important for parents, fans and casual observers to come to school property in a mindset that fosters support, encouragement and understanding. The more people that are cheering the right way, the easier it is to quell potential arguments and, heaven-forbid, physical altercations.

If you find yourself reading this and thinking, "Half-the-fun of high school games is swearing at the refs," I urge you: Please stay home and stream the game from your basement, where you can safely and freely say whatever you want without harming anyone.

The rest of us will be at the gym enjoying the environment, cheering loudly in support of our teams and knowing, win or lose, it's just a game.

See you next week.

Flat Tax Rate

MARY KRIEGER
CONTRIBUTING READER

Money, money, money, money: In Wisconsin, we have a surplus of almost seven billion dollars worth of it, and an opportunity to increase funding, reduce taxes or completely change the way income taxes are levied in the state.

It is no surprise that Republicans and Democrats in state leadership have different ideas on how to manage this surplus.

One idea being floated by Republican Senate Leader LeMahieu is going to a flat income tax plan, but how does a flat tax system work and would average Wisconsinites benefit from it?

A flat tax rate has everyone paying the same rate instead of Wisconsin's current progressive tax, which has the rate of tax paid based on your income.

The lowest current tax rate is 3.54%, and the highest bracket is 7.65%.

At first glance, lowering the rate for everyone to the proposed 3.25% sounds fair, but on closer examination, some studies show it has been found to adversely affect low-income earners while benefiting high income earners (information is courtesy the Institute on Taxation and Economic Policy or "ITEP").

A flat 3.25% tax rate would give low-income earners a 0.25% tax break, but it would cut the taxes of high-income earners by 50%.

The plan would be to phase this new flat rate in over four years, after which the state would take in two-to-five billion fewer tax dollars per year and may, after a few years, end up with a deficit (date gathered from FoxNews.com).

Here is an easy example of how a flat rate affects people of varying incomes differently.

Let's say your income is represented by a pizza, and the flat tax rate is 50%. A low-income person's income would be represented by a small, personal sized pizza. After paying 50% in taxes, that person wouldn't have much left to feed their family.

A high-income earner's income would be represented by the extra-large deluxe pizza. After paying 50% in taxes, that person would still have plenty left and would also be able to invest the leftovers tax free for extras like the salad bar and dessert.

Implementing a flat tax rate usually means eliminating tax breaks like the mortgage deduction and child tax credit. However, most flat tax income tax plans also eliminate taxes on earned income, interest and dividends from stocks, which is a benefit for wealthier individuals who invest in the stock market.

Ten states currently have a flat rate income tax, including neighboring states of Illinois, Indiana and Michigan. The rest of the states have a progressive tax rate, including nine with a higher rate or comparable rate to Wisconsin, including Minnesota and Iowa.

Republican leaders claim that Wisconsin needs to go to a flat tax system to attract and retain businesses and increase the state population. They also claim it would simplify the tax code.

ITEP reports that a flat tax would do little to attract businesses and people to the state. The ITEP points out that state and local taxes account for only 2.3% of the cost of doing business for a company,

Kewaskum Board Tables Burr Oak Ct. Rezoning

BREANNA RICE
JOURNALIST

The regular Kewaskum Village Board meeting was held on Monday, Feb. 6, with all members in attendance.

During the committee reports section of the meeting, the topic of rezoning the land located on Burr Oak Court and 1085 Fond du Lac Avenue was discussed. The land is currently zoned as RS-1 residential housing. The board weighed the decision of changing the zoning to RD-1, two family residential. This would allow for duplex residential housing to be built on the land.

This agenda item was previously discussed at a public hearing where residents voiced their concerns with the idea. The board acknowledged that community members were concerned about possible parking issues and the probability of trees being removed.

Village Administrator Adam Gitter mentioned that everyone living in the affected subdivision received a notice of the possible plans.

Board members questioned the idea of having two family homes in the specified area and expressed concerns on the possibility of rentals.

All board members agreed to table this item until they receive further information and have the ability to further review the topic.

Other Notes

- Within the new business portion of the meeting, a short discussion took place on the village bank. Switching from PNC to Westbury Bank has been an option that board members have continued to explore.

It was mentioned that the PNC in Kewaskum is closing on Feb. 17 and have been difficult to get in contact with.

“Switching our accounts over can be a long process, but it is something that I am interested in exploring and working on,” stated Village Treasurer Amanda Carter.

No action was taken on this item but board members stated that they would be content with making the switch to Westbury when the time comes.

- Off-street parking was another item that was up for discussion during the new business part of the meeting. Fire Chief Mark Groeschel voiced concerns with residents having the ability to purchase parking permits for the parking lot of the fire department.

It was stated that there have recently been cars parking in front of the building, creating a safety concern if an emergency were to take place.

“This has really only been an issue

The 2023 Sturgeon Spearing Season Starts Saturday

WIS. DEPT. OF NATURAL RESOURCES

Are you ready?

The 2023 Winnebago System sturgeon spearing season will kick off on Feb. 11 and will run for 16 days (Feb. 26) or until harvest caps have been reached.

Several things can affect how long the season lasts, including:

- The Winnebago System’s chironomid population, which can impact sturgeon distribution around the lakes.

- The clarity of the water. Typically, the clearer the water, the shorter the season is. Unfortunately, warm weather has prevented staff from getting on the ice to conduct the water clarity assessment. Hopefully, the deep freeze this week will give staff an opportunity to safely get on the ice. As soon as the assessment has been completed, it will be posted to the Winnebago System sturgeon spearing webpage.

Want to know what the current adult lake sturgeon population looks like? Take a look at the recently published 2022 Sturgeon Stock Assessment.

If you haven’t already, make sure to review this year’s sturgeon spearing regulations before heading out next Saturday.

D.M.V. Offers Information on Obtaining an I.D. to Vote in the Spring Primary

Ahead of the Wisconsin Spring primary on February 21, the Wisconsin Department of Transportation Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV) reminds voters how to obtain identification, free of charge, that is valid for voting.

Valid identification for voting purposes includes a driver license, identification card, military or student ID card, etc. There is no separate "voter ID." A federally compliant REAL ID card is not required for voting purposes. Anyone unsure if their identification meets the requirements should visit the Wisconsin Elections Commission website to check.

To obtain identification to show at the polls for voting, begin online. A list of the required documents to bring to a DMV Customer Service Center is available at wisconsin.dmv.gov. If the required documents needed for an ID are not readily available, DMV has a process, called the Voter ID Petition Process (IDPP), to obtain the necessary information. # A Case for the Ojibwe

KARL MCCARTY
CONTRIBUTOR

All around us, what we need is on the land. This is harder for children and adults to understand in 2023, as food options are answered at the grocery store, house construction is outsourced to builders, and time is occupied by cellphones and internet instead of nature. When the only people on this landscape were Native Americans, what did their options for housing or food look like? How did the landscape shape their lives?

An elder of the St. Croix Band of Misco's son Steve created the logo for the St. Croix Band of Chippewa. He made this pencil holder out of birch bark and lined the St. Croix Band logo in pen. The design honors the wild rice his people have harvested for centuries.

Lake Superior Chippewa can answer those questions from life experiences north of Turtle Lake.

Between Misco and Our Past

Miscobanayshii shares the stories of her grandparents so that future generations may understand what was. She is a "Keeper of the Fire" in more ways than one, as evident in her life stories spanning nine decades.

She has kept the traditions of her people alive by having a rare opportunity of being raised by her grandparents in the 1930s in northern Wisconsin. As the United States struggled with the problems of modernization, mechanization and industrialization of the early 1900s, "Misco" (as she prefers to be called) was a child observing the last remnants of the ancient ways of indigenous peoples. She was dirt poor in the late 1930s by outside standards, but within the framework of her own culture it is now clear her upbringing was rich in heritage, measured in time with her elders, the land, and its creatures.

Somewhere along the lines, many Native traditions were lost. The stories of and from Misco attempts to explain the ways of life hundreds of years ago before settlers arrived – whether it be the forests of Ashford, the lakes of Osceola, the wetlands of Theresa Marsh or what are now the fields of Washington County.

A routine question readers have is, "Who was here hundreds of years ago?" Misco is a powerful example because her people lived here before settlers came. Although she is St. Croix Band of Lake Superior Chippewa, she points out such labels were created by "a dominant culture" who sectioned off her people when they were forced to sign treaties. There are many bands of Ojibwe in Wisconsin, but no matter the band, they are intertwined with people who lived in the Kettle Moraine and Horicon Marsh.

This postcard was verified by Misco as a legitimate example of one she lived in around 1935. It also provides a springboard of discussion on understanding how Natives survived in the area in the 1800s.

Arguments for Ojibwe Presence

This legitimate tie to our area has evidence. First, the Ojibwe's language and origins is rooted in the Three Fires (Ottawa, Potawatomi and Ojibwe), who came from the east. In origin stories within these three nations, as well as linguistic ties, these three are connected and related.

Second, for those seeking other sources, the latest print of Bernard L. Michaels' Ploughs Among the Eskers notes that the Kettle Moraine's inhabitants included a number of Chippewa and Ottawa (page 8). This portion of the book is a nice short read that will get locals to reflect on who used to live here 200 years ago. Consider contacting Beth Dippel of the Sheboygan County Historical Research Center; the book opens up a lot of ideas to readers interested in our past.

There are other sources that validate Ojibwe presence. An educational booklet titled, American Indian, Tribal Governments was distributed to Wisconsin teachers in the 1980s. That publication labels "Indian Lands in Wisconsin in the Early 1800s," and maps the southeast corner of Wisconsin as the lands of "Southern Chippewa, Ottawa, and Potawatomi." This area roughly included the southern border or Wisconsin from Kenosha to Beloit and worked its way north up to the Horicon Marsh. That area of these "Three Fires" included Milwaukee and Watertown.

This does not mean that those were the only Natives in that area. However, it is clear the Ojibwe and Ottawa were here, and multiple sources validate it.

The Bands of Ojibwe

Because the separation of labels in bands of Chippewa reflect U.S.

Kewaskum Considers Plans for Kiwanis Park Redevelopment

BREANNA RICE
JOURNALIST

The Village of Kewaskum Park and Recreation Committee met before the regular Village Board meeting on Monday, Feb. 6, as members discussed the outline of the redevelopment plan for Kiwanis Park.

Previously, the board had met and highlighted ideas they would like to see added to the area.

A presentation was given by Rettler Corporation (a landscape design and architecture firm from Stevens Point) on the placement of new features and improvements within the park.

The major change from the present in this plan revolves around removing Kiwanis Pond and installing new enhancements to the area.

A few items within the redevelopment plan that were among discussion include: a paved walking trail, a nature walk through the woods, another parking lot with 53 additional spaces, four more pickle ball courts, a warming area with rentals, green space, sand volleyball courts, temporary ice rink area in the winter, splash pad, all abilities playground, memorial space and a food truck area.

The project as presented would include 15.5 total acres of improvement. This would amount to around an estimated $7.8 million.

The Park and Recreation board agreed that the next step within this process is to present the project to the community at a public forum.

The date of the forum is yet to be determined.

It was stated that updates and additional information on the master park plan will be posted on the Village Facebook page.

Frieda Carlson

Frieda C. Carlson, age 78, of Fredonia, passed away peacefully with her family at her side at home Sunday, January 29, 2023.

She was born on May 31, 1944, in Johnstown, Pennsylvania; daughter of John and Pauline Sechren-gost Marsinko.

After growing up in Johnstown, Frieda made her way to Wisconsin in 1975, soon after meeting her future husband, Richard Carlson of Milwaukee. They married on May 18, 1982, in Cedarburg. From 1989, they would call Fredonia home.

She enjoyed working in sales and was always a people person. While living in Cedarburg, Frieda operated the former Fritz's Country Saloon there until 1986. Shortly thereafter, Frieda would open and operate the former Whatnot Shop on Franklin Street in Port Washington for a few years. She really loved those years.

Considered a friend to many, Frieda was always a very social person. She had been an active volunteer with her husband for over 30 years at the Ozaukee County Fair in Cedarburg. A kind and nurturing animal lover, Frieda had volunteered at the Ozaukee Humane Society in Grafton and Saukville over 20 years. She was also an avid supporter of animal rescue. She also loved time spent with family and friends in the Kettle Moraine; participating with the Crooked Lake Sports Club for many years.

while the remaining costs are attributed to payroll, equipment and real estate costs. They also point out that there is little evidence that state income tax levels affect an individual's decision to stay or leave Wisconsin.

According to the world population review, Minnesota has had a 0.7% increase in population, Iowa has had a 0.45% increase and Wisconsin a 0.35%. These 3 Midwest states are currently all progressive tax states. Meanwhile, Illinois, a flat tax rate state, has had a decrease in population of 0.01%.

There are many other factors that affect people moving from one state to another, such as weather, educational opportunities and recreational and natural resources.

So, how much of a tax savings would Wisconsinites receive if going to a flat tax rate?

According to an article in the Journal Sentinel, the 0.4% who make one million per year would get a $112,167 tax break, while those who make $50,000, would see a $290 tax break.

People with lower incomes might see their tax burden increase because of the elimination of deductions.

On the other side of the aisle, Democrats have proposed different ways of utilizing the state surplus.

Governor Evers has said he would prefer to cut income taxes by 10% for individuals making less than $100,000 and families earning less than $150,000, rather than change the tax schedule. He has also proposed using the surplus to place a cap on insulin costs, repeal the state minimum markup law for gas, cut taxes for seniors on a fixed income and expand property tax relief for veterans with disabilities (data and details courtesy PBS Wisconsin).

So, what should Wisconsin do with the $7 billion surplus?

That should be up to the citizens to decide.

Consider the pros and cons, and how it would affect your tax bill and the health of the entire state.

Then, let your legislator know what you would believe is the best way to handle all that money.

The new addition to the Campbellsport Middle/High School building is progressing well. Things are on schedule and the district hopes to begin occupying some of the building in about two months. The district offices and the STEM program will move to the new area. Construction has been going well and is on schedule and on budget so far. According to District Administrator Paul Amundson, a lot of local people are sub-contractors, probably about half.

Drexel Building Supply earned one of the two Business Excellence Awards and will receive the award at the inaugural annual meeting of Envision Greater Fond du Lac scheduled for February 20. Drexel and Fat Joe's Bar and Grill demonstrated excellence in a way that has left a positive impact on their employees, clients, and/or community. Over the past few years, Drexel Building Supply has consistently fostered a corporate culture that has led to phenomenal employee retention and workplace morale.

Members of the Campbellsport Fire Department dive team participated in a training session recently. The group went to the home of Denny Rahn in Eden, where they were allowed to use his pond as a training area to practice doing some rescue dives in the icy water.

Students from Shepherd of the Hills Catholic School in Eden were treated to a performance by Kohl's Wild Theater from the Zoological Society in Milwaukee. Students learned about frogs, snakes, turtles, and bats during the presentation.

Molly Riebe of Campbellsport, RN on the Modified Care Unit, has been recognized with the Froedert & The Medical College of Wisconsin St. Joseph's Hospital third quarter DAISY award for her "huge heart" and compassion. More than 1,900 hospitals throughout the United States participate in The DAISY Award program. At St. Joseph's Hospital, Molly was honored at a recent ceremony at which she received a certificate, a pin, and a sculpture.

The East Central Conference wrestling tournament couldn't have gotten any crazier than it did on February 3. Kewaskum was clinging to a one-point lead over Campbellsport heading into the final matches at heavyweight. The Indians and Cougars would settle this heated conference title in the third place match as Kewaskum sent out Ben Leister, a wrestler who was visibly sick all day, and the Cougars sent Elijah O'Laughlin, a basketball player who joined the wrestling team in mid-January. O'Laughlin won, and with that victory, Campbellsport earned a share of the Conference Championship with Kewaskum. Earning conference championships in their weight divisions were Cade Heisdorf (126), Joe Lindsley (170), and Matt Koelbl (182).

It's been a great three games for the Campbellsport girls basketball team. The Lady Cougars toppled Ripon 64-50, defeated Kewaskum 47-43, and upset Winneconne 47-42. In the latter game, Campbellsport fell behind 11-0 at the beginning of the game, but fought back to tie the score 16-16 at halftime.

Campbellsport's girls bowling team fell short of a State appearance. On a brighter note, Alley John, Delanie Casey, Brianna Loof, and Amber Thompson all qualified for the Regional Singles. Lizzy Rindt is the second alternate.

Kathleen A. Herriges, 74, St. Michael, passed away February 5.

What started out as a way to remember her grandmother will now be included in a book of poetry. Tori Twohig wrote a poem about her grandmother, who passed away last year, and then entered it into a poetry contest. The poem is being Tori learned about the contest through her English teacher, Marci Danza. Tori, who has liked poetry since she was little, has also written poems for her father and her other grandmother.

Donald Driver Chevrolet Buick opened in Campbellsport on January 1. All about giving the customer a fair price and great service, Donald Driver Chevrolet Buick will find the cars that their customers want. A grand opening will be held February 16. Meeting 100 percent of their division goals, Bea Smith and Tammy Schladweiler, volunteer captains of the Eden and Campbellsport Divisions of United Way, raised $6,756.

Herb Ottery was recently elected to the Hometown Bank Board of Directors. Ottery is co-owner of Ottery Transportation, Inc., a 75-truck fleet based in Armstrong.

Craig Scott has been promoted to general manager at Lakeside Foods' Eden facility.

You Can't Take It With You will be performed by the Kettle Moraine Players at the Lang Auditorium in Campbellsport High School over two weekends.

Three Moraine Park Technical College carpentry apprentices swept the Associated Builders and Contractors Skill Competition's carpentry contest. Taking second place was Nick Gassner of Campbellsport, a fourth-year carpentry apprentice. He is employed by Northcentral Construction Corp. in Fond du Lac.

During the February 11 meeting, the Campbellsport Village Board discussed snow plowing and the salt shortage. It took about three days to clear last Wednesday's snowfall. The village tried to purchase two truck loads of salt from Minnesota, but when it arrived, only one truck was available. Department of Public Works Director Mark Gruber explained that there is not much the village can do. They are trying to find places to purchase salt. Many municipalities in the state are facing the same problem.

In a thrilling EWC match-up, the Lady Cougars upset first place Sheboygan Falls by a score of 57-53.

Nine wrestlers are heading to Sectionals. At Regionals, Codi Wilch (135), Wes Bengel (152), and Billy Mayer (215) won titles in their weight classes.

Campbellsport's Lady Cougar bowlers captured their sixth straight conference crown on February 5.

A daughter, Haley Karlene, was born January 31 to Greg and Julie Wilke of Campbellsport. A son, Nathan Anthony, was born February 2 to Brian and Julie Skelton of Campbellsport.

The Campbellsport Village Board has responded to a request for a change in election polling hours. With the adoption and publication of Ordinance No. 256, polling hours will be changed from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. to 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

At Monday's meeting, the Campbellsport Village Board approved a contract with Waste Management of Fond du Lac for refuse and recycling pick-up in the village. The contract was for five years and was the low bid by over $16,632 annually. A three-, five-, and 10-year contract was submitted by the winning bidder. The contract received a lot of attention from many in attendance. The idea of garbage carts fell by the wayside as many residents felt they would be cumbersome and take up too much space in smaller garages.

Uniform color/shade of blue has been placed in the hands of administration, coaches, and athletic director by the Campbellsport School Board. The subject was brought up at the school board meeting when a number of parents felt strongly enough about a recent order of uniforms to contact board members who made it an agenda item. Students in attendance exhibited jackets of navy blue and royal blue, and they thought how they performed, behaved, and represented their school was more important than the shade of the color blue they were wearing.

The Campbellsport Fire Department was called to The Wagon Wheel Repair Shop in the Town of Auburn for a fire in the shop area. Thirty-one firefighters responded and Eden was called for mutual aid for tankers to help haul water. Two vehicles were lost in the fire and one was removed. There were no injuries and the amount of loss has not been established.

Ike Perron, Dana Schraufnagel, Andrea Floyd, and Luke Tennis were the honored vocal students from Campbellsport High School chosen this year to participate in the Dorian Vocal Festival. The event, consisting of 1,500 students from six states, was held January 11 and 12 at Luther College in Decorah, Iowa.

Defeating Horicon 65-10, the Campbellsport wrestling team finished with a perfect 7-0 conference dual record and 14-1 overall record.

Rose Doll, 93, West Allis, passed away February 3. Norbert H. Gatzke, 91, New Fane, passed away January 27. Elsie M. Thompson, 76, Campbellsport, passed away January 28.

Last Sunday, both sides of the street at the tavern were filled with cars that had brought curious seekers to see "Mush."

Sponsoring the event is the Campbellsport Chamber of Commerce.

The Legion basketball teams split even in four games played over the weekend. Last Sunday night, both Five traveled to Kewaskum. The Rivers team stepped into the lead early and defeated Kewaskum 28-19. Dave Uelmen scored 11 points and Ed. Lichtensteiger seven. In the second game, the local Lakes Five dropped a 50-44 game. On Tuesday, a giant Horicon team met the local River Five and had too much of everything; the result was a 50-31 loss for the local team. The second game was an exhibition between the local Lakes and the West Bend Rivers team. The Belles went to town in this game and rolled up a 32-7 lead at halftime. The lead increased with 56-24 the final. Dick Koenigs had 15 points and Pete Senn nine.

Last week, the high school Belles lost two games by large margins. On Tuesday, they lost to North Fondy 70-19, and on Friday they stayed in the conference cellar by losing to Kewaskum 41-10

Tom Knorr could not believe his eyes when he read his email. He immediately called his wife, Barb, to give her the good news. The Kewaskum Community Pantry was receiving a donation of $8,485 from the Kewaskum School District. The money was generated from pins and magnets that fourth and fifth graders had made. With a theme of Give A Hoot, the students made and sold the pins and magnets from clay in the shape of owls, which were sold for $5 each.

The Kewaskum School District plans to start a campaign to raise funds for the district's athletic fields. The fundraising efforts will help support improvements of the Doc Mitchell Athletic Complex, as well as building new baseball and softball fields on school property. ## Check It Out!

LORI KREIS, DIRECTOR
KEWASKUM PUBLIC LIBRARY

“Patience is a virtue” is a saying that has been in my mind lately. The origin of that phrase has various derivations but most of my research points to it being a line in a 14th century poem written by William Langland called Piers Plowman. This poem is a dream sequence exploring Christian faith and Patience is one of the characters.

A parent was in last week with her young daughter and remarked how her daughter was trying her patience that day. She relayed incidences that were challenging while keeping calm and letting her daughter take from her bag each book to be checked out and putting each one back very carefully. The mom and I smiled at each other, she probably thinking about her little one and me, I was thinking about my own mother. I mentioned, patience is not only a virtue when dealing with our children, but very much so when helping our aging parents. Before she left, the parent said that she is sure my mom had as much patience with me as I have with her now. I am not so sure about that.

The day before, I had a meeting near my mom’s house, so I spent time with her after and we went out to dinner. From the time she said we should get ready to go until the time we opened the door to leave was just less than an hour. I knew to not get my coat on and waited, yes patiently, until she was completely ready. That brought to mind a memory of waiting for my children to get ready. I was not the most patient and would worry about being late. That is probably why I get ready much earlier now and arrive on time if not well before the event. That quality has tried my husband’s patience many times.

I realize that getting stressed over having to wait for something or a fear of arriving late is not worth the worry. If I am waiting in line at the grocery store and it seems interminable, I no longer fret. I will not be stuck in line forever and will eventually get checked out. If I have an appointment, I always bring a book with me. I know I will not be in the waiting room until the end of time and reading makes the wait pleasurable.

I am a much more patient person than I was when younger. With my grandchildren, I will wait for them to “do it themselves” unless they ask for help. When I recently babysat, my grandson got stuck in a Blitz costume and as much as he cried in frustration, he didn’t want my assistance. The pride he felt when he did it himself was an amazing treasure to experience. Patience is not only a virtue but instills confidence in others, promotes kindness and is a healthy way of living.

this past month,” stated Groeschel.

Board members agreed that is it not necessary to use the fire department lot as a place to buy a permit for. No official decision was made but members stated that there are other places the village can utilize for permits in the future.

• Village Administrator Adam Gitter touched on the animal ordinance within the village.

“We are working on making a few changes but mostly going through the ordinance for house-keeping purposes,” stated Gitter.

It has come to the attention of the village that a community member has 25 cats in their home and board members would like to set a solidified number of cats to allow. Members discussed allowing a registration limit of three or four cats per household. No official decision was made.

• Following the discussion of animals, the board had a short discussion on the Fond du Lac Ave street lights.

Adam Gitter mentioned that he received a quote from We Energies for the proposed amount of street lights that the village was looking at installing. The total cost was around $465,000. Board members agreed that this was more than what they were looking to spend. The agenda item was tabled and different options will be explored in hopes to cut down the price.

• To wrap up the meeting, members talked about the idea of adding the new Village of Kewaskum logo to all public works vehicles, police cars and fire trucks. Administrator Gitter has been working on gathering quotes from local businesses to find the best deal.

• The board went into closed session, specifically to hold a discussion on shared facilities.

government policies and fleeing encroachment, Misco says it's important to recognize the Ojibwe are united. And from Misco's perspective, she sees that not only are the Ojibwe united, but they are connected to the Ottawa and Potawatomie.

It is also important that people are educated about the names associated with individuals who once lived in our forests. It's a balance between making sure that students of history are aware of how Natives were separated, but also how philosophically they were united.

There are six bands of Ojibwe making up the 12 tribes of Wisconsin. (Twelve including the federally unrecognized Brothertown). Those six include the St. Croix, the Lac du Flambeau, Red Cliff, Bad River, Lac Courtes Oreilles and Mole Lake.

So, when it comes to an Ojibwe people, a St. Croix Band of Chippewa may go to a Lac du Flambeau Pow Wow. They are one of the same people, as Misco points. It leads one to conclude creating labels like the bands were convenient ways for the U.S. government to divide the tribes, and for treaty agents to get land taken away from indigenous peoples one piece at a time. Outsiders to Native American culture may see fragmented tribes. But one just has to go to the pow wows throughout Wisconsin and the United States to understand the mutual respect permeating such events.

In addition, if a government official wanted an Indian to sign the treaty, that official was not going to go to the Native Americans who would refuse to sign. Dividing them by location or supposed "origin" provides a convenient "divide and conquer strategy." If that labeling didn't work, the government could also confuse them by making a treaty in a language the Natives couldn't read (i.e., English). In this case, there are some Native elders who point out the "band" labels came more from who was in power pushing them off their homeland than terminology that came from their people.

When it comes to how we look at the Horicon Marsh and the Kettle Moraine, the point is that historians need to be careful in segmenting Native Americans when many of them were linked in language, intermarriage, origin stories, history and land ethic. We also have to be careful not to conclude just one tribe lived in Horicon, Ashford or Kewaskum.

In addition, the six bands of Ojibwe who have land in Wisconsin all hold parcels way up North outside the Kettle Moraine. This can create a bias where observers conclude those bands have no ties to southern Wisconsin.

All this background is shared because conversations with Misco suggests the perspective of the significance of different "Bands" of Native people may not be perceived accurately. All people have a unique look at history, what is significant from Misco's perspective is a concern that many of Wisconsin native people are segmented into bands or labels, despite their linguistic and historical ties – or intermarriage within tribes.

One of the most powerful points Misco addressed was her frustration with labels, which she pronounced in her language: "What I'm trying to say is, the BO DA WA TO Mee and the ODAWA are OJIBWAY...that many tribes still speak the Ojibway language – I don't know why the titles come in – why or where?" Did she mean that the titles really didn't matter? She agreed and added, "Because they are all Ojibway."

This is one perspective shared with local readers to individually reflect on the labels put on Natives. She mentions the Three Fires (Potawatomie, Ottawa and Ojibwe) in the same sentence, but the divisions are merely semantics when the language and cultural ties are clearly evident. And given the citations mentions above, clearly the Ottawa, Potawatomi and Ojibwe were in Southeastern Wisconsin.

Thus, for reference of future articles, Misco's childhood stories help us picture what was. For example, her stories of living with her grandparents in a wigwam in the 1930s (previous article) gives insight to how Native American techniques and culture would have existed in the Washington/Fond du Lac County vicinity. The first article explained this wigwam formation. The information below concludes her recollections of the 1930's wigwam she lived in north of today's Highway 8 in the 1930s.

A Home was the Wigwam

The size of her wigwam ran 30- by 30-feet. Ten yards were required, given the size of her family. How many lived in this wigwam? "In ours? There were seven of us. My grandma and grandpa, my sister and I, and two aunts – and my one aunt had a boy until he was ...ohh, he must've been about six years old, maybe, when he died of TB."

She went back into her memory on the size, and with a sincere reflection, noted, "It was enough."

Without a doubt, there is no sense of intruded space when Misco talks of her days surrounded by oak bark, sapling ironwood ribs, and basswood fibers. People were already living with the amenities of the city and industrialization in 1935. Was she glad she lived in a wigwam? "Ah hem," she affirmed. Why? What did she remember about the wigwam that was so important? "Comfortable," she answered, then after a pause, added, "It gave you a warm feeling. Closeness with family or..." And as Misco was trying to find a word of choice, she said, "...We were always close-knit anyway. Aunts. Uncles. Cousins. Everybody was always close. Here, today, you don't see that. You don't see that very much. People growing up, they don't feel as close as we did back then." This is not just an observation applied to reservation life, she said – warning in her nine decades she has seen a withering of family ties everywhere. She is concerned that people may own houses, but not have a home. So culturally speaking, it's important to have that family closeness; but it is the wigwam that necessitated it.

When the Car met the Wigwam

She lived in a wigwam all four seasons up to approximately age seven and concluded when she started public school she moved into a house – albeit which was, "A tarpaper shack mostly."

She wasn't sure why she moved into a house but guessed it might be the time when her relatives ran into new job opportunities. "My uncles had worked around helping farmers; ...and they learned from them how to make log homes. And they come back to the rez and started to make log homes." She thinks her first house was a variant of a log home as they had learned from these farmers.

Misco moved into her first house by the time she was seven, but the wigwam nearby still lasted. Her sister was about 10 years older than her, and she was about to get her license. "And they wanted her to learn how to drive," Misco laughed and added, "So she got in the car, and my uncle told her what to do. He didn't get in the car with her, but she sat there, and he told her how to step on the gas, and step on the brakes." Somewhere between giving directions and shifting the old car – "I think it was a Packard," Misco explained and laughed, "So she's sitting there, listening to him, and she revs up the motor. Stepping on the gas. She's not looking up ahead. She's lookin' at her feet and her hands, and [my uncle is] telling her what to do. And she pulls down and WAM! She hit the wigwam."

Misco is a revered elder of the St. Croix Band of Lake Superior Chippewa. Her stories shared offer many lessons for generations to come. COURTESY PHOTO BY KARL MCCARTY

Misco laughed: "She went right through the wigwam." With an affirmation, she added, "And that was the end of that [emphasis hers] and we never reconstructed it."

So how many years did she think the wigwam lasted outside her house? "Hmmm... probably four or five years?" And then it got demolished. For dating this story, Misco's grandma, who raised her, was still alive (she died around 1950). She did not remember how grandma reacted.

So was the story funny, sad or both? "Ah hem," she replied. In a serious conversation that started funny, it was an answer which signaled the loss of something special.

In a span of 100 years, wigwams were not only removed from Ashford in southeastern Wisconsin around 1850; they now were fading as a norm north of Hwy 8 by 1950. As dwellings became larger, Misco concluded families became more distant. How the size of our housing impacts family interactions is an important question, no matter what century we are applying it to. Just as the lessons of the Northwoods could be applied to southeastern Wisconsin, Misco's stories shared might be just as much about the present as it is about the Ojibwe past.

Help Protect our Streams from Aquatic Invasive Species

WIS. DEPT. OF NATURAL RESOURCES

The Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources (DNR) reminds anglers out for the early inland trout season to help protect our streams from aquatic invasive species. Some fishing streams may contain invasive species, and if care is not taken, those species can accidentally be transferred to another.

New Zealand mudsnails have one of the highest potentials of spreading from one water to another. Only 4-6 millimeters in length, they can easily get stuck in the mud and picked up on boots, waders and gear. Felt-soled boots are particularly susceptible to these snails as they can lodge into and under the felt. The snails can lie in the mud along the shore, so they can be spread without ever stepping foot into the water.

plants can survive throughout winter under the ice. Thoroughly cleaning fishing gear before leaving a fishing site can help stop the chance of spreading invasive species.

Cold Wisconsin winters usually help combat the spread of invasives. The DNR encourages anglers to leave fishing gear where it can freeze for 8 hours or more as this will kill most species, including New Zealand mudsnails. Other methods to kill aquatic invasive species hiding in fishing gear are to steam clean the gear or to soak it in either 140° water or 2% Virkon solution (5.4 tablespoons per gallon) for 20 minutes. Many people aware of the risks will also switch to a new set of gear for a second adventure, especially if they have been fishing in a stream known to have mudsnails.

A few minutes of preventative action can help preserve and protect waterways for generations to come. Before leaving a fishing site, anglers should:

- Inspect fishing equipment for attached aquatic plants, animals or mud.
  - Remove all attached plants or animals.
  - Drain all water from buckets and containers.
  - Never move live fish away from a waterbody (fish out of water = dead).
- To learn more about invasive species and their impacts on Wisconsin's waters, visit the DNR's Aquatic Invasive Species webpage (dnr.wisconsin.gov/topic/Invasives).

"We emphasized exactly what the players thought," said Elliott. "They believe in what we do. We knew with Mitch coming back into the second half [that] we needed to get him touches in big spots."

In the second, that premonition turned out to be true, as McCarty returned from the pine with a vengeance. Between him and senior classmate Jordan Ebert, the pair combined to shoot a mind-boggling 14-17 from the floor (and Ebert was three-for-five from behind the line). McCarty also sunk five-of-six free throw attempts.

Mayville, though, was not quick to relinquish its lead. While Campbellsport reduced its deficit from nine to two early in the half, Mayville was adept at keeping Campbellsport in check. The Cards' advantage oscillated from as few as two points to as many as seven throughout much of the final half. With such a dramatic game unfolding, inside the gymnasium, tensions ramped up with referees requesting several fans and members of the student sections on both sides to be mindful of their space near the court and of their temperament.

"That's all part of the mental toughness we preach but, more importantly, we talk about representing... our school, district and community as a whole," said Jahns, who gave credit to his team and the opponents for keeping a healthy competitive edge in a big game for both programs.

All the players on the court exemplified immense maturity amid the deafening noise, which made for top-notch basketball to close out the final minutes.

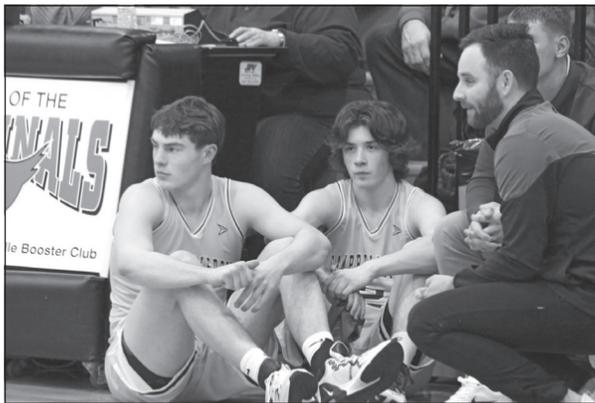

Near the five-minutes-remaining mark, Mayville still held a six-point lead, but a McCarty steal and a coast-to-coast lay-up pushed the Cards' advantage down to four, which started a run for the Cougars that would help them regain the lead for the first time since midway through the first half. McCarty scored again on a block-to-block screen and roll play on the Cougar's next scoring possession and, suddenly, it was 54-52, Mayville.

Campbellsport's 1-3-1 zone defense ground Mayville's offensive production to a halt, which could have benefited the Cards in draining the clock if not for several key turnovers.

Up by four with 2:30 remaining, Mayville simply needed to play "keep-away" to really put the pressure on the visitors. An ill-advised drive from the left key to the lane by a Mayville guard led to a loose ball recovered by Campbellsport. On the other end, McCarty was fouled while shooting and sunk both free throws, putting the Cougars down just two.

Another turnover by Mayville resulted in two more points for Campbellsport: an easy lay-in by McCarty.

In an instant, this game was tied, 56-56, with just one minute remaining.

A third-straight turnover did no harm to Mayville, as Campbellsport lost their possession out of bounds.

Holding for the last best shot, Mayville killed nearly one full minute working the ball around Campbellsport's zone before a drive by Bushke drew two defenders into the lane. The forward/center made a nifty move to find Mittelstadt under the basket, and he made the bunny to give his team a two-point lead with less than 15 seconds remaining. Campbellsport called a timeout with 11 seconds left.

Coach Elliott opted for a play off the inbounds pass, with Brady Loehr accepting a pass on the right wing from Cole Kaehne. Kaehne navigated left, setting a double screen (along with McCarty) for Ebert, who went from the left corner to the top of the key. The Mayville defender, stuck in the double screen, was just short of closing out, and Ebert launched an open look from behind the arc.

The shot was true, and the Campbellsport bench erupted, as the Cougars held a one-point lead with just 3.6 seconds remaining.

Ebert played every second of the contest, and the Campbellsport coach expressed immense pride in the performance.

"Jordan Ebert stepped up for us Thursday with Mitch [McCarty] in foul trouble," said Elliott. "Not only did he not come out of the game, but he hit the big shot. A well-earned moment for him."

Mayville took a timeout, but an inbounds play unraveled, and the Cards committed a turnover without getting the rock in play.

A foul to McCarty on the next possession lead to two free throws, one of which was made.

Mayville had just more than two seconds to attempt a long three-point attempt, and the Cards earned a decent look, though it did not find any rim.

Two top players in the Flyway Conference this season - Mitch McCarty of Campbellsport, on left, and Adison Mittelstadt of Mayville - wait to box one another out before a Cardinal free throw. Both Mittelstadt and McCarty finished with 19 points apiece, but it was the Cougars winning the contest, 60-58, last week Thursday, Feb. 2.

By the final, it was Campbellsport edging out Mayville in dramatic fashion, 60-58.

For Coach Elliott, this was a huge lift for a team that has been hot as of late. The Cougars only two Flyway losses, at this point in the season, can be considered upsets, as they lost to Winnebago Lutheran and Omro, both of which are in the middle of the standings.

"The guys have bought into our system, culture and each other," said Elliott, noting the importance of getting hot in February for the postseason tourney. "There's a lot of basketball to play, and there is still time to find our best basketball before tournament time."

Bushke led all scorers with 24 in the contest. He was nine-for-10 from the field and two-for-two from behind the arc. Mittelstadt scored 19 in the loss.

For Campbellsport, the big three of Ebert, Kaehne and McCarty combined for 50 of the team's 60 points. Ayden Fleischman secured the other nine along with Brady Loehr's single made free throw.

Moving forward, the trio of seniors will be vital to the team's success.

"[Those] guys executed a couple specific sets perfectly, and we finished the plays," said Elliott of the Cougars' offensive sets down the stretch. "Mitch also did a great job not forcing the issue. It is easy for high school players to get frustrated, but he stayed the course and let the game come to him."

After print time on Tuesday, Feb. 7, the Cougars were looking for revenge at Omro. Campbellsport lost to the Foxes at home in January. Due up, the Cougars will host the only other Flyway team to beat them this year: the Winnebago Lutheran Academy Vikings. That game is scheduled to tip at 7:15 p.m. on Friday, Feb. 10.

Regardless of the week's slate, Elliott and Campbellsport will be taking things one day at a time.

"We don't even talk about the season finale or 'what if scenarios,'" he said. "It is one practice rep at a time, right now. There's no reason for us to be looking ahead to anyone other than the present day."

ICE FISHING from page 24

At dark, we hit The Mansion and had a meal of bear steaks and a tater-sausage casserole.

SATURDAY, JAN 21

HIGH 29, LOW 15

Today was a great day for any one of the probably 50 of us that hit the ice.

We put Charley's cabin tent up about first light and also rigged up his woodstove.

My mission for the day would be to cover a large area with tip-ups and try to teach some kids how to run them.

Before long, our world was full of kids and adults; some knew exactly what they were doing, some had no clue. We had all of the bases covered and The New Lisbon Fishing Club members, who are managed by Julie Mecikalski and are sponsored by KAMO, were a machine. It was very cool to watch. These guys and girls had ice shacks, electronics and a great attitude.

I have a pretty fair eye for picking out kids that want to do outdoor experiences but could use some help. So, at first, I chose 14-year-old Allison Maulsby who is a freshmen at New Lisbon. Our goal was to teach her how to run a tip-up and catch a fish with it.

She had four tries with flags up, some of which were dropped minnows, but, in the end, she caught her first gator on the ice and was a very happy girl.

For me this day was a celebration victory as the readers of this column are what started KAMO. I watched this group of people having a great day, as grown-ups teamed up with kids who, in most cases, they had never met and taught them how to use a jig pole and electronics.

My final thrill for the day came when Gail Traut and her eight-year-old son, Lucas, arrived later in the event. Gail is an elementary school teacher at Summit Environmental Elementary in French Island at La Crosse and seemed like a very cool person. Randy Rowell took both Gail and Lucas under his wing and began helping them with jig fishing. I taught Lucas how a tip-up works and made a solid goal of helping him catch his first northern pike on a tip-up.

Well, lo-and-behold, a flag went up and Lucas did an excellent job of icing his first gator. Just like Allison, Lucas had an ear-to-ear smile.

That, my friends, was a good weekend in the outdoors!

Cougar Wrestlers Co-Champs of Flyway

CAMPBELLSPORT WRESTLING

At the Flyway Conference wrestling tournament last Saturday, the Cougars needed to come out in first place to win the conference outright, however they could not hold off Lomira losing by 12.5 points, thus sharing the conference title with the Lions. The Cougars had seven finalists, with five champions, while Lomira had ten finalists and four champions.

Chris Meyer (120) was the first of three consecutive champions for Campbellsport. Meyer had a first round bye before majoring Makenna Hanke of Lomira 14-6 and then defeated Logan Carley of Omro in the championship 9-1. This was Meyer's first conference title.

At 126, Ostin Blanchard cruised to his third career conference championship. He had a first round bye, pinned Austin Zinn of Lomira in 45 seconds and then dominated Clayton Ebert of WLA 21-5.

Sam Koth (132), kept the championship wins coming as he received a first round bye, then pinned Zach Lueck of NFDL and then pinned Kobe Sacotte of Lomira in the second period. This was Koth's second career conference championship.

JJ Ksioszk went out at 160 pounds and won his second career title in what was arguably the toughest weight class of the day. JJ had a bye then had to wrestle Jackson Youwer of NFDL. JJ and Youwer had a tight 8-6 match in the dual where JJ had to come from behind to win, but JJ left no doubt who was the better wrestler by building a 8-0 lead before pinning Youwer early in the second period. This pitted him against Jack Karst of WLA who was also 7-0 in the conference and Ksioszk wasted no time and pinned Karst in 55 seconds.

Joseph Volz pins Andrew Reha of Lomira in 54 seconds. Volz earned his third conference title in the 220 weight class. CLARICE CASE PHOTO

Finally, at 220, Joseph Volz won his third career title. He had a bye first round and then pinned Sebastian Paul of WLA in 56 seconds and then faced Andrew Reha of Lomira who was also 7-0 in conference. Volz quickly pinned Reha in 54 seconds.

Gavin Pickering at 138 pounds finished in second place. He had a bye and then pinned Zach Lueck of NFDL in the second period. In the finals, he battled hard against Colin Weber of Lomira, but fell short, losing 7-3.

Kyle Murphy also made the finals at 285 pounds. Murphy had a first round bye and then pinned Braeden Schwoch of Mayville in 1:57. In the finals, he faced Andyboi Hernandez of Omro where he would lose by fall.

The Cougars had three third place finishers. At 106 pounds, Karsten Krueger would have a

McCarty Named Semi-Finalist for Top Post Award

Last month, Campbellsport Cougars varsity basketball player Mitchell McCarty was named a semi-finalist for the Wisconsin Sports Network Senior Boys Post Award.

"Mitch deserves huge recognition," said Cougars Head Coach Ethan Elliott, acknowledging that the winner of the award is considered the state's best post player in a given season.

The senior center has been a force in the Flyway the season, as he's averaged a double-double (19.6 points-per-game and 13.2 rebounds-per-game). In fact, McCarty logged a double-double in every game he competed in this season with the exception of last week's two-point victory at Mayville.

In that contest, while navigating early foul trouble, McCarty was held to just six rebounds (his lowest total of the season).

Along with his points and rebounds, McCarty has averaged 2.1 assists per game, two steals per game and 1.5 blocks per game.

The winner of the Senior Boys Post Award will be announced during the Wisconsin Interscholastic Athletic Association State Tournament week.

bye and then lose in overtime to Mason Boerner of Omro in the semi-finals. Kreuger would bounce back and pin his next two opponents. Conner Sitzberger (145) pinned Ryan Do of SLS in the first round before getting pinned by the eventual champion in the semi-finals. He would have a bye and then pin his final opponent. Finally, Mac Jacobs would lose his first round match to Peter Skiff of NFDL 13-10 and would later get revenge in the third place match by pinning Skiff in 4:41.

Jacob Allickson (113), Aydan Meilahn (170), and Porter Klotz finished in fourth place, and Brody Nolan finished in fifth place.

On Saturday, Feb. 11, the wrestlers will travel to Portage for the Super Regionals. The Cougars will be joined by Berlin, Kewaskum, Lomira, Mayville, NFDL/Springs, Omro, Portage, Rio/Cambria, Ripon, Waupun, Wautoma/Wild Rose, and Winneconne. The top four wrestlers will move on to individual sectionals on Saturday, Feb. 18 in Wisconsin Dells, while the top two teams will move on to Team Sectionals on Tuesday, Feb. 14 in Lodi.

but the Cougars roared back in dramatic fashion to win this one late off a Jordan Ebert three-pointer. The clutch shot gave the visitors a one-point lead with seconds remaining and ultimately the "W" for Campbellsport.

For the hosting Cards, it was a tough pill to swallow after commanding much of the contest until the final minute.

"Definitely a gut-punch-of-a-game," said Mayville Head Coach Zach Jahns. "I thought we played well on Thursday, certainly well enough to win on most nights."

Mayville played more-than-well-enough late in the first, when a barrage of made three-pointers and some converted trips to the charity stripe earned the Cards as much as a 10-point advantage; their largest margin on the night.

But for Campbellsport Head Coach Ethan Elliott, he knew his team was equipped with the tools to stage a comeback.

"I'm confident in what we preach and work on every day," he said. "When the guys are locked in like they were in the second half on Thursday; we love who we are as a unit."

While Mayville was sinking from distance, the Cougars were hit and miss from behind the arc to start the night. Campbellsport relied on leading scorer Mitch McCarty to work his magic down low. In the opening minutes of the first half, Campbellsport jumped out to a modest lead early on high-efficiency makes from the Cougar senior.

A few fouls forced Elliott to sit his big man the last half of the opening period, and Campbellsport relied on a smaller line-up for much of the final minutes before halftime.

Mayville took advantage, and the Cards capitalized on missed shots by Campbellsport, trips to the free throw line and high-percentage makes from the likes of Brad Bushke and Adison Mittelstadt.

A full-court press, especially with McCarty on the bench, also seemed to give Campbellsport fits inside The Nest.

"We've used that pressure look since I started here, and we have been playing it well as of late," noted Jahns. "We try to use it selectively in spots to give a different look, throw teams off a rhythm or - in the case of Thursday - speed up the opponent. Campbellsport likes to play a deliberate, grinding, half-court style, and they are excellent when they win that tempo battle."

By halftime, with Mayville managing the momentum, the Red Birds took a nine-point lead, 35-26, into the break.

At intermission, the Cougar players strategized before they even hit the benches.

"They can't stop us when Mitch is in the game," said one guard to a teammate as they walked to the locker rooms.

Elliott said this real-time recognition is part of what his coaching staff imparts on the student/athletes in every practice. He said the halftime conversation was centered on providing more scoring opportunities for the team's most dynamic player.

Lady Indians Back in the Hunt

SUBMITTED

Sheboygan Falls

The Lady Indians hosted a non-conference game with the Sheboygan Falls Falcons (11-7 overall) Tuesday, Jan. 31.

Although Kewaskum has had difficulties scoring against a zone defense in the past, this was not an issue Tuesday night.

A quick tempo to start the game got Kewaskum ahead from a steal and break-away layup from Julia Steger.

Morgan Adams and Steger would then trade off with multiple buckets each to extend the lead to 15-4 in the first 3.5 minutes. Steger added her second three-pointer at the 10:37 mark to put Kewaskum up 21-9. Using the high post effectively, the Indians were able to get some mid-range jumpers in the paint, and also play the high/low passing game for some good open looks beyond the arc.

The Indians led at the half 35-17.

Kewaskum dominated the second half, as well, outscoring the Falcons 22-17.

Grace Leitheiser and Abby Gerhartz displayed their passing skills accumulating 12 of the 18 assists in the game. Ashley Vogt was on mark hitting both of her 3-point attempts.

Steger finished with a double-double tallying 23 points and 14 boards, just one game after becoming the newest member of the 500 point club. By the last whistle, the Lady Indians posted a 52-39 win over the Falcons.

Kettle Moraine Lutheran

An unexpected twist arose last Monday when Winneconne beat Waupun 60-48 on their home court. This upset opened up the possibility of a share of Kewaskum's first ever ECC championship, and the Indians in control of their own destiny.

With this in mind, the Indians traveled to the Len Collyard Court in a rematch with Kettle Moraine Lutheran. KML narrowly won the first game of the series 55-52 back in December.

The possibility of obtaining the holy grail was evident in the play of the Indians right from tip off. Senior Morgan Adams led the initial surge with eight points in a 16-6 run. She would finish the game with a career high 20 points.

KML was not going down without a fight. The Chargers battled back to within two, until Adams and Madi Dogs each posted four points apiece in an 8-0 run which extended the Indians lead to 25-14.

Dogs would finish the game with 15 after missing the previous two games due to an ankle injury. By intermission, the Indians led 30-18.

KML started the second half aggressively, forcing turnovers and closing the gap to six with some deep threes.

However, six is as close as they would come to the Indians.

Kewaskum slowed the tempo of the game and had good possessions working the ball inside for high percentage shots.

With 3:38 left on the clock, Kewaskum led 49-35.

Utilizing great ball fakes and crisp passing, the Indians chewed up a minute 42 off the clock before KML could foul and put Dogs at the charity line. The desperation fouls continued until time ran out with the score 55-35.

The defense was outstanding in this game holding the Chargers leading scorer Makenzie Luehring to 12 points, nine under her average, and Madeline Leffel finished with 11 total, just 1-5 from beyond the arc. The Indians ruled the glass as well, holding a 34-22 rebounding advantage.

The quest for the grail continued with Berlin on Feb. 7 and then a showdown with Waupun at home on Friday, Feb. 10.

AN Outdoorsman's JOURNAL

Lake Tomah/A Good Time had by All

MARK WALTERS
 COLUMNIST

This week's column is all about what can happen when good people pull together and try to do good things.

I have mentioned that Kids and Mentors Outdoors (KAMO) – kamokids.org – which is dedicated to helping get kids outside, is on a pretty good roll and if you would please keep reading you will find out what I mean.

FRIDAY, JAN. 20
HIGH 19, LOW 9

One of the seven chapters of KAMO is out of New Lisbon, and it is called The Meadow Valley Chapter of KAMO.

I make as many of their meetings as I can, and we recently had a couple of new guys join our group that had recently retired.

I just met Charley Rydmark, who had a long military career that ended as a Maintenance Superintendent in the Air Control Squadron at Volk Field. Charley is an avid outdoorsman and is very into elk and mule deer hunting in Montana. He purchased a 16-foot enclosed trailer and completely rigged it up for living in and can haul his UTV in it, as well.

So, this week's outing for Meadow Valley was on Lake Tomah, and they invited the Coulee Chapter of KAMO "La Crosse" and The New Lisbon High School Fishing Team to join us.

We were ice fishing, eating good food and each kid was given an ice fishing rod and reel as well as some jigs.

Charley, myself and another of my new buddies – who is Randy Rowell of the Sparta area – felt compelled to arrive a day early and pre-fish, sleep in Charley's Mansion and have fun.

We are hoping Randy joins the KAMO gang, as he is lots of fun. He also owns a very nice snowmobile.

Lucas and Gail Traut, both of La Crosse, are all smiles after Lucas caught his first northern pike on a tip-up. MARK WALTERS PHOTO
